The last case was continued from a week ago, being a suit brought by Marguerite Burdick to collect $186 for services and attendance for 42 days at $4 a day from Mrs. Almeda Varian, 56, when she was ill shortly after the death of her sister, Mrs. Manwaring. Mrs. Varian on the stand testified that she paid Mrs. Burdick $50, claiming that plaintiff said she was satisfied at that time with the payment. David Crumb of Stonington, a nephew of Mrs. Varian testified to seeing the amount of money being paid to Mrs. Burdick at the time of one of his four visits to his aunt while she was ill. Judge Turano gave judgment for the plaintiff to recover with interest, the amount being $204.40.

Police Constable Michael Burke completes his duties as a regular patrolman on the Westerly police force tonight (Saturday). His retirement as a regular patrolman is said to be due to the desire of the police commission to reduce expenses by the elimination of a patrolman who has had the Pierce street beat.

Dr. and Mrs. Albert H. Spicer, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Campbell of Westerly and Dr. and Mrs. Henry E. Utter of Providence are members of a party to leave Rhode Island this (Saturday) for a trip to Montreal and Quebec. On their return they will be joined by a Westerly party of young people who are to attend the winter sports at Beckets, Sugar Hill, N. H., leaving Westerly Wednesday next.

The individual team scores in the Westerly Masonic and Mistuxet club bridge tournament played in the Mistuxet club rooms in Stonington on Thursday evening follow:

Westerly Masonic: Smith, McLaren 3706, Hodgson, Lamb 3594, Samuels, Haswell 2942, Rathbun, Mitchell, 1761, H. Saunders, L. Hiscox 1796. Total 13800.

Stonington Mistuxet: Carson, Freedman 2767, Harper, Hyde 1852, Pendleton, Hammond 2691, Bindloss, Crandall 2066, Chesebro, Keelb 1761. Total 13,064.

A valentine tea is planned by the members of the World Wide Guild of Calvary, Baptist church. The reception committee consists of Mrs. Lewis A. Walker, Miss Anna S. Pendleton, Miss M. Edwinna Arnold, Mrs. Lloyd W. Willard, Mrs. Isaac G. Smith and Mrs. Ralph L. Segar.

The final meeting of the members of Palestine temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., and other Masonic bodies which met in Providence is to be held this (Saturday) evening in Providence, when these members who have been working for the erection of a new temple in the capitol city will hear the results of their efforts.

John Geer and William Main of Pendleton Hill were business callers in Westerly Thursday.

PENDLETON HILL

The storm of ice and sleet Tuesday did considerable damage to the trees. In some instances the entire tree was weighed down and large branches of others were broken off. The trees on the highway were so bowed down as to obstruct the road. It was a beautiful, though glaring, sight, Thursday morning, but the sun soon melted the ice.

A dance was held at the Palmer Brown house Saturday night and was well attended.

Miss Lucy Hester spent the week-end at her home at Gales Ferry.

Best wishes of the community have been extended to Mr. and Mrs. Irving H. Thompson, married recently.

Associations of producers would be aided in various ways by the department of agriculture in obtaining and promoting better markets under a bill introduced by Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, leader of the farm bloc

(Signed) HELEN BOISCLAIR His Wife

In Loving Memory of HAZEL E. HERSKELL Who died February 9, 1923

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her happy face to see
To hear her voice and see her smile
That meant so much to us.

She suffered much, she murmured not,
As we watched her day by day,
Until at last, with broken hearts
She left us and passed away.

To Publish Peace Plan

Dr. Charles Herbert Levermore's peace plan, which won the $100,000 prize offered by Edward W. Bok, will be published in a book with about fifteen other plans submitted in the contest, it is announced. The book, which is expected to be ready in April, will be edited by Miss Esther Everett Lape, member in charge of the policy committee of the American Peace Award.

Miss Lape said that among the 22,-165 plans received by the committee were several of great interest, force and value besides that which won the prize and that, aside from this relatively small group, that were many which contained ideas, brief arguments and general contributions to the discussions of peace which had both brilliancy and point.

In her introduction and analysis of the plans she will give an account of the plans she will give an account of their nature and sources, and will indicate the conclusions to be drawn as to the aggregate view of the American people on the questions of peace.

SIX DIVORCES ARE GRANTED WITH DESERTION CLAIM IN EACH

Six divorce petitions were on the uncontested list in the superior court for hearings before Judge C. L. Avery in New London, Friday morning, and all were granted. Desertion was the ground on which divorce was sought and granted in each case.

Ethel M. Branch, of New London, was granted a divorce from Earle C. Branch, a soldier at Fort Wright. They were married on June 7, 1918, and the separation took place on March 28, 1920. She was given the custody of a four and a half year old child. The petitioner's maiden name was Bliven.

William Majkowski of New London was granted a divorce from Viola Majkowski of parts unknown. He said that his wife left him in Albany in June, 1917, and that he has not seen her since. He came to New London to live in October, 1918. The couple were married on May 6, 1914.

Viola Cooper Hoy, of New London, secured a divorce from John E. Hoy, of the same city, who, the petitioner said, left her four years ago. They have two children, one of whom is living with the father and the other with the mother. Mrs. Hoy was given custody of the child living with her.

Domenica M. Tudisco of Pawcatuck was given a divorce from Michael Tudisco, of parts unknown, and she was allowed to resume her maiden name of Mariano. They were married on July 22, 1909, and the desertion took place about Aug. 1, 1913.

Alice M. DeWolf, of this city, was granted a divorce from Charles I. DeWolf, of Salem, whom she married on May 8, 1912. She said that he abused her and drove her away from his home about 11 years ago. The petitioner was given permission to resume the name of Blanchard, which was her name before her marriage to DeWolf.

Lester A. Brewer, of Old Mystic, was granted a divorce from Ida Locke Brewer, of parts unknown. They became husband and wife on Dec. 25, 1900, and the defendant left on July 13, 1919. The father was given the custody of five children.

SHOULD HAVE SCHOOLHOUSES OFF TRAFFIC STREETS

The location of new school houses on sites off main thoroughfares is one of the latest suggestions advanced in the progressive campaign to combat traffic hazards in Connecticut. Professor Wilbur F. Gordy of Hartford, historian and former school superintendent in the Capital City, has made the safety of the children in the face of increasing traffic one of the outstanding points in an advisory letter against the location of a new high school on the main street of West Hartford.

"Something more is needed than fine buildings or even expert teaching, and that is the best possible working conditions," says Mr. Gordy's letter, a copy of which has been forwarded to the state motor vehicle department for use in the advancement of its safety work. "One of the most important essentials of such conditions is that the school room surroundings shall be quiet so that both teacher and pupil shall be able to hear easily all that is said by one another during the recitation period. Much noise from the outside is fatal to the best work in the school room. In view of this fact, I do not hesitate to say that if your high school building is placed near the highway on such an important thoroughfare as South Main street, the efficiency of the work done, especially in the front rooms, would be seriously cut down. And what adds to the seriousness of such a drawback is, of course, the outstanding fact that noise from the rapidly increasing traffic will be much greater in years to come than it is now. Still another objection to placing your high school building on such a leading street as South Main street is that not many years hence, when West Hartford becomes much larger than it is now, the cost of traffic officers who must be employed in the neighborhood of the school at the time of dismissals will be no small items of expense to your town." The professor pointed out that most Connecticut towns have such an abundance of land which is available at reasonable cost that the factor of traffic hazards and interference with school work can be eliminated.

Several people have communicated to the motor vehicle department the opinion that the erection of school houses on principal thoroughfares in cities and towns where convenience outside acreage is available is reprehensible, not only unnecessarily endangering the children's lives but hindering traffic and often causing unwarranted delays to business men

REMOVING DECAYED TREES ALONG MAIN ROADS

Removal of all decayed trees bordering main line roads in Connecticut has been undertaken by the state highway department in the hope of removing the danger of highway blockades during heavy wind storms. Acting on instructions from Commissioner John A. MacDonald, all foremen have laid plans to do away with this hazard as a result of observations of the department that such dead trees are likely to contribute towards accidents on the highways.

No actual cases of accidents involving falling trees across the roadways have come to the attention of the department, but it is felt that if this precaution is taken the probability of mishaps of this kind will be removed.

A further step towards increasing the safety of Connecticut's highways is contained in a decision by the department to require contractors to receive permits from the state before any excavation is done on trunk line and state aid roads. Under this ruling, a copy of the permit must be posted at each end of the excavating, which will serve as a warning and at the same time require those in charge of the work to see that no unnecessary hazards are put in the pathway of motorists passing by.

MAKES COMPENSATION AWARD FOR INJURY TO LEG

In the workmen's compensation claim of Arthur Bassett of 69 Norwich avenue, Taftville, an employe of Archibald Torrance of this city, Commissioner J. J. Donohue has made a finding and award that Bassette is entitled to specific compensation for 60.67 weeks at the rate of $17.49 for the loss of one-third use of his injured leg. Bassette sustained a fracture of the right tibia while at work on Jan. 20, 1923. It is decreed that the respondent shall forthwith pay to the claimant $1,035.41, which is compensation at the rate of $17.49 per week for a total of 60.67 weeks, 57 weeks of which have been commuted at 4 per cent. in accordance with the statutes. Weekly compensation at $17.49 has been paid up to July 8, 1923, and partial incapacity payments at $3.75 from July 9, 1923 to Jan. 12, 1924. The claimant was able to resume work on July 9, 1923.

Workmen's Compensation.

Workmen's compensation agreements as follows have been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

Robertson Paper Co., Montville, employer, and Charles Fox, Montville, employe, tore skin of right hand, 33 weeks at $8.74 for the loss of use of 25 per cent of right hand.

The Mohican Co., New York, employer, and Samuel Swatsburg, 32 Summit St. Norwich, employe, cut on thumb, at rate of $15.00.

Robertson Paper Co., Montville, employer, and Raymond Davis, employe, Montville, rupture, at rate of $9.50.

Unclaimed Letters.

Unclaimed letters in the Norwich, Conn., post office for the week ending Feb. 9, 1924, are as follows: Morgan Blake, Antonio Di Mocia, William J. Graves and Charles O. Lyon (4).

LAYMEN'S EVANGELISM EFFORT OPENS HERE SUNDAY

Dr. A. Earl Kernahan who directs the visitation evangelism in Norwich next week spent this week in the city explaining details and meeting the workers' groups. The pastors of the nine cooperating churches have been in frequent consultation and look forward to the first day of actual work on Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Kernahan met groups this week at the Central Baptist, the West Side churches, the Norwich Town churches and the United church. Nine churches are cooperating.

The Norwich churches through the Ministers' association have recently completed a religious survey of the city. This furnished a large list of persons who though not identified with the local churches still expressed preference for particular organizations or denominations. These people will be called upon by these workers in the next six days and a simple invitation to the open avowal of Christian discipleship and affiliation with the church of their choice extended.

The coming weeks' schedule is as follows:

Sunday at 2.30 p. m. All persons interested meet at United church for instruction.

Sunday at 6.30 Union Young People service at Trinity Methodist church. Dr. Kernahan will preach.

Sunday at 7.30, Union service of worship at Trinity Methodist church. Dr. Kernahan will preach.

Monday at 6.15, Supper at Central Baptist church. All workers from all churches will make reports, receive instruction and be given assignments.

Tuesday at 6.15, Workers' supper at Community House. Calling begins at 7.

Wednesday at 6.15 at Community House also.

Thursday, at 6.15, at Community House also.

Church Calendar Appeal

One of the church calendars for Sunday contains this appeal to the congregation:

Today ushers in a week destined to stand out conspicuously in the religious life of Norwich. It marks the greatest cooperative movement in the interest of evangelism which Norwich has witnessed in a long time. Nine churches are united in this common effort and will have representatives at the workers' meeting in the United church this afternoon at two-thirty o'clock.

Another unique feature of this cooperative program of evangelism is the place of the laity. We have all associated evangelism with large public meetings and generally with professional evangelists. In this week's program there will be no public meetings except the union service tonight. There will be workers' suppers as scheduled in the opposite page.

Instead of one man bearing testimony in a public meeting we hope to have a hundred and fifty bearing testimony in the homes of the people. These visitors are not going out to preach but to speak a good word for Jesus Christ and to urge a Christian decision on the part of those to whom they go. This is the method by which the first disciples were won to Christ. It is this same method by which most of the world's business is done today, the individual approach of man to man.

May I remind you again of the brevity of this effort, less than one week—from Sunday to Friday. I therefore appeal to all to clear the track of everything that can be side-tracked. Let the program of Jesus have right of way this week and see what the results will be.

The blessings which come to those who go out and to our church and community are beyond calculation. Every one of us can help somewhere. "Lord, what will Thou have me to do, what is my part?" should be the earnest inquiry of every one who is named with the name of Christ.

Instructions to Workers

Another of the church calendars contains the following instruction to workers:

Four Appeals That Win

First—The appeal of conscience. Everyone is born with a basic religious instinctive nature. Jesus Christ so fits in to human personality that He makes His own appeal. The appeal of the life God would have the prospect live, the appeal of what his conscience and best judgment tells him he ought to do, or the appeal of right and duty, are appeals which are very effective.

Our second most effective appeal is that of the Christian home. Many parents will do things for the sake of their children that they will not do for their own sake. A United Brethren minister at South Bend reported at a workers' meeting that he was visiting with a police sergeant about the Christian life and Christian home. The police sergeant was doing much of the talking. Before the minister was ready to make his appeal to win the man, the sergeant had talked himself into the decision, so pointing to his four year old boy playing on the floor, he remarked: "That boy is the reason why my wife and I ought to be Christians and members of your church."

We all recognise that it was a sufficient reason.

The third outstanding appeal is that of service. This is the best type of an appeal for a modern man who has a vision of community service. It is also the best appeal in winning youth. To illustrate its strength in winning young men, all I need do is suggest how our boys by the millions responded to the heroic sacrificial appeal for service for their country, so that, if necessary, millions of them were to die upon the battlefields of France. In dealing with red blooded youth, we never need be afraid of making a strong appeal for Christian manhood, Christian service for society or service for Christ and His church.

The fourth appeal is that of being saved or getting to heaven. This appeal is not successful in winning the modern man or in winning youth. It was, however, the outstanding evangelistic appeal of our preaching of yesterday, but in my judgment it is the poorest of the four appeals for today and the appeal from which we secure the least response. If anyone is elderly, about to die, or has had a certain historical background of religious training, then they might respond to this appeal. Or if the prospect has recently been saddened by a saintly mother passing on to glory or a child that is now safe in the care of loving Heavenly Father, these experiences sometimes tender the heart and make possible reaching the prospect.

SIX PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH IN INCENDIARY FIRE

Perished When Fire Destroyed a Three-Tenement House in Rockville Center, N. Y.—Four of the Victims Were Children—Two Negro Families Living on the Third Floor Escaped by Jumping Into a Net—Police Caught a Baby Which Was Thrown From a Second Floor Window.

Rockville Center, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Before policemen on the scene had called the village volunteer fire department, six persons, including four children, had been burned to death in a fire, believed of incendiary origin, which today destroyed a three story tenement house recently converted from an inn.

Two negro families on the third floor escaped by gaining access to the front porch roof from a second floor window and by jumping to a net improvised by policemen who answered the alarm of a passerby.

When the police arrived, Mrs Angelo CSamarana, holding her nine-months old baby, was standing on the window sill of the second floor apartment which she occupied. The police backed their automobile underneath this window, caught the baby which Mrs Camarana threw to them and then helped the mother climb down. Mother and infant were burned about their head and face.

As policemen tried to climb into a second story window, they saw the floor collapse. It was at this time that a hurry call was sent to the firemen.

From the wreckage were removed the the bodies of Camarana, John Santilana, a roomer in the Camarana apartment, and four Camarana children, Anthony 14, Frank 12, Fannie 4, nd Carrie three.

Fire Chief Wood declared the blaze as incendiary. He and District Attorney Weeks started inquiries. Edward Taylor, one of the negro occupants of the third floor, was closely questioned at police headquarters. Police declared they could not find Claude Jenings, head of the other negro family and Angelo Dalerico, who occupied the second floor apartment into which the negrees broke their way to reach the porch.

MRS. CANDLER NOT AT HOME OF HER HUSBAND

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 10—Mrs. Asa G. Candler, today had left the home of the millionaire soft drink magnate, whose bride she became last June, and reported to have spent the night at the apartment of a woman friend at which she was arrested yesterday afternoon by Police Chief James L. Beavers, along with two prominent Atlanta businessmen.

Friends of the Candler family declared today that Mrs. Candler who was a public stenographer before she married Mr. Candler did not spend the night at the home of her husband, and that she had not been there during the day. Mrs. Candler could not be located today for a statement.

William J. Stoddard, president of the National Dry Cleaners association, who also was arrested in the raid, indignantly declined today to discuss the incident, and no statement was forthcoming from G. W. Keeling, president of a brick manufacturing company, who was the third person arrested.

"Do I have to make a statement about a business conference," was Stoddard's reply when questioned about the raid: "I don't see where it is anybody's business."

Mr. Candler, who last week won the $500,000 breach of promise suit instituted against him by Mrs. Onezima de Bouchel, of New Orleans, was silent today concerning the arrest of his wife. His attorney, W. D. Thompson said that Candler would make no statement.

The next development in the arrest is scheduled for Tuesday in police court, when Mrs. Candler, Mr. Stoddard and Mr. Keeling, will face charges of being occupants of a "disorderly house," which is the all-embracive charges lodged by police against persons arrested in a place where liquor is being drunk.

On the police docket, Mrs. Candler gave her age as thirty-four while Mr. Stoddard give his age as forty-four and Mr. Keeling as forty-five. Mr. Candler is more than seventy years old, and has been married once before.

Chief Beavers was confined to his home today, with a bad case of gripe. But at headquarters it was stated that the "tip" on which the raid was made was given by friends of the Candler family, and that Mrs. Candler, when informed she was under arrest, demanded to know who had the police she was at the apartment.

NEW HAVEN FIREMAN FOUND RING VALUED AT $2,000

New Haven, Feb. 10.—A curious shaped gold ring, said to have once been a part of the jewels of a British king and which tallies in detail with one which disappeared from the English court in 1610 and has since been listed on the records as of unknown whereabouts, was found by Charles Burns, fireman of the local fire department, in the sand near Thimble Islands. Thimble Islands has long been noted as a rendezvous of the famous Captain Kidd and it is believed that the ring was a part of the treasure loot of the pirate whom, according to well known legends, buried his spoils along in this vicinity.

Burns was on a clamming trip when he unearthed the ring which is composed of four bands, joined by clasped hands. History states that the nearest resemblance to the ring was worn by Lady Catherine Grey and said to have signified her marriage with the Earl of Hertford. Queen Elizabeth, displeased with the union, sent Hertford to the Tower of London in confinement and subjected Lady Catherine to many hardships until the validity of the marriage was proven. The marriage was later dissolved by a commission and so pronounced in the palace of the Bishop of London in 1562.

Burns has deposited the ring in a safe deposit vault and has refused to offer of $2,000 for its purchase. He said he intends to make a further search of the beach in the hope of uncovering other trinkets.

RESEARCH WORK DESIGNED TO ERADICATE DIPHTHERIA

New York, Feb 10.—Diphtheria will be eradicated within five years through the research work of the Milbank memorial fund, it was prophesied by Dr. Matthias Nicoll, Jr., state health commissioner, in a report to the organization's advisory council made public tonight.

If Syracuse, where one of the Milbank fund demonstrations is being conducted, dies not eradicate diphtheria within five years, I shall be very much disappointed," Dr. Nicoll said. "I feel very strongly and would like to make a prophecy that it will come about."

The Milbank foundation, the report said, was spending $2,000,000 in health work in New York state "to demonstrate a belief held by many public health and social workers that within the next half century at least, twenty years can be added to the present average life span."

EXPERTS COMMITTEE HAS RETURNED TO PARIS

Paris Feb. 10—(By the A. P.)—Most of the members of the second experts committee which has been in Berlin endeavoring to ascertain their whereabouts of German "hidden" capital and methods to secure its return returned to Paris late last night. The committee, which is headed by Reginald McKenna, former chancellor of the British exchequer will spend the coming week digesting the numerous written answers from German officials to questions covering its field of inquiry.

The committee will hold its first meeting here a week from tomorrow most of the European members will take advantage of the interval to consult their respective governments. While still preserving discreet silence regarding the details of their investigation in the German capital, the member sof the committee continued today to express optimism over the prospects of a practicable report and general satisfaction over the results obtained in Berlin. The general impression is that the Germans, both officials and the industrial leaders were quite frank and unreserved in answering questions.

There also continues to be remarkable unity within the ranks of the committee. Al lthe members apparently are anxious with the data they have gathered to present a short terse and business like report. In this way, it is said, the members feel that the possible danger of running counter to purely national interests will be reduced to a minimum.

What the committee wishes to avoid it was remarked today, is the possibility of having to make a report split into sections, and thus run the rank of having its effectiveness emasculated by laudatory approval in principle and subtle disagreement in detail.

The unanimous adoption by the first committee of experts now in Berlin of the plan for the creation of a gold bank has been well received by the French newspapers, which express the view that this action constitutes the most important step toward the stabilization of German exchange yet formulated. It will require a certain length of time, however, to complete the project. Dr. Schacht, president of the reichsbank will be heard by the committee again on February 18 in Paris.

McADOO TO APPEAR AT OIL LEASE HEARING TODAY

Washington, Feb. 10—William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury and a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination, will appear tomorrow before the senate oil committee to tell of his professional relations with the Doheny oil companies. Mr. McAdoo will be the only witness heard tomorrow and at the conclusion of his statement, the committee will consider the nomination of Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago, and former senator Atlee Pomerene, of Ohio, to be special government counsel in the oil lease cases. Some opposition to them has arisen but a favorable report of the committee and confirmation by the senate is forecast.

Before reaching these nominations, however, the senate will dispose of the Robinson resolution demanding the resignation of Secretary Denby. Under a unanimous consent agreement, the discussion of this resolution will end at five p. m. tomorrow and voting will begin on all pending amendments and finally the resolution itself.

Although without verification, rumors persisted today of pending cabinet changes. While there was no formal statement from the secretary of the navy, it was understood that he would not resign under fire. Moreover, it was said that no suggestion that he should quit had come from the white house. It was added that no intimation had been made to the secretary that his continuance in office as a defender of the oil leases would prove embarrassing to the special government counsel in the court proceedings brought to attack the validity of the transactions.

MORRIS B. DIAMOND GUILTY OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER

New York, Feb. 10.—Morris B. Diamond last night was found guilty of murder in the first degree in connection with the killing of William H. McLoughlin and William S. Carlow, bank messengers in a Brooklyn elevated station last November. The trial started Friday.

Diamond had deliberated 65 minutes.

Diamond received the verdict with indifference but his real emotion was betrayed when the clerk of the court asked the questions customary after a defendant's fate has been made known. Dispite his obvious effort to appear unconcerned, Diamond answered haltingly.

The convicted man then was taken by bailiffs to the cell in the basement of the courthouse to await a van which was to carry him to the Raymond street jail.

WILLIAM H. ANDERSON PROTESTS HIS INNOCENCE

New York, Feb. 10.—A letter from William H. Anderson protesting his innocence of the charges on which he was convicted January 29 and sentenced last week to from one to two years in state's prison, and conveying his resignation as superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, was made public today by the league. An announcement made at Gloversville, N. Y., yesterday, that the league's directors had unanimously accepted the resignation, was confirmed.

Anderson, who was found guilty of third degree forgery for alleged tampering with the league's books, asserted he resigned so that his connection with the organization might not keep from its membership those who were "unable to comprehend" the kind of service he had rendered the league.

The former state superintendent, declaring he had given twenty-four years of his life to the dry cause and was willing "to lay down his life at any time" for that cause, added that he did not shrink from the "greater sacrifice" of having his good name falsely attacked as a result of his accomplishments.

His work, he continued, had put him in a false position in two respects: "by trying to save the league the cost of this work, I left myself open to misrepresentation in case a trusted associate went wrong; in order to preserve inviolate a confidence respecting the assistance without which these victories would have been impossible, I accepted a situation which would leave me helpless if I were even unfairly called upon to prove my story."

Mr. Anderson declared that an appeal for his conviction, which he intimated was contemplated, would be certain to vindicate him. He expressed appreciation of the loyalty shown him by the board, and in submitting his resignation, remarked "it will afford a sense of inexpressible relief to be able with a clear conscience to lay down for a while the responsibilities of his post.

OVERWHELMING VICTORY FOR MEXICAN FEDERALS

Mexico City, Feb. 10—(By the A. P.)—The federal forces have achieved an overwhelming victory over the rebels after eleven hours of furious fighting on the banks of Lerma river at Ocotlan, according to a report by General Amaro to President Obregon.

Heavy casualties were suffered by both sides.

A number of the commanding generals were killed during the crossing of the river, dispatches say, subsequent to the storming of "death's balcony," as the soldiers call the rebel trenches.

After crossing the river, the federal troops successfully attacked the rebel positions at Cuitzeo, forcing the main rebel column to hoist the white flag and sound bugles calling for a parley, according to the dispatches.

The following dispatch was sent early today to General Arnolfe Gomez, military commandant in Mexico City, by President Obregon:

"I am pleased to report that our loyal soldiers have given the highest example that can be demanded in bravery and loyalty while crossing the Lerma river, where the rebels have organized defenses, aided by the natural advantages in that region.

"The battle lasted eleven hours without any truce, beginning at seven o'clock (Saturday), in the morning and ending at six o'clock in the evening. It is impossible to give an estimate of the losses suffered by the enemy, because the fighting ended at nightfall over a very extensive area.

"Our troops suffered 300 casualties, more or less, in dead and wounded, because the crossing of the river over an improvised bridge and the subsequent assault had to be done under rebel fire.

STAMFORD ELOPERS ... HELD IN PITTSBURG

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 10—Florence Hogan, 16, and William Hearing 19 of Stamford Conn. were detained today as elopers. The police are awaiting advice from their parents.

Stamford, Conn. February 10—

Florence Hogan 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Hogan, of 122 Richmond Hill avenue, and William Hearing, 19, also of this place left their work yesterday at noon.

The Pittsburgh police found out that Hearing had relatives in West Virginia and thinking that the two were headed for that place to be married, held them while the girl's father was notified. Mr. Hogan went to Pittsburgh today to bring his daughter back. The girl's parents, it is said, knew nothing about any intention on her part to marry. They stated that while they had no special objection to Hearing, they considered their daughter too young to marry.

GIRL FATALLY BURNED PREPARING BREAKFAST

Brockton, Mass. February 10—Rose Strangis, ten year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Strangis of this city, died at a hospital here this afternoon from burns received when her clothes caught fire as she was preparing breakfast for the three younger children.

Mrs. Strangis, who is seriously ill at another hospital here, was not told of the child's death.

Dr Robert E. Brown, for nearly 13 years pastor of the Second Congregational church in Waterbury, and nationally known as a clergyman, resigned yesterday. Dr. Brown has accepted the unanimous call to the pastorate of the First Congregational church, Oakland, Calif.

Review Shows That Business is Brisk

Railroad Car Loadings Reveal a Maintenance of Large Distribution of Goods.

New York, Feb. 10 (By the A. P.)—Industrial news had a cheerful affect during the past week in business and financial circles. The basic industries continued to show a high rate of operation and the weekly railroad car loading report revealed a maintenance of the large distribution of goods which followed the year-end slump.

The number of cars, loaded with revenue freight during the week ended January 26, reached 891,000. This is 4,000 less than in the previous week but is 22,000 above the corresponding week a year ago.

Figures from the steel industry meanwhile reflect a substantial improvement in business. The rate of pig iron production increased during January for the first time since last spring. The month's production of steel ingots was 25 per cent above that during January. The steel corporation's unfilled orders increased for the second consecutive month and the January gain, 353,000 tons, exceeded expectations.

A greater demand for lead at higher prices reflected satisfactory conditions in the building, automobile and electrical industries. Even textiles showed a better tone at times, although the trade here is waiting to see how the problem raised by higher raw material costs will be solved.

Commodity prices continued firm. Bradstreet's index, which is heavily weighed with textiles, declined slightly during Januady but Dun's index advanced by an approximately similar amount. Taken together, the two reflected a satisfactory degree of stability.

Cotton, having rallied from 32 cents to 33 cents, felt the effects of profit taking and short selling. After falling back to slightly more than 33 cents, however, this commodity firmed up nearly one cent.

Wheat continued its creeping advance until the May future touched $1.13 3-8, which is 5 5-8 cents above the price of two weeks ago. The improvement was accompanied by a more bullish sentiment which had its foundation in light receipts and expectations of government assistance to the farming districts. Profit taking took a cent or two off the best prices but the undertone remained firm. A brief flurry in call money at New York, found no reflection in the weekly bank statements. The latter, in fact, disclosed further contraction and greater reserve banking resources. In addition, the call money market relaxed, and ended the week on a 4 1-4 per cent basis.

A great deal of interest was shown in financial circles in reports concerning the impending Japanese loan. It is thought that $150,000,000 will be offered in this market and that the strong syndicate which has been formed in London will take the equivalent of approximately $100,000,00u.

TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF WOODROW WILSON

Washington, Feb. 10.—Tribute was paid today to the memory of Woodrow Wilson in the Central Presbyterian church here, where he had worshipped in his vigorous days. President and Mrs. Coolidge, and many high government officials were present to hear the Rev. Dr. James H. Taylor, deliver his sermon: "A Great Man Has Fallen," and to listen to those hymns the dead president loved. They sat near Mr. Wilson's flag-draped pew, which is to be in mourning for thirty days.

Intimate glimpses into the life of the war president were given by Dr. Taylor.

"We can say of him in all due reverence," he said, "that God sent a man into the world; a man of great spirit and purpose; a man of great intellectual power, and moral idealism; a man who was a seed and a prophet of peace, to be a leader of his people and a friend to the world, whose name is Woodrow Wilson."

Gloucester, Mass., Feb. 10—Henry A. Spates, who lives at Brier Neck, a summer colony near here used a charge of buckshot to stop three men from entering his cottage early today. Spates and his wife had heard an automobile drive up to their place, and through a window watched the men enter a store nearby and then approach their home.

After the shooting, the men fled in the car which was ditched and abandoned at a sharp turn of the road leading to Gloucester. At daybreak, Gloucester police surrounded a house in this city and captured Manuel Francis, Arthur F. Dennis and George W. Silva. Manuel's left leg was found to be torn with shot.

Arrests for Theft Of $106,000 Bonds

Two Men and Two Boys Taken Into Custody — Bank Messenger Involved.

New York, Feb. 10.—Two men and two boys were arrested early today for the theft of $106,000 worth of negotiable bonds from the brokerage firm of Herzfeld & Stern, last Monday.

One of the prisoners, Romeo Forlini, 40 years old, was said by the police to have directed the bond theft and have negotiated the entire transaction. The others arrested were Max Kaplan, 32 years old; Max Bauman, 19, and a boy of 17, who, under the name of Jack Lombardo, obtained a job as messenger for the bond house two weeks ago and made off with the bonds.

Lombardo, who said his real name was Salvatore De W. Page, told the police Forlini had been instrumental in obtaining the bond messenger position for him. It also was Forlini, he told the police, who had directed him to make off with the bonds when he was handed them for delivery to a number of brokerage offices.

Two other men were arrested Friday in connection with the case, when the police said, they were found to be attempting to sell the stolen bonds. Bonds worth $30,000 were obtained from them. The remaining $76,000 worth of bonds have not been recovered.

TAX BILL TO BE REPORTED IN THE HOUSE TODAY

Washington, Feb. 10.—The revenue bill providing for complete revision of the federal taxes and for a 25 per cent. reduction in 1923 personal income taxes payable this year, will reach the house tomorrow from the ways and means committee, and on Thursday, will be taken up for debate.

Leaders predict the measure will be before the house at least two weeks and possibly four. An indication of the fight which will be made on the bill, particularly its income tax rates, which are the same as suggested by Secretary Mellon, was given today in the announcement that four separate reports would be made by the committee members.

There will be three reports from the republican members one signed by the eleven democrats of the committee. Chairman Green will submit the republican report but an additional one will be sent in by the eleven republicans of the committee who voted for the Mellon rates, arguing more vigorously than the chairman for the maximum surtax rate of 25 per cent. Representative Frear, Wisconsin, republican insurgent, already has made public another report in which he argues against any reduction in the surtax rates and for a greater cut in the nominal rates.

The democratic report will demand lower tax rates and higher surtax rates than carried by the bill and additional exemptions.

Republicans through Representative Longworth Ohio, the floor leader, have admitted the Mellon surtax rates are doomed. Mr. Longworth conveyed this message to President Coolidge yesterday after Representative Begg, of Ohio, had completed a poll of the republican membership. Mr. Begg announced a maximum surtax rate between 32 and 40 per cent. would be agreeable to a majority of the party and that about 35 or 37 per cent. would be sufficient to prevent passage of the democratic plan for a maximum rate of 44 per cent.

FRENCH DEPUTIES RESENT METHODS OF POINCARE

Paris, Feb. 10—After having been prodded by Premier Poincare until it consented to vote the 1924 budget along with that of 1923, the chamber of deputies has just shown its contempt for such efforts to force it out of its sluggishness by producing a final report on the budget of 1914.

In serious measure the budget reporter announces at the outset of the report that an examination of the budget of 1914, is of special interest. Two hundred and fifty seven pages are necessary to set forth what the reporter has to offer concerning the sum France spent ten years ago. Premier Poincare, who also is a stickler for addition, but more energetic in dealing with public questions, required only a quarter of this number of pages to solve the problem of balancing the budget for 1924.

CHICAGO TROOPS HAVE BEEN ORDERED TO DUTY AT HERRIN

With Their Arrival 1,700 State Troops Will Be in Williamson County—One of the Men Charged With the Murder of Constable Cagle Has Escaped—S. Glenn Young Has Become Acting Chief of Police — An Atmosphere of Tenseness Prevails Throughout the County.

Herrin, Ill., Feb. 10.—(By the A. P.)—Adjutant General Carlos E. Black, this evening issued an order for the immediate entraining of the 132nd infantry of the Illinois stat militia, a Chicago unit and of the 130th infantry, composed of companies from southern Illinois to proceed at once for this city.

The Chicago troops have been ordered to leave Chicago at one oclock Monday morning and will arrive in Herrin at 2.30 p. m. Monday. The 130th infantry is expected to arrive shortly after this hour. This will bring the total number of state troops in Herrin and the whole of Williamson county to 1,700.

Herrin appeared as peaceful as the calm almost springlike Sabbath that greeted it today but there was an atmosphere of tenseness in the air as grim faced citizens deputized as special police, with revolvers protruding from their pockets and national guardsmen, with fixed bayonets, patrolled the streets.

But if Herrin appeared quiet, it was not so throughout the county and even in other parts of the southern end of the state. M. J. Trout, one of the men charged with the murder of Constable Caesar Cagle last Friday night, who was being held under guard at the Herrin hospital, escaped and several auto loads of searchers were scouring the countryside for him.

A half hundred others were on the trail of John Ford, chief of police of Herrin, and Patrolman Harold Crain, kidnapped by Sheriff George Galligan after a riot at Rome hall here Friday night. Galligan, who was subsequently charged with Cagle's murder, in a statement declared he took the policemen to Murphysboro for their own safety.

Efforts of S. Glenn Young, acting chief of police of Herrin and according to local Ku Klux Klansmen, their paid employee, to effect the release of the police officers from the jail at Murphysboro yesterday, were of no avail. Last night a number of deputised citizens went to Murphysboro after the officers but when the reached there, the police had disappeared and according to their reports, had been taken to Belleville, Ill.

Young charged the sheriff's forces with the kidnapping of the policemen and today stated they are shunting them from one part of the state to another with the ultimate purpose of keeping them out of Herrin, as they are witnesses to the shooting of Cagle.

Although Adjutant General Carlos Black arrived here from Springfield at 3 o'clock this morning, this afternoon he had not given any indications of his intentions to recommend that the city be placed under martial law. Other officers here and many citizens, however, declare that martial law is inevitable. Not so much for fear of the lawless, the said, but to give the city and the county a working government. C. A. Anderson, Mayor of Herrin, George Galligan, sheriff of Williamson county, are in jail, charged with Cagle's murder, Chief of Police John Ford is being held a prisoner outside the county and residents claim it is quite necessary that the military take full control.

S. Glenn Young, when asked yesterday by what manner he had become acting chief of police, declared he had been previously appointed as a policeman of Herrin and that by the common consent of the law-abiding element and the emergency that confronted the city, he was given command by the authority vested in the assistant chief of police.

Five companies of state troops are here. For the most part they are used to patrol the streets nad guard the city hall and Herrin hospital. Their work is supplemented by about 250 citizens who have been deputieaed by Young as special police. No cars were permitted to park on the streets last night and no loitering was allowed. People were kept moving and all groups either on the streets or in stores, were immediately broken up

OVER 5,000 AT FUNERAL OF MURDERED CONSTABLE

Herrin, Ill., Feb. 10.—John Ford, chief of police of Herrin, and Harold Crain, a patrolman, were brought back from Belleville, Ills., this afternoon, by a group of citizens, deputized by S. Glenn Young.

Young declared Sheriff George Galligan, now under arrest charged with the murder of Constable Caesar Cagle, kidnapped the officers and spirited them away to Murphysboro, in an adjacent county. Galligan said he took the men away for their own safety after they had charged a meeting of the Knights of the Flaming Circle, an anti-klan organization at Rome hall last Thursday night. The shooting, as the result of this clash, resulted in the death of Cagle and the serious wounding of John Layman, one of Galligan's deputies.

As Galligan was returning from Murphysboro en route to Marion yesterday, he was arrested at Carbondale by Chief of Police Cadie Adams. He was brought to Herrin by a number of special police and, in the presence of Young, telephoned Sheriff White, at Murphysboro, to release Ford and Crain.

Instead of White releasing the two officers, Young declared, White's deputies took them to Belleville, Ill., in Clair county. They were found there by about fifty of Young's deputies early today, after an all night search, and returned to Herrin.

Over five thousand people from Herrin and Williamson county assembled at the First Baptist church this afternoon to attend the funeral of Constable Caesar Cagle. Rev. I. E. Lee, pastor of the church, and the Rev. P. R. Glotfelty, both admitted klan leaders, conducted the services.

From the church the body was taken to Cartersville, Ill., for burial. More than 400 automobiles, many draped with American flags, followed the gray hearse from Herrin. When the funeral cortege arrived at Cartersville, Cagle's birthplace, it was met by another delegation nearly as large as the one at Herrin.

"PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON LECTURED IN HARTFORD

Hartford, Feb. 10—Asserting that the Moslems and the Christians who are keen rivals in the missionary field and in other respects have united in a war on alcohol, S. W. E. "Pussyfoot" Johnson, speaking today at the Central Baptist church here, declared that this combination spells doom of the liquor traffic throughout the world.

Until prohibition came in America, said Mr. Johnson, Christian missionaries found themselves handicapped by the fact that the native people in the missionary fields believed that liquor was the exclusive product of white Christians. He explained that the liquor which came to these lands was brought by white men and that the natives naturally came to the belief that liquor was a thing for which the Christian stood.

"But with the adoption of the eighteenth amendment," the prohibition leader said, "American missionaries no longer have to explain that liquor is not a Christian thing."

"FRENCH" HEEL AND TOE SHOES DISAPPEARING

Chicago, Feb. 10.—This year's shoes will have no skyscraper heels, sharply pointed toes or stunted vamps, according to the styles committee of the National Shoe Retailers association, which opens its annual convention and style review here tomorrow.

New features, buckles and materials are introduced in the exhibit of 15,000 pairs of shoes on display. None but those conforming to the style committee's slogan "Freedom From Foot Hurts" have been permitted.

"Such terms as 'French Heel' and 'French Toe' are fast disappearing" asserted G. M. Spangler, secretary-treasurer of the convention. "Today most of the models originate in America and the growth of the industry in the United States has eliminated, to a great extent, the importation of ideas from France."

DANISH AVIATOR WAS KILLED IN BUENOS AIRES

Buenos Aires, Feb. 10—The Danish Aviator J. P. Hansen, was killed today when his airplane collided with the antennae of the naval wireless station on the riverfront here. The accident occurred while Hansen was carrying out "stunts" in a bombing manoeuvre.

Thirty thousand spectators saw the accident, which occurred shortly after midnight. They were horrified when the airplane burst into flames after it had struck the lofty wires. It dropped to earth like a ball of fire. The body of the aviator was taken out of the burning wreckage, but was charred beyond recognition.

Hansen was 40 years of age. He recently accomplished a flight over the Andes with a passenger.

CHARGE WITH SLAYING OF HIS GRANDMOTHER

Plymouth, Ind., Feb. 10—Ray D. Smith, prominent Marshall county who was arrested here last night charged with the slaying of his grandmother, Mrs. Francis Sweet, 83, with questioned by officials today for his possible connection with the slaying of several other members of his family who have met violent deaths in the past few years.

Smith was arrested last night on information furnished by his wife, who is alleged to have stated that Smith killed his grandmother two years ago. Mrs. Sweet disappeared at that time and the general belief was that she had committed suicide. After Mrs. Smith's story, officials searched the Smith farm and today discovered the grandmothers' body buried beneath the concrete foundation of a chicken coup.

Officials said tonight they are investigating circumstances surrounding the death of Smith's father, mother and a former wife. The father, it was said, was the victim of a brutal hammer murder. The mother and wife were victims of poison.

Mrs. Smith told officials today she knew of Mrs. Sweet's death since a few days after the woman was killed. Constant fear for her life, had kept her silent regarding the affair, she said.

Smith, who is a wealthy farmer, has been a prominent figure in a local church and civic affairs. He has declined to discuss the case, officials said.

BRITISH PARLIAMENT TO CONVENE TOMORROW

London, Feb. 10.—(By the A. P.) The new government will face parliament next Tuesday with the onerous task of steering a safe course against an adverse majority, its life depending upon whatever assistance may be according it by the large liberal party Premier Ramsay MacDonald, whose health is not the best, os spending the week-end revising the speech in which he will announce the policy of his government. The three weeks' recess since the labor government was formed, has been too short, it is said, for the various commitee of the cabinet to prepare the necessary work and define the detailed lines of policy for the ensuing session; therefore, it is not unlikely that the prime minister's speech may be a general outline of policy, rather than a detailed programme of legislation.

William Scnell of South Manchester sustained painful injuries, some time after 1 o'clock Sunday morning, while he and three other Silk City young men were returning home after attending a dance in this city. The party had reached a point near Noble's garage, in Hop River, when the machine skidded on the ice and turned over on its side, on one side of the road. Scnell's right foot was caught between the brake and floorboard and he got a badly sprained ankle. The force of the blow also dislocated his shoulder and an X-ray is to be taken of this, to determine whether or not it was broken. Scnell was brought to St. Joseph's hospital this city, by a local man who was driving past the site of the accident. Scnell's companions were badly shaken up and the car was damaged considerably.

Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officers Chief William S. Cogdon, Stanton L. Briggs and Harry W. Avery and County Investigator William E. Jackson, assisted by Captain Thomas Grady, of the local police force, swooped into the confectionery store and restaurant at 929 Main street, this city, conducted by Philip Pagano and arrested the proprietor for violation of the liquor law, after a quantity of liquor had been found about 9.30 o'clock Saturday night. Four other men in the place were arrested as frequenters. The others were Paul Lazzid, Roassio Gollo, Nicho Covli and Joseph Christio, of this city. The evidence, which consisted of a pint bottle partly filled with white mule and three other bottles containing an unknown ingredient was found in back of the toilet door by Officer Avery. Pagano appeared amazed when he was confronted with the liquor and immediately accused Officer Avery of having "planted the evidence." This stall, however, did not impress the raiders and Pagano and his visitors were escorted to the police station. Upon arrival there Pagano lost his temper. His language became abusive and he raised his fist to land a blow at County Detective Jackson, but the blow never landed and Pagano is now suffering from a bruised eye and jaw. He was later released under a bond of $1,000 furnished by Frank Melo. The others were given freedom upon their own recognizance. All will appear in the police court this (Monday) morning. An analysis is to be made of the concoction in the three bottles to determine the percentage of alcohol which it contains.

The reputation of the Pagano place has not been up to standard within the past few months. It is alleged to have been a source of liquor for young and old, most of the sales being made through a third party.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

You Poor Kid, Why Are You So Skinny?

Don't your mother know that Cod Liver Oil will put pounds of good healthy flesh on your bones in just a few weeks?

Tell her every druggist has it in sugar-coated tablet form now so that you won't have to take the nasty, fishy-tasting oil that is apt to upset the stomach.

Tell her that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets are chock-full of vitamines and are the greatest flesh producers and health builders she can find.

One sickly, thin kid, aged 9, gained 9 pounds in 7 months.

She must ask Lee & Osgood Co., or any good druggist for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—60 tablets, 40 cents—as pleasant to take as candy.

BELIEVES EMPLOYERS SHOULD ENCOURAGE NATIONAL GUARD

E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut, in a statement issued at Hartford through C. N. G. headquarters, urges employers to give moral support to the National Guard and, in addition, practical assistance, which he explains to mean that "every manufacturing establishment and every business house should pay to national guardsmen in their employ the difference between the regular wage and the wages which they receive as national guardsmen, both during their absence at summer training camp and when called into active service by the governor of the state."

Commenting on "The Encouragement of National Guard Activities a Civic Matter," President Hubbard's statement said:

"The ever increasing importance of the national guard, as evidenced by the fact that the national defense act of 1920 placed it under more direct federal control than was the case prior to 1916, has caused thoughtful manufacturers and business men to lend their support to the development of this important branch of civic activity, for in the final analysis, civic it is rather than military.

"Even the most pronounced anti-militarists will concede the fact that the national guard, besides being our chief assurance against disregard for law and order, our only hope in great emergencies, the only force which can protect person and property in case of large disasters, is one of the finest body and mind builders for our young men.

"A citizen of Connecticut may feel perfectly secure when he knows that behind the police power of the state he has in case of emergency a larger body of well trained citizens who are capable of coping with any situation which arises. He may be in complete accord with the various plans for the establishment of world peace. He may endorse a specific plan, but he cannot fail to realize that the national guard in some form must exist for a very long period of time.

"Again, I do not believe that any employer can fail to see the advantage of having in his organization a man who is a member of our national guard. Besides being the type of man who is mentally and physically alert, he is one who during his ordinary vacation period automatically takes the most healthy and profitable form of recreation, that is, his summer training period.

"But we, as employers, must do more than merely talk if we are to be of service in the situation. Besides giving our moral support to the national guard, and this is absolutely essential, we must give to its members practical assistance, and when I say practical assistance, I mean that every manufacturing establishment and every business house should pay to national guardsmen in their employ the difference between the regular wage and the wages which they receive as national guardsmen both during their absence at summer training camp and when called into active service by the governor of the state.

"I believe that the adoption of such a plan is essential, for not only will the best type of men be enlisted in the guard but money so expended is an investment in good citizenship. It is insurance against many local and national disorders and disasters.

"In a word, it is the duty of the public to support the national guard. They are partners in the movement and should be interested in the protection of their person and property."

ANNOUNCEMENTS
PALACE THEATRE.

The Hunchback of Notre Dame, now showing at the Palace theatre stands out as a milestone in the progress of moving picture entertainment.

One of the pioneers of the industry who happened to be in this city on the opening night and who accepted a special invitation sent him by wire from Carl Laemmle, producer of the film, recalled the old days when anything over one reel was considered a feature, and when a little painted scenery was ample for a background for the actors, few in number who carorted through more or less conventional motions. The action or "business" as it was called was largely developed as the work went on.

The present masterpiece, The Hunchback of Notre Dame, presents such a contrast that it is hard to believe the strides which this form of entertainment had made in the few intervening years. Whole armies are seen from dizzy heights, and it is hard to believe that the scenes were not made at the ancient cathedral of Notre Dame itself.

Every student of history knows the epoch making events that centre around that famous building builded on an island in the river at Paris, France. Every soldier who has been to Paris has seen its massive pile, and it will be hard to convince anyone who has been there that it is not the original building which is used in the film, and yet it is only one of the massive "sets" built for this wonder film.

And yet the enormity of the task in producing this moving picture production is almost forgotten in the development of the story and the masterfully skillful acting of Lon Chaney and his supporting cast which includes Ernest Torrence, Patsy Ruth Miller, Norman Kerry and a host of others well known to devotees of the screen.

The enormous success met with in New York where that company is still playing made necessary the organization of the company which opened here and which will tour the principal cities.

The Hunchback of Notre Dame made from the famous story by Victor Hugo has again brought up the value of visual education through the films and shown how the most wonderful acting, together with most powerful dramatic action can be blended with sincere fidelity to historical fact.

In Hollywood where this wonder film was made and where the enormous sets were made the school authorities were quick to see the possibilities of this replica of the facade of the famous cathedral of Notre Dame at Paris where so many historical events have taken place, and Carl Laemmle, producer of the film graciously set aside suitable hours when teachers and their classes could visit this set and learn of its beauty at first hand.

Mildred Pearson Recital.

The selection of reserved seats for the song recital by Mildred Pearson will begin on Wednesday morning of this week at Cranston's store.

Miss Pearson is to sing in Slater hall on Monday evening, the 18th, under the auspices of the Norwich Music association, and her many friends are welcoming this opportunity to hear her under conditions calculated to permit the beautiful qualities of her voice to be heard at their full, unblemished and undiminished by any defective acoustic properties in the hall.

Miss Pearson's voice is a lyric soprano—warm, sympathetic, clear and certain. In her studies she has learned not only how to produce and control tones of a most delightful quality, but how to sing and put over songs as well. That she is now entering upon a career of which her home town may justly feel a sense of pride, is indicated by her schedule for the week of the 18th in which she will give three recitals in addition to the one in Slater Hall.

The price for tickets is $1.50, tax exempt, entitling the holder to reserved seat.

The study of the workings of Uncle Sam's postal department is highly interesting, and it has been brought to the screen in a forceful and dramatic way in Emory Johnson's picture, The Mail Man, dedicated to the carriers who faithfully perform their services easily and late that the various national activities shall function properly. It is now playing the Broadway theatre.

Johnson begins his picture with the first known message ever carried—the olive branch that the dove brought back to Noah. He does this to bring out more forcible the highly intricate workings of the modern system of communications, in the depths of which one loyal servant, portrayed by Ralph Lewis, goes through a series of extremely human adventures which glorify the mail man.

A chase of a rum-runner by the entire Pacific fleet, a race for life in a blinding storm and a thrilling dramatic hold-up in a down-town postoffice are touches which add vividness to the latest Johnson F. B. O. picture.

Besides Lewis, the cast includes Johnnie Walker, Josephine Adair, David Kirby, Taylor Graves, Martha Sleeper, Virginia True Boardman and Hardee Kirkland.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The criminal trail that Barlow M. (Whitey) Diamond followed with such reckless abandon and that finally led to his conviction in New York, late Saturday night, of murder in the first degree makes one loop through Windham county, and the blond-haired gunman is remembered by many people in Willimantic, Putnam and Danielson, for the episode that he and a companion, Everett Lukarthur, figured in, on the afternoon of Labor day, 1923.

Diamond, now facing the electric chair as a killer of men, held up before the jury that found him guilty as more ruthless than the notorious James brothers, served six months in Brooklyn jail during the late months of 1922 and the early months of 1923. He received this sentence in the Windham county superior court, at Putnam, after he had been found guilty of threatening Woodstock men with a revolver when they endeavored to drive him and Lukarthur away from an orchard where they were stealing apples at the Gardner Sumner place in the town of Woodstock.

It later developed that Diamond was in this territory to deliver a load of liquor; that he was riding in a stolen car and that at Colchester he sought out a former pal of his for a sinister purpose—the pal escaping any consequences that might have ensued from the visit by being out of town.

Lukarthur, investigation of all the circumstances surrounding the visit of the pair into this corner of Connecticut showed was little more than a dupe of Diamond's. He escaped punishment of any serious nature as the result of the affair.

Every legal device that promised possible aid to extricate Diamond from the mesh in which he found himself entangled here was used in an effort to save him from a jail sentence, but none were effective and he was forced to do time. In a modified way his sister Sally, who shrieked and raved and scratched and kicked at police officers on duty at Whitey's trial in New York last Friday, staged a kindred demonstration in the superior court at Putnam when Whitey was ordered committed to jail. Eventually she fell, sobbing and moaning, onto one of the benches in the court room. Mrs. Diamond was also in court at Putnam, but was not so demonstrative as her daughter.

While Whitey was serving his time at Brooklyn jail, state police from the Danielson barracks were busy checking up the origin of the car that Diamond and Lukarthur had been arrested, in Willimantic, after hastening away from stirring up a hornets' nest in Woodstock. Guns and blackjacks were taken from Diamond and Lukarthur when they were arrested.

In due time it was ascertained that the nearly new Cadillac they had been using was stolen from where it had been left before the Rialto theatre in Brooklyn, N. Y., on the night of August 16, 1922, a few days before it was recovered here. The machine was the property of Robert Delevante, secretary to the president of the Consolidated Coal company.

The car remained at the police barracks here for months, awaiting final disposition of Diamond's case by federal authorities, who took him in hand at the expiration of his jail sentence with a view to prosecuting him under the Dyer act, having to do with running stolen cars from state to state. Certain technicalities that developed proved to be in Whitey's favor and he eventually was released without serving any more time than what he put in at Brooklyn, where he was incarcerated for threatening with a dangerous weapon and not for the theft of the car.

Whitey specialized in stealing Cadillacs. He admitted during his trial for murder that he had been the owner of the murder car that figured in the sensational killing and robbing of two West End bank messengers, in November of last year, and that he had stolen other cars of the same make.

Whitey is remembered in this territory as a good-looking, hard-boiled stickup man. He was never ruffled during the time he was under arrest in this county. He was as calm as a summer night when officers grilled him. He never batted an eye when the jail sentence was imposed upon him. He appeared as imperturable as the Sphinx.

Yet this man, found guilty of two as cold blooded murders as are recorded in the annals of modern crime, went into a frensy of despair testifying in New York Saturday and shrieked and moaned and cringed like the yellowest of curs. Facing death himself for causing without an apparent pang of regret the deaths of others, he became a pitiable shrunken creature.

That the man is merciless was indicated by federal officers who came here to check him up. They told state police officers they were fortunate that he did not kill some of the officers who were after him before he was disarmed. They knew Whitey and his record and the desperation of the man, who still denies that he killed the bank messengers, blaming members of his gang for the outrage. The jury that heard the case remained out only 59 minutes, however.

If there is such a thing as a Jonah town, Antonio George of Dartmouth, Mass., near New Bedford, probably is certain that Danielson is the place. George is the owner of a big motor truck that swung down off the Providence road and into the business section Saturday afternoon, en route, loaded, for Hartford. In Main street, just south of the post office, the big machine skidded on the ice pavement and slid against the touring car of Cashier F. E. Storer of the Windham County National bank, the Storer car being parked at the curb. Jack Numes was driving the truck with George beside him on the seat. Mr. Storer was duly compensated for the damage to his car, which was slight, and the truck proceeded.

On the return trip from Hartford, about one oclock Sunday afternoon, the truck was again proceeding through Main street when it skidded on the ice-covered pavement and crashed into a car that Robert Bellerin was driving. George again climbed down off the seat, investigated the damage and again settled, getting clear this time for a $10 bill.

Chief John McFarland was on hand to check up the truck crew, in both the accidents.

Mrs Edith Viola Dexter, 40, wife of Leon A. Dexter, died Saturday at their home in the Howard hill section at Foster Center. Mrs. Dexter was a native of Danielson, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Munroe Card. She leaves her husband, four children, a sister, Mrs. Olney Knights of Howard hill and her father, resident of Pawtucket.

Members of the Danielson Building and Loan association have received printed forms showing the statement of condition of the association as of January 1. The resources of the association now amount to $104,779.94. Of this amount $98,284.36 is represented in first mortgage loans.

Snow that came during Sunday added to the burden of winter that trees are carrying through large areas of territory hereabouts, especially in the eastern part of the town, where ice accumulated during the storm of last Tuesday night is still clinging and in hundreds of cases has trees bent over until their tops nearly touch the ground. This ice has clung tenaciously, on account of the continued low temperatures for the past week. Saturday afternoon under the brilliant sunshine the iced-over areas had the look of a crystal fairyland, presenting one of the most remarkable winter scenes remembered by persons hereabouts.

Members of the state boxing commission were here Sunday to make a final inspection of the new Casino arena, which is to be opened next Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Mutty Bedard and Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Bedard of the West Side were at New Bedford Saturday to attended the funeral of Mrs. James J. Lawlor.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward presided at a session of the town court Saturday morning at which cases growing out of a raid in Academy street a week ago Saturday night were adjusted by imposing fines and costs.

At St. James' church at Sunday's masses, Rev. Joseph Deschaud, M. S., asked the prayers of the congregation for Rev. Hubert Dahme, a priest of the diocese who was shot by an assassin in Bridgeport the past week and who died of his wounds.

Miss Katherine T. Thayer of Putnam visited relatives in Danielson over Sunday.

A successful auction sale of horses was conducted by Witter Brothers Saturday for John Flood at his stable on Furnace street.

The minimum temperature in Danielson Saturday morning was 2 degrees above zero—the minimum for Sunday morning 4 above zero.

Many were the falls and painful the consequences Sunday, when a film of snow covered the ice that sheaths the streets and walks hereabouts and made walking an exceedingly dangerous venture.

PUTNAM

Fortunes in the basketball court at Putnam high school gym favored the girls, while the boys' team got a good trimming at the hands of the Connecticut Agricultural college.

The girls won their first game of the season, 33 to 2. Bartlett high girls did not have a look-in from the minute the whistle blew for the tap-off and the play was too one-sided to create much interest.

The "big game," however, furnished enough thrills so that the spectators along the side lines went away well satisfied. While Putnam was defeated, 26 to 16, the lighter team fought a hard but uphill fight until the last basket was made.

Mrs. Laura Corcoran of Hartford was in Putnam, Saturday, in consultation relative to the divorce case pending in the superior court, which will come to trial next Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stacey of Chicago are guests of Mrs. Stacey's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bradford.

Principal John J. O'Brien, of Israel Putnam school has been called to Hingham, Mass., by the death of his father. During his absence Miss Nellie Stone of Newburyport, Mass., has been substituting.

Prohibition Director Frank T. Putney has given notice to all of those persons formerly licensed to practice medicine in this state whose licenses have been revoked by the state board of health that their government permits to have liquor are revoked, ordering them to return such permits and prescription blanks and all records. Among those to whom such an order was sent out was Philias Tetreault of Putnam, formerly of Central Falls, R. I., whose license was revoked a week ago.

Notwithstanding he has been notified that his license has been revoked, Dr. Tetreault states that he will continue to practice pending an appeal he intends to take to the superior court.

Dr. Tetreault says that no opportunity of any sort was given him to present his credentials, or otherwise to appear in his own behalf. He says that the first he knew of the state board having revoked his license was when a friend called him up and told him that his name appeared with a number of others whose licenses had been revoked.

With blood dripping from a bad gash in his right leg, John Cloutier, who had been chopping wood in Fayoyan, walked all the way to Webster, four miles, after he had accidentally cut himself. Alone at the time of the accident, Cloutier made a rough tourniquet and then started for home through the woods. He was not able to complete his intended journey but had to stop at a house before he reached Webster. A doctor was summoned and sewed up the wound. The man was weak from loss of blood and his shoes and clothing was saturated. Later he was removed to his own home.

Attorney Charles L. Torrey, corporation counsel of the city of Putnam, is making an effort on the part of the city water department to have the assessed valuation of the water department property in the town of Woodstock reduced by the board of relief of that town.

For a number of years the city of Putnam has been taxed on an assessed valuation at some over $10,000. This year the assessors fixed the valuation at over $30,000. It is from this that the city is seeking relief.

The city owns its pumping station in Harrisville, in the town of Woodstock, and considerable land along the stream that brings the water from Massachusetts to the intake at the pumping station. A new filter has recently been constructed and put in operation by the water department.

It will be the contention of the city that under the law of Connecticut buildings and equipment of a water company in one town or city are not taxable in another town or city as such but only as improved farming land. While the city would probably not object to a slight increase being made in the assessed valuation of its holdings in the neighboring town an advance of over 300 per cent is more than the city and the board of water commissioners believe equitable.

While the matter has been brought to the attention of the board of relief of the town of Woodstock, the board has as yet taken no action in the matter. While not definitely known it is thought that unless some concessions are made by the town of Woodstock legal action will have to be taken.

The law of exemption and special mode of assessment and taxation does not apply to water companies privately owned but only to those municipally owned as in the case of the city of Putnam.

The weather was perfect for the Valentine tea. From all over eastern Windham county came people to enjoy the annual affair arranged by the Woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital for the benefit of the hospital. Odd Fellows' hall was crowded afternoon and evening and the supper tables were filled a number of times.

The afternoon program began at 2.30 o'clock and there was a varied entertainment of musical numbers. Tea was served from three to five o'clock and from five until seven-thirty o'clock supper was served. At half-past eight o'clock dancing began, with music by Sam Walsh's orchestra of Providence. Mr. Walsh is a former Putnam boy.

Booths, prettily decorated, were arranged all about the hall. From the booths food, flowers and fancy articles were sold and trade was brisk and all of the articles were disposed of before the close.

The Valentine tea is held within a week of St. Valentine's day, in commemoration of the birthday of Day Kimball, to whom the hospital is a memorial. The woman's board arranges several entertainments during the year to raise money and the Valentine tea has become one of the most popular. The money is used in procuring many articles for the hospital which is, in a measure, dependent upon outside aid.

NEW LONDON WOMAN PRISONER TRIES HANGING WITH STOCKINGS

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 10—While waiting a bondsman so she could obtain her liberty following her arrest on a charge of conducting a disorderly house at 10 Shaw street and with being drunk, Mamie Marino was in the act of ending her existence in the police station late yesterday afternoon for she had arranged a noose by tying her stockings together and had secured the other end to her cell door, when her plan was discovered. Later, when she secured a surety in Guiseppi Pozzello, on her bonds of $250 for her appearance in the police court Monday morning the Marino woman declared that she would end her life before she would stand trial tomorrow.

The Marino woman has a long court record, having been arrested many times on various charges.

About 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Sergeants Charles Hammond and Frank Howard and Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky went to the home of the Marino woman and raided it. The alleged proprietress of the place was in a state of intoxication and she and the six men found in the place were arrested and taken to the police station The gang was placed in cells, but later all but one were released upon securing sureties on their respective bonds. The frequenters were Robert Price of 48 John street, Louis Stotz, 10 Georgiana street, Tony Rogers, 10 Shaw street, Clarence Abell, 122 Willetts avenue, Charles H. Brown of Canal street, Westerly and Frederick Erickson of 10 Shaw street. The frequenters, excepting Erickson were released when George H. Beck on bonds of $25 for each of the accused.

A short time after the gang had been placed in cells an officer in passing the cell of the Marino woman discovered her in the act of ending her life, a watch of Mamie was maintained until after she had obtained her liberty.

When arrested the Marino woman squealed upon another resort where she declared that liquor was being dispensed and as a result of her accusation, the place at 690 Bank street, near the Shaw street house was also raided by the officers. John Henry Quinn and Annie Bennett and Kennedy Erickson, of the Bank street house, were taken into custody, each being charged with violation of the liquor law Both obtained a surety on their bonds of $500 in Frank Scialabba. Dell Phillips, who was found in the place, was held as a witness against Quinn and the Erickson woman, and was turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, until the convening of the police court Monday morning.

Like the Marino woman, Annie Erickson also has a long police record for she has been arrested many times.

Mrs. Thomas Dowire and infant son, of Huntington street, Mrs. Arthur Kelley and infant daughter, Willimantic, Frank Joseph, Stonington, William Clark, Union street, Miss Lillian Dickinson, Uncasville and Mrs. Victor Faldina of Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated Hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Horace Slaughter, colored, of 9 Church street, arrested yesterday, charged with breach of the peace as a result of a row that occurred between Slaughter and his wife at their home last Wednesday night during which a pistol shot was fired, was in the police court Saturday morning charged with breach of the peace. When arrested Slaughter was held in bonds of $1,000, but Saturday when the case was continued to May 3rd, Slaughter was held in bonds of $500. McKinley Jones became surety on Slaughter's bond.

It has been revealed since Slaughter's arrest that the charge against him is a technical one and is believed to have emanated from an occupant of the house, who holds a feeling of malice toward Slaughter and his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Slaughter both admit facts about the revolver, but declare that it was accidentally discharged following the woman taking the weapon from a kitchen mantle and while its possession was being fought for by the husband and wife.

Mrs. Aniello Ruggiero of 8 Tenth street, reported to the police Saturday evening that an automobile truck owned by Elias Chapman, of 15 High street, Groton, struck and killed a dog on the approach to the Thames river bridge and the driver did not stop his machine to ascertain the extent of injuries sustained by the animal. Later in the evening Chapman appeared at the police station and stated that he had been informed that he was wanted by the authorities and declared that he had not operated his truck on the bridge or in that vicinity any time during Saturday.

The officials of the State Farm for Women reported to the police at 2.45 o'clock this morning that three young girls, one of them, Lillian Connors, aged 20, had escaped from the institution early in the night and that they had been observed in Waterford, walking toward New London. While the police were maintaining a watch for the girls several hours after received stating that the girls had been located and had been returned to the home.

Patrolman George McCaskey was unable to perform duty today, being ill at his home on Wightman street.

Because of the lateness of the season and with no ice having been harvested from their local ponds, the W. R. Perry Ice company is planning to start their harvest tomorrow morning when work will be started at Cohansie. Seven inch ice has formed there, which is two inches less than the ice usually harvested by the company.

H. H. Barr of Castelberg's Protective Co., Norfolk, Va., has requested the New London police to make an inspection of local pawnshops in an endeavor to recover a diamond ring that was purchased of a Norfolk concern on the part payment plan.

About a dozen mechanics and laborers employed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad were arrested by special agents of the railroad Saturday morning, charged with trespass. The employes were not prosecuted, however, for Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin informed the men that it was the desire of the officials of the railroad to keep off railroad property at all times other than when they were actually employed. It has been the custom for years for railroad employes to walk the tracks to their work as that course was considerably shorter than by the highway. The railroad officials contend that many employes are killed or injured during the course of a year, as a result of carelessness in walking the tracks, and a general movement has been launched in an effort to cause employes to refrain from using the tracks for highway purposes.

Today was the first day of the 10 per cent. increase in trolley fares being put into operation by the Connecticut Company and it was noticeable that the trolley traffic was lighter than it has been in a long time. The weather conditions doubtless had something to do with the small patronage accorded the trolleys.

Inspector Harry Twiss, of the Connecticut company has resumed his duties after having been off duty several days during which time he attended the funeral of his brother, Mertle E. Twiss, in Monson, Mass., Friday.

George Lincoln son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Lincoln, formerly of New London, now located in Madison, N. J., is spending a few days with New London friends.

A. Watchinsky proprietor of a fruit and grocery store at 625 Bank street reported to the police tonight that an attempt had been made to enter his place of business last Friday night, but the police give but little credence to the report. Patrolman Patrick Sheehan investigated the attempt and the, investigation did not reveal any attempt to enter having been made although Watchinsky declared that an endeavor was made to force a window there was no evidence of such an act. The officer did ascertain that two men were heard in the yard adjoining the store, but it is believed that they were walking to a dwelling in the rear of the store.

Charles L. Ockford, former chief of the New London fire department, is ill at his home on Alger place and although he is not confined to his bed he is under the care of a physician constantly. Mr. Ockford had good health until about two months ago But his condition does not appear to improve.

There are a few changes to be made in the Jewett City division call numbers printed in the telephone directory, Smith and Labarre's number should be 18-12. Clifford Peterson's number is 123-3. Zezeer's store is 34-1 Andrew Garbos is 152-3. David Goldberg's number is 104-15. The first change is very important to rectify, as the fire engine house number is 18-2, and in the directory Smith & LaBarre are incorrectly listed as having the same number.

John Chadwick of East Greenwich Academy spent the week-end at James McCluggage's.

Interest in radio is running high in Plainfield. Some of the latest to install a radio set are, Elmer Greene, Ernest Wilde and Richard Babcock. Several others have had their sets only a comparatively short time.

There was a real disappointment experienced at the morning service of the Congregational church Sunday when the organ had to be dispensed with, owing to the fact that the electric current had been cut out from eight to four, to enable some unavoidable work to be done on the line at Central Village due to the installing of a switch.

TAX EXEMPTS.

Much has been said about the large amount of money invested in tax exempt securities from which the government is unable to collect anything in the way of income taxes. It is recognized that they offer an attraction to those of large wealth as a means of avoiding taxation. They prefer investing in such gilt-edged securities to engaging or putting their money into industrial activity where they might hope to obtain a much larger income but there they would be obliged to take over a large slice of such income to the government. They are unwilling to give up to such taxation when they can avoid it and obtain practically as large a yield in securities which are beyond the reach of the tax collector.

In response to the demand for the taxing of such securities, the plan of prohibiting the future issuance of tax exempts has been submitted to congress, it being necessary to amend the Constitution in order to have it effective. The lower house of congress has declared against it, refusing to submit it to the states for their action.

Such an amendment would not have affected the existing tax exempts. It would be impossible to upset them now, but it would have been possible under the change to have stopped any increase in the amount, whether federal, state or municipal issues.

Now what is going to be the effect of this action on the question of surtaxes? It is known that it is the surtaxes which have driven capital into tax exempts. If the surtax is not so confiscatory there will be no reason for trying to dodge it. If the sur tax is cut to the point where capital can be employed more profitably in industrial activities than in tax exempts it is sure to go there. Thus it seems only consistent for congress to make the recommended cut in the sur tax and eliminate the reason for looking with such favor upon securities that pay without tax. If the lower house will not sanction the prohibition of tax exempts it is only consistent that it should hasten to remove that which makes them so popular just now. The surtaxes cannot be eliminated entirely but they can be cut with what it is believed would be beneficial results to the whole country.

THE INCREASING AUTOS.

With one person in every eleven owning an automobile in this country it might be suspected that the point of saturation was being reached, but conditions often fail short of the mark. Last year there were sold in this country nearly 4,000,000 motor vehicles. That took care of the new owners and those who bought new cars, though the latter group did not by any means send their old cars to the scrap heap. Some went there because of wrecks, fires and deterioration, but most of them are still doing duty in some form or other. The net increase for the year might not have been 4,000,000 but it was nevertheless substantial.

But even such a large production doesn't mean that the market has been glutted. It is still far from that point if we are to accept the statement which has been made to the effect that the production for the present year may reach the total of 5,000,000.

That means much business for the purchasers of motor vehicles. It means increased output for those who are manufacturing accessories of various kinds. It means more business for all who have anything to do with automobiles, more sales, more garage men, more pleasure cars, more trucks, more supplies, more demands for road improvement, more accidents, more street congestion, more traffic regulations, more demands for increased safety, more parking troubles, more demands for signboards and possibly less trolleys and short line railroads.

The problems that accompany the motor vehicles are growing each year. Those states that have delayed coping with them cannot procrastinate much longer. Certain it is that the motor vehicles are bound to be much larger in number before they are less and proper provision for taking care of them must be made. It is being demonstrated that those engaged in production are able to handle the situation. Those who must wrestle with the other problems cannot evade their responsibilities.

DEALING WITH PHILIPPINES.

The Philippine problem has been presented in its various phases for a long time. It seems highly probable that this will be continued for a considerable period. There are many who regard the Philippines as a bothersome proposition and believe that we ought to get rid of them and leave them to their own guidance.

Such of course would be one way of getting rid of trouble. By casting them adrift for no other purpose we would be dodging the obligation which we assumed when we took them over, but aside from that the possible results of such action cannot fail to get some thought.

The experience of other governments, similar to that which would come into control in the islands, is all too well known. It is known with what greedy ideas and clever schemes other countries have watched over island republics, and what steps it has been necessary for this government to take in certain instances in order to protect them against both outside and inside activities. No one would wish ill for an independent government in the Philippines but safeguards against trouble are most certainly not assured. It would be only a question of time as to how soon there would be revolutions within the islands themselves, where there are those who are much more favorable to Americans than to Filipinos when it comes to the matter of government. What bad policies, extravagance and revolutions do and mean to a new government cannot be disregarded.

Cast the Philippines adrift, get rid of what some consider a bad investment, and the moment trouble breaks out in the islands this country would be expected to step in and straighten out the tangle. The same would be true in case the island government became involved with others. And that is just what the United States does not want to happen. Instead of being obliged to do all over again the work that has been done there, it is far preferable that there should be continued the protection and sound guidance that the islands need. Getting rid of a bad investment by throwing it overboard in this instance might only increase the cost of it all too soon.

EASY FRENCH DIVORCES.

When the French department of justice under directions from Premier Poincare issues an order by which it will be impossible for an American to get a divorce in France except under the same terms of residence that is demanded in the jurisdiction of the laws of the applicant's own state, and for causes that are recognized as valid in that state, it becomes evident that the French have seen the wisdom of striking effectively at the easy divorce evil.

Paris has been the mecca of those who have sought quiet and quick divorces. People of wealth have hastened there for a residence of three months when a simple statement to the effect that the defendant is favorable to a divorce was all that was needed to get a decree.

When the statement is made that this order will ruin Paris as the Reno of Europe it is evident that the order hits the nail on the head. Having the authority to do it and the knowledge of the situation it is to the credit of Premier Poincare that he acted so effectively. When those who have been depending upon such court business for a living, or relying upon the laxity of the French courts to get divorces, admit that the American divorce business has been killed for Paris it is evident that the job is a good one.

If the 48 states of this country would come to an understanding in regard to divorce laws, the same thing might be said thereof. Those states with lax laws may well give heed to the action of Premier Poincare.

EXECUTION BY USE OF GAS.

Nevada has been inclined toward the lethal gas chamber as the means of capital punishment for a considerable time. It has been looked upon with greater favor than execution by hanging or shooting. The idea has received widespread discussion and it is claimed that much of the horror to be found in the other methods of ending human life is eliminated thereby.

The first execution under the new system has taken place, and in Nevada and outside it is certain to arouse endless debate once more. The condemned person goes to his death with no one about him, except outside looking in through the thick glass windows. The only noise is the hissing of the gas as it is turned into the room. It removes the gruesomeness of the guillotine, the unpleasant features of the shooting range, the gallows, or the electric chair.

There never can be any method of execution that will eliminate all the unpleasant features. There may be a horror of the lethal chamber but can it be any more so than the electric chair, the gibbet or the wall before which the firing squad stands?

What must be aimed at is to make the method as humane and quick as possible. Capital punishment isn't intended as a means of torture. To the condemned person the method of execution may not make much difference, but if the lethal gas chamber means putting the person to sleep and to death as he sleeps there can be nothing revolting about it. And as for whether the witnesses are inside or outside the walls of such a chamber can make little difference. Nevada's plan will not suit all any more than any of the others do.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

All patterns should be folded neatly after use and filed away in an indexed box.

Kerosene oil will remove discolorations on porcelain and will not scratch them.

Rub the backs of old paintings with oil of cedar to protect them from injury by insects.

To keep kid gloves soft, put them into a tin box with a lump of ammonia wrapped tightly in a flannel.

A dry cork will remove stain from plate or silverware without scratching the metal.

Take the odd ends of salt pork and bacon that are left over, slicing and add them to peas or beans for soup.

Sour cream is excellent in salad dressing and is a good way to use up a small amount.

If the milk is warmed before adding the eggs for a custard, no water will be found in the dish after cooking.

Never keep olive oil directly on the ice. It freezes readily and is then difficult to use in salad dressings, as it is apt to "separate."

Save the leaves from celery and parsley for the soup pot. They can be dried in the oven and kept in a jar till needed.

When indelible ink stains resist every other treatment they often succumb to a mixture of equal parts of turpentine and ammonia.

Onions should be kept in a dry storeroom, for if they are stored in a damp place they will give out shoots too early.

Save the tin boxes in which you get cakes and candies, and keep your home-made cookies in them.

TO POLISH WINDOWS

A spoonful of kerosene added to a kettle of very hot water will make windows, mirrors and picture glasses bright and clear. In washing windows use a small clean cloth, wring it dry and rub it over the glass, after wiping down the framework with an oiled cloth. Do the same with the next window on both sides. After that go back to the first one and wipe it dry with a large clean cloth. No real polishing is required.

TO REMOVE MARKS

Marks on the kitchen wall that have been caused by striking matches will disappear if they are rubbed first with the cut surface of a lemon, then with a clean cloth that has been dipped in whiting. Afterward wash the place with warm water and soap, then wipe them quickly with a clean cloth wrung out of clear water.

HEALTH TO BEAUTY

Lemon juice is highly recommended as a rinse after shampooing. Put the juice of a lemon in a quart of water just before the final rinse. Then take a basin of fresh warm water and rinse thoroughly. This treatment is also effective as a tonic for the scalp.

Proper care and cutting of the nails including avoidance of pressure from tight-fitting gloves, are essential to nail beauty. Even slight injuries from manicure implements should be guarded against, especially the careless use of the cuticle knife, which is often responsible for white spots and transverse furrows.

When curling the hair part the hair just as you do when dressing it, then take small strands along all the outside part where it shows, moisten them slightly and roll then tightly around the curler. Some hair will wave in 30 minutes, but most people need an hour or two. The best thing of course is to do up the hair at night, covering the ugly curlers with a boudoir cap and take them off in the morning.

The beauty of the hair depends on five things, viz., one's general health, perfect cleanliness, proper combing, airing, brushing and massaging of the right sort, and artistic coiffuring. If your hair is rich, scanty or unmanageable the condition is due to neglect of one or more of the above points.

POLISH FOR LINOLEUM

Beeswax polish is splendid for linoleum. Scrape two ounces of beeswax and one ounce of yellow soap into a pint enameled kettle and cover with turpentine. Place the kettle at the back of the fire till the contents are dissolved, stir with a stick.

TOUCHENS THE BROOM

Dip brooms for a minute or two in a bucket of hot suds once a week and they will last much longer. Turn upside down to dry and put away. A broom treated in this way will last much longer if used with a broom stand for in this manner.

DICTATES OF FASHION

One of the new arrivals is the [illegible] sleeve. Yet that is only one of the many forms in which [illegible] these days.

For [illegible] wear nothing is smarter than the black coat frock with the white [illegible] collar, and [illegible] a pocket of the fur.

Gowns made of Spanish shawls with long fringe but without embroidery are very smart now, particularly in black and all white.

Handkerchiefs of colored linen have wide hems and bouquets of flowers done in the most exquisite petit point embroidery in colors.

Look out for the flare next spring when some designers. If it doesn't return actually as ever, at least it may be noticed in modified form, as a rebel against and toning up the simpler silhouette.

The vogue of sweaters and fur jacquettes again brings the wrap-around sports skirt of velour and camel's hair to the fore. Fairly large plaids and small checks are conspicuous.

There is every indication that it will be a tailored spring. But side by side with the straight, severe lines there will be slinky Egyptian effects and a few outstanding tiers of flounces.

A black moire hat is nearly compulsory now. The prettiest sort is a soft, rolled brim affair, rather larger than the usual run of hats today. It is trimmed at one side with a large bow of brown ribbon.

The poiret twill, so desirable for the autumn street costume, is now seen with a slightly different finish. It is a bit less like serge and a bit more like satin, having a delightfully smooth surface.

Gardenias are enjoying much well-merited popularity at present and one sees them worn in buttonholes and on furs. A striking new hat of black velvet has the crown surrounded with these effective flowers.

AS A SEPARATE WRAP

The little cape as a part of a costume or as a separate wrap continues to hold its position and is seen again and again on the models introduced for the south and for early spring. There is no denying its style nor its distinctiveness.

Quite the most attractive capes for the south are made of soft finished flannel in lovely colors, with an accent given by colors of fur. One of yellow flannel is colored with white coney while another of powder blue has a band of squirrel about the neck.

A most unusual decoration appears on a cape of white novelty wool. The cape, which reaches just to the hips, is covered with a design of appliqued green suede. The effect is strikingly smart. This use of leather appliques is seen on a loose knee-length coat of brite sponge, but in this instance shiny red leather is chosen.

Coat dresses of Roman striped flannel are completed by capes to match and are as attractive as they are serviceable.

ALPACA IS REVIVED

Alpaca, that erstwhile humble and rustic material, is now in high favor. It is a glorified alpaca, however, silken in texture, and marvelously given to unusual weaves and designs.

VOGUE OF GREEN

In the showing of advance models for the south and for early spring green stands out as one of the most important colors of the new season. Every possible shade appears from the pale tint of the first budding leaves to a dark shade of bottle green that promises to achieve an extraordinary vogue.

There are several tones of this particular color, so that whether one is blond or brunette it is possible to find just the right shade to harmonize with one's hair, eyes and complexion. This is rather an important point to emphasize, for the greens of other days were always a bit trying. Thanks to color artists of the present time, every color has so many tones that there should not be any difficulty in selecting the appropriate tone.

Used alone it is chosen for exceedingly smart frocks of cloth or of new silk monair that has taken the world of fashion by storm. In combination with white it is unusually effective and has inspired several charming models of white crepe with folds or pipings of green.

MADEOVER BLANKETS

Make use of all old blankets that have served their turn by cutting them down the center, turning the sides to middle and seaming together. Then lay two blankets together, quilt with white wool and to finish make a cover of cheese cloth. They are nice and warm and are a very good imitation of eiderdown and are very useful where there are many beds and a large family to be provided for in cold weather.

FROM SHAWL DESIGNS

The vogue of the embroidered shawl is undoubtedly responsible for several new materials. There are chiffon or crepe with designs similar to those of the shawls, only smaller, covering the entire surface. In black with bright colored motifs the effect is remarkably beautiful.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Since 1914, when women were first admitted to the franchise, the total number of voters in Great Britain has swollen from 8,000,000 to 20,000,000.

A 20-year-old Anglo-Argentine girl swimmer, Miss Lillian Harrison, has completed a swim across the River Plate, being the first person to accomplish the feat.

The wealthier women of Japan have decided not to wear any elaborate and expensive kimonos this winter, and to devote the money thus save to relieving the needy.

It is not uncommon in Russia for women to begin work between the ages of 15 and 17 years, and after 30 many are considered inefficient and dispensed with.

Mrs. Violet B. Jannin of Washington, D. C., has presented $50,000 to the National Cathedral Foundation of the Protestant church for the building of a wing to the cathedral library.

LAUNDRY HINTS

When water is very hard, dissolve a little borax or ammonia in it before washing flannels.

Rinse fine silk lingerie in water of the same temperature as the suds in which they were washed.

Buff, tan and grey linens keep fresh longer if wet well before washing with strong black pepper tea.

A good tapestry can always be safely washed. Do not put soap on it, but wash in the same way as flannel. Rinse very thoroughly, put through a wringer if possible and iron on the wrong side when nearly dry.

Always iron laces and embroideries on a thick pad so as to bring out the pattern.

Use a clean brick for an iron [illegible] when ironing. It will retain heat much longer than the usual open stands.

REMEDIES FOR VARIOUS STAINS

When mahogany gets a water spot on, rub it gently with an ordinary cork. The spot disappears and the wood shines again.

If your fingers are stained from preparing vegetables, dip them in very strong tea for a few minutes and then wash them in soap and clean water. The stains will disappear.

For drains of refrigerators, kitchen sinks, and in fact any except a toilet pipe, a very inexpensive and sure method of cleaning is to fill the opening with baking soda and then pour in vinegar. It will occasionally take the second application. This method leaves your refrigerator sweet and clean and free from danger of impurities.

To remove grease from the painted wall above the gas stove, wipe with a cloth saturated with kerosene, then wipe with a dry cloth.

A clean sink can be obtained and all stains removed by sprinkling cleaning powder over the stains without wetting the sink. Moisten a cloth with the juice of a lemon and scour the spots well. The sink will look like new.

To clean iron rust from waterpails and dippers, squeeze lemon-juice in them and let stand for a few hours. If rust is not entirely gone, rub the lemon-juice thoroughly over them.

Any fruit-stain on linen that can not be removed by hot water will disappear like magic by simply saturating the stain with glycerin. Let stand an hour or so, rub between the hands and wash in the usual way.

RED LETTER MAILBOX

Especially planned for the country home where many guests are constantly coming and going is a mail box of brilliant red leather with the time of the outgoing mails marked plainly upon it.

CHAIR FOR BEDROOM

A small wing chair suitable for a bedroom is painted a dull blue and upholstered in a charming glazed chintz. The chair is made doubly comfortable by the addition of an overstuffed cushion.

A GOOD SUBSTITUTE

If you have not a steamer take an ordinary saucepan, quarter fill it with water, place over it an ordinary colander, put whatever you want to steam in that and cover it with the saucepan cover. It makes a fine makeshift steamer.

LIGHT WALL PAPER

If you can possibly manage it, have the walls of your bedroom papered in a light shade. Dark papers made dismal people, and there are few things more depressing than to wake up each morning in a dark or dingy-looking room.

A BEDSIDE LAMP

A little French doll whose wide skirts are made entirely of delicate shells in rose and blue makes an excellent bedside lamp. The light glows so softly through the shells that there is no glare.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Refutes Rev. J. H. Graham's Statements

Mr. Editor: If the Rev. J. Harlow Graham had taken the trouble to read the reports of the United States coal commission he would not have assumed the responsibility for the statements he made in his letter to you of February 1, in which he undertakes to criticise the statements made by Byron R. Newton before the Norwich Chamber of Commerce on January 31.

The probable reason why Mr. Newton's remarks did not draw "challenging replies from labor union men, from former coal miners and from disinterested observers" was because Mr. Newton's statements were founded upon facts which are unimpeachable.

Mr. Graham undertakes to discuss a subject with which he is entirely unfamiliar. For instance, he takes issue with Mr. Newton's statement that the labor cost of one ton of anthracite at the present time is $4.40, and offsets against that an irresponsible statement by Senator Wheeler that the labor cost of one ton of anthracite is $2.40. The fact of the matter is that theireport of the United States coal commission shows that the labor cost of anthracite was $4.05 for all mines before the "settlement" was made by Governor Pinchot last September. This "settlement" included not only a 10 per cent. advance in all wages, but a reduction in working time and other conditions which increased the labor cost from 10 to 12 1-2 per cent. Senator Wheeler's statement referred entirely to bituminous coal. It has no reference whatsoever to anthracite.

The statement made by Mr. Newton that the average margin (not profit) for the ten years from 1913 to 1923 was $7 cents as found by the United States coal commission is absolutely true. Mr. Graham could have verified this fact if he had wished to do so by communicating with Dr. George Otis Smith, the director of the U. S. Geological Survey at Washington, who was a member of that commission.

It is true that in the first quarter of 1923 the anthracite operators obtained an abnormal margin for their production. This was due, however, to the fact that because of the scarcity occasioned by the strike, production was pushed to the utmost during the first few months after mining was resumed. Naturally, with an increased tonnage (from 10 to 15 per cent. above normal) and at the sacrifice of development or dead work, the overhead expenses were relatively less per ton of coal produced. In addition to this fact there was an unusual demand for the small, or as commonly known, steam sizes, which enabled the operators to obtain anywhere from 50 cents to $1.50 more than the prices for which those sizes usually sell. Had the United States coal commission investigation extended over the next three or six months, an entirely different state of affairs would have been shown.

Further, Mr. Graham does not refer to the fact (nor did Dr. Devine in his article) that for the entire year 1922 the average loss on the anthracite proction was 28 cents a ton, due to the strike of that year.

The U. S. commission, it is true did say "that the history of the past thirty years affords conclusive evidence that the United Mine Workers of America has been the potent agency in the betterment of the miners' working and living conditions, and it is necessary today for the protection of the standards that have been obtained." But the commission also said, and with just as much definiteness, that:

"Neither individuals nor aggregations have the right to make a contract and ignore its obligations, and collective bargaining implies collective bargaining keeping of the bargain. In the anthracite region the union has won its fight for collective bargaining and now exercises a practical monopoly. The union must justify itself. If it can not furnish wise leadership and assist in the efficient conduct of this industry, punish the wrong doings of its own members as freely as it demands the punishment of wrong at the hands of the operators, it will not justify its existence."

And it also said:

"* * * The 1902 anthracite coal strike commission provided that disagreement over disputes arising during the term of an agreement should be taken up with the board of conciliation, and that 'no suspension of work shall take place, by lockout or strike, pending the adjudication of any matter so taken up for adjustment.' Since the awards of the 1902 commission have been renewed as a part of each agreement since that time, this provision is still binding between the union and the operators. Not uncommonly this provision of the agreement is treated as a scrap of paper.

"All the district leaders show real knowledge of the contract and of their responsibilities under it. They realize that strikes are outlawed and that it is their duty to prevent them and even to discipline locals who go out in violation of the contract. But all believe in the throat to strike and in practice they make exceptions to their condemnation of some strikes, especially of button strikes. In general, where they consider orderly method is inadequate, for the relief, they tacitly sanction the resort to strike. One district vice-president, for example, admitted that under cover he advised a stoppage as a means of correcting a bad rate, and the same leader in speaking of a company that persistently violated the contract, wishes the workers there would indulge in a few strikes. Furthermore, discipline is weak over locals who go on strike and our local leaders who call illegal strikes. In one instance that has come to our attention, the district president threatened to revoke the local's charter, but this was an exceptional proceeding. In no case, so far as is known, has a local committeeman been removed for his part in an illegal strike, although the district officers have the power to do this. In consequence, petty strikes and suspensions do occur.

"Even while the commission is deliberating on its recommendations for the anthracite industry, strikes occur in direct violation of the agreement in attempts to force coal salesmen, electricians, inspectors, etc., into the union."

In regard to the miners' earnings. It is unfortunate that the commission's investigation did not attempt to ascertain what each individual miner earned nor did it allow for the very large "labor turnover" which obtains in the anthracite region. For instance, a man might work for three months at one colliery, four months at another and five months at still a third; and he appears on the commissions records as three different men. Notwithstanding this duplication the commission's report shows that there were 163 miners who earned over $4,000 a year. There were over 6,500 miners that earned at least $2,400 a year.

The total payroll in the anthracite region for 1921 was $284,006,000, and as there were 159,500 men employed, the average earnings for all men including the lowest paid ditch-digging laborer, was $1,780. The total commercial production, that is, the total quantity marketed and exclusive of the colliery consumption in 1921, was 70,191,000 and as stated above, the total payroll was $284,006,000. In 1913 the commercial production was 71,946,516 tons and the total payroll was $113,320,000. That is to say that while the production in 1921 was 850,000 tons less than in 1913, the increase in labor cost was over $170,000,000, or more than 150 per cent.

In speaking of the character of the houses in which the miners live, Mr. Newton referred to those houses which were owned by the companies and rented to their employes and he did not exaggerate these conditions. It is true, however, that many of the anthracite employes live in the larger towns, as they would rather pay larger rents for less attractive houses in order that they might have the advantages of the urban life with its attractions of shops, moving pictures, and other conditions of more populous communities that are possessed by the company towns.

It really appears to me that a minister of the gospel should be more careful of his facts before he attempts to inform the public.

Yours very truly,
E. W. PARKER.

Director Anthracite Bureau of Information.
Philadelphia, Feb. 9, 1924.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The minister of labor in the new British Cabinet is Thomas Shaw, popularly known as Tom Shaw, who has been prominent for many years as a leader of the Lancashire weavers. Born in Lancashire in 1872, he started work in a mill when only 10 years of age. As he approached manhood he threw himself into the organized labor movement, became an official of his trade union, and later was appointed secretary of the Textile Trades Federation. For nearly fifteen years he has been secretary of the International Congress of Textile Workers. He is immensely popular in the north of England and has been one of the representatives of the Labor party in the House of Commons since 1918. Mr. Shaw had to fight to overcome the lack of educational advantages in his youth that today he has the reputation of being one of the best read men in the Labor party.

A Little Talk on Thrift

THE NATIONAL ASHHEAP

Few people in this country realize perhaps that we destroy by fire one out of every eight new buildings we erect, and that the same destructive element causes a loss of 40 lives a day. These statements, startling in the extreme, are based on the most recent estimates of fire losses compiled by the National Board of Fire Underwriters and authentic building statistics. The reports for 1923 now being compiled and to be completed within a few weeks thus far reveal total fire losses for that year of more than $521,000,000. When completed they will show an even larger total. The estimates do not include fires on all farms. In many rural districts Secretary of Agriculture Wallace recently estimated losses run to at least $50,000,000 annually.

Inasmuch as new building operations in this country in 1922 were $4,000,000,000, it will be seen that on a conservative basis, our fire losses amount to not less than 12½ per cent of our new building construction.

Our percapita losses in 1918 were $3.84. In 1913 they had increased to $4.75. During the decade, 1913-1923, our total losses by fire increased approximately 100 per cent, and during the previous decade, 1903-1912, the total increase in fire losses was little less than 30 per cent.

Our annual loss of life from fires is in excess of 15,000 and is continually growing.

Students of fire conditions are united in saying that most fires are the result of sheer carelessness. The prevention of fire is an important phase of thrift, and all banks, schools and other agencies which are endeavoring to promote thrift in this country should give attention to education in fire prevention.

So great are our fire losses and so rapidly are they increasing that they are becoming an outstanding factor in our economic situation and are adding to the general cost of living—American Society for Thrift.

PROPOSING TO RAISE $50,000 FOR N. F. A. GYMNASIUM BUILDING

Notices mailed to every graduate of the Norwich Free Academy in the time of the late Prof. William Hutchison, principal from 1865 to 1885, have brought to their attention a proposition to raise a fund of $50,000 to build a memorial gymnasium at the Academy for Prof. Hutchison. One gift of $10,000 has already been assured and a considerable sum has been accumulated in a Norwich savings bank through contributions that have been made in response to the appeal.

The proposal for the memorial gymnasium arose at the last reunion of the class of 1883, which was held at the home of George Houghton Gilman in this city. It was generally approved and it was decided to push the matter so that notices have been sent out by Mr. Gilman and Mrs Elizabeth Brewster Davis, members of the class of 1883, to every alumnus of the twenty years during which Prof. Hutchison was principal. Naturally it is expected that the most interest will be shown by those who were pupils of Professor Hutchison, but all contributions will be most gratefully received and no sum will be too large nor none too small.

The project has received a generous initial impetus from Eldridge Cooke, a wealthy resident of Minneapolis, who was a teacher at the Academy in 1883. He has signified his intention of giving $10,000 to the fund. Mr. Cooke with his family is at present spending the winter in California.

The Academy has long needed a suitable gymnasium building for its athletic teams and classes. At present the baseball, football and track men use a small wooden structure on the campus. Prof. Hutchison was the beloved head of the Academy for many years and it is believed that a memorial building in his name would be approved enthusiastically by all those who studied under him and also by members of classes coming after to whom Mr. Hutchison is well known by tradition and reputation, and who also realize the value and importance of such a proposed building to the Academy boys.

If the responses received are favorable it is probable that a large working committee will be formed to take the matter in hand and prosecute the plan to a successful consummation.

The class of 1883 which had twenty-one graduating, eight have died and the following are the living members, according to the latest Academy catalogue: David F. Collin, Kansas City, Mo.; Prof. Robert N. Corwin Yale university; George H. Gilman, Norwich; Prof. William A. Setchell, University of California, Berkeley, Cal.; Mrs. Elizabeth Brewster Davis Norwich; Mrs. James Moody, Bradford, Mass., Mrs. Frank B. Gay, Belle Fourche, South Dakota; Miss Harriet A. Fellows, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Frederick Cady, Monson, Mass.; Miss Sarah H. Leavens, Miss Mary E. Mullen, Norwich; Mrs. A. S. Lyall, Waterbury; Miss Annette E. B. Richmond, Middletown.

MANY AUTO DRIVERS HAVE DEFECTIVE SIGHT

Tests conducted by the state motor vehicle department to show the relationship between defective eyesight and automobile accidents have revealed that seventy-three out of 624 drivers involved in Connecticut motor vehicle accidents last year could not distinguish colors, according to information forwarded by the department to the Eye Sight Conservation Council of America.

While 103 of the same drivers were shown by a letter-reading test to have questionable eyesight, the vision was not impaired to an extent that was considered to interfere with their ability to drive, in the opinion of the motor vehicle department.

A request for data on the subject was made by the eyesight conservation council in a letter in which the council stated that it had "noticed from time to time in the newspapers and periodicals, articles indicating that you are doing constructive work along the lines of examining the eyes of those who are responsible for automobile accidents, as well as the eyes of applicants for licenses to drive automobiles."

Nearly 50,000 applicants for drivers' licenses were examined by the department last year, but it was not until the year was well advanced that the decision was made requiring eyesight tests. Commissioner Stoeckel has informed the public safety department of the Automobile Club of Southern California, at Los Angeles, in response to an inquiry concerning the licensing procedure in this state, that approximately 5 per cent. of the operators examined by the department fail to pass, and are refused licenses.

BEGINNING ON PLAN OF VISITATION EVANGELISM

After a week of preparation the visitation evangelistic plan of membership campaign was put into full swing Sunday afternoon by the nine Protestant churches that have united in the movement. Members of the several congregations went out in twos calling on individuals to present to them the challenge of the church. The campaign will continue throughout the week and beginning this (Monday) evening there will be a supper at 6.15 o'clock each evening at which time the campaigners will meet and report on the successes of their efforts. The supper tonight (Monday) will be held at the Central Baptist church.

Sunday evening there was a union service of the churches at Trinity M. E. church. Rev. J. Harlow Graham led in prayer and the responsive reading was led by Rev. E. C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church. The scripture reading was given by Rev. Emil Kernahan, of Boston, who is leading the membership campaign. Dr. Kernahan also preached the sermon.

Dr. Kernahan's sermon was in the nature of a heart to heart talk to his congregation. He took his text from St. James 4:14, and his subject was Not Now but Sometime. This is the answer of three-quarters of the people who are asked to follow in the footsteps of Jesus, said Dr. Kernahan. You cannot tell what is on the morrow, outdoors or in life, he said. That is what puts the romance in life. No one tells us what life itself is. Jesus said I am the Way, the Truth and the Life.

The biggest challenge in the world is to be a parent and holding a little one on your arm, knowing that you are preparing to put his hand in the hands of Jesus. We are here but a little while and we ought to take good care of what we have and invest it wisely in the folks who will live on and carry on the work of God

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Graham.

NATHAN STRAUS AMAZED AT PROGRESS IN PALESTINE

Norwich members of the Keren Hayesod (Palestine Foundation) were greatly interested Sunday to learn of a cablegram from Nathan Straus to Samuel Untermyer, in which Mr. Straus, who is now visiting in Palestine, described the progress made there as amazing.

His cable to Mr. Untermyer, which is dated Jerusalem, reads as follows:

"Having now seen with my own eyes some of the things that have been accomplished in the last few years, I wish to say that I regard the progress in Palestine as amazing. The Keren Hayesod has borne rich fruit in the new immigration, the agricultural settlements, the splendid system of Hebrew schools and other achievements. All these activities must be increased and developed. Nor can I praise too highly the work of the Hadassah Medical organization.

"With the continued support of the Jews throughout the world in behalf of the rebuilding of Palestine, I feel confident that the future of the Jewish National Home is assured."

NORWICH AUTO SHOW ENDED SATURDAY NIGHT

Bailey, claimed six sales for the impressive models of this car which were on exhibit at the show.

THREE PERSONS DROWNED IN ROGER WILLIAMS PARK

Providence, R. I., Feb. 10—A little girl, a young boy and a LaSalle Academy graduate were drowned in South lake, Roger Williams park, this city, this noon when the treacherous surface of the lake gave way in a spot just over a warm spring, the girl and a small companion plunged into the water and the two youths attempted to rescue them. One other young man had to be saved when he broke through the surface trying to rescue the doomed boy, and still another lad fell through a soft spot while watching police drag for the bodies, but was speedily drawn out.

The dead are Elsie Anderson, 8 year old daughter of Captain Gustave Anderson, of Battery A., 243rd Coast Artillery corps; Frank A. Tefft, 18, and Leonard H. Donigan 18 all of Providence. Margaret McNamara, 11, Charles Henson, 12, and Earle McManus, 14, of Providence and Edgewood were rescued.

MODERN FIRE-ALARM SYSTEM

New York City has just inaugurated a new fire-alarm system for the borough of Manhattan at a cost of $1,500,000, says an illustrated article in the Popular Mechanics Magazine. The system has been so perfected that it takes only ten seconds for an alarm to pass through the central station and reach the station intended to answer the call.

The central station has 317 working box circuits connecting it with the 1,528 street-corner boxes, involving the use of 350 miles of cable and 17,000 miles of wire.

When it is desired to send in an alarm, the person goes to one of the fire-alarm boxes and, noting the instructions on the door, turns the handle until the bell rings. A mechanism is thereby set in motion that transmits to headquarters four complete rounds of the code signal indicating that particular box. After the first round has been received at the central station the dispatcher takes from a file a perforated card corresponding to the box sending in the alarm and places it in a selector switch. Directly after the second round from the box he presses a key and sets in motion the automatic-transmitter control which instantly sends the alarm to all firehouses during the day, and to all companies due at the station on the first and second alarm at night.

WHALES AND SEALS DINE ON STONES

Stones are commonly found in the stomach of the crab-eating seal of the Antarctic seas; and it is believed that they, with a certain amount of grit, are scooped up with the crustacea from the bottom of the sea. The emperor penguin, on the other hand shows an instinctive craving for stones for gizzard-grinding purposes; for stones must be assiduously sought, since these birds never rest upon dry land, but only upon ice. The fate of stones swallowed by birds is not easy to determine.

Another unexpected name in this list of stone-swallowers is that of the lesser Rorqual. This [illegible] whale, feeding upon minute [illegible] and fish. From the point of view of feeding which is, so to speak, based upon this animal, it is probable that any portion of its food is scooped up from the sea floor; hence the pebbles found in its stomach must be deliberately swallowed, and [illegible] for the purposes of digestion, or rather, of trituration. The [illegible] likely to be derived from the fish which are engulfed, for these are mostly herring. — San Francisco Chronicle.

LOCAL "Y" SWIMMERS LOSE MATCH TO MERMEN FROM WHALING CITY

New London defeated the Norwich swimming team at the local "Y" by the score of 40 to 14. Anyone who was fortunate enough to witness the meet was treated to a fine exhibition of swimming and diving, the meet being much more exciting than the final score would seem to lead one to believe.

The Norwich boys were handicapped by New London's insistence in following collegiate swimming rules and heretofore the Norwich boys have been following the high school swimming rules. The New London team was composed for the most part of fellows between the ages of 22 to 28, whereas the Norwich boys are most by academy boys and New London profited by the fact that their members have had much more experience. Four of the fellows who, although they are members of the New London Y, are also members of the U. S. Coast Guards.

Although the Norwich boys lost the meet they will, no doubt, profit by the excellent form shown by the New London team. The score was as follows:

Four-man relay, Norwich 0, New London 5, time 1 min. 35 3-5 sec.

Diving—Norwich 1, New London 8.

Forty yard swim—Norwich 1, New London 8, 22 sec.

Sixty yard breast—Norwich 5, New London 0, 49.3 sec.

CHINA MAY COMPETE IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

New York, Feb. 10.—China may appear in the role of a Davis cup challenger for 1924, it was revealed today by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

In response to requests from Chinese athletic authorities, the association has forwarded detailed information about international team championship competition and challenging procedure. No assurances of competition this year in the cup contest were given, but the source of inquiry pointed out that China has a number of good tennis players available should a team be entered.

Chinese tennis activity has been confined so far to the orient. Those acquainted with conditions there, however, believe China is capable of making strides as rapid as those of Japan, which has produced such stars as Shimizu and Kumagae and reached the challenge round against the United States in 1921.

DIXIE SPEED BOYS TRIM WESTERLY BATTERY TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, Feb. 10. — Another big crowd of basketball fans jammed into the state armory on Dixon street Saturday night to witness the game between the Dixie Speed Boys of Hartford and the Battery E, 243rd Field Artillery players, which resulted in a score of 40 to 32 in favor of the Dixie Boys.

It was a most interesting and fast game throughout and every fan who attended must have felt satisfied with the brand of basketball displayed. Battery E started off by taking the lead which they kept until five goals had been caged, when Murphy of the visitors caged the basket which tied the score. A clever long distance shot by Shortman pulled the Battery team ahead and later the same player qualified as a "retriever" when he was pushed in under the bleacher seats to be dragged out again by the heels with the ball in his clutches. Battery players made another goal when Ogden for the visitors again tied the score and the visitors forged ahead holding the lead to the end of the period, the score being 26 to 20.

[illegible] half the game tightened up perceptibly, the players covering each other more closely, a marked difference in the playing of the two teams was the short distance shooting for goals by the visitors as compared with the long distance throws of the local boys. Torrey played his usual fast game for the Battery, while Hofner connected with five most baskets for the visitors. The second half score was Dixie 14, Battery E 12. During the second period the Battery players had a look-in when Shortman's basket tied the score but Waterman's goal restored the lead for Dixie and held the lead for them until the finish.

The usual dancing followed the basketball game and was enjoyed until midnight.

The score follows:

Battery E.		Dixie Speed Boys.
Plympton, Shortman	R. F.	Torrant, Mantelli
Torrey	L. F.	Murphy
Stenhouse	R. F.	Ogden, Hofferth
Shortman	C.	Waterman
McCloy	L. G.	Hofner
	R. G.

Scoring — Battery E: Field goals, Plympton 4, Torrey 6, Stenhouse 3, McCloy 1, Shortman 2; foals 6.

Dixie Speed Boys, Hartford: Murphy 4, Torrant 4, Ogden 5, Hofner 6, Waterman 3, Hofferth 2; foals 0.

Referee, D. Harold Rogers; timekeeper, A. Grieg; scorers, Madge, Craven; attendance 600; two twenty-minute halves.

Score by periods:

Battery E	20	12	32
Dixie Speed Boys	26	14	40

ENGLISH FANS INTERESTED IN WILLIAMS-WERNER BOUT

Next Thursday night will be a great night for the English fans that live in this part of the state, as they have been wanting for some time to see Bobby Williams box with some good man. Williams feels certain that he will defeat Werner and then hopes to be a busy boy among the welters in New England.

George Werner certainly has a lot of admirers in and about this state and will have many rooters when the ring rings for his bout with Bobby Williams. Werner has not been too busy of late owing to a bad hand, however, now that he is completely well he wishes to meet all the best boys his weight in New England.

SISLER TO RETURN TO GAME AS PITCHER AND 1ST BASEMAN

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 10.—George Sisler, manager of the St. Louis Americans, plans to return to the game this season in the capacity of manager, first baseman and pitcher, according to a letter received by Walter Pritchy vice president of the Browns, and made public last night.

Sisler declared in the letter that even should his eyes prevent him from resuming his old position as a first baseman, he intends to take his regular turn on the mound. At present, however, the letter stated he is confident that he will be able to take his regular turn as pitcher and when not pitching to play first base, in addition to acting as manager of the team.

Sisler was out of the game last season on account of visional defect.

COLUMBIA QUINTET NOW LEADS IN INTERCOLLEGIATE BASKETBALL

New York, Feb. 10.—Cornell broke the deadlock in the Intercollegiate basketball league last night by defeating Pennsylvania, 17 to 14, thereby assuming the undisputed lead in the college wheel today with three victories and one defeat. The result was in keeping with the string of home court victories which has dotted play in the college circuit since the opening of the season. Not a victory has been won by any team on an opponent's court.

Captain Capron of the Cornell team, in addition to aiding his team in downing its Quaker rival, bounced into the lead for individual scoring honors when he tossed in four field goals, bringing his individual total from 21 to 29 points, two points ahead of Sam Pite of Yale, who held the scoring honors up to last night.

Kneass of Pennsylvania, with one field goal and four foul goals, advanced to a tie with Pite. Pennsylvania's defeat sent the Quakers down to a tie with Yale and Princeton for cellar honors, each team having won one game out of three starts.

As an active participant in sport, King George's favorites have been racing, yachting, fishing and shooting. As a spectator, he is fondest of football, and never fails to attend several of the big matches in the course of the season. He has also some liking for watching an interesting cricket match, though he himself never plays the game.

If it can raise the necessary funds the Duluth Boat Club proposes to send an eight, a four, a double and two singles scullers to the Olympic rowing trials at Philadelphia next June.

The latest fight staged by Bessie Prenty, Philadelphia's negro woman fight promoter, is a lively contest with the Pennsylvania States Athletic Commission, which has venture to object to the way in which Bessie has conducted some of her boxing shows in the Quaker City.

It is not generally known that billiards had its origin in an outdoor pastime. This was "paille maille," an old French game played like croquet. Exactly when the billiard-table came into use is not clear, but reference is made to it in a manuscript dated 1592, the writer classing billiards with dice and cards and "other thriftless games."

Boxing is one of the world's oldest sports. The noble art of self-defence was practised more than thirty centuries ago. It was indeed a stone man's game. One hero, called Encedalus, used to slay oxen by giving them one blow between the eyes with his fist. Boxing gloves were in use even in those early days; but there was a difference. The earliest glove consisted of a strip of leather, reinforced with lumps of brass and lead, which was wound round the pugilist's fist.

TO STUDY CAVE, PLANTS, AND BATS

The National Geographic Society today announced the sending of an expedition to explore Carlsbad Cavern, New Mexico, which may be America's largest and most beautiful cave, and to seek further remains of the ancient inhabitants of this continent.

Partial exploration of the Carlsbad Cavern revealed a corridor along which an inaugural parade might march farther than the mile route from the Capitol to the White House, and through most of the course would have much wider maneuver space than Pennsylvania avenue affords. A chamber of more [illegible] spacious than any [illegible] could provide an [illegible] half a mile long by many [illegible] feet wide.

The ornamentation ranges from bamboolike mazes of slender formations, which a brush of the hand will crush, to stalagmites 100 feet high and double that figure in base diameter.

Plants and bats will be two other subjects of the expedition's study.

The natural opening of the cave now is used exclusively by bats. At dusk, each evening, they begin to leave and for three hours the winged stream pours forth like smoke from a smokestack.

Dr. Willis T. Lee, who made the preliminary exploration of the Cavern and will head the National Geographic Society's expedition.

"Repellent as these little mammals are on close acquaintance, it is fascinating to watch the countless thousands of them leaving home, and to speculate on their destination and the nocturnal adventures awaiting them.

"It is equally fascinating in the early morning to watch these same countless thousands returning home; to see each little creature fold its wings in mid-air and dart downward into the cave with incredible speed. Within, each individual seeks its own chosen nook or crack in which it may hook a tiny claw and hang at ease until darkness again calls it forth."

The Cavern now is remote from beaten travel routes, and after arrival the visitor is precluded from the natural entrance, at which there is a vertical drop of 170 feet. Only the more intrepid would venture into a guano bucket to be lowered in a bat-inhabited chamber.

An interior survey which will be made by the National Geographic Society expedition, taken with a topographic survey of the region, will show the thinnest places in the rock shell covering the Cavern and thus a favorable point for an artificial entrance will be selected.

Even the small portion of the Cavern traversed revealed that it is a natural wonder of foremost rank and it has just been set aside by order of President Coolidge as a National Monument.

The plants near Carlsbad Cavern add picturesque quality to the landscape and invite scientific study. There are thorn bushes and thorn trees; Spanish-bayonets and Spanish-daggers. The predominating characteristic is thorniness. There are prickly pears and cats-claws; sage-brush and greasewood; thorny mesquites and screwbeans.

The sotol grows near Carlsbad Cavern. Formerly the natives roasted the heads for food, after removing the saw-blade leaves. From the fermented trunks is distilled the intoxicating "sotol" drink. The long, tough leaves are used for thatching and making baskets, mats and rough cordage.

The Cavern itself is exceptional; and it is surrounded by features which enhance its future scenic value. Southeastern New Mexico, little known and seldom visited, has mountains nearly 10,000 feet high.

Carlsbad Cavern is one of a dozen or more caverns in Guadalupe Mountains, others are known to be of phenomenal size, and it may be that Carlsbad is connected with some of these by underground passages.

When a window shade roller refuses to hold, dust some talcum powder on the "live" end roller and work it under and around the latches. Talcum powder is made from soapstone and is a dry lubricant.

A French caddie, after listening many visiting players, British and American, informed a friend that he learned how to count the strokes in English, viz.: "Von, do, tre, fore, fif, seed, dam, sit, damm." Being asked how seven was distinguished from nine in this scoring he replied that when the latter was meant it was pronounced with double force.—Boston Transcript.

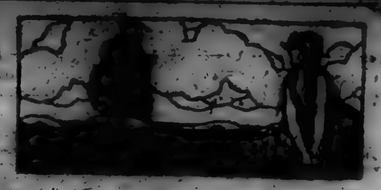
SHORT STORIES OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE



The Astral Surgeon

By Joella Johnson

MARVIN fell beside me as the enemy charged over the ridge." The old surgeon pulled aside the red curtain displaying a complete wired skeleton hanging in the closet. Doctor Curtis, the young interne, shrank back. It seemed gruesome even to a medical man to hear one talking intimately of a rack of bones. "We had a compact, Doctor," continued the old man. "It was always a joke between us that in case of death the other was to have the cadaver for anatomical purposes and the skeleton as a relic. I got an order from the colonel when Marvin was shot and took his body to the city college where I dissected it and personally strung the skeleton as you see it here."

"Doesn't it seem queer to have his bones around that way?" queried the young doctor.

"My, no," the surgeon laughed filling his big pipe. "Marvin was a wonder with the scalpel, and when I'm stuck sometimes I have a talk with the old partner there and he seems to tell me what to do."

With a shudder Doctor Curtis went to his room in the hospital. He dearly loved the white-haired old surgeon and noticed that of late he was gently failing in health. Several weeks later an orderly called Curtis in the middle of the night. The old surgeon was very ill and wanted him at once. As the sun toped the big buildings, the grand old soul slipped its temporal home. On the desk was a sealed envelope addressed to Doctor Curtis. It was a request in will form, giving him all his books and instruments and his office equipment. The stipulations were that his body should be thoroughly dissected and the skeleton hung in the closet with his old army pal, Doctor Marvin. The document closed with the underlined sentence, "Call upon me if you need me."

Fame parched on the banners of Doctor Curtis. The Memorial Hospital became a country-wide known place where surgery reached its highest development. Medical journals resounded with the name of the brilliant young surgeon who was working marvels. In the sombre office back of the red curtains the white, polished bones of Doctor Marvin and the old surgeon hung side by side. For a long time Curtis felt the uncanny association of the relics and hesitated about being alone in the big office. Nurses and orderlies when they heard the story absolutely refused to enter the room alone.

Fate put Doctor Curtis in his trim red roadster that Sunday afternoon on the River boulevard. By a turn of the mystic wheel the touring car of Banker Carrington struck a slippery, oily piece of road and skidded into the ditch. The banker clung to the wheel. Two young ladies in the rear seat were hurled over the side, tearing off the curtains, and landed in a rumpled heap on a grassy bank. The trim, red roadster was just behind them. More frightened than hurt, the girls were helped to their feet by a steady-eyed young doctor, who laughingly took off his coat and hitched his sixty horsepower car to the car of the banker and soon had it on the road again, little worse for the accident. A certain banker's daughter with hazel eyes and red gold hair dreamed that night of an athletic doctor pulling out a ditched car, and a young surgeon took two hours to read three pages of a medical work thinking about the banker's daughter.

Months later Blanche Carrington, white and wasted, lay on a bed of pain in her mansion home. On her left hand blazed the solitaire diamond ring Doctor Curtis had placed there when she consented to be his wife. From the vale of mystery a strange malady had attacked the beautiful body. All the range of materia Medica had failed to reach the seat of the trouble. Day by day she declined. Kneeling by her bedside, Curtis begged, pleaded and did all medical skill could do to bring back health to his loved one. The X-ray, revealed nothing. Trained hands detected no organic displacement or growth. Somewhere in the delicate mechanism a stoppage or flaw was choking the life blood and death hovered near. In despair and mental agony he bent his tired head to his folded arms in the seclusion of his study. All the fame, the honor, the credit of his profession, were as nothing if Blanche was taken from him. This man of strength, fearless as a lion cried out in his misery.

"Oh, what can I do? What shall I do?" He had reached the limit of his skill and was baffled.

There was a flutter of the red curtains. A rattle in the dark closet where the skeleton hung. Startled he glanced up. The bones of the old surgeon were moving. First a shadow of light, then a curtain of haze was sifting around the moving bones. Curtis tried to move, try out, he could not. A figure stepped out of the closet. The skeleton now clothed in an auras of blue white haze came to the head of the table. There was still the grinning skull, the bony fingers and creak of the wire joints. One bony arm pointed to Curtis. A voice hollow as the echo of the grave spoke to him.

"I said call upon me if you need me."

It was the voice of the old surgeon speaking. With a mighty effort Curtis jerked back in his swivel chair. He felt the chills race down his spinal column, yet a sense of security, of kindness enveloped him.

"What shall I do for Blanche?" he gulped out.

"Bring her here at once," whistled from the jaws of the skull.

With a trembling voice he used the 'phone and directed the ambulance to be ready for an emergency trip in a few moments. He then 'phoned the Carrington home and told the nurse in attendance to have the patient ready for a trip to the hospital. The luminous skeleton stood rigid while he talked on the 'phone.

"I will be ready when she comes," hissed through the bony jaws. It turned and clattered back to the closet and the red curtains fell to place.

The patient was brought down and placed in the operating room by tender hands. Ordering all nurses and attendants to leave the room, the doctor opened the door to the passageway running to his office. With a cry of amazement he jumped back. At the door of the operating room stood the two skeletons from the closet. Shuffling across the polished floor the two clanking forms went to the operating table. For a moment the hollow eyes peered at the etherized form on the white table. Then deftly the bony hand of the old surgeon took up the scalpel. The other skull leaned close as the bright blade made a deep incision. Doctor Curtis bent over with sponges and gauze to catch the blood. The bony hands waved him back. Not a drop gushed from the wound. Deep in the abdomen the knife went. White bony fingers searched for the vital organs. The old surgeon reached in the incision. The empty eye sockets peered intently. There was a quick turn of the wrist, a sharp jerk and the skeleton hand dropped to his side. Doctor Curtis felt his jaw fall in awe. The wound slowly closed, the edges uniting and healing without blood or apparent soreness.

"That's all. It is well," the skull of Doctor Marvin said.

Clanking of wires, the rattle of bones, the swish of air, the glide of light and the two figures swept across the operating room and vanished through the door of the passageway. Rushing to the other door, Doctor Curtis called the nurses in. Blanche was hurried to a bed in a private room.

In a state of collapse the young surgeon went to his office. It took a long while to pull back the red curtains. Swaying in the motion of the cabinet the two skeletons were there as usual.

"Not even a scar, Arthur," whispered the doctor's wife after they were married and discussing the operation which had restored the girl to perfect health. "You are some surgeon, my dear."

Kneeling before the cabinet, the doctor held back the red curtain and prayed that these men of skill had found peace and comfort in the great unknown, thanking them both for the life of the beautiful wife, now his forever. Two bony hands reached out and rested on his head.

Chauffeur vs. Chef

By Hazel Courtney

THE dainty, well-manicured fingers of Hilda Blair moved deftly among the tea things as she poured and served the steaming beverage to her young guests.

"Well, if I ever marry," she declared, handing a cup to the girl on her right, "I am going to marry a man—a real live man, with muscle and, yes, with calloused hands. No shimmying, fox-trotters or society pirates for me!"

This remark caused a great deal of comment and amazement among the girls whom Hilda was entertaining in her luxurious apartment at the Misses Gregory's fashionable boarding school. That Hilda Blair, whose father controlled millions, and whose mother held the most enviable position in exalted society, should even think of calloused hands, was bad enough, but when it came to marrying them—why, that was preposterous!

Then several years flew by and Hilda, like all other girls in her "set," graduated from the finishing school, where she had learned thoroughly ow to powder her nose in a genteel manner, the art of flirting without making oneself "common," and how to juggle a teacup in an over-crowded reception room without spilling the contents.

Next followed her debut dance, and after that she took her place among the eligibles in the marriage market. And the suitors came in dozens! Hilda was a beautiful girl, and Papa Blair's money was not to be scoffed at. They all looked alike to Hilda—She would have chosen any of them, and, with a sigh of relief, exclaimed: "Well, that's that." But Mamma Blair was the musical director, ringmaster and advance man of the Blair outfit, so she said: "Wait awhile, daughter, until something really worth while comes along."

Mr. Really Worth While made his appearance in the form of a count from Cordova or some such country. The count was long on names, but short on looks and shorter on funds. But the match was considered an ideal one; approved by a title-mad mother, patronizing followers, and a father whose objections would have amounted to little if submitted. So the courtship began in earnest. The couple golfed in the morning, motored in the afternoon, and jazzed almost every evening. Hilda sported a solitaire as big as a dime, and everything was going wonderfully well. Then the inevitable happened.

For some time past, as they motored, Hilda had been comparing the chauffeur's broad, athletic shoulders with the stooped, narrow ones of her affianced husband. Also, she found something irresistible about the way her chauffeur's hair waved about his temples. Mr. Count of Cordova's head resembled a new, shiny billiard ball. Then the chauffeur had eyes that were bright with happiness, health and the love of living, while the eyes of the count were red, dissipated looking and thoroughly repulsive.

One afternoon, shortly after Hilda had discovered the physical attractions of the man at the wheel, they were driving in the country. The count had just finished relating one of his everlasting accounts of "when I was a lad in Cordova." It was then that Fate took a hand that caused an up-to-now perfectly good romance to be utterly ruffled. An inebriated gentleman returning from some village bootlegger's establishment, in a powerful car and in a hilarious mood, was the guise Fate took while she played her hand.

The drunken man's car swerved dizzily from its course and plunged headlong into the limousine containing Hilda and her lover. No serious damage was done, and with the exception of two broken headlights, and the count's hat and wallet being thrown to the floor, all was well, considering what might have ocurred. The lights were replaced by a near-by garage-man and the count's hat recovered unharmed, but in the excitement the wallet was left unnoticed. It was found the next morning, however, by the chauffeur, who promptly delivered it in person to his beautiful mistress.

Now all womankind, from Mother Eve down to the modern flapper, is said to be curious, and Hilda Blair was no exception. She had a great desire to see whether her sweetheart loved her enough to carry her picture in his purse. The picture was there, and with it a soiled and worn letter.

"Ah," sighed Hilda "a sonnet written to me declaring his love. These foreigners are so romantic!"

Hilda was so sure that the letter was meant for her that she never once thought that she was doing wrong in examining another person's property. Quite innocently she opened the note, and instead of finding a touching little ballad, tellig of her beauty, the following lines met her horrified eyes:

"Mr. Antonio Gilbretti:

"Dear Sir—Won't you overlook our quarrel and come and cook for us again? Our customers are clamoring for your famous dishes. Would it be an inducement to you if we raised your pay? Please come back. We need you for the good of the business.

"Proprietor of the Gilded Lamb."

Oh, what an awakening. Her betrothed husband, her count, a ham and egg specialist! What should she do? What would her friends say? She would be the laughing-stock of the entire city!

Did she pine away and seek seclusion in some convent in order to avoid meeting her associates? I guess not! Hilda Blair was a good loser, so she just called in her chauffeur, her real hero—and she rewarded him by giving him her promise to become his wife. Of course her mother wept and society held up its hands in horror, but in spite of everything Hilda made arrangements to be married very simply in the house of a minister out of town. And as her chauffeur sweetheart stood beside her on that day of days, and held her hand in his, Hilda noticed for the first time that the man had calloused hands. But just as she was about to murmur "I do!" the pseudo count appeared in the doorway, brandishing a dagger in either hand. And then. . .

The picture dimmed and gradually faded from the screen, and immediately the motion picture operator flashed on these words:

"Does Count Gilbretti Kill the Handsome Chauffeur?"

"See 'Calloused Hands' at this Theater Every Thurs., Fri. and Sat."

A young girl sitting halfway down in the audience pressed her finger tightly against her chewing gum, causing it to snap loudly. She turned to her companion and uttered a groan of disgust.

"Gee," she said, "It's one of them Come-Next-Week pitchers. Wouldn't that get your goat? I wisht we'd gone to the Palace Theayter like you wanted to and seen Luckless Fairbanks in the 'Three Musty Bears.'"

A coal merchant had advertised for a boy.

A red-haired, red-faced boy applied for the job.

"Do you like work?" asked the merchant.

"No, sir," said the boy.

"Then you can have the job! You're the first boy who's been here today and hasn't told a lie."

Bewitching John Ann

By Margaret Taylor

NOW John Ann, as you will say, is no name at all for a girl. We agree with you that it is not a pretty name; yet in spite of what any of us think, the name seemed all right for the girl who bore it, simply because it was John Ann who bore it and of all pretty girls—there I go again. I was always one of little John Ann's ardent worshippers.

It was Anthony Braden who was her lover, back there in the school days, poor old stead Anthony who knew how hopeless it was to love her, for what on earth had he to offer her if she did marry him after he was out of school? Anthony was not even good-looking. Certainly he did not have much family backing and it is a sad thing to say it, but Anthony was just a little bit ashamed of his family, not his mother, for he loved her in spite of her ways, and his father probably was sick and not lazy. The girls might have done better, but did not, so Anthony was rather forlorn in the family sense.

But Anthony was a wonder in school. He had a way of coming into school with a sort of grim determination that that day he was going to master the devil, if the devil came along. Whatever was the most difficult, that is what he was determined to get. If recess did come, Anthony was not ready to play ball if the problem remained unsolved. He went at his trigonometry very much like a chemist at his job. But it was quite another thing to get the love of the girl who took all of his thoughts when out of the school room. There were times when he lifted his big heavy head from over a book and rested it for a few moments, poised on the palm of a workman's hand. He toiled outside the school room. When sitting in this meditative way, he could look across the room, a little in front of him and see John Ann, dear little John Ann, usually arrayed in pink, with a bit of silver in her ornaments, and such bewitching curls that tantalizingly scampered all over her head and escaped the pins in the loose knot at the back of her head. She sometimes turned her face and if Anthony caught her eyes, she always smiled back. But, then John Ann smiled at everyone!

The night of the big school debate over at Drexel the senior class was going. The debate was to be somewhat hilarious, the subject being, "Which is More Important to a Young Lady on a Dark Night, a Strong Young Man or a Bright Lantern?" Anthony was strong for the young man end of the subject, for that was his part in the program. He went to dreaming just what he would do if he had to protect John Ann on a dark night when he could not see his hand before his face, and right well he knew that he would move mountains and slay wild beasts with one hand, while holding John Ann with the other. He was Three Musketeers in one. But then—oh, thunder, she was not going with him!

Several times that day he looked over at John Ann. How he wished, as only a boy can wish, that his father owned a fine horse and buggy, so that he might, without shame, ask John Ann to go with him. Other men have sensed these vital points in family affairs, and a lot of it has sent thousands out to fight like demons for the same principle, which is a part of horse and buggy wrangle in all business affairs.

Faint heart may not win a fair lady, neither will poverty and patched overalls. All the fine principle, virtue and manliness in a good chap's heart will not touch the glowing fire in a damsel's heart like a suit of fine serge and the scent of rosemary perfume on a pure linen handkerchief, owned by any old thing that can walk and dance and talk pretty things in the moonlight.

Finally the crowd decided to walk to Drexel. It was a moonlight night and the walking would be fine. The two teachers went along, and in the moonlight, Anthony looked like a young god, and truly John Ann was a young Diana, only she wore her shoes and was not prowling around in her barefeet like Diana of moonlight romance.

To cut short their trip they cut across fields. In the middle of a big field they heard a roar, then they saw it coming down the opposite hill as fast as it could run, head down, short brush tail up sweeping the atmosphere, and a bellow that sounded like a loose menagerie back of them. They ran. Oh, how they ran! Even the teachers ran, and why not? It was a question of life and death to any of them. Then little John Ann fell and screamed. The rest ran on but Anthony looked back, saw what had happened and ran back to the girl.

He picked her up but she could not stand. He had to run with her. He was far back of the others, but he was not safe. To him John Ann was like a feather, though the feather got heavier and just how he did it or why he did it, he does not know, but he made the last lap of his run and threw her over the fence, not knowing just where she fell. He got over just as a huge form lunged against the fence and broke part of it down!

Finally he got his senses together and picked up John Ann just where she had fallen. The others were far, far ahead of them still screaming. But Anthony was sitting on the hillside, with a sobbing little girl sitting close by him, her tumbled hair falling over his shoulder. He wanted to kiss her. He wanted to put his arms, both of them, around her so tight that she would know it was the biggest love hug on earth. He did neither, for Anthony was a true gentleman. He smoothed one of her little hands, and told her that after they both rested, he would carry her over to a farm house, and get one of the men to take her home.

It seemed to take them a long time to rest.

"How about our lyceum?" she inquired.

"I am not thinking of lyceum. I am thinking of you, John Ann, just as I think of you in school and when I am at home working. I think of you all the time. I wish you were my girl!"

And John Ann giggled softly. "Why, Anthony, isn't that queer? I think about you all the time; but if you tell any person, I'll just kill you. Just think, we might never have known it if that, that, that thing back there had not chased us. My foot hurts, but I am glad."

Real Diamond,

Sam, the chore man, returned from the city with a scarf pin that contained a "diamond" of no usual size. It was the pride of his heart, and the envy of his village companions. He treated all inquiries from them as to its value and its authenticity with high scorn.

His employer, after a week of basking in its radiance, asked Sam about its history.

"Sam," he said, "is it a real diamond?"

"Wall," said Sam, "if it ain't. I've been skun out of a half-dollar."

Watching and Waiting

By Claire Wesson

IF you are the wife of a railroad man, you will understand every phase of this incident—it is not a story—and, probably, your sympathy will be with Bertha. She often needed it.

Bertha's husband was Roel Tomlinson, the patient, smiling, never-out-of-humor conductor on the Western terminal. Like all railroad men, he was paid once a month.

Now, this arrangement was satisfactory early in their married life, for their credit was good and it is to this day, but a young couple do not like debts to pile up against them, and the Tomlinsons steered far from these disastrous shoals in their matrimonial sea.

But after one baby came, then another, and two more to make a crowd, with all their wants and needs, both Bertha and Roel began making sacrifices, sometimes huge ones, and what they had of a bank account dwindled down to $37.11 after little Betty came to stay.

Bertha was thrifty, but there were times when she needed money long, long before it was due. Sometimes she laughed and told her family that for dinner it was court of last resort, namely potato soup. Now potato soup will do once in a while, but one tires of it just the same as a hunter tires of wild duck after feasting on it for just three days.

Smiling always, Bertha played the big game, often putting her family down to the table where they all wondered how she managed to get the things. It was an art, but some of that housekeeping art is very difficult work, as any home-maker knows. It is very easy for some persons to provide dinners already to serve from cracker boxes or tin cans; but a woman who loves her family will not feed them this way. And to spend one's time in the kitchen beating the tin can at its own game, is just servitude, loving or drudgery, just as the family want to think of it.

Bertha mended little socks until she went around threading imaginary needles. She made and remade until she got tired of it. One day she planned to let everything go just bang, for the tea kettle was leaking, the dishpan had a hole in it, the pie pans were worn out and not a sauce pan was fit to cook a meal in. It was just one of those days when everything goes wrong, and, of course, things must be replenished in the house.

Nevertheless, she went to work, despite her plans, and worked harder than ever. When Roel came in off the trip, she was the same welcoming Bertha, but she did say: "I'll be glad when pay day comes. I simply must have some things to work with.

Roel was in a good humor, as usual. He was wiping the dishes for her, and after flipping the end of the wet tea towel on her neck, he said: "What would you give to go back to Daddy Duff's and chuck us all? Oh, I bet you do want to go, poor kid. It certainly does take a lot to keep this little brood, but listen, Bertha, I don't care what happens this day, you've simply got to get yourself a new dress."

"I need tin pans," she wailed. "I have nothing to work with. I need a new wash tub, and we need a new mattress for the boy's bed. All of our carpets and rugs are ready to break through. I do want those things, and I need the dress; but I am going to do without everything. I am going to have some new pots and pans and a decent bread knife, or I am going to apply to the township trustees."

They finished the dishes and sat down on the kitchen steps, leading into a sitting room. It was late Winter and a soft snow was falling. With full hearts and empty pockets, they sat like lovers giggling and sighing.

"And you are not tired of your bargain?" he again asked.

"No, Honey, not tired, just sort of flabbergasted when everything leaks."

"Thinking about the tin pans? Don't worry. In a few days this place will look like the basement of a big department store. Do you really need them?"

"No, Roel, I am just talking about them. All my cooking utensils are worn out. If I must cook—"

"There, there, now," he pleaded. "It used to be assorted chocolates, but now it is empty tin pans. But we do love each other, anyhow, don't you still think so?"

She did and proved it with a kiss.

The following Friday he received his check, cashed it and went home. In a spirit of fun he carried all the tinware out in the alley. The next day he would have it taken away. He went over in town to pay dues and when he came home the family had gone to bed. The next morning there was a wail of agony, not a pan to be seen, all covered with snow, and Roel had lost his billfold. Two agonized persons dug in the snow, shoveling out pans and fritter turners, cake pans and holey sauce pans. While digging for dear life, one of the youngsters came out with a telegram. Roel grabbed it and read it, "Your mother and I are coming down to spend two weeks for you. Meet us at the 9:30 train tonight. Father."

Bertha gulped. With an apron full of wet pans she went back into the kitchen, there to sit down and have a big cry. While trying to console her, Roel looked at a dark object near the wood-box, then he actually screamed: "Good Lord, good Lord," he shouted," if there isn't that bill fold. Honey, wash out the pots and pans and the skillet and make 'em do this month. Next month you get a new kitchen outfit if I have to take a jimmy and a dark lantern and get them for you."

"We have only one complaint against our cook."

"What is that?"

"We can never tell whether she is singing happily at her work or whether she has burst herself and is in horrible pain."

Cheering Up the Snow Man.

When the old Snow Man gets lonesome
And he's feeling rather blue,
Then the children gather round him,
Just as soon as school is through.
Then they hug him and caress him,
And they drive away his fears,
And with childish jest and laughter
[illegible] the foe he fears,
[illegible]
and he loves his friends, the children,
For they drive his cares away.

Why One Boy Likes Abraham Lincoln

Of all the Lincoln stories told
I think that one's the best of all
About him and the little Bird.
And how he heard its call.

You know, the one that tells about
How Lincoln, on a summer day,
Riding on horseback with a friend,
Along a tree-lined way,
Heard doleful peeps that seemed to come
From out the tangled wayside grass,
And, though he had no time to spare,
He could not bear to pass.
E'en though his journey called for haste,
But stopped his horse, dismounted there;
And searching in the tangled grass,
And stepping with great care,
He found a little weakling bird,
That fell from out its mother's nest,
And climbed the tree, quick as he could,
And put it with the rest.
Why, such a story makes you know
He never could be mean or glum!
It makes you wish so hard to have
A boy like him for chum!
—Minnie Leona Upton, in Dumb Animals.

UNCLE JED TALKS TO WIDE-AWAKES

One of the winter sports in which the small boy and girl take a great deal of pleasure is skating. However young people are prone to overlook danger for pleasure and deplorable tragedies sometimes result. For instance—In and around one New England city within two days' time 12 children recently lost their lives by drowning when they broke through thin ice, weakened by warm winds. The oldest of these children was but twelve years, and the youngest a tiny tot of two years. That is but the record of two days this winter for one small section of New England. Think of it! Twelve young lives snuffed out in forty-eight hours time, largely through carelessness or thoughtlessness.

Now skating is great fun and health giving. There is no more healthful way of passing a few hours on a winter's day, but we cannot be too careful when we venture on ice, river ice especially. Uncle Jed has seen small boys and girls skating up to within a few feet of a waterfall on a rapidly flowing river. Perhaps they did not realize how near death they were for ice is always thin near the brink of a waterfall, even on the coldest days.

When we go skating on a river, pond or on any body of water we should make sure the ice is thick enough to bear our weight. If the ice is thin and there is any danger of it breaking through, keep off it. Rivers are especially treacherous for in many streams there are strong currents running night and day. Of course we all know, or should know, that running or flowing water freezes much more slowly than still water. Around the river banks the ice may be six or seven inches thick and further out in the stream only an inch thick. Don't skate out to the middle of a stream to "see if the ice is all right." You are liable to get on a weak spot and down you go into the icy cold water.

When father and mother tell you not to venture on the ice because they don't think it is safe, obey them. Don't get the idea that you know more about it than they do and go in spite of their warning. Sometimes such skating trips don't turn out just the way you expected.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

Thrift

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide-Awakes, but I have enjoyed their stories.

Thrift means the habit of saving. Benjamin Franklin is considered The Father of American Thrift. No matter how little we earn, we should try to save part of it, but let us save consistently.

During the world war we helped our country and ourselves by buying Government securities, thrift stamps, war saving stamps and liberty or victory bonds.

We can save our home, our community and our country better by preserving our health. He who wilfully neglects his health is selfish. He is placing an unnecessary burden upon his parents, whose health and strength it is his duty to save. Instead of adding to the care of his parents every honest person should do all he can to save the health and strength of his parents and should obey and serve them in a spirit of love and duty.

Benjamin Franklin, The Father of American Thrift, has said, "Time is the stuff that lives are made of." "He thrifty person will waste his time."

LIKES TO READ

Dear Uncle Jed: I like school because I like to study. The subjects I like best are reading and geography.

I like reading because it is very useful and interesting. If I did not know how to read I would only know things that people told me as I could not obtain any knowledge from books. Besides learning useful things I have a chance to read many interesting stories. If it were not for reading I could not study at all. Besides ordinary reading, each month I learn a poem. I like this because I like poetry, and so I am glad that I learn it at school. Some things that I have for reading require thinking in order to understand them, so in this way my brain is being trained to understand other things.

I like geography because in studying this subject I learn about the earth on which I live and the people who live on it. I think that it is very interesting to study about people of other lands and their homes. I do not only learn these things but I learn of cities and their importance, of winds and rains, of oceans and their currents, and of many other things which I cannot now name. If it were not for the study of geography, many people who have traveled would never have left home for they would not have known enough about the world to care to travel. There are also many things about my surroundings that I would not understand if I had not studied geography.

MY LITTLE DOG

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you about my little dog. Her name is Jip. She barks at cars. She has a collar on her neck. Sometimes, when she catches a woodchuck, she eats him. She finds the cows and brings two of them home and then I tell her to go and get the others so she goes and gets the cows home.

PICKING BERRIES

FEEDING THE BIRDS

Dear Uncle Jed: I think that a deed of kindness for us to do in the winter is to feed the little snowbirds. This is the way: Put up a tall post, and on top of this nail a large board. Put a box or something at the bottom to stand on. Then when the deep snow comes, every morning put some bread crumbs and some pealed apples on the board. After a few mornings the birds will learn to go there for their breakfast each day.

Outside my window I have a post driven in the ground. On top of this is a cheese box cover and on that a box set on end with a cover for the open side that can be closed at night. Inside the box are pancakes and fresh meat. The box hadn't been there five minutes before the chickadees were eating out of it. Six chickadees did come, now there are only three. I hope that different kinds of birds will come.

THE WOLF AND THE STORK.

Dear Uncle Jed: A greedy wolf got a bone stuck in his throat. Try as he would, he could not get the bone out. At last he lay down to die, as he thought. But just then a stork came along.

"Good day, Mr. Wolf," said the stork kindly.

But the wolf could not answer a word. The stork soon saw what the matter was and with his long beak pulled the bone out of the wolf's throat. Without a word the greedy wolf sprang up and went on with his dinner.

The stork, who was very hungry, began to pick up a few morsels.

"Be off with you!" snapped the wolf. "How dare you touch my meat!"

"Is that the thanks I get for saving your life?" said the stork.

"Thanks!" answered the wolf. "Did I not let you draw your bill out of my jaw in safety? It is you who should be thankful."

A HAPPY CHRISTMAS.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you. And it is about Christmas. We had a pretty Christmas tree with presents for us. We had a much better time this year because my mother invited a little boy out of our Sunday school class. He has no mother and lives with his father. Santa Claus did not forget him.

MILDRED CARTER, Age 7.

GOOD REASONING AND SUCCESS

Dear Uncle Jed: In this world there have been many wonderful achievements, but no one has found or ever will find a substitute for work. Go after greater things, even though you may fail occasionally in your attempt, but do not become discouraged. If you continue your attempts, you are sure to accomplish much. In fact the more you strive, the quicker you will succeed.

Many people who have been unable to go to college have found correspondence courses very helpful. By hard study much benefit can be derived from some of these courses, but if one gets the lessons out the easiest possible way, his course will not do very much good. The student who is a hard plugger may be able to earn many thousands of dollars through the study where the easy going student who gets his diploma with as little effort as possible may not earn an extra dollar through the course. This brings the point that we get out of anything just what we put into it. The student who is faithful, hardworking, will get more out of his work, than the fellow who wastes his time on the street corner. Every student should feel that he is responsible for the success of his study. It is our duty to conduct our study to the very best of our ability. Let progress be your watch word. The student who does things just when he feels like it will never do the world be anything. Jobs in the future will be filled by students who can be depended upon. Therefore we should get the habit of being prompt now.

Keep to your work or study no matter how much you may become discouraged. Later you will well be glad you did not give up or stop. Besides, each time you win a victory over discouragement you become stronger and feel encouraged to go on with greater vim than before. Most of the worth while things in life are not brought about by money but by work. There are a great many students, however, who fail because they are happiest when quitting time arrives.

No person has ever done big things without doing little things first. Every student and person should be dependable. Those who have gone to the top of work and study have succeeded because they showed at each step that they could be depended upon. The path leading to success can be found, by striving. If these rules are followed by pupils of the grammar school, high school, normal school and college they would become excellent students and could obtain an excellent job easily.

I attend the Gurleyville Grammar school. I am in the eighth grade and 13 years old.

RICHARD LANGER, Age 13.

ANOTHER NEW MEMBER.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first attempt to write to you. I am hoping you'll include me as a member of the Wide-Awake Circle. I am going to tell you about the wild animals.

The question of the conservation of wild animal life in our country is one that affects the lumber pile, the market basket, and the dinner pail. Originally our fields and forests held game in such marvelous variety and numbers that the supply seemed inexhaustible. With the coming of white men and firearms all this changed. The buffalo was wantonly killed until he became almost extinct. The antelope and elk that for years furnished the meat supply of the pioneer were slaughtered in some instances solely for their branching antlers. Many species of birds formerly common to the United States have been totally exterminated and others have barely escaped that fate. All told, the amount of game today is only 2 per cent. of what it used to be. This wholesale destruction of wild life has upset the balance of nature. Without the birds, insect pests have increased enormously and orchards and forests have been laid waste to an alarming extent.

A HAPPY CHRISTMAS.

Dear Uncle Jed: A long time ago there lived a poor girl with her mother. Christmas was coming and they didn't have anything in the house to eat. The girl's mother was sick so she couldn't go to work. The girl was too little to work. She would have to go out in the street and find something to eat for her mother and herself. There were two more days to Christmas.

As she was walking along the street a man saw her. He noticed her ragged clothes and her down-hearted look. The man followed her every place she went. Soon she got tired of walking. She started for her house. The man followed her and he found out where she lived. He found out from the neighbors who she was.

On Christmas morning when the girl arose to make the fire she saw some food and clothing. She didn't light the fire but ran to tell her mother about it. The mother and child spent a very merry Christmas. They wondered who could have given them the things. Later they found out that the man who followed the child was from the Salvation Army and understood where the things came from.

EDUCATION

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about men who stop learning. There was schooling before schools. There was schooling before humanity. Even a cat schools her kittens. Schooling is a part of being young.

I suppose that the savage or barbarian or the peasant in any part of the world or the uneducated man anywhere would laugh if you told him that the adult must still learn. But in our modern world, there has grown up a new idea. I mean, in the sense that it runs counter to the life scheme of primitive humanity and of most other living things, and that is the idea that one can go on learning up to the end of his life. It marks off all modern man from animals that in his adult life he can display a sense that there remains something still to be investigated and wisdom still to be acquired. Today most educated men would agree that as long as we live we ought to learn.

THE LITTLE SLAVE

Dear Uncle Jed: This being a story that I have written myself I though t you and the Wide Awakes would like to read it.

In 1860 I was only a little slave. My parents and I had to work both day and night. Our day's work would begin in the morning and not end until eight at night. My master would often whip me if I did not pick eight bushels of cotton a day. I was then only ten years old.

One day I became very sick. I was sent to a hospital by my master. My parents were not allowed to see me. I spent many lonesome hours and longed to see my parents. One day the doctor said the only thing that would help me was to have my mother visit me. My master would not at first give her permission to see me. At last the doctor persuaded him.

Tears of joy stood in my eyes at the sight of my mother. I found to my dismay that my father had been sold to another master living 12 miles away. "You must try to get well and as soon as you can as I have been very lonesome since you and your father have been away," said his mother.

One day I was told that I could go to my home. I was very much pleased. I had already been in the hospital six months. I had never been to school and so knew very little about education. During this period Abraham Lincoln was president.

It was the year 1863. I was thirteen. There was great rejoicing among the negroes, while our master seemed very displeased. I must tell you they were no longer our master's for Abraham Lincoln had freed us.

ABOUT THE BIRDS

Dear Uncle Jed: Last fall, while daddy was cutting his sweet corn in the garden, he left a few stalks for the birds. This winter flocks of bluejays beseiged the corn. But within the last few days the bluejays disappeared, and we wondered what drove them away. We soon discovered that the cause of their flight was an innocent woodpecker, in a black and white jacket and red cap, industriously pecking at the corn. He would peck for a time, then fly to a nearby post, and pack his corn in the cracks with firm, swift strokes of his determined bill. Then back he would go after more corn. My brother nailed a cob of corn to a post where it ought to be safe enough, but that did not satisfy the woodpecker. He went to work with unrivaled industry, transferring corn from the cob to the various posts about the neighborhood. I do not know what sent the bluejays away, the woodpecker acts perfectly peaceful, but while that persistent creature is working they will not come near the garden but will only hover wistfully about alighting now and then on neighboring posts.

OUR FLAG

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you a letter about the National Flag. The national flag is displayed from sunrise to sunset. We must especially respect the national flag in our school. Although it is only a mere piece of bunting it stands for many virtues.

It should not be allowed to touch the ground. It is looked up to by every loyal American whether he is a citizen or not. The flag is an emblem of the spirit of right over might. That begins in the Grammar school.

The flag at half mast is a sign of mourning. Our teacher or some of us often relate the story of the first flag made by Betsy Ross. It is a pretty sight on a fine day to see our schoolmates in our school yard saluting the flag.

THE POEM COLUMBUS

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to explain the poem, Columbus. When Columbus and his sailors had gone a short distance from Spain they looked back and saw the islands which they left. Columbus said, "Now we must pray." The sailors were frightened, and asked Columbus to turn back, but Columbus said, "Sail on! Sail on!" The men grew mutinous, wan and weary. While they were sailing a terrible storm arose. The mate said, What shall we do when hope is gone? Columbus' words leapt as a leaping sword, "Sail on!" Then Columbus, pale and worn, kept his deck. As he walked through the darkness he saw a speck. He cried out, "A light! a light! a light!" The sailors fell down and begged Columbus' forgiveness. They now had discovered a new land. Columbus had gained a world, and gave that world its grandest lesson: "On! and on!"

WHERE OYSTERS GROW

Dear Uncle Jed: Oysters are grown in the Chesapeake bay and along the Atlantic coast. More than one third of all oysters of the world are grown in Chesapeake bay. They are grown in shallow water. Most of the oysters grow by themselves, but there are also oyster farms. These are placed in a bay or at the mouth of rivers. Where the seed oysters are put in shells and thrown into the water, to which the young oysters fasten themselves while they grow shells of their own. Oysters have to grow four or five years before they are big enough for eating. Their eggs are so small that you cannot see them with the naked eye. Oysters are gathered in the fall and winter. Oysters are canned in ships and wagons. The chief markets of the United States are Hampton and Baltimore. Baltimore is the chief oyster market of the United States. Thousands of men and women shell oysters and can them. We Americans eat more oysters than the people of anyother nation. Pearls are sometimes found in oysters.

ORIGIN OF THE UMBRELLA

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. This time I am going to tell you how we first came to have umbrellas. One April day many years ago a little brownie went out into the woods with his best clothes on. Suddenly a shower came up. The brownie ran under a toadstool for shelter. He had hardly reached it when he heard a sound that nearly frightened him to death. It was a doormouse, fast asleep and snoring on the other side of the toadstool.

"Dear, dear," cried the little Brownie," what shall I do? What shall I do? If I stay here that wicked beast will get me. If I run away the rain will wet me. Just then a thought popped into his head. He tugged hard at the toadstool and up it came by the roots. Then away he ran carrying the toadstool over his head and leaving the doormouse in the rain.

A grown-up person happened to be in the woods and spied the Brownie with his toadstool.

"What a good way to keep dry," he said. Then he went home and made an umbrella as nearly like the Brownie's toadstool as he could.

MY ADVENTURE WITH A BULL.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day I went to the store for my aunt to buy a box of pepper. On my way back I thought I would take the shortest way so I went through the pasture. I had on a red scarf. When I got half way across I saw a bull looking at my red scarf. When the bull started to run I also ran but it was gaining inch by inch. I was trying to think of some way of scaring it when an idea struck me. Quickly I took the box of pepper and tore the cover off. I looked over my shoulder and saw that it was quite near me. When it was nearly upon me I turned and threw the contents of the box in it's eyes. Then I turned and ran on.

When I got over the fence I looked back and saw that it was making various efforts to get the pepper out of its eyes. When I got to my aunt's house I told her what I had done with her pepper. I told her that I wouldn't cross any more pastures where there is a bull roaming when I had anything red on. I hope that all of the Wide Awakes have enjoyed reading about my adventure.

CAPT. JOHN SMITH

Dear Uncle Jed: Capt. John Smith was born in England in 1579 and while still a boy he was left an orphan. He was apprenticed to learn a trade, but, as he was filled with longings for travel, he ran away and had many stirring adventures. Finally he returned to England at the age of 23, in time to join the expedition to Virginia. His courage and bold leadership held the Virginia colony together. In 1609 Capt. Smith met with an accident and had to return to England.

DON'T BE TIMID

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the arithmetic test we had in school. One boy in our class was very timid. One day we had an arithmetic test. This boy was very much frightened. He said, "I will certainly get zero." But he proved all his examples with his heart beating fast. When it was time for the papers to be collected the teacher called for them. He handed in his paper saying to himself, "What am I going to get?" When the papers had been corrected what do you think he got? Well, I gave all of you Wide-Awakes until next Christmas to guess you could not do it. So I will tell you. He got a hundred and was the only one in the class who got it. The teacher was very proud of him. The moral of this is, don't be timid.

BECKY'S TURKEY

Dear Uncle Jed: Once upon a time there lived in the country a little girl named Becky. Becky had a white turkey. Becky was only seven years old so she felt quite rich with her one turkey. The old cat was hers and of course she claimed all the kittens but nobody wanted to buy kittens so her live stock was no profit for her. Sam was 16 and was the owner of turkeys, ducks and pigeons. He really owned them, and when they were sold he had the money for them.

Becky called one of the cowshers but she did not expect to have the money for her if she was sold. But after Sam gave her the white turkey she felt as though she was making a start in business on her own account.

SAVED THE FLOCK

Dear Uncle Jed: Ted, said his mother, be a good dog, here comes your new master. Ted was one of Fanny's puppies and was the one she liked best.

At his new home he played with the children, when the children went to school he had to watch a flock of sheep. The first night when he came home one was missing. The third night his master said, Ted you will have to be more careful. The next day he keep a close watch. About half-past five he saw farmer Brown's dog coming over the hill. He pounced on him. When he was going to leave off fighting he heard his master say you did good work Ted, you saved the flock.

ONE TERM FOR PRESIDENTS

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awake Circle. I hope you will like my story. I am writing about, One Term for Presidents. Senator Underwood, of Alabama, is in favor of one term for presidents. He is a candidate for the democratic nomination this year. In a speech at Akron, Ohio, he said:

"Change the system of four-year terms, make the term six or seven years, make the executives ineligible for re-election and you will have removed all temptation to further personal ambition. You will have taken out of the sphere of statesmanship the one man in the country who should stand above and beyond it, and you will have purified the very air of politics itself, by giving it worthier motives and loftier ideals."

ESTELLE BRYANT, Age 12.

ICY TREES

Dear Uncle Jed: As I look out of the window I see all the twigs on the trees covered with ice, dazzling in the sun. The branches are heavy and they are hanging low. The tree trunks are very white and pretty.

The pine tree is the prettiest of all. Its branches are covered with ice. The branches are heavy and spread out so that any one might go under and could not be seen. The pine tree looks like a large umbrella. The color of the tree with the ice on it makes it look like Christmas.

A HANDSOME BUILDING

Dear Uncle Jed: The Parthenon looks much like a church. It is on a hill in Athens. It was used to keep the gold statues which the Greek worshiped. It is built of eight huge columns in front. The work is very beautiful inside. As we enter there are six columns. There are seventeen on each side. The ivory, gold and marble statues are placed in corners. The statue of the goddess Athena was kept here. The Parthenon is now partly in ruins. It was not made for hundreds of people to worship in like the churches of Europe and America today. Their services were held in the open air.

ABOUT BERRIES.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written once before but did not get a prize book, so I thought I would write again about berries. We have many small fruits which are grown in large quantities. Of these the chief are strawberries, blackberries, raspberries, currants, gooseberries and cranberries, all of which, with the exception of cranberries, are to be found growing in almost every part of the United States. The largest part of them are grown in thickly populated neighborhoods in such states as New York, Ohio, Michigan, Massachusetts and many other states.

Strawberries are the most important of small fruits. They may be grown anywhere in America from Florida to Alaska.

More important is the currant, which we use in large quantities for jellies. It is found throughout our northern states in northern Europe, and also in Asia, where the delicious red currants of the Himalaya mountains thrive as high as two miles or more above the sea. In addition to these small fruits we have some others, such as huckleberries and elderberries, which are of little value in commerce.

The cranberry is a native of the United States and of Europe, but some of our varieties are larger and better than those of the old world. They are found in the low boggy lands along the Atlantic coast from Maine to New Jersey, in parts of the Alleghany mountains and also in the swamps of Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

WANTS TO BE A NURSE

Dear Uncle Jed: This letter is going to tell you what I like most in school and why. Of all my studies in school I like physiology the best. It is helpful to me and will be helpful to me all my life. I like it because it teaches me how to keep well. I feel happy when I am well and don't have to suffer. I want to be a nurse. A nurse has to know all about how to take care of the body. If I take care of my teeth it will make me more attractive. If one doesn't keep clean he will want to associate with him.

I brush my teeth, comb my hair, clean my finger nails, wash my face and hands, and every week I take a bath. Every day I have a clean handkerchief. Every nurse has to be clean.

MIRIAM TAYLOR, Age 12.

THRIFT

Dear Uncle Jed: Thrift is practiced all over the United States. Benjamin Franklin's birthday is Jan. 17. We observed this week as thrift week. Some of his sayins are: A penny saved is a penny earned. Beware of little expenses. Know how to spend less than you get. Waste not, want not. In 1918 the country saved more than ever before. Secretary Mellon, who is secretary of the treasury, says that we can save more this year than we ever did if we are careful.

I have thirty cents in the Chelsea bank. I can save at home by not wasting food. I can save by not buying candy every time I have a penny. I can save at school by not wasting papers, pencils, books and erasers. I can save for the community by not destroying buildings.

A VISIT TO GROTON

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell the Wide Awakes how I spent my summer vacation. One Sunday afternoon my father took me to Groton. We went to Fort Trumbull. I went up in a high tower. It had two hundred and sixty steps. We went up to the top of it. When we got up there we looked out of the windows. I saw the harbor of New London. When we came down we went to the place where the trenches were and saw a lot of cannon balls and two big cannons facing the harbor. Then we went home.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to the Wide-Awake Circle. I was working hard one very hot day when I heard a fire whistle blow. I didn't pay any attention at first. Then it blew again. This time it was anxious to see. I ran to the window. It was only five blocks away from where I lived. A little girl was standing in the middle of the street.

A fire engine came around the corner. I had a dog in the back yard. He broke his chain and ran for the girl and the big boys ran for her, too. I really think that if the boys and my dog didn't go for her she would have been hurt.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Starting Out to See the World

One morning, Oh, so early, before Lady Love had set the breakfast table, Little Jack Rabbit said, as he dropped the kindling wood into the box by the kitchen stove: "Mother, I think I'll go out and see the world. I'm tired of playing hide-and-seek with Tiffmie Meadowmouse."

Pretty Lady Love, who was grinding the corrof coffee, hopped over to the telephone and called up dear Uncle Lucky Lefthindfoot.

"Please come right over," begged the little rabbit's mother.

Of course, the old gentleman rabbit didn't know why he was wanted.

He is small at first, but very good friend, the Old Brown Horse but he guessed something was wrong, so he hurriedly hopped over to learn what was the matter.

"Little Jack Rabbit is dissatisfied with the Dear Old Bramble Patch," said Lady Love in a low voice, "he wishes to see the world."

"Ha, ha!" exclaimed Uncle Lucky. "So the youngster would be a tramp rabbit, eh?" and he frowned at his small bunny nephew.

"No," answered the bunny boy respectfully, "I'd like to learn more about what is beyond the Sunny Meadow. I'm tired of the same old things."

"Well, well!" answered the perplexed old gentleman rabbit bunp, wrinkling his eyebrows, "youth is impatient. Perhaps you had better go."

With a happy laugh, Little Jack Rabbit hopped up to his room and pulling on his high boots, took down his khaki cap and softly closed the door behind him. Then, kissing pretty little Lady Love goodbye, he started out to see the wide, wide world.

The road was dusty and after a while, not so very far, he hopped up a lane, at the end of which stood a big Red Barn.

"He, he!" he said to himself, "now I shall find some new friends."

Just then a pretty yellow bird began to sing:

"The Old Brown Horse in the stable stall
Will be glad to have you make a call."

Dear me! This made Little Jack Rabbit feel dreadfully homesick all of a sudden, but, as the little yellow bird said nothing more, he bravely hopped into the Big Red Barn and looked about him. In a stall, at the farther end stood his friend, the Old Brown Horse. Why, how sleek and fat he looked. His tail was braided in the latest style and his mane tied up in bright red ribbons. All of a sudden he spied the bunny boy, but what he said, you must wait to hear in the next story.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, Feb. 9—Selling pressure was lifted from today's stock market a few minutes after the opening and the general list moved to higher ground in response to bullish demonstrations in the steel, motor and specialty issues.

The January unfilled tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corporation, which was issued after the market closed, exceeded all preliminary estimates, showing an increase of 853,000 tons or about 150,000 more than some of the experts predicted. Steel common closed 1 5-8 higher at 108 1-2 and sharp gains were recorded by Bethlehem, Republic and Gulf States. Further indications of the improvement in the industry were shown by the preliminary 1923 earnings statements of the Otis Steel Company, showing profits of approximately $2,190,000 and total production of slightly more than 500,000 tons, or double that of 1922.

Defeat of the bill to prohibit the issuance of tax-exempt securities failed to have any market influence, Wall street apparently being more interested in the tax-reduction legislation. publication of the Weecly Car Loading figures for the last week in January showing the largest total of any corresponding week on record, confirmed the reports of improvement continued in the weekly Mercantile Reviews.

Some brisk gains were recorded among the specialties. Fisher Body jumped 8 points to 180 and closed within a point of the top while net gains of 2 1-2 to 5 points were recorded by General Electric, Central Leather Preferred, Corn Products Liggett & Myers, Nash Motors and General Baking Preferred.

Tobaccos were again in demand American Tobacco B rising 2 1-4; Schulte and the Tobacco Products issues about 1 1-4 each and Philip Morris and Lorillard about a point each. The oils gained a little ground but trading in those issues was under restraint as a result of the Teapot Dome inquiry and the Federal investigation into gasoline prices. Phillips Petroleum rallied more than 2 points and Pacific. Shell Union, Houston and General Asphalt about a point each.

Studebaker closed 1 3-4 higher at 103 3-4; American can advanced a point to 118 3-4 and Baldwin closed 7-8 higher at 127 5-8. Otis Elevator moved up 2 points. Strength of Foundation Company, which sold 2 points above yesterday's close, was attributed to reports of a new preferred stock issue with convertible features likely to benefit common stockholders.

Foreign exchanges moved slightly higher on the denial of yesterday's disquieting rumors concerning the reparations commission demand Sterling moved up nearly 1 1-2 cents to $4.34 and French francs rallied about 5 points to 4.60 cents.

The weekly clearing house statement showed decreases of $53,176,000 in loans, discounts and investments; $31,546,000 in net demand deposits and $114,000 in not circulation. Cash in own vaults increased $3,390,000, reserve of members banks in the Federal Reserve Bank gained $28,635,000 and time deposits rose $4,322,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $555,565,000, leaving excess reserve of $41,851,610, an increase of $38,670,630 over that of a week ago.

WEATHER

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: diminishing northwest and weather fair Monday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras, diminishing northwest and north shifting to northeast over south portion, weather fair Monday.

Conditions

The disturbance that was over the upper lake region Saturday night moved rapidly eastward to New England and the lower St. Lawrence valley, attended by snow in the lake region, the Ohio valley and the middle Atlantic and North Atlantic states. A second disturbance was central over Manitoba Sunday night, a third over New Mexico and still another off the north Pacific coast, moving eastward.

An area of high pressure was central over the lower Ohio valley Sunday night and moving rapidly eastward.

The temperature was slightly higher Sunday in New England and the south Atlantic states and the northwest.

The area of high pressure over the Ohio valley will continue to move rapidly eastward and it will be followed by the disturbance over Manitoba and New Mexico, as a result rain will set in over the Ohio valley, Tennessee and the East Gulf states Monday and in the upper lake region and the Atlantic states, except northern New England Monday night or Tuesday.

NORWICH TOWN

The second successful food sale by the Altar society of the Sacred Heart church, was held in the downstairs department of the Boston Store, Saturday morning, beginning at ten o'clock and continuing throughout the day, until everything was disposed of. That the women of this parish are good cooks, was evidenced by the tempting disposal of baked beans, bread, doughnuts, cookies, a variety of cakes and pies, also preserves. Of these there was a very large quantity of bread and doughnuts. Late in the evening it was found that the proceeds were $115 but as further reports were to be handed in, a definite amount could not be announced.

Miss Nellie Kingsley was in charge of the sale. The following were the members of the Altar society who did the soliciting: Misses Mary White, Julia Connell, Annie Sheehan, Bessie Callahan, Mary Burns, Annie Gorman, Catherine Casey, and Catherine Kane, assisted by Mrs. Benjamine L. Kennedy.

Those who assisted at the Boston Store were: Mrs. P. T. Connell, Mrs. John T. Lyon, Mrs. Mary Tracy, Mrs. DeLore Herbert, Mrs. Margaret Hayes and Misses Nellie O'Connell, Helen Connell and Mary Filburn.

Miss Mary McNally and David Sheehan generously contributed their services in conveying the food by automobile to the Boston Store; where every courtesy was extended, from furnishing the space, to the paper and string used in wrapping up the articles of food, as well as advertising the sale.

At the Sacred Heart Church Sunday morning at both masses, the pastor Rev. Charles W. Brennan in expressing his gratitude said "Our best thanks should be given the Ried and Hughes Company."

PUSSYFOOT JOHNSON HAD ANCESTORS IN COLCHESTER

William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, who spoke Friday evening at the Methodist Episcopal church in New London, where he declared that he believes world prohibition is not a great way off, traces his ancestry back to Colchester.

In an interview after the lecture Friday night he said:

"My great grandfather was born in Colchester and shortly after his birth moved to East Haddam where he was one of the largest property owners in the county. Shortly after my father's birth the family moved to New York state where I was born but when ten years of age I took Horace Greeley's advice and went west."

FLEET-FOOTED NORWICH SCOUTS REACH WILLIMANTIC IN FAST TIME

Norwich Boy Scouts were so eager and fleet-footed in the relay race to Hartford as one feature of fourteenth anniversary week that they ran away ahead of their schedule and arrived in Willimantic at 9.25 Saturday morning instead of 11 o'clock which had been the time estimated for them to make the distance with the message from Mayor Milo R. Waters that they were taking on its way to the governor at Hartford.

Although they took the Willimantic Scouts by surprise by arriving so early, there was no time lost in the Thread city and in five minutes the Willimantic Scouts were off to carry the Norwich message as far as Andover along with one from Mayor Hormisdas Dion of Willimantic. At Andover the Boy Scouts from Manchester were to take up the running, but there was a long wait here due to the delay in the arrival of the scouts from Manchester. From Manchester the Hartford Boy Scouts carried the messages to the capitol at Hartford where they were delivered to Executive Secretary Anson T. McCook at 4.10 o'clock. Governor Templeton was unable to await the arrival of the scout runner and left his secretary to receive the messages. The whole distance run was approximately 45 miles, 73 scouts taking part.

All the boys finished in good shape, each having run half a mile at least, and some more than that as they ran two different half mile stretches.

Scout Saul Sussman of Troop 7 started off from the Norwich city hall at 7 o'clock Saturday morning with the following letter from Mayor Waters.

Mayor's Office
Norwich, Conn., Feb. 9, 1924
Gov. Charles A. Templeton,
State Capitol, Hartford, Ct.,
My dear Governor:

The bearers of this letter are members of an organization of youth that represents the best in the world.

I hope they will be successful in this race and in the race of life.

With Best wishes
MILO R. WATERS,
Mayor

The message was relayed by the following scouts: Saul Sussman, troop No. 7, City Hall to St. Patrick's church; Walter Haun, troop No. 20, St. Patrick's church to Backus hospital; Thomas Riley, Troop No. 5, Backus hospital to Norwich Town Green; Franz Eyhers, troop No. 20, Norwich Town Green to Wightman's Switch; Reginald Avery, Troop No. 20 Wightman's Switch to bend in road at Yantic; Peter Manning, Troop No. 20, bend in road to Yantic bridge; Billy Tirrell, Troop No. 12, next half mile from Yantic bridge; Charles Sargent, Troop No. 6, and the following scouts in relays of half miles, took the message to City Hall, Willimantic: Harold Frink Troop No. 6, Arnaud LaPierre Troop No. 1, Harold Disco Troop No. 12, Robert Burke Troop No. 9, James Fitzgerald Troop No. 3, Fred Fox, Troop No. 1, James Shea Troop No. 5, Percy Browning Troop No. 9, Lloyd Jarvis Troop No. 6, Henry Couture Troop No. 5, B. Blum Troop No. 10, Michael Finnegan Troop No. 10, Sam Mingo Troop No. 5, John Baynes Troop No. 12, Frederick Benton Jr. Troop No. 12.

The scouts reached City Hall, Willimantic, at 9.25 covering the distance in 2 hours 25 minutes, an average of a mile every 8 minutes.

The scouts were so enthusiastic in running the race that some went without their breakfast in order to be in it. The last lap of the race was run by all of the 25 scouts, Scout Executive Benton joining them.

The Norwich scouts were conveyed to their station by automobiles contributed by Alfred G. Bliven, Mrs. Emil M. Fox who drove their own cars and Dr. J. J. Donahue, whose car was driven by John Jenks.

Mayor Dions message from Willimantic was as follows:

February 9, 1924
To His Excellency
Charles A. Templeton.
Governor—

I have the honor to tender to you by means of the Boy Scouts of American sincere greetings from the people of the city of Willimantic, together with my personal respects and good wishes.

Most respectfully
HORMISDAS DION
Mayor of the city of Willimantic.

Scouts of Willimantic who participated in the relay follows: St. Joseph's parish, William Costello, Alfred Laraviere, Lawrence Haggerty, William Gerinick, John Burmore, Everett Green, Lawrence Day and Philip Tremblay, Congregational Church Lester Benton, Wilson Wilmarth, John Buck, Otis Macomber, Hunt Robinson, Clarence Redman, Mason Lincoln and Ralph Wolmer.

St. Paul's church, Harry Jones, Merrill Burr, William Brown, Kenneth Brown, Raymond Schofield, Louis White and Russell Wingertsmen.

Mayor Kinsella, in his message to the governor said: "As you already know the boy scouts of America are celebrating their 14th anniversary. During the period of 14 short years this movement has acquired a registered membership of 600,000 scouts and the influence of this wonderful organization is spreading every day with its beneficial effects to our young men of today.

"I need not tell you of the worthiness of the work that the Boy Scouts of America are doing. This organization is laying a very solid foundation for our future generation; it is making sturdy and sterling men out of our boys, and it will not be long before we all realize that there is no work in any community or state which can compare in its accomplishments to the work of the Boy Scouts. I commend these boys to you as the representatives of a great cause, and hope you will have as enjoyable a visit with them as I have had."

Selectman Treat of Manchester wrote: The New London-Hartford relay team race of the Boy Scouts which is taking place this afternoon has made it possible for me to again congratulate you by courtesy of the bearer herewith, and one of the contestants on the very fine address delivered at our father and son banquet on Thursday evening last. Your address was a great inspiration to those boys and will long be remembered by them. The race which the Boy Scouts are running only bears out what you said that evening with regard what makes good manhood. I am sure the Boy Scout organizations are in sympathy with what you had to say and do through their teachings approve all that you told them.

The event was under the charge of the following scout executives: F. A. Benton of Norwich, J. L. Oliver of Manchester and F. C. Hill of Hartford.

LINCOLN HEARD STORY BY WHEELER, OF STONINGTON

The nearness of Lincoln's birthday, recalls the interesting account of the visit to Norwich in 1860 of Abraham Lincoln, as remembered by Judge Richard McCloud, of Durango, Col., at that date a young newsboy who sold Lincoln a copy of The Norwich Bulletin.

Mr. McCloud feels sure that the big meeting addressed by Lincoln was held in Breed hall. Following the meeting, Mr. Lincoln entertained a crowd of admirers in the lobby of the Wauregan House with a number of his characteristic anecdotes. The late Henry P. Goddard of Baltimore, a former city editor of The Bulletin, in writing up Lincoln's visit, about 1910, stated that after Lincoln had gone to bed in the Wauregan House, an admirer named Wheeler, of Stonington, went to Mr. Lincoln's room, rapped on the door and called out, "Mr. Lincoln, I have one more story to tell you.." Wheeler was invited into the room and told the story.

After Lincoln become president, he appointed Anson Burlingame, of Boston, Mass., to some foreign mission and Burlingame went to Washington for instructions from President Lincoln. Lincoln said to Burlingame, "I have no instruction to give you, further than in returning to Boston go by the Stonington route and when you reach Stonington hunt up Wheeler and ask him to tell you the story that he told me in the Wauregan House sleeping room, at Norwich, Conn."

Burlingame found Wheeler at his residence and the latter told him the story. Whatever the famous joke was, nobody knows; for Goddard in his account states that as Wheeler was about to tell him (Goddard) the story, somebody interrupted; Wheeler went off and the story was never learned by Goddard.

Mr. McCloud thinks that Wheeler's first name was Walter and adds that he was prominent in the republican party of that era in New London county.

In a book written by Percy Coe Eggleston, of New London, entitled, "Lincoln in New England," published about 1922, there is an account of the visit of Lincoln to Norwich and his speech on Friday, March 9, 1860 preceding the famous Cooper Union speech. Mr. Eggleston also copies the advertisement of the meeting taken from the Norwich Weekly Courier of March 8th, announcing the meeting at Breed hall, in case that hall was not otherwise engaged. But in the book it reads that "the town hall was crowded", etc. However, Mr. McCloudstill thinks the meeting was held in Breed hall.

WORDS OF NATHAN QUOTED BY ST. PATRICK'S PREACHER

"An enemy hath done this!" a text from the gospel for the Sunday, the fifth after Pentecost, Matthew 13, 24-30, narrating the parable of the wheat and the cockle, was one of the warning phrases taken by Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero, in his sermon at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday, the customary large congregation filling the church. Likewise the words of Nathan were quoted and the lesson was taught that, if men have trials and disappointments and failures, the enemy which has brought them about is sin. Man has himself to blame for many of the tribulations with which his path may be beset, for the reason that he does not live in accord with God's will.

Too often, success has the effect of drawing man from God. Man forgets that anything which he may achieve, any progress which he may make, is wholly due to the aid and the power of God.

The pride which success brings, in many cases results in man becoming careless and in relying upon himself, instead of attributing his good fortune to Divine assistance. Then when a change comes, he fails to see that he himself is his own enemy, that the ills and defeat may be the punishment which this pride has drawn down upon him. David was moved to confess his sin against the Lord. Nathan pointed out that man himself is responsible for many of the evils which beset him. The necessity of humility, of reliance upon God, of avoidance of everything contrary to Divine command, of strong faith and the belief that whatever is best in the designs of heaven will be one's portion, was the practical lesson of the brief sermon.

In giving holy communion to the large number who went to the altar Father Guerriero had the assistance of Rev. Myles P. Galvin.

LES MISERABLES IN Y. M. C. A. MOTION PICTURES

The parlors were filled with men and older boys at the 4 o'clock meeting Sunday afternoon at the Norwich Young Men's Christian association. After the singing of hymns, Scripture reading and prayer, Hugh Kinder pleased the audience by rendering two tender vocal solos. The first of four parts of the masterpiece by Victor Hugo, Les Miserables, was shown in moving pictures, which were very impressive as the scene of the starving sister of Jean Vay Jean was shown. The pictures showed the brother stealing a loaf of bread for his sister for which he was promptly arrested and thrust into prison, from which he escaped and was hunted by the prison officials. The last part of the picture story Sunday was where Jean Val Jean was being kindly entertained by the bishop.

Between the reels Secretary Hill gave a brief talk and said among other things: "It is strange that the man who steals such a small thing as a loaf of bread, even though it is to satisfy terrible hunger, is usually arrested, while too often those of the 'higher up' class evade the clutches of the law. It may be true that by our giving to the hungry the things they need we may prevent some crimes, it is certainly true that we all have opportunities every day to give to someone something they need. When we do this it not only blesses the recipient, but the giver received also a great blessing. The greatest gift possible is the gift by God of Jesus Christ for our salvation, and I wish to urge all here who have not yet accepted this wonderful gift to do so at once. While there are many things we can give to those about us, the Christian man can find nothing comparable that he can give to his unsaved friends the invitation to link themselves with the great Son of God. During this week a large number of men and women of the Protestant churches are to invite their friends and others to follow Jesus and join His church. Let us all pray that God may wonderfully bless this effort and the interests of the kingdom may be greatly enhanced.

POETRY

The Layman Speaks

"For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified."—Romans II. 13.

Brothers in Christ, what mockery is this?
Contention like a serpent rears its head
And strikes its cruel fangs into the soul
Of Christian Faith;—And you, sworn followers
Of Him whose name you reverence, stand by
And let Contention rule. You prate of love,
The love that Christ bequeathed to all mankind,
And yet, the embers of malignant hate that burned
In medieval years have flared again
Beneath your feet, nor have you sought to quench
The hellish fire. Your lowly Nazarene
You've crucified again upon a cross
Of words;—See, see the anguish in His eyes!

What saith it in the Holy Writ? Oh read
These words: "There are diversities of gifts
And operations, but Eternal God
Is manifest in all. The body is Composed of many members, each indeed
A necessary part, nor can the eye
Say to the hand, I have no need of thee.
And each one suffers with the common ill.
And Honor is their heritage; from God";
So, Members in Particular in Christ,
How can you reconcile contentious strife
Amongst yourselves with that divine command
To love they neighbor as thy very self?

Who are thou that judgest another man?
Let this be thy concern, destroy not him
With mest of thine—for him Christ lived and died,
And he serveth Christ, though not as you,
God doth accept, and righteous men approves
Doth deity mean less when found in law?
Is God not God unless He contravenes
Creation's word? O, fools, misguided fools
Whose cabined heaven is but hell dressed
In golden robes. I pity you when comes
The great awakening, and come it will,
For Death, the greatest leveler of all
Shall bring men's creeds into a common fold.

—Charles L. H. Wagner.

The Fairy Piper

I tossed up a rhyme at moonrise—
'Twas airy and light and gay.
I blew on my pipes a wood song—
'Twas wild and sweet and gay.

Yellow of moon was in it,
The silver sparkle of dew,
The laugh of a brook and a sigh,
As the wind through the pine trees blew.

Giants and kings were in it,
Cinders and rubies rare,
Witches and black enchantment,
Magic and maidens fair.

I blow on my pipes, O, Children
(They are reeds from a magic lake)
Would ye venture abroad in Faerie?
Aye! Hark to the songs I make!
—Elsie Williams Chandler, in St. Nicholas.

SENATE'S REQUEST TO PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TO CALL FOR RESIGNATION OF SEC'Y DENBY WILL RECEIVE NO OFFICIAL RECOGNITION

Resolution Asking For the Retirement of the Secretary of the Navy Was Adopted 47 to 34—Was Sent to the White House by Special Messenger Within the Hour — Mr. Coolidge Declares That He Will Await Reports From Special Counsel Before Taking Such Action as May Seem Essential For the Full Protection of the Public Interest —Asserts That He Will Not Sacrifice "Any Innocent Man For My Own Welfare" nor Retain in Office "Any Unfit Man For My Own Welfare."

Washington, Feb. 11—A request made of President Coolidge today by the senate to ask immediately for the resignation of Edwin Denby as secretary of the navy, was refused by the chief executive.

The senate's request was embodied in a resolution which was adopted, 47 to 34, and sent at once to the white house by special messenger.

The president's refusal was given in a statement issued four hours later in which he asserted that no official recognition could be given to the senate resolution.

"The dismissal of an officer of the government such as is involved in this case other than by impeachment, is exclusively an executive function," the president said.

Declaring further that when in possession of all the facts he would take "such action as seems essential for the full protection of the public interests," the president asserted:

"I do not propose to sacrifice any innocent man for my own welfare, nor do I propose to retain in office any unfit man for my own welfare."

What attitude Mr. Denby himself took toward the senate resolution was not revealed. The secretary sent word to inquirers that he would have nothing to say in the immediate future.

The executive declared he did not propose to sacrifice "any innocent man for my own welfare" nor retain in office "any unfit man for my own welfare."

Text of President's Statement

The complete statement issued by the president follows:

"No official recognition can be given to the passage of the senate resolution relative to their opinion concerning members of the cabinet or other officers under executive control.

"As soon as special counsel can advise me as to the legality of these charges and assemble for me the pertinent facts in the various transactions I shall take such action as seems essential for the full protection of the public interest. I shall not hesitate to call for the resignation of any official whose conduct in this matter in any way warrants such action upon my part. The dismissal of an officer of the government, such as is involved in this case, other than by impeachment, is exclusively an executive function. I regard this as a vital principle of our government.

"In discussing this principle, Mr. Madison, has well said: 'It is laid down in most of the constitutions or bills of rights in the republics of America; it is to be found in the political writings of the most celebrated civilians, and is everywhere held as essential to the preservation of liberty, that the three great departments of government be kept separate and distinct'.

"President Cleveland likewise stated the correct principle in discussing requests and demands made by the senate upon him and upon different departments of the government, in which he said:

"'They assume the right of the senate to sit in judgment upon the exercise of my exclusive discretion and executive function, for which I am solely responsible to the people from whom I have so lately received the sacred trust of office.

"'My oath to support and defend the constitution, my duty to the people who have chosen me to execute the powers of their great office and not to relinquish them, and my duty to the chief magistracy which I must preserve unimpaired in all its dignity and vigor, compel me to refuse compliance with these demands.'

"The president is responsible to the people for his conduct relative to the retention or dismissal of public officials. I assume that responsibility and the people may be assured that as soon as I can be advised so that I may act with entire justice to all parties concerned and fully protect the public interest, I shall act.

"I do not propose to sacrifice any innocent man for my own welfare, nor do I propose to retain in office any unfit man for my own welfare. I shall try to maintain the functions of the government unimpaired, to act upon the evidence and the law as I find it, and to deal thoroughly and summarily with every kind of wrong doing.

"In the meantime, such steps have been and are being taken as fully to protect the public interests."

SENATE VOTES FOR THE RESIGNATION OF DENBY.

Washington, Feb. 11—President Coolidge was advised by the senate today to ask for the resignation of Edwin Denby as secretary of the navy.

A resolution declaring the secretary's retirement should be requested "immediately" was adopted 47 to 34 and sent to the white house by special messenger within the hour.

The senate's action came toward the close of another day of fast-crowding developments in the oil investigation.

At a morning session the oil committee heard William G. McAdoo, a detailed statement of his employment as counsel for the Doheny interests, a declaration that he had no part in any leasing negotiations and a charge that injection of his name into the inquiry was a political move to discredit him as a presidential candidate.

Later the same committee received the protests of three railroad labor leaders against confirmation of Atlee Pomerene as special counsel for the government in the annulment suits. Action was deferred, but a favorable vote probably tomorrow was forecast.

Chairman Lenroot received a letter from Seymour L. Cromwell, president of the New York Stock exchange saying that, if the committee desired, the board of governors would pass a resolution asking all members of the exchange to forward the committee a transcript from their books as was done in the "leak" investigation in 1917.

During the day, Attorney-General Daugherty wrote Senator Willis, republican, Ohio, asking that a committee hold hearings on the resolution requesting that he retire from the cabinet. Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, author of the resolution said in a statement that he had no objection.

Toward the close of the senate debate, Senator Johnson of California, a candidate for the republican presidential nomination, asked his colleagues to turn out of office all of those connected with the oil leases, said Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, leader of the republican insurgents, declared that President Coolidge and the republican party as well as Secretary Denby and Attorney-General Daugherty must bear their share of the responsibility.

In the end, ten republicans cast their vote for the Denby resolution The republican organization fought to the last to prevent adoption, but went down in defeat after a parliamentary fight almost without precedent in American history.

The roll call follows:

Democrats—Yeas: Adams, Ashhurst, Bayard, Broussard, Caraway, Dial, Dill, Edwards, Ferris, Fletcher, Harris, George, Heflin, Kendrick, King, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Pittman, Ralston, Ransdell, Reed of Missouri, Robinson, Sheppard, Simmons, Shields, Stephens, Swanson, Trammel, Underwood, Walsh of Massachusetts, Walsh of Montana, and Wheeler.

Democrats—Nay: Bruce.

Totals Nays 34.

Five democratic senators were present but unable to vote because of pairs with absent republican senators. They were Glass, Harrison, Jones of New Mexico, Owen and Stanley.

Nine senators were absent and six others, Glass, Harrison, Jones of New Mexico, Owen, Smith and Stanley, all democrats, were unable to cast their ballots because they were paired with absentees. They announced that if permitted to vote they would support the resolution. The pairs were announced as follows:

Caraway for, with Watson against; Glass for, with McLean against; Harrison for, with Elkins against; Jones of New Mexico for, with Fernald against; Owen for with McCormick against; Smith for, with Sterling against; Stanley for, with Ernst against.

Senator Stanfield, republican, Oregon, the other absentee, without a pair. It was announced on behalf of Senator Caraway, who was the only democrat absent, that had he been present and permitted to vote, he would have voted for the resolution.

The text of the resolution as adopted follows:

Denby Resignation Resolution

The Denby resignation resolution follows:

"Whereas the United States Senate did, on January 31, 1924, by a unanimous vote, adopt senate joint resolution numbered 54, to procure the annulment of certain leases in the naval oil reserves of the United States, and,

"Whereas, the said resolution, among other things, declared as follows:

"'Whereas, it appears from evidence taken by the committee of public lands and surveys of the United States senate that certain leases of naval reserve numbered 1, in the state of Wyoming, bearing date April 7, 1922, made in form by the government of the United States, through Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior, and Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy as lessor, to the Mammoth Oil Company, as lessee, and that certain contract between the government of the United States and the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company, dated April 25, 1922, signed by Edward C. Finney, acting secretary of the interior, and Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy, relating among other things to the construction of oil tanks at Pearl Harbor, territory of Hawaii, and that certain lease of naval reserve numbered one, in the state of California, bearing date December 11, 1922, made in form by the government of the United state through Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior, and Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy, as lessor, to the Pan-American Petroleum Company and lessee, were executed under circumstances indicating fraud and corruption; and,

"'Whereas the said leases and contracts were entered into without authority on the part of the officers purporting to act in the execution of the same for the United States and in violation of the laws of congress, and,

"'Whereas, such leases and contracts were made in defiance of the settled policy of the government adhered to through three successive administrations, to maintain in the ground a great reserve supply of oil adequate to the needs of the navy in any emergency threatening the national security, Therefore be it

"'Resolved that it is the sense of the United States senate that the president of the United States immediately request the resignation of Edwin Denby as secretary of the navy.'

This measure was a substitute for the original resolution offered by Democrat Senator Robinson before the senate adopted the Walsh resolution for the annulment of the oil lease.

SENATOR JOHNSON IN FAVOR HOUSE CLEANING

Washington, Feb. 11—Senator Johnson, of California, candidate for the republican presidential nomination, announced in the senate late today that he would vote for the Denby resignation resolution.

Senator Johnson said the senate in the adoption of the Walsh resolution also had expressed a "lack of confidence in Attorney General Daugherty." He added that the administration in appointing special counsel in the oil cases had expressed its lack of confidence in Mr. Daugherty.

"What should be done by this government," said Senator Johnson, "is to sweep out every bribe-giver, every bribe-taker, everyone guilty of negligence, contributory negligence or deliberate—sweep them all out."

"I remember the time," he added, "when a president faced with an attempt by Colombia to hold up the building of the Panama canal by blackmail, did not hesitate; when faced by banditry down there, he acted overnight. I am proud to remember it

"I remember also a time when court action to recover lost property would not have ended the government's efforts. Here we have an episode fraught with fraud and corruption. Sweep out every one connected with it."

DAUGHERTY ASKS HEARING ON WHEELER RESOLUTION

Washington, Feb. 11.—A hearing on the Wheeler resolution requesting his resignation was asked for by Attorney General Daugherty, in a letter today to Senator Willis, republican, Ohio.

Mr. Daugherty declared full authorization should be granted a senate committee to proceed with a hearing so that "Senator Wheeler and those interested with him in the subject matter of this resolution may be fully heard and the president and the country fully informed and the matter disposed of on its merits."

Mr. Daugherty's letter, under date of yesterday follows:

"Upon my return to Washington yesterday, my attention was called to senate resolution 137 introduced by Senator Wheeler, of Montana, on January 29, 1924.

"I believe the purpose of this resolution is to give to the president of the United States, and I think to the country, some information relative to my conduct as the attorney-general of the United States with reference to:

"1—Legal action by the department of justice to prosecute the officials of the United States Veterans' bureau and persons alleged to have acted illegally and corruptly.

"2—The appointment of the department of justice in pushing to a conclusion the so-called war fraud cases, and,

"3—The appointment of a special counsel to have charge of the prosecution of the cases which have arisen by reason of the disclosures before the senate committee on public lands and surveys.

"I think full authorization should be granted a committee to proceed with a hearing so that Senator Wheeler and those interested with him in the subject matter of this resolution, may be fully heard and the president and the country fully informed and the matter disposed of on its merits.

"I am prepared at any moment after those pressing this resolution have been heard, to lay the whole matter before such committee.

"I suggest, as a matter of courtesy to Senator Wheeler, with whom I have no acquaintance, that you request him to bring about this action on the resolution and if, for any reason, he should not care or be willing to do so, then I respectfully request that you, yourself, institute in the senate such action as may be necessary and use your best efforts to secure the passage of proper authority for this committee to immediately proceed as above suggested. This is fair to everybody."

McADOO APPEARS AT SENATE OIL INVESTIGATION

Washington, Feb. 11—Immediately upon the adoption of the resolution, the senate, on motion of its author, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, voted 51 to 25 that the measure be transmitted immediately to the white house. Secretary Sanderson carried it to the executive offices, but when he reached there at six o'clock the president was out walking and it was not brought to his attention, although he had been advised of the senate action.

The vote in the senate came after five hours of debate heard by crowds that overflowed the galleries. The result was not unexpected either at the capitol or at the white house.

President Coolidge has been told earlier in the day by Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Assistant republican leader, that the resolution would be adopted.

With this information at hand, the president had his secretary C. Bascom Slemp, confer with Secretary Weeks, long a friend of Mr. Denby, and later Mr. Weeks discussed the subject at length with the president at luncheon. After leaving the white house

Sheriff in Jail For Safe-Keeping

Result of Klan and Flaming Circle Disorders in Williamson County, Illinois.

Urbana, Ills., Feb. 11.—Sheriff Geo. Galligan of Williamson county and four deputies were brought here last night and lodged in the Champaign county jail for safe-keeping. They were arrested by constables and deputy sheriffs at Marion as a result of disorders in which members of the Ku Klux and Knights of the Flaming Circle were involved.

Sheriff John Gray of this county questioned authority of officials to place the sheriff and his deputies in the local jail. He was informed by state officials to hold the prisoners until ordered by a court of record to release them.

NOT TO PUT WILLIAMSON COUNTY UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Herrin, Ill., Feb. 11 (By the A. P.)—Williamson county is not going to be put under martial law, Major-General Milton J. Foreman, in command of the two regiments of Illinois National Guard troops in the county, told newspaper men tonight.

"Instead we are going to work in conjunction with the legally constituted authorities of the county," he asserted. Asked regarding the status of Glenn Young, who has been acting chief of police in Herrin until John Ford, the regular chief of police, returned today, General Foreman said: "We do not understand Young occupies any position justifying him to administer law and order in the state of Illinois."

In answer to a question as to what the military would do if Young, armed with warrants conducted any more raids, the general said: "I think we are capable of coping with any situation that might arise."

Although Williamson county will not be placed under martial law the military will practically be in complete control, and although they are supposed to work under the orders of and report to Acting Sheriff McCown, they may enforce law and order and discipline in any manner they see fit, it was announced.

Glenn Young left Herrin tonight for his home at Marion. He said that he intends to leave for Washington the last of the week, in connection with the proposed activities in Williamson county.

In a statement to The Associated Press tonight, Young said that he had received a letter today from W. A. Anderson, Chicago chief of the general prohibition agents, directing him to proceed to Washington to finish the matter of preparing the first 54 injunctions against alleged bootleggers in Williamson county.

NARRATIVE OF RUM PIRACY ON THE HIGH SEA

New York, Febb 11.—The story of a rollickinb crew of rum pirates who boarded the liquor carrying steam trawler Lutzen two days out of St. John, N. B., kicked her sailormen into the hold, sailed to rum row and disposed of the cargo for $129,000, was told today by the Evening Post.

The Canadian and United States governments, as well as Lloyd's who insured the cargo, have instituted searches for the sea highwaymen, the newspaper said.

The Lutzen was two days out of St. John N. B., bound for Hamilton, Bermuda, when the pirates suddenly appeared, boarded her and subdued the unarmed crew, sending the supercargo below decks in iron and changing the course to rum row. The pirate ship disappeared.

The name "Lutzen" was painted out and Lion substituted. The buccaneers competed with other ships in rum row until the whiskey cargo had been sold over the side for $129,000 cash when they signalled a tug from shore, were taken off and disappeared somewhere in this country.

A few days before the pirates left the ship, an agent for the St. John firm, which had become worried over the delay in reaching Hamilton, sent an aviator to scout in rum row. He reported the Lutzen there under a false name

When the pirates departed the crew of the Lutzen proceeded to Hamilton and delivered what was left of the coal car, which the buccaneers couldn't sell.

The Lutzen was involved in another rum row escapade in December, 1922 in which one of her crew was murdered.

German President Cables His Regret

Over Deplorable Misinterpretation of the German Embassy Flag Incident.

New York, Feb. 11.—A cablegram from President Ebert of Germany, expressing regret at the "deplorable misinterpretation" of the German embassy flag incident and extending to the American people deep sympathy on the loss of former President Wilson, today was made public by Major General Henry T. Allen, chairman of the American Committe for Relief of German Children.

The message, which was addressed to General Allen, read:

"As your telegram, to my utmost regret, confirms to me there has been in the United States a deplorable misinterpretation of the fact that the flag on the German embassy in Washington was not put at half mast upon receipt of the news of former President Wilson's death, but only on the day of his funeral, I sincerely wish to assure you that German people deeply sympathize with the national mourning of the American people, whose generous charity for the relief of distress in Germany will never be forgotten here."

FATAL FIRE CAUSED BY AN INTOXICATED NEGRESS

Rockville Center, N. Y., Feb. 11.—After seven hours' questioning at police headquarters today, Margaret Lindley, a negress, a servant for the last two years at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Graves, at Lynbrook, was arrested on a charge of second degree manslaughter in connection with the deaths yesterday of six persons in a tenement house fire believed to have been of incendiary origin. She was committed to jail in default of $5,000 bail.

The negress was brought here for questioning after Thelma Miller, 14 year old negress, told police she had seen her leave the rear of the tenement with her hair afire about fifteen minutes before the fire broke out.

Police declared she made many conflicting statements, finally signing a statement in which she stated the fire was caused by an oil stove which she upset while she was intoxicated.

HOW THOMAS EDISON SPENT 77TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Newark, N. J., Feb. 11.—Thomas Edison with the dawning of his 77th birthday today paused long enough from his labors at his laboratories in Menlo Park to hold his annual interview with the press, to answer a questionnaire quite as intricate and lengthy as he himself had ever devised and finally to leave his instruments long enough to attend a testimonial dinner this afternoon given him by more than 160 members of the Edison Pioneer association, veterans of his service.

At the dinner he blew out the 77 candles on a huge birthday cake, fortified himself with the lightest lunch on the menu, and then started on another year's work putting in several hours at his laboratory after the festivities were over.

Today another member was added. Henry Ford, long a friend of Mr. Edison, was elected to membership in the Pioneers. He was not present.

Tonight a family re-union was held at Llewellyn Park, West Orange, the inventor's home.

During the testimonial dinner plans for the "Thomas A. Edison memorial" at Menlo Park, where he has carried out most of his work, were discussed. The plan, as presented by John W. Lieb, vice president of the New York Edison company, calls for the purchase of Menlo Park and the building of a terrace on which will be chiseled the history of the world famous inventions which found their origin there. The New Jersey Historical society will be asked to accept custody of the completed memorial, it was stated.

WRECKAGE FOUND OF SCHOONER NICHOLSON

Curling, N. F., Feb. 11.—Wreckage found today near Mt. Blomidon is believed to be from the schooner T. M. Nicholson of Bucksports, Maine, which has not been heard from for many weeks. Ice conditions at present make it impossible to search the shore in the vicinity for more accurate identification of the wreck.

The Nicholson, a two-masted vessel of 128 tons gross was built at Essex Mass., in 1899 for the fishing fleet of Captain T. M. Nicholson of Bucksport. The schooner, in command of Captain Horace Wilde of Bucksport, who had a crew of seven men, sailed for Bay of Islands, N. F., for a cargo of herring. She carried no cargo but salt for the herring. It was believed that she was lost on one of the islands at the entrance of the bay.

LINCOLN

They took small note of him, the great, the wise, the rich,
Who saw him come from Illinois, a wild, crude State—
A country layer to decide a nation's fate!
They held him foolish to accept so high a niche—
What, President! Unkempt, unlearned and unrefined
They called him, and withdrew for private talk.
They joked about his ancestry, and by his walk
They feigned to guess him farmer lineage. How blind
Were they who could not see the fire that burned within Those glowing eyes, who failed to note the mighty strength
Of those toil-hardened arms! His gaunt limbs' sprawling length
Should have proclaimed to them a giant's stride! Their sin
Was not to know the great enduring heart of him,
Our most beloved, whose fame the ages cannot dim.

COOLIDGE TO BE LIBERAL IN ATTITUDE TOWARD TAX BILL

Tax Bill Was Formally Reported in the House Yesterday by Secretary Green of Ways and Means Committee—President's Secretary Has Informed Representative Davey That the President is Averse to Making Any Unqualified Statement That Would Commit Him to a Course of Action in Advance of Legislative Action.

Washington, Feb. 11.—President Coolidge's discussions of the subject have indicated that he "is disposed to a liberal attitude" regarding the tax bill, Secretary Slemp informed Representative Davey, democrat, Ohio, today in a letter responding to the representative's question as to whether the president would veto any tax reduction bill "that differs materially from the soi-called Mellon plan."

The revenue bill containing all of the Mellon income tax rates, as well as a provision for a 25 per cent. reduction in the 1923 taxes payable this year was formally reported to the house today by Chairman Green of the ways and means committee. Two additional reports by other republicans of the committee and a democratic report also were submitted.

The president's secretary wrote Representative Davey that although the president has talked "very frankly" to newspapermen about tax reduction, "I think he is averse to making any unqualified statement that would seem to commit him to a course of action in advance of detailed knowledge of the form the legislation will take."

"All the president's discussions" Mr. Slemp continued, "have indicated that he is disposed to a liberal attitude, recognizing that legislation is made in congress and not at the White House, and that the function of the White House in approving or disapproving is not required to be performed until after that of the congress has been performed."

Republican leaders in the house reiterated today after checking up a poll of their delegations that there was slight hope of passing the Mellon surtax rates providing a maximum of 25 per cent. Advocates of these rates in the bill as reported by the committe based hope of their adoption on the forcing of a record vote, claiming there were at least 120 republicans who favor them. Representative Longworth, republican floor leader, reiterated the opinion, however, that their adoption was not possible.

The course of procedure on the revenue bill in the house, Mr. Longworth explained, would force votes first on amendment to the rates as contained in the bill. This would mean, it was said, that the republicans must unite on a compromise rate or bow to the united democratic stand, claimed by their leaders, for a maximum rate of 44 per cent. If the compromise rate were adopted there would be no chance for a separate vote on the original rates carried in the bill.

It was announced today that the democrats would hold a caucus Wednesday at which an attempt probably would be made to bind their members to the democratic tax reduction plan as submitted by Representative Garner of Texas, and outlined in the minority report today.

Leaders expressed little hope today of obtaining an agreement for limiting general debate on the revenue bill which will start Thursday. Chairman Green said he expected the debate to continue at least for three days after which he thought an agreement could be made to restrict it and then take up reading of the measure, when amendments will be in order.

Representative Davey also made public today letters from William G. McAdoo, John W. Davis and Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, giving their opinion on tax reduction.

Mr. McAdoo declared "the Mellon argument about the high surtaxes interfering with business is the sheerest bunkum." He urged the democrats to agree on a program, but in regard to the Garner plan said he saw "no reason why there should not be a difference between the $100,000 and $1,000,000 incomes," which would be taxed on the same rates.

Mr. Underwood said he was "heartily in favor of the reduction policy and shall support the measure proposing the greatest cut possible."

Mr. Davis said democrats "occupy the vantage ground of liberalism and we must not let ourselves be driven from it."

The dead: Charles B. and Robert L. Mannings, of Manchester; Francis Manning of Cambridge, Mass.

The Montreal express had passed through Glencliff a few minutes ahead of the Ford special and the four men had been passengers on the express from Manchester to this station. They then proceeded to walk the track northward, making for the Dartmouth Trail. All carried snowshoes and knapsacks. They were struck by the special train at a point about two miles north of Glencliff station, and about 10 miles from the clubhouse which was their destination.

The Manning brothers were well known professional men, sons of the late Charles B. Manning of the Amoskeag Manufacturing company. Robert L. was an attorney with offices in Manchester, where Charles B also practiced as a consulting engineer. Francis was an instructor in the biological department at Harvard.

The men were only 10 feet from the Dartmouth trail when the train struck them. They had planned to leave the tracks at that point and tramp over the mountains The engineer of the special did not learn of the accident until he reached Woodsville, 20 miles north of here, when he noticed a five. A special train made up at knapsack on the pilot of the locomotive Woodsville picked up the three bodies and took them to that place.

Reed escapes with contusions and several broken ribs.

Caslip Pagano, proprietor of the American-Russian restaurant, 929 Main street, which was raided by officers Thursday night, was presented in the police court Monday morning on a charge of violation of the Liquor law. Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Garver stated that Pagano's attorney, William A. King, had called him on the telephone and stated that he could not attend the court session. The case was then continued until next Saturday morning, under bonds of $1,000, furnished by Frank Melo.

Four men, Fred Lemire, Rosaire Gelina, Nicholas Cunelli and Joseph Christin, who were arrested as frequenters at the time of the raid, were booked for hearings Monday morning, but for some reason their cases did not come up. The outcome of these cases will be of considerable interest as this is the first time in the history of the local court that such a situation has arisen.

The liquor and red wine seized by the officers in the raid were sealed after the court session and taken to Connecticut Agricultural College, where an analysis will be made by a chemist.

Pagano's dextrine was still decorated with a mesh discolored eye and swollen jaw, Monday, as the result of corporal punishment which he received when he became too saucy and threatening to County Detective William R. Jackson. Other officers in the raid were Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officers William R. Congdon, who read the warrant to Pagano, Stanton L. Briggs and Harry W. Avery, the latter being accused by Pagano of having "planted" the evidence behind a closet door. It is understood that he had secured the services of Attorney Swainsburg, an understudy of Secretary of State Attorney Paletti, of Hartford.

The children of Arthur Robitaille and others are today mourning the loss of a small shed at 139 Natchaug avenue, where they had erected and were using for a club room. Fire of unknown origin broke out in the shed Sunday morning and the clubhouse was burned to the ground, the monetary loss being estimated at about $30. The East street engine house was called and Engine Company No. 1 promptly responded. Forty-one gallons of chowder were played on the fire but to no avail. With Mr. Robitaille's permission the shed had been used by a number of boys and had not been visited since last Friday.

In a recent edition of a Holyoke newspaper the following item of local interest appeared: George D. Mr. Morin was tendered a farewell reception by the employes at the factory. He was presented a purse of $100 in gold, the presentation speech being made by James Watson, an overseer. The retiring superintendent came to this city from the Willimantic plant of the company where he held the position of superintendent of preparation for several years. It is understood he intends to go into business for himself."

Mr. and Mrs. Morin are now visiting in this city and after a vacation Mr. Morin will probably start up business.

The Annual Shrove Tuesday dance is to be held at the Al-Pierre.

Shake-up in Crew of Dirigible Shenandoah

Washington, Feb. 11.—All orders to officers involved in the wholesale transfer of commissioned personnel at the Lakehurst, N. J., naval air station and among the dirigible Shenandoah's command as [illegible] issued tonight by the navy department they included, among others, those relieving Commander F. R. McCarthy from the joint command of the big airship and the Lakehurst station, and assigning to those commands Lieut.-Commander Zachary Lansdown and Commander Jacob L. Klein, respectively.

Commander McCrary was ordered to line duty as commanding officer of the submarine tender Canopus, now at Mare Island, Calif., undergoing repairs. It also was announced that the assignment of Commander Klein to the command of the Lakehurst station would be of a temporary character as it was intended later to transfer him to duty with the Asiatic squadron, for which he recently applied.

The orders further instructed Commander E. B. Weyerbacher, engineer officer of the Shenandoah, to proceed to the aircraft factory at Philadelphia for duty as engineer officer there, and directed Lieutenant E. H. Kincaid to report to the receiving ship at the Brooklyn navy yard for assignment to duty with the Atlantic fleet.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of naval aeronautics, on his recommendations Secretary Denby acted in approving the orders for the shakeup at Lakehurst, expressed the opinion that the change would result in increased efficiency at the station and aboard the Shenandoah, making for better conditions during the period of preparation for the big ship's polar flight, next summer and during the trip itself. He described the change of officers as being "in the best interests of the navy."

Miss Lois Frances Booth Weds Count Rosenborg

Ottawa, Feb. 11—Miss Lois Frances Booth, of Ottawa and Prince Erik Count Roserborg, of Denmark, first cousin of the Danish and British kings were married at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the quaint Church of All Saints. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Roper, of the Anglican diocese of Ottawa, assisted by the Rev. C. G. Hepburn, rector of All Saints.

Prince Erik, who by his marriage renounces all right of succession to the Danish throne, is the older brother of Prince Viggo, whose engagement to Miss Eleanor Marguerite Green of New York, was recently announced. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Booth, of this city, and the grand-daughter of John R. Booth, the millionaire lumberman.

The wedding attended by representatives of the British and Danish royal houses and by hundreds of persons of prominence and fashion, was one of the most brilliant ceremonies seen here since the war, and thousands of citizens lined the streets to give their good wishes to the first Canadian woman to attain royal rank.

The matron of honor was Mrs. W. D. Herridge, and the four bridesmaids were Lady Elizabeth and Lady Mary Byng, daughter sof the Earl of Strafford, Miss Marjorie Cook and Miss Betty Henderson.

Prince Erik, attended by his father, Prince Valdemar, who represented his brother, the kind of Denmark, the ushers were Prince Viggo, Count Rousay de Salles, Danish consul general in Canada, Count Luis De Meltke-Huttfeldt and Colonel G. Fellows.

Mexican Federal Troops Have Taken Vera Cruz

Vera Cruz, Feb. 11.—(By the A. P.)—The federal troops of General Eugenio Martinez today reoccupied Vera Cruz without resistance. The vanguard of the forces took over the city at five o'clock this morning. The rebels had previously vacated.

Under strict orders from General Martinez to proceed cautiously the troops advanced slowly, especially on approaching Paso del Macd Stoyac, Potero and Soledad. It was necessary to halt the column at the great bridge over the Atoyac river, in order to replace a number of sleepers which had been burned by the rebels, and also in the vicinity of Soledad, where a quarter of mile of railway line had been destroyed the night before. Skirmishes took place between cavalry in the brush and a force of rebels near Soledad. A few of the troopers were wounded.

When Vera Cruz was entered today it was the first time that federal forces had been in control here since December 5.

the war secretary said that so far as he knew the cabinet would remain intact.

Senator Johnson, who closed the senate discussion, declared that even those officials guilty of negligence in the matter should be swept from office. He added that if this were a parliamentary form of government such a vote of a lack of confidence as that by the senate in adopting the Denby resolution would cause the administration to fall.

In the first speech he has delivered this session, Senator LaFollette, author of the resolution under which the oil inquiry is proceeding declared that each official should bear his own responsibility in the matter, adding there should be no "whitewashing, no vicarious atonements."

Supporting his resolution, democratic leader Robinson told the senate that under his own testimony, Secretary Denby was more responsible for making the oil leases than any other officer, not even excepting former secretary Fall.

After the milk had gone for three hours, the ten minute limitation on debate was invoked under agreement reached last Saturday.

This enabled many senators to speak. Besides Senators Robinson, Johnson and LaFollette, those arguing for the resolution were Reed, democrat, Missouri, Swanson, democrat, Virginia, Stanley, democrat, Kentucky; Trammel, democrat, Florida and Heflin, democrat, Alabama.

Opposing the resolution were Senators Spencer of Missouri, who opened the debate; Cousens, Michigan; Howell, Nebraska; Brandegee, Connecticut; Reed, Pennsylvania, and Hale, Maine, republicans.

A dramatic incident of the day was the appearance of Mr. McAdoo before the oil committee. Appearing at his own request, the former treasury secretar yat the outset read a prepared statement and then submitted to questioning by members of the committee. He was on the stand exactly forty minutes.

Mr. McAdoo declared that had he not been "prominently mentioned in connection with high office," his name never would have been brought into the inquiry. He asserted he had acted in good faith in accepting a retainer from E. L. Doheny after he left the cabinet and told the committee that he regarded the matter as "wholly irrelevant" to the subject matter of the inquiry.

"Nevertheless," he said, "I am perfectly willing to have the committee inquire into it. If it will aid the committee in unearthing the people wh obave been guilty of wrong doing I am glad to have it brought out."

After Mr. McAdoo had left the room the committee, meeting in executive session, heard officials of three railroads labor organizations in opposition to Mr. Pomerene and his colleague, Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago, before it, Mr. Pomerene was with the committee about half an hour and Mr. Strawn ten minutes or more.

Action on the nominations was deferred until tomorrow, but some committeemen said they expected a favorable report to be ordered at that time.

The railroad labor officials said they had opposed Mr. Pomerene on the ground that he had not had sufficient experience in handling that sort of litigation. They were J. Paul Stephens, deputy president of the Brother of Railroad Trainmen; W. M. [illegible] vice president of the brotherhood of railroad conductors.

Each had been baking bread famous in his own neighborhood

"From that afternoon came the linking together of the six men."

In six neighboring New England cities, six bakers were making bread famous in their own neighborhoods. Little by little they became friends. Then one day they gathered about a long table, compared recipes, examined each other's loaves, and told the secrets that long years of experience had given.

From that afternoon came the linking together of the Six Bakers, and eventually their Master Loaf, the bread that is the result of their combined skill and experience.

New England housewives—always critical of the food they serve—accepted it at once for three times a day serving. They liked the firm substantial loaf that plenty of milk, sugar and shortening in the recipe gives.

The rich deep crust of the Master Loaf and the close firm texture that makes the bread so easy to slice pleased them, too.

You, yourself, will find that the rich recipe keeps the Master Loaf fresh and moist. You will like its wholesome flavor.

Now for the first time White Rose, the Master Loaf of the Six Bakers, is being served in a small section outside of New England. Look for it at your grocer's—the loaf with the pleasant checked wrapper, like a fresh, clean tea towel.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Ice just over 9 inches in thickness was reported at Quinebaug lake on Monday and 12-inch ice at the Hygeia reservoir near East Killingly. This is heavy enough for cutting, and if no sharp rise in temperature occurs ample ice for the needs of the borough during 1924 likely will have been housed by the week end. It appears that February is about to make good the prediction that it is an almost sure-fire ice month, no matter how mild other months may be.

This (Tuesday) evening brings a postponed meeting of the Danielson Chamber of Commerce. There is special interest in this particular meeting because of the fact that it likely will consider the petition of the clerks for a Thursday half-holiday practically throughout the year.

In the distribution of new and heavier rails for the local branch of the New Haven road the work train and crew that is stringing the rails along the right of way has reached Danielson and passed on to the south. Putting in of these rails and tie replacements incident to the big replacement job will be undertaken during the spring and will require a number of weeks.

The local upkeep crew of the state highway department is winning much favorable comment from motorists because of the manner in which heavy grades have been graveled to cover up the ice that has coated state roads in this immediate vicinity for the past week. There was particular satisfaction over the manner in which Dark Lantern, Little Rest and Spalding Hills—all on the Providence route—were cared for, and the attention given these hills by the road crew made them really safer traveling than some of the level icy stretches. Evidence of this is that there has been no accident on any of these hills.

These are days of reckless happiness for children who are allowed to coast on streets usually busy with automobile traffic. Only the greatest good fortune has prevented a serious accident prior to this time. Motorists, trying to guide cars over ice coated streets and not too certain that tire chains will prevent their machines from skidding are nerve racked in trying to avoid accidents that the children appear to be inviting. Parents of the children appear to be disinterested parties to the entire procedure. There is nothing to indicate they are not risking the lives of their children on a turn of fate.

This (Tuesday) evening members of the Service battery, 192nd Field artillery, will with a few invited guests have a smoker at the state armory. This is one of the social events that mark the winter activities of the battery, which is regularly engaged with drills and other military work. Members of the battery, are now centering their attention on the Leap Year Military Ball, which is planned to be one of the premier social events of the winter season in Danielson.

Visitors to the new Casino Arena have in about every instance been surprised by the fine sports center that has been developed there. The formal opening of this new home of action will come Thursday evening of this week, when followers of the boxing game from all the eastern section of the state will be on hand to enjoy the exceptionally fine program that has been arranged for their entertainment. The arena is particularly suited to care for a large assemblage and to give everyone a fine view of whatever is being staged. It will be used not only for boxing, but also for basketball, dancing and roller skating. Work on the arena has been under way since last fall.

Indications are that there will be a falling off all through the Quinebaug Valley this year in the amount of money the government will receive in income tax returns from workers employed in manufacturing plants. This will not be true in so great an extent to workers in plants in the town of Killingly as to those in plants of some of the nearby towns. Killingly has been more fortunate than some other towns along the valley. The year 1924 will be the first year since income taxes became fashionable that many who have not paid income tax assessments regularly will escape the necessity because of shrinkage in their earnings. On the other hand, some will pay larger taxes than ever. But on the whole this territory will not produce the revenue from this source that has been the rule for several years.

Slippery going is responsible for the death of a horse brought here from Willimantic to be sold at an auction. The horse slipped while going through Cottage street and dislocated a leg. Its conditions was found to be such that it was deemed best to put an end to its existence, so Officer Christopher Andrews, on night duty, was called in and shot the animal.

Line crews operating in territory hereabouts hit by the ice storm of a week ago tonight—both in the Danielson division and across the state line in Rhode Island—are still occupied with repair work. The ice did material damage in some sections, though this is not apparent in the borough.

Mrs. George Wilson has a broken wrist, an injury sustained when she struck the member against a tree while coasting. Mrs. Wilson was given attention at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

This is Lincoln's birthday. Observance of the anniversary will mark the activities of the school of the town today. Flags displayed in honor of the martyr president should be placed at half-staff, it is pointed out by military authorities.

Mrs. Anna Reynolds and Miss Katherine D. Aylward will be in New London today (Tuesday) to attend a conference of telephone company representatives from divisions in the eastern district.

These are days of real interest to poultrymen. They sense the call of spring, still more than a month away. But the baby chick period is at hand and this week deliveries of the fluffy little things will begin in this territory.

No matter how interesting, items for this column, when sent by mail must bear the signature of the writer. The recent necessity of rejecting several such items suggests the mention of this rule again.

The canvass for the well baby conference is under way in Danielson and involves a house to house invitation, that children up to six years of age may be listed here prior to the holding of the conference at the town hall February 26.

No more tire trouble for the hook and ladder equipment of the Danielson fire department. At the suggestion of Chief A. P. Woodward this piece of apparatus has been fitted with puncture-proof tires. Difficulty had been experienced with pneumatic tires that were on the machine so when it came time to replace them the puncture proof type was selected.

A big touring car was destroyed by fire near Hopkins crossing, about ten miles east of here on the state road to Providence when a short circuit caused the car to blaze.

"Miss Danielson" will be the name of a luxuriously appointed motor bus with a capacity of 24 passengers, that will be put on the Providence-Danielson route in the spring, H. J. Barnett has stated. This bus will have every modern appointments approved for such vehicles.

Reports relative to the recent meeting of the Connecticut Association of Fish and Game Clubs, held in Norwich, will be given Wednesday evening, at a meeting of the Danielson Rod and Gun club at the rooms of the Bohemian club.

Monday afternoon Jerome Keech, son of Mrs. Herbert Keech, was taken to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam to undergo an operation for appendicitis, the development of which came as a surprise, for Mr. Keech has appeared in his usual robust health and has been regularly engaged with his work.

PUTNAM

Of very general interest will be the news that John J. O'Brien has resigned as principal of the Israel Putnam school. The announcement was made Monday morning by Supt. Ralph C. Jenkins upon his departure for Boston to seek a successor for Mr. O'Brien.

Mr. O'Brien has been here as principal for several years and has been very successful. School officials regret his impending departure, but rejoice over the fact that he is to have a better paying position in Boston. This is regarded as the first of the rewards for his constant study during the years he has been in Putnam, a course at Harvard being included in the special work he has been doing.

Deputy Collector Leon T. Wilson has been assigned by U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue Robert O. Eaton to this city from February 25 to March 1, inclusive, to assist the public in filing their income tax returns for the year 1923. Mr. Wilson will be at the city clerk's office in the municipal building during the period mentioned.

Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools in Putnam, has been elected secretary-treasurer of the Connecticut Association of School superintendents. The election of Mr. Jenkins was incident to the meeting of the organization in New Haven the past week. One of the fine features of this meeting was an address by Mrs. E. M. Warner, chairman of the Putnam town school committee.

Of country-wide interest will be the appearance at Odd Fellows' hall next Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Catholic Woman's Welfare council, of Rev. F. B. Handley, a member of the Paulist order and a lecturer of remarkable oratorical powers. His subject will be Social Service. Father Handley's appearance will attract attendance from Danielson, Willimantic and other points in the county, and announcements relative to it were made in Catholic churches in various towns of the county Sunday.

Heart failure is attributed as the cause of death of Ernest Lord, 18, son of John A. and Elizabeth Fitzgerald Lord, of Putnam Heights, Sunday. The boy was coasting on a hill not distant from the home of Selectman Clarence A. Pierce and was walking back up the grade after a fine slide, when his companions saw him fall. At first they believed that he had only slipped on the icy going, but soon discovered that something much more serious than that had happened. They picked him up, placed him on a sled and drew him home. A physician was summoned from this city in the hope that the boy was merely unconscious, but on the arrival of the physician the boy was pronounced dead, and indications seemed to be that death had been almost instantaneous.

The boy's father is engaged in setting up machinery, work that takes him into various parts of the country.

It was pointed out Monday by one familiar with the affairs of the town of Thompson that County Commissioner E. H. Cortis is not the only resident of that town who, in years gone by, has received compensation for services as a member of the town school committee, and that should the court proceedings instituted the past week be the means of causing Mr. Cortis to pay back to the town such compensation as he has received for school committee work, that others who have served on the committee and have received compensation therefor will be required to do likewise.

The injunction proceedings have proved to be of general interest to the people of the town of Thompson, as the matter on which they are based has been a subject of discussion for several years. Opponents of making such payments hold that the payments were illegally made, notwithstanding that a Thompson town meeting voted that they be made and that the instructions of the meeting have been followed by the selectmen.

A former member of the board of selectmen said Monday that, as his memory served him, Mr. Cortis never received over $100 a year for his services in the capacity mentioned and that some years the bill was not more than $60.

A worktrain operating out of this city continues to distribute the new and heavier rails that are to be put in on the Norwich branch of the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad when spring opens. This week the train is distributing rails to the south of Danielson. The train has special equipment for the easy handling of the rails, to be put in place that the heavier equipment now in use over the road may be better cared for. It is estimated that several months will be required to put the new rails in place, make the necessary tie renewals and remove the old rails.

In these days when so many persons are taking out renewals of their motor vehicle operators' licenses the question is asked many times a day of police officials, members of the bar and others familiar with the renewal procedure "Do I have to swear to this application if I had an operator's license in 1923?" The answer to this question is no. Incidentally, that is made very clear on the application forms, but the fact seems to be overlooked by scores of people. However, if one did not have such a license in 1923, applications for 1924 must be sworn to.

How teeth become whiter when you fight film

Ask for this test

Someone in each family should make this delightful test. It has shown millions the way to prettier teeth—to cleaner, safer teeth. To homes the world over it is bringing a new dental era. Let ten days show how much it means to you and yours.

That cloud is film

That viscous film you feel on teeth is what mars their beauty. Under old brushing methods, much of it clings and stays. It becomes discolored and forms dingy coats, to hide the luster of the teeth.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

That's why few escaped tooth troubles, despite their daily care.

Modern science has found ways to fight film. One disintegrates the film, one removes it without harmful scouring.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Clinical tests proved these methods effective. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Dentists the world over began to advise it. Now careful people of some 50 nations use this new-day method.

Meets other needs

Pepsodent does other things which research proved essential. It multiplies the tooth-protecting factors in saliva.

Watch its effects. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

A few days will convince you of its need. Cut out coupon now.

In France, they call it "cake" NORWICH calls it Bond Bread

ACTUALLY a loaf of Bond Bread was sent to a mother in France, and—after tasting it—such was her wonder and delight that she exclaimed:

"It is not bread—it is cake."

This pretty tribute was not meant for us, as this mother thought. It was aimed directly at the 43,040 housewives who jointly showed us how they wanted Bond Bread made. For these women did show us by bringing their home-made loaves to Bond Bread baking contests to give us models for Bond Bread.

Mothers are the same the world over—and here in New England they know that Bond Bread is not cake, but simply a good wholesome bread with a flavor that children love. And they know that 43,040 housewives designed Bond Bread, using only the purest ingredients.

By means of a Bond on each wrapper, we guarantee to you that only those same pure home ingredients will be used in Bond Bread.

THIS BOND, printed on each wrapper, guarantees each ingredient and identifies the loaf as the product of the General Baking Company. From this Bond, and all that it implies, Bond Bread gets its name.

Know all men by these Presents that GENERAL BAKING COMPANY is held and firmly bound unto the Purchaser of this Loaf of Bond Bread TRADE MARK REG U S PAT OFF and hereby warrants that the loaf of Bread contained within this Germ-Proof and Dust-Proof Wrapper is made from the following Pure Food Materials, and no other ingredients of any kind Best Wheat Flour, Compressed Yeast, Pure Filtered Water, Best Fine Salt, Pure Lard, Granulated Sugar and Condensed Milk

MEMORIAL FOR PROF. HUTCHISON.

Much is to be said in commendation of the spirit that has moved the members of the class of 1883 at the Free Academy to raise a fund of $30,000 for the erection of a gymnasium building at the institution.

There are many graduates of the school who never knew Professor Hutchison, but most of them have heard of the excellent service that he rendered the Free Academy during earlier days, and certainly it is fitting that there should be a memorial binding in his honor. The class of 1883 knew him and they have displayed good judgment in endeavoring to obtain a memorial for so worthy a principal.

Particularly commendable is the effort to do something that will prove a lasting benefit for this institution that has done so much for this community and vicinity and which is destined to continue to have an important part in the education of Norwich's sons and daughters. Many are the campaigns that have been waged in behalf of smaller and larger institutions in other localities to which Norwich has made liberal contributions, and it is therefore gratifying to realize that something has been undertaken that will give increased advantages at home.

Norwich is proud of the Free Academy. It cannot fail to appreciate what it has done for more than half a century for this locality, not for profit, but for the betterment of rising generations. With the class of '83 engaged in such a commendable undertaking there should be an eagerness on the part of the community, and the many graduates of the school who reside elsewhere, to see that this memorial building is erected.

There may well be thought of giving recognition to the services that were so faithfully rendered by Professor Hutchison by those who knew him, while those who did not may well consider the desirability of seeing that the requirements of such a valuable institution are maintained.

SITES FOR NEW SCHOOLS.

The suggestion has been made that when new schoolhouses are to be erected thought should be given to the site so that the main highways may not selected for such buildings.

The purpose of this is protection. Virtually any of the schoolhouses that are on main streets and it can be appreciated that crossing of the street at such points by crowds of children several times a day does not contribute to safety. The tendency is to run across the street without regard for what may be coming, which would be far less risky on a side street than on a main thoroughfare.

It is not to be supposed that any such plan is proposed with the thought that there would not need to be as much care exercised by the drivers of vehicles on main highways. The fact is that each year demands more and more care on the part of drivers, but if schools can be built where those going to them and leaving them will have to encounter less traffic it is a matter worthy of serious consideration. Invariably it has been the plan in the past to locate the school where it would be central, easy of access and prominent. The traffic on the streets is a problem that got little consideration in the past, but it must of necessity be considered henceforth. Place as many restrictions as possible upon the drivers and get as much respect for the rules the enforcement will bring, there are many instances where not enough care is exercised by the pedestrian. And this is too often the case with children dashing across the street. The warnings that schoolhouses are placed are excellent. The idea of putting schools on equally good sites, but off the principal streets, is in keeping therewith.

The wisdom of establishing safe-guards wherever possible in these days of speed and many motors cannot be ignored. Established schools are not going to be abandoned under the plan but when new ones are to be built the advisability of such a location should come in for careful consideration. Every means of prevention and protection are deserving of attention these days.

OBREGON'S VICTORY.

The battle at Ocotlan is one that De la Huerta tried desperately to win. It was important that he should. Anything such as victory at that time would have permitted him to claim that his departure from Vera Cruz was a strategic retreat. Success would have given him increased prestige, it would have disclosed him as a clever strategist and would have given renewed life into the revolution. The only reason De la Huerta didn't win is that he encountered a superior force, to say nothing of the generalship. It demonstrated what was believed at the time that he abandoned Vera Cruz, that his revolution is practically over. Whatever he may claim as the reason for giving up the important port, the fact that he has lost his first big encounter thereafter indicates anew that he saw himself slipping and took to cover.

No more than the abandonment of Vera Cruz, can the victory of Ocotlan be regarded as ending the rebellion. Obregon's successes are working to his advantage but Mexico has not seen the end of the fighting. De la Huerta's followers or other bands can be expected to carry on a guerilla warfare that will cause plenty of concern to the government's forces for some time to come, and yet it was Obregon who displayed so much skill during the early days of his administration in putting down just such opposition.

With the backbone broken, Obregon can well feel encouraged. Developments in the past fortnight have turned the tide strongly in his direction, and instead of deserting garrisons henceforth it can be reasonably assumed that Obregon will experience the effects of increased support. It may be based on no more than the fact that he has demonstrated his ability to deal successfully with the rebellion, but that is the important question just at the present time. It is a time when some needed credit will be gained for constitutional government in the defense of which Obregon has stood and because of which our influences have been turned in his direction.

LINCOLN DAY.

Once again, on the anniversary of his birth will the attention of the people of this republic be turned to the lessons in the life of Abraham Lincoln. They never cease to seek for facts and incidents connected with his career, they never overlook the principles for which he stood and they never disregard the sincerity of his purpose.

This great leader of men, whose life stands out as such a glowing example to other generations, had his opponents during life quite the same as there will be found a few who try to detract from the estimation which has been placed upon him. But Abraham Lincoln was an inspiration in life and he hasn't ceased to be so in death. He stands before the nation, and the world, as a soldier, a citizen and a statesman, steadfast in his purpose and determined that right should prevail. He had the courage to combat his opposition in the flesh and his life stands out to successfully combat his present day detractors.

Few are the American figures that equal or excel him. Few are there that arouse greater inspiration. He rose to a great leadership from a humble beginning and a limited training, but he was manifestly successful. His heart was in the right place, his aim was high and righteous and he hit the mark.

Well it is that Lincoln day is observed, and well may the observation be not restricted solely to the school-children. Great as the Lincoln example is for the coming citizens, it is one which the whole nation can do no better than keep before it at all times.

THE SHENANDOAH SHAKEUP.

The change in the officials of the Shenandoah substantiate the claims that were made at the time of the airship's wild flight that there was friction concerning the operation of the craft. Where there is divided opinion among those in responsible positions it is time to clean house, and especially so if it is impossible to bring about an adjustment.

With the Shenandoah about to be sent across the continent, to Alaska and then on a flight to the north pole it can be appreciated that there is need of having not only competent officials in command but those who can and will work together for the safe and efficient operation of the airship.

With the change in the personnel of officers it has evidently been recognized that there was friction aboard the Shenandoah which could not be eliminated, and that it was inadvisable to attempt to send the craft on any such trip as proposed while it existed.

The shakeup comes as the result of an investigation following the breaking away of the Shenandoah. The shifting of those in command of the station and dirigible to other duties, or to restricted duties, indicates that the investigations uncovered conditions that could not be approved or disregarded. Prompt action has therefore been taken to remedy the situation, and in view of the fact that there are those competent to handle the job it must be regarded as a move in the right direction. Friction in the administration of any such craft operates against success and it would be folly to tolerate it even though the Shenandoah was intended solely for cruising and experimental services within the restricted territory of its air station.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11—One of the interesting questions raised this week by congressional debate was on the advisability of the United States admitting as an act of courtesy, young men from other countries to be students at the naval academy at Annapolis or the military academy at West Point. Several young men from Siam are asking for admission to the naval academy, and when the matter came before the house this week, Blanton of Texas, who has gained the nick-name of the "universal objector" rose in opposition to the request and roundly berated the government for having indulged in such a practice in the past, especially as it was extended to Japanese desiring to benefit by the methods of instruction observed at the military and naval academies of the United States. Undoubtedly there are two sides to the question, but as it appears to Secretary of War John W. Weeks, the granting of such courtesies is highly desirable and to the advantage of the United States as well as to the countries which send students to this country.

In an interview with newspaper correspondents a few days ago Secretary Weeks was asked to express his opinion on the question which he did without hesitation. It is an unwritten law that correspondents do not quote the president or members of his cabinet without their express consent, but Mr. Weeks was entirely willing to have his views on the subject known although he gave out no statement for explicit quotation. It seems that for many years it has been the custom of the United States government to receive into the naval academy students from the other countries on request. There is seldom a time when several Japanese or young men from some countries over sea, are not enrolled on the list. And it has often happened that men from our own naval or military corps are sent to Europe or the far east to receive instruction in some special military or naval work. It is a reciprocal move and one which Secretary Weeks believes goes far towards cementing the friendship of foreign countries with our own. Our men have been to France to study naval construction and other naval or military matters—our men have taken up detailed work in other countries, just as men from over sea have been admitted to our institutions. The friendships formed and the intimate knowledge gained by such intercourse is very beneficial to both countries, said Mr. Weeks. The men get to understand each other and to know the temperament and policies that mark the nations better than they could do in any other way. In my own class at Annapolis there were three Japs, all of whom later rose to high naval rank. They respected the United States and understood it, and we of the United States respected them and learned to understand them. In my opinion it is a very good thing to have such an interchange of courtesies and I believe it goes far towards a friendly understanding between the countries involved."

Hearings at the capitol before various investigating committees continue to be the order of the day. John T. King of Connecticut responded quickly to the summons of the oil committee but has not yet been called on.

Mr. King sat throughout the examination and close questioning of witnesses who were ahead of him on the committee list, but said he had no comment to make when asked by newspaper men as to his plans or possible testimony. Mr. King was an attentive listener during the examination of other witnesses and sat in one of a row of chairs placed close to the wall of the crowded room sitting beside him were a number of republican senators who chatted with him from time to time.

Many of the republican members of the Connecticut delegation went home for republican club banquet this week. Tilson of New Haven took with him Ogden Mills of New York who is to be the principal speaker at the Young Men's republican club in New Haven Tuesday night.

Senator Brandegee has his hands full as chairman of the judiciary committee, even though small special committees have been named by him to take up the hearings on various contested bills pending before the full committee. The woman's full rights bill came up this week before a sub committee of three, and women opposed to the measure were the first to appear. They stoutly opposed the proposed constitutional amendment on the ground that it would take from the women the special rights and privileges that have been accorded them already and moreover would have a strong tendency to speak up domestic life through the "open door policy" advocated by the bill, which give women what they call greater freedom" but which opponents call a dangerous step towards breaking up the home life of the American family. When the framers of this measure go before the committee fireworks of the most brilliant type are expected for the women say frankly they have some "wonderful things to spring". Even the ardent advocates of the bill do not expect it will pass at the present crowded session.

The so-called propaganda investigating committee, of which Senator Moses of New Hampshire is chairman, has perhaps the most long, drawn out task ahead of it, for every day a new crop of investigation is either asked for or threatened. There seems to be no end to the topics brought to the front. How many of them will come up for hearings is not known. The Bok peace prize, which by the way has lost interest since it has been announced that a pronounced league of nations writer and advocate was the recipient, started the pace. Now demands are pouring on to that committee to take up the matter of the anti-war society known as the National Council to Prevent War. Frederick J. Libby, its executive secretary, and most active officer is a New England man, having been born in Maine, educated in New England and later held a position as instructor in the Phillips Exeter Academy at Exeter, New Hampshire. Mr. Libby's political ideas are liberal in the extreme and men asking an investigation of the society claim that the Soviet government is back of the movement. The Military Order of the World War for January styled Mr. Libby as a pacifist of the first water, a paid propagandist who has brains and is therefore dangerous." The council plan is to have America lay down all arms in the hope that the example thus set will induce other nations to do likewise. The Quakers are intensely interested, in the movement and Mr. Libby, after taking the position of secretary joined the Quakers and is now a member of that sect. The National Bulletin asks that Libby be restrained from continuing his speaking tour.

Except for flags at half mast and the cessation of official social functions for thirty days, there is not one trace left in Washington of the public mourning that marked the death and funeral of the late President Wilson.

Thousands of people went out to the National Cathedral to view the great mass of flowers that had been placed there by friends and admirers of the dead president. The 24 hours following the burial of Mr. Wilson were made one of pilgrimage to the tomb under the chapel. Then the tide turned to daily affairs and except for flags at half mast and the cancellation of social invitations to official functions no trace is left of the funeral, or the event, so far as the public can see. Mrs. Wilson takes her daily rides, the McAdoos will stay on in Washington for a while, Mr. McAdoo waiting to testify in the oil lease investigation, Margaret Wilson goes back to her apartment in New York, and Mrs. Wilson is taking up her round of daily duties once more.

The white house canceled all its official invitations and it has not yet been announced whether or not the formal receptions to the army and navy and to congress, for which dates had been fixed, will be held at a later date. Entertaining other than official goes on in the usual way.

Col. Jim McAndrews of Chicago, a leading democrat of Illinois and former member of congress said this week: "I think it will be hard to beat Coolidge. He has the confidence of the people and of the business world. People regard him as safe and that's a thing that'll be hard for the democrats to overcome." "Mr. Coolidge has a level head", remarked another man standing by. "Yes," was the quick reply, "his head is as level as a floor and no more easy to lose."

While the oil scandal has touched the hem of many a garment in passing the Coolidge clothes have not been besmeared and even vociferous shouters in the senate seem to have dropped all hope of besmirching him or terrifying him into hasty action.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tribute to Mrs. Julia Dean

Mr. Editor: In the passing of Mrs. Julia Dean which occurred Friday morning, Feb. 8, in Plainfield, we can truly say that friends and neighbors have lost a true and valued friend, and the son who is the only child has lost what can never be replaced—a true and devoted mother. She has been almost constantly at his side during the 18 years in which he has been a shut-in from many ailments, and words cannot express the sympathy which friends tender to him in this bitter bereavement. A most loveable and grand woman has gone to her reward and all that knew her cannot help being better for having known her. She leaves besides her son, George C. Dean, a daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Dean, who has given her the most tender care during the weeks of her sickness which were many; also a grandson, Christopher who with his wife have done all in their power to assist in caring for her. Mrs. Dean was the widow of John Dean and has lived many years at the Dean homestead. She was born at Exeter, R. I., in 1840 and was the daughter of the late George and Jenette Gardiner Bliven. She was a member of the Jewett City Baptist church which she joined in 1856. She loved her home and all connected with it and was a woman who was most gracious and kind to all she came in contact with, had much sympathy and tender feelings to those in trouble and a kind word for all. Tender memories will always come to us when we remember our dear friend. Mrs. Dean has left several nieces and nephews who always loved Aunt Julia. One niece, Mrs. Frank Carlton of Providence, she had the care of for many years, Mrs. Carlton's mother having died when she was a small child.

To this friend who has gone above
We offer this tribute to her we loved;
We only think of her "gone before,"
And hope to meet her on the heavenly shore.

A FRIEND.

SWEEPING CLEAN

Have you lost all your money?" inquired the alarmed friend who wore the startling scarlet beads, discovering the other girl looking very determined, sad and hopeless.

"This is far worse than money," explained the disconsolate girl in the amethyst drops earrings and necklace to match. "You can judge how desperate it is when you see me sitting here without time or ambition to put on the dress that goes with these purple beads! I am, so to say, housecleaning my affections, getting rid of a lot of useless junk that I have stored away all over the place which I hate to throw out thinking possibly the time might come when I should have need of it—you know!".

"Just like dresses that are out of style but are too good to waste!" brightly understood the alarmed friend, no longer alarmed.

"Exactly!" agreed the disconsolate girl. "You never will; so I'd advise you to send them right on to the heathen, Sophronia, and revel in the airy space thus left! To begin with, I eliminated Jasper Bullion."

"With three cars, a father in poor health and an income tax that needs an Ajax to stand up under it?" gasped the hitherto alarmed friend.

"The same," replied the disconsolate one. "I have just figured out that the girl who marries Jasper is buying a ticket to a lifelong monologue show, rendered by the accomplished artist J. Bullion, son of the well-known financier, Golde Bullion!

"When Jasper calls me on the phone after an interval he does not betray the slightest eagerness to know how I am or what I've been doing in his absence or what may have befallen me. As soon as I say hello he bursts out breathlessly that he's thinking of changing chauffeurs or that his order of ties from London has arrived, and say they're spiffy! Or that his head kind of aches and he's going to a specialist. Or he's bought a new dog and he describes that dog to the last hair on its tail. "I am not really a forward person but I simply could not face a life of being nothing but an audience. So this is where I waste no time or thought on Jasper Bullion. He's got to make room for somebody more worth while.

"And into the waste paper burner goes Selery Chard, also. He understands us poor women so well that he would be an absolutely unsafe person to have around the house permanently! Several times when Selery has patted my hand soothingly and assured me that he knew exactly how I felt about such and such an affair or told me that I really shouldn't think so-and-so, accurately describing just what was in my mind, I almost loved him.

"But, Sophronia, consider that manic talent exercised by a husband!

"'Desrie,' his wife might say, 'I am just worried about you these days! You are working so hard and look so nervous and pale that you just must get your mind off business! I don't know what I've been thinking of to let you get into such a state! I'll tell you what we'll do this very night—go to the Leathernecks' reception and somewhere to dance after it and brighten you up a bit!'

"But Selery Chard would merely look at her and smile. 'Cut it, Lesbia,' he would say airily. 'You'll have to work some other plan to meet that chump, Goofy Leatherneck, with whom you are flirting just at present! I'm next, sweetheart!' Think how upsetting and discouraging it would be to feel that a thousand-candle-power searchlight was trained on your every little thought for all the rest of your harassed life! So Selery has got to look up another lounging place than my front doorstep. There are several others I am hesitating what to do with—maybe they could be made over or camouflaged—"

"Well, maybe," agreed the girl with scarlet beads. "But on the whole, it is far, far better to get a complete new outfit every season, to say nothing of being more interesting! It's a grand idea and here's where I don a dustcap, roll up my sleeves and start all fresh and spick and span this winter myself!—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Twenty-five years after the discovery of radium by M. and Mme. Curie the French Government has awarded Mme. Curie a pension of $2,500 a year. It is well that they have done so, for the world's greatest woman scientist has been living almost in poverty. Her husband was killed in a street accident in Paris in 1906, and since then the widow has been going on with the research work to which both had avowed their lives. Now that she has her pension she will spend the bulk of it on research, so great is her devotion to the cause of science. Other women would have rested on their laurels, but this great Frenchwoman prefers to go forward. By birth a Pole, she was so poor as a student in Paris that she studied at a municipal school, and it was there that she met her future husband.

A Little Talk on Thrift

THE FRANKLIN PHILOSOPHY

It is an encouraging sign of right thinking that such widespread popular attention is being given just now to the anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin.

As the years go by more and more thoughtful attention is being paid to this superman of colonial days, more ardent homage is paid to his memory and a deeper understanding is gained of the truths he taught.

Among the great men of history Franklin stands out as the eternal personification of that group of homely virtues of which thrift is the center. Any nation which attains a general consciousness of the truths of his philosophy will prosper because of the flourishing home life and clean morals of its citizens.

The Franklin philosophy is nothing more than the most simple logic, yet in this fact there is a lesson for all of us. In this modern life of ours, with the practical annihilation of distance and with every day bringing new triumphs of science, we are becoming more complex.

But the truths of life are simple. Humanity never can get away from fundamentals. The plain axioms of Poor Richard will live through the ages.

Our standards of living will continue to progress. Fifty years from now life will be quite different from what it is today insofar as life's conveniences, comforts and advantages go. But the upbuilding effect of the homely virtues remain as unchanged as the mountains or the sea.

Among the many inspiring signs of the times no other is more indicative of a sound public attitude than the widespread attention now being given in the United States to the anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin.—American Society for Thrift.

CHILD TRAINING

City Boys and Constructive Work

By Maud Freeman Osborne

City boys, naturally, have little opportunity for constructive work, although schools and other organizations are doing their best to offset this lack. Home is the best place for boys. However, most city homes and yards do not afford room for their activities.

Here, then, is a problem for parents. A proper outlet should be provided for the energy of these boys. Failure to do this will develop habits of idleness, or worse, your son may associate with bad boys and get into mischief. When he longs for expression through some hobby, if you cannot provide the necessary room and means for it, be careful that in some way his desire for constructive work is gratified.

My lad of nine was determined to take a course in taxidermy—not for the love of the work, but to earn money to buy a pony. He first undertook to obtain subscriptions for a boy's magazine. One subscription and 40 cents would enable him to purchase a scroll saw outfit which to earn enough to pay the initial fee for his course. After that the course was to pay for itself.

Several days later he announced, "I'll shovel walks to earn the rest of the money." This he did. Nothing could discourage him. But to pay twenty dollars for a course, which might turn out to be merely a temporary interest, particularly when he had only a drafty shed for a workshop, was out of the question.

Remembering my own childhood, when derision or curt commands chilled enthusiasm and destroyed initiative, and remembering my lack of confidence, my reserve, and my sensitiveness, I decided to be careful and seek advice.

But who can understand a boy with his determination, ambition and initiative better than his own mother? So, to that which might seem to some trivial I gave a great deal of thought.

During one of our morning talks, which took place soon afterward, I told Laddie that, when he was twelve and Brother through college, we would move to the suburbs so the pony could have lots of grass and a place to run out-of-doors. Meanwhile, I told him, he would have the time to earn enough money to buy his pony. "And you know," I concluded, "we have no more room for him here than we have for stuffing birds."

Realizing that his pet project was falling through, he cried a little, so I said, "But I believe we could put a work bench and a tool chest at the foot of the cellar stairs, where it is light, and there you could learn to make things. By the time we move to the suburbs you might even be able to build your own stable."

Happy, and now enthusiastic over what he was going to do when he was twelve and what he was going to do that winter with his tool chest, his ardor undampened, the desire for constructive work not destroyed, but only changed in form, he went about the task of making the work bent.

One day I stopped to watch him as he made the shavings fly with his new plane. Hearing me, he looked up and said. "Do you know what I'm going to do when I'm grown up? I'm going to build the biggest bridge in the world."

"I like to pick up every Crumb, when I eat any of Drake's Cake," said a visitor looking at the baking of a large batch of raisin cake at the Drake Brothers' bakery, in Brooklyn. "There seems to be so much goodness in every crumb that you hate to lose the pleasure of a single atom of it." Every cake in thousands of cakes is alike—uniform in ingredients and in baking

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germs.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

Stories That Recall Others

A Valuable Suggestion

A woman politician recently accompanied several men to a political meeting. When she came home she told her experiences to the family. "There wasn't a thing to eat at that meeting but sandwiches," she said. "But being the only woman in the crowd I was literally showered with them. Just 20 different men wanted to buy sandwiches for me."

Her oldest daughter spoke up. "Mother, the next time you go any place like that please take a basket and bring the others home. We havent even any sandwiches."

More Than A Hint

Mary liked caramels, but her steady didn't. He seldom brought them to her but brought chocolates which she didn't eat. However, he enjoyed them immensely while seated close to the family fire place.

One evening Mary became angry. And she fired at him: "It seems to me that you ought to have a pretty good time sitting at my fireplace and eating your own candy. Next time bring your share of the wood, too."

ART STUDENTS ASSOCIATION IS SHOWN VALUE OF ADVERTISING

Arthur M. Patterson of the Chambers Agency, New York, gave a very interesting talk on magazine, newspaper and billboard advertising at the February meeting of the Norwich Art Students association Monday evening at Slater Hall. Mrs. W. Tyler Brown, president of the association, presided at the meeting, which was well attended. Mr. Patterson told of the great volume of magazine advertising used by manufacturers to induce the millions of people in this country to buy their products.

As an example he quoted average prices charged for advertising space in several of the weekly and monthly magazines. One magazine, a weekly, really represents an advertising business of a million dollars. This particular weekly, he said, gets about $9,000 a page for advertising and often carries over 100 pages of advertising in a single copy. Another magazine, a monthly, charges about $8,000 a page and often carries over 100 pages of advertising material. Advertising revenue makes it possible for us to have such magazines at a very low cost.

The speaker said that when a manufacturer buys a page of space in a magazine the question that then comes up is how he can use it to the best advantage. He wants to put a message across to the readers of the magazine. The men who write the advertising copy must have a knowledge of human nature, to make their advertising copy effective.

Some of the things that confront a manufacturer who desires to place an article on the market are: Where is my market? How am I going to sell? How much shall I get? Then he must decide on a name for the article.

The advertising agency is called on to lay out a schedule for him and to select the magazines in which the advertisements are to appear. The advertising agent makes up the schedule of space and then the schedule goes to the manufacturer for his O. K. Another question that comes up is the selection of the proper means to advertise.

It is estimated, he said, that $800,000,000 is expended yearly in magazine, newspaper and billboard advertising. With reference to illustrated advertising, Mr. Patterson said that Arthur Brisbane has stated that a picture is worth a million words in an advertisement.

Speaking of the various kinds of advertising Mr. Patterson said that the house to house selling, backed up by national advertising is moving along in importance. Personally, he said he was not in favor of such campaigns as he feels that the local merchants can offer merchandise to just as good advantage and can give better service.

Touching on the mail order houses, he said these concerns persuade millions to buy supplies, from a kitchen stove to a grand piano and they are doing a large volume of business.

The work of the advertising agency has grown to its present importance in the last 25 years. The advertising agency deals entirely with publications. These companies buy the space for the manufacturers and get a discount from the publication, which represents their compensation. There are two kinds of advertising men. There is the "reason why" type and the "illustrated ads" type. Both classes are very successful in their work.

Mr. Patterson went on to speak of the classes of people to whom certain advertisements appeal and of some of the different advertising slogans such as Say It With Flowers, Gifts That Last, etc. In closing he said the manufacturers take the attitude in their advertising that they are selling service rather than products.

The remainder of the evening's programme was devoted to six tableaux representing widely advertised products. The tableaux and those who took part were as follows:

SPEAKS UPON WONDERS OF ELECTRIC DEVELOPMENT

Speaking upon the subject, Behind the Push Button, Robert W. Perkins, president of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, gave an intensely interesting and instructive talk upon the development of use of electric power before the February meeting of the Brotherhood of the United Congregational church Monday evening at the Community house on Church street.

The address was preceded by the monthly supper which was served by the Haviland class with covers laid for 54. President Walter F. Lester conducted a short business meeting at which four applications for membership were received and the literary committee made report of plans to arrange a lecture in April or May.

Sketching the gradual development of knowledge about electricity for the last twenty-five centuries, Mr. Perkins declared that the development that has now been reached has revolutionized industry, means of communication and transportation.

Electric power and transportation systems now employ 1,000,000 men. In 1893 the first central power station was built in New York. Now there are 6,098 in the United States with 18 million customers and producing one billion three million dollars worth of electric energy. There is a capitalization of $6,800,000,000 and seven million new capital is needed annually for enlargements. This development is the realization of the dreams of many men without whose individual effort and courage we would now be paying 35 times what we now have to pay for electricity.

Speaking of the development of the Eastern Connecticut Power company Mr. Perkins said that this was now in the super-power class and had delivered 80 million horse power units in the past year. It is in the front rank of the public utilities lighting companies of the United States. It produces a kilowatt hour on two pounds of coal and for 33 eastern Connecticut communities and four in Rhode Island it has saved $500,000 and 60,000 tons of coal. It has closed down nine steam plants and one Diesel plant but it can never effect the super-power saving for eastern Connecticut until it can save the use of four to six pounds of coal per kilowatt hour which is the production rate for small power plants.

The Eastern Connecticut Power company visualizes an eastern Connecticut of the future with twice the present population, all of the railroads electrified, a greater diversity of manufacture, not less than a 100,000 k. w. station and all our water powers unified and not wasted. The company craves no greater honor than of being remembered as a contributor to that greater eastren Connecticut.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Perkins for his address.

MINERS JOURNAL EDITOR IS TO SPEAK HERE

At a meeting of the directors of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce held Monday noon at the Wauregan House reports of progress were made regarding the movement to have the city provide safeguards at Laurel Hill for automobile drivers, the request of the Italian Band for financial assistance and the arrangements for the next membership meeting. Last month the officials of the chamber extended to Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, the official publication of the United Mine Workers of America, an invitation to address the chamber membership meeting this month. Due to the fact that Mr. Searles has been extremely busy at the Indianapolis convention and at a conference now being held between the miners and operators regarding the wage question, it was impossible for him to accept an invitation to address the members of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce and their friends during the month of February. Mr. Searles will deliver an address before the Government club of New York city on March 3 and has agreed to come to Norwich and speak to the members of the Chamber of Commerce and their friends on Tuesday, March 4.

Owing to the fact that Mr. Searles' reply to the invitation was not received until recently the membership meetings committee could not arrange a program for a February meeting.

MANY PLAYER TRADES EXPECTED AT MEETING OF NATIONAL OWNERS TODAY

New York, Feb. 11.—Several player deals among National league clubs were in prospect tonight as club owners gathered for the annual mid-winter meeting to be held tomorrow.

Two magnates—William F. Baker of Philadelphia, and Charles H. Ebbets of Brooklyn—interrupted vacations in Florida to attend the session with the declared intention of seeking to strengthen their line-ups for the 1924 campaign.

Ebbets, it was said, may re-open negotiations with Pittsburgh for Rabbit Maranville, veteran shortstop, although this proposed deal may be held up because of the absence of Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburgh magnate, who is a Baker, who was accompanied by the manager, Arthur Fletcher, said he was in the market particularly for pitching strength.

Boston and St. Louis may complete negotiations for a trade begun here recently when the Braves startled baseball followers by joining bidders for Rogers Hornsby, famous Cardinal second-sacker. Hornsby, it is understood, will not be traded to the Braves or any other club, but it was reported that Pfeffer, Card pitcher, may figure in a deal which would send Earl Smith, Boston catcher, to St. Louis.

Besides ratifying the 1924 schedule tomorrow, the league is expected to consider abolishing the bonus written into baseball contracts for playing excellence or for games won by pitchers; a plan to have baseball writers select each club's most valuable player; and a move to limit the number of coaches any team may have. The 1924 umpire staff also will be announced by President John A. Heydler.

NEW YORK CLUBS GETTING BUSY FOR COMING SEASON

New York, Feb. 11.—All three metropolitan major league baseball clubs displayed evidence of pre-season activity today, the world's champion Yankees going so far as to announce they had selected a line-up for the first exhibition game in the south.

Babe Ruth will depart tomorrow for Hot Springs, Ark., to undergo a few weeks of conditioning prior to reporting March 5 at the New Orleans training camp of the Hugmen. Fred Hoffman, catcher, sent in his signed contract and announced he would join the Babe at the Arkansas resort in a few days.

The Yankees also announced the release of Elbert Johnson, pitcher, to the Des Moines club of the Western league, under optional agreement, while the Giants disclose that two more pitching recruits have signed, Earl Webb, former Memphis twirler who spent part of last season at Pittsfield, Mass., and Joe Bradshaw, obtained from Toledo. Hugh McQuillan, veteran moundsman, will leave this week for the McGraw training camp at Sarasota, Fla., where South Paw Jack Bentley already is at work.

The Yankee line-up which will face the New Orleans Southern association nine at New Orleans in the first exhibition game on March 9 is composed chiefly of recruits, Ruth being the only regular listed. Earl Combs, high-priced Louisville recruit, is listed as an alternate in center field with Whitey Wainer.

The first Brooklyn holdout among the club's veterans is Burleigh Grimes, it was revealed by President C. H. Ebbets, who said all but seven players had signed 1924 contracts. Dutch Ruether and Dazzy, pitching stars, are now at the Dodger training camp, Clearwater, Fla.

DONAHUE FAVORS BOUT BETWEEN WILLS AND FIRPO

Hartford, Feb. 11.—Lew Raymond, matchmaker of the mysterious syndicate behind the Firpo-Wills fight, scheduled for "somewhere in Connecticut" July 19, is likely to meet considerable difficulty in producing the bout in this state.

Raymond has not yet applied for a Connecticut license and there is a ruling in the state rules governing the sport that prevents "outside" promoters from coming into Connecticut to promote fistic bouts.

Five of the three members of the board tonight declared their opposition to mixed bouts. Chairman Moses Ellis and Commissioner Frank J. Murphy do not favor such bouts while Commissioner Thomas Donahue was the lone member to look with favor on the mixed affair.

The state board officially knows nothing of the proposed bout.

INTERNATIONAL STILL REFUSES TO ADOPT DRAFT RULES

New York, Feb. 11.—The International league, sole remaining stronghold of anti-draft sentiments in the majors, will not capitulate to major league demands by accepting a modified form of the selective player system, it was revealed by club owners after a protracted mid-winter meeting today.

John Conway Toole, president of the league, declared the draft issue, a source of particular agitation within the league since the American association and Pacific Coast circuits accepted it in modified form, was not actually considered today, but it was learned authoritatively that the session developed a line-up of six clubs against the draft to two in favor of it.

Toronto and Syracuse were understood to be the only supporters of the move to restore the selective plan, which may be definitely acted upon tomorrow. Opposition to the draft was said to have been led by Jack Dunn, of the Baltimore Orioles and Mr. Toole.

Most of today's meeting was occupied with the affairs of the Newark club, to which a franchise was granted after a reorganization of the syndicate which recently came into control of the outfit, and to consideration of changes in the league constitutions.

Details behind the latest shake-up in the Newark organization were not revealed but under it Corbett McCarthy withdrew from the syndicate which bought out Baltimore interests, his place as vice president being taken by Charles W. (Buck) Herzog, former major league star and newly appointed manager of the New Jersey club. Herzog was understood to have been given a substantial block of stock in the syndicate, amounting, according to one report, to $50,000.

Michael McTighe, who has figured prominently in the syndicate's dealings, retains the presidency of the organization and also owns a controlling stock interest. Milton A. Crowley also remains as secretary.

Player dickering figured prominently in lobby discussions but few deals reached a definite stage. The Reading club's bid for Fred Brainard, Newark infielder, was understood to have been favorably received, while Syracuse practically closed negotiations to obtain Walter Keating, infielder of the Bridgeport, Conn., club of the Eastern league.

RICHARDS ADVANCES TO FINALS AT INDOOR MEET

New York, Feb. 11.—Vincent Richards, youthful Yonkers star, today advanced to the finals in both singles and doubles of the men's invitation indoor tennis tournament at the Heights Casino.

Richards eliminated Harold Throckmorton, metropolitan veteran, 6-4, 6-4, in a keenly fought semi-final contest in which the victor's brilliant volleying proved the deciding factor. Richards will oppose Dean Mathey of New York, tomorrow, in the final round.

Richards and Throckmorton advanced to the final doubles round by default of Frank T. Anderson, Brooklyn, and Arnold Jones, Providence, R. I. They will meet the veterans, Mathey and Karl Behr, in the final match tomorrow.

250 OARSMEN RESPOND FOR HARVARD CREW

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 11.—Harvard crew candidates to the number of 250 of whom 104 were freshmen, responded to the first call for oarsmen here today. Head Coach Edward Stevens, told the men that emphasis would be placed on the recovery and the drive, saying that he wanted speed more than form.

Fundamentals worked out on the indoor machines. Coach Stevens said, would occupy the time until there was open water on the Charles river. For the present 80 men will constitute the varsity squad. In the spring that group will be cut to two eights, according to the plans announced.

ARMY-NAVY AND PLAINFIELD SERIES STARTS WEDNESDAY

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

The Portland Club of the Pacific Coast League announces the signing of Gordon Cochran, captain of the Boston University baseball team.

Honors came to Orval Overall, ex-time pitcher of the Chicago Cubs. He has just been elected president of the town golf club at his home in Visalia, Cal.

Chester (Red) Torkelson has made another start. The former New Orleans pitcher and manager of the Hattiesburg team of the Cotton States League has signed to play with the Chattanooga team.

Talk in International League circles is that Jack Dunn of Baltimore looks with favor on Lew Malone as successor to Max Bishop. Malone came back to baseball last year and played good ball with Hartford.

Among names mentioned in connection with the management of the Toledo team under the new control have been those of James T. Burke, who is no stranger in the Association, Mike Deasle and John Lobert.

Moline, shifting from the Three-I League to the Mississippi Valley League, will not change managers. James Shollenberger, who handled the Plow Boys at the end of the 1923 season, will be retained to lead the new team in new company.

The sale by Galveston of Hack Erbel to the Denver Club is the second time such a deal has been made. Erbie was sold to Denver last spring, but refused to report, so the deal was cancelled. He has changed his mind about it now, so it seems.

Richard Cullen, an infield tryout signed by the Louisville Club, once was a peanut boy in the Louisville ball park. He grew up, went into the navy, became quite famous as a ball player, and now returns to get a trial with the old home town team.

Earl (Red) Shapp has deserted both Paris and Artmore and enlisted with the Okmulgee Club of the Western Association, in which he will play a part interest and act as business manager and advisor to Troy Agnew, who is the team leader and field captain.

President Doc Seabough of the Western Association announces the signing of two more umpires—Mike Jacobs and Jack Wilkerson, both veterans. That means a couple of those signed earlier for the Western Association staff will draw release before they even start.

The Texas League has made it pretty postive that hereafter no club will attempt to ship out a player without first asking waivers, by imposing a penalty of $1,500 on any club releasing a player to a club of equal or lower classification before waivers have been obtained.

The Detroit Tigers have still another pitcher. He is Tom Blake, a husky youngster who has made a reputation in independent baseball around his home town in St. Louis. He is reputed to have won 20 of the 21 games he pitched last year in fast company on the St. Louis lots.

The St. Louis Cardinals last week announced the release of Pitcher Lee Sell to New Orleans, under option of recall. Sell has been more or less under the Cardinals' wing for several years and this will be about the last year he can be sent out under option, if the rules are observed.

It develops that those principally interested with Jack O'Hara in the purchase of the Bridgeport Club of the Eastern League are T. J. Sullivan, a coal dealer, and Raymond King, an attorney, both of Springfield. They are financial backers, while O'Hara will be in active control of affairs.

Considering the fact that Outfielder Clarence (Tillie) Walker asked a $5,000 bonus from at least one Class AA club for signing a contract, one might wonder how the Minneapolis Club induced him to sign without violating the minor league rule that no bonus of any kind shall be paid a ball player.

George Sisler, manager of the St. Louis Browns, sojourning in California for the winter, has picked up a couple of prospects he thinks may be worth while, and has signed them for trials at Mobile in the spring. They are Hillard Tyrell, a catcher, and Ed Cutting, a first baseman. Sisler already has made a deal for another catcher from the Coast, Tony Rego, who predicts that he himself will do the first batting for the Browns the coming season, but understudies always are in order and you never can tell.

Otto Miller, veteran catcher, for many years with Brooklyn and last year manager of the Atlantic team, has signed to play with Indianapolis. Miller had hoped to land another berth as a minor league manager, or perhaps catch on with Brooklyn again as a coach, but the offers did not come to him, so he took that made him by the Indianapolis Club.

It develops that the Philadelphia Nationals had a deal on for Pitcher George Lyons with Los Angeles, but could not deliver the players wanted, so the deal was made that sends Lyons to the St. Louis Browns. The Phils wanted Lyons and outfielder Wally Hood and offered six players in exchange, but the Los Angeles Club could not see the deal as Art Fletcher would make it.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE WILL VOTE ON PADDOCK'S REINSTATEMENT THIS WEEK

Boston, Feb. 11.—The special committee of the Amateur Athletic union named to consider the case of Charles Paddock, California sprinter, suspended last year by the union, will take a telegraphic vote this week on the runner's reinstatement, President William C. Prout of the A. A. U. announced tonight, after a conference with Paddock. The Californian in a formal statement referred to the A. A. U. president as a "fair and just man."

"I hope Paddock will be qualified to compete at Paris this year with the American Olympic team," Mr. Prout said in his announcement.

The members of the special committee in addition to President Prout, who is chairman, are Robert S. Weaver, Los Angeles; Samuel Goodman, San Francisco; Verne Lacey, St. Louis, and Fred W. Rubien, New York.

"I cannot speak for the committee, but personally I sincerely trust that we will be able to count on Paddock as a member of the American Olympic team, and if the committee accepts his explanations I am sure he would do credit to America both on and off the cinder path," President Prout said.

"During Paddock's visit to Boston yesterday and today I have spent a great deal of time with him considering the various phases of his standing as an athlete as far as the rules of the Amateur Athletic union are concerned. I am glad to say that I feel that he has lived up to all the fine things his friends on the west coast have been saying about him.

"I think he has been actuated by honest motives in what he has done, but I am also convinced that he has been unwittingly used by persons for their own ulterior purposes. There are several matters which the A. A. U. committee will have to consider, some purely technical and others which upon further investigation may be cleared up. If Paddock is not available to represent America in the next Olympic games it will be very much regretted by all who have the success of the American team at heart, but of course the matter will be decided on its merits."

Paddock in his statement said:

"The A. A. U. feels that I have as an individual publicly attacked the officials and some of the athletes of the A. A. U. I cannot state too positively that this has certainly not been my intention. I believe that the A. A. U. has accomplished a great deal of good through the many years it has governed and fostered amateur sports in this country and I sincerely trust that it will continue its splendid work. I do not think that the A. A. U. athletes feel that I have cast reflections on them as I have always regarded them and still regard them as splendid representatives of American citizenship. President Prout is undoubtedly a fair and just man and my recent contact with him has convinced me.

"Mr. Prout, I understand, is the chairman of the committee appointed by the A. A. U. to consider my athletic status and I feel sure that the matter will be settled without prejudice, for all of us are working for the success of the American Olympic team and the welfare of amateur competition. On the recommendation of President Palmer E. Pierce of the N. C. A. A., I have applied to the A. A. U. for reinstatement so that if the A. A. U. takes favorable action on my application, I would be in a position to try out for the Olympic team."

WHY STAY FAT? YOU CAN REDUCE

The answer to most fat people is that they don't know how. Fruitcakes and tea sweeteners in the form of the weight down Marmola Prescription Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are absolutely harmless, built on scientific principles and have been tested by millions of cheerful users. A box is sold at one dollar by all druggists the world over, or send the price direct to the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this you have no excuse for being fat, but can reduce steadily and easily without going through long stages of tiresome exercise and starvation diet or fear of bad effects.

MAKES AWARD ON PAYING MEDICAL BILLS

After a hearing upon the medical, surgical and hospital bills in the workman's compensation claim of Samuel Jaffe of New London vs. Fournier Laundry Co., of that city, Commissioner J. J. Donohue has ruled that the company insuring the laundry concern, shall at once pay $147 to the United Israel Zion hospital of Brooklyn, N. Y., $83.50 to St. Luke's hospital, N. Y., $75 to Dr. Miller of Brooklyn and also $370.50 which includes $462 compensation for 24 weeks total incapacity $96.50 for bills from several doctors and for crutches and brace and $42 to reimburse Jaffe for a payment he had made to the hospital. This award constitutes a final settlement of the case.

EIGHT MORE ECLECTIC PHYSICIANS APPEAL

Hartford, Feb. 11—Eight more eclectic physicians whose licenses to practice medicine and surgery in Connecticut have been revoked upon recommendation of the Holden grand jury, investigating medical frauds in Connecticut, have appealed to superior court against the order of the health council revoking the licenses. In all cases, notices of appeal were served on Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, commissioner of health, during the last week end.

The men are as follows:

John R. Brinkley, of Topeka, Kansas, whose license was revoked December 4, 1923. Dr. Binkley's appeal, taken by Day, Berry and Reynolds of Hartford, is in question as he has been in China for some time, returning this month. Under the law he was given thirty days from the day of revocation in which to file an appeal. It is possible Attorney General Healy will enter a plea in abatement to have the case thrown out of court.

William A. Roody, of New Britain, whose license was revoked January 13 and who appealed February 8. He is represented by Edward J. McManus, of Bridgeport who already has other appeal cases.

Harry N. Carr, of Suffield, whose license was revoked February 1, and who appealed February 8. He is represented by Day, Berry and Reynolds of Hartford.

Anthony S. Pendola, of Holyoke, Mass., whose license was revoked on February 1 and who appealed February 6. He is represented by Day, Berry and Reynolds of Hartford.

Simeon Cohen of Meriden whose license was revoked February 1 and who appealed February 6. He is represented by Samuel E. Hoyt, of New Haven.

Samuel J. Turcotte, of Willimantic whose license was revoked February 1 and who appealed February 9. He is represented by John Buckley and William M. Harney, of Hartford.

FOUND SUFFERING CAT THAT BOYS ILL-TREATED

While investigating cases in the interests of the Connecticut Humane society, Frederic H. Wyant, the newly appointed district agent, in response to a telephone call Saturday about noon, found a cat in an exhausted condition and soaked to the hide, near the corner of Boswell avenue and Franklin street.

A local citizen having learned that several boys had put the cat in one of the city's catch basins, after extricating the cat reported the case to District Agent Wyant who took the cat and humanely destroyed it.

Another thing that happens all to frequently with a certain class of people is the abandonment of cats, when moving out of town, or from one place to another.

Oftentimes animals are struck by an automobile, sometimes at the carelessness of the driver, more times possibly when perhaps such is unavoidable; however all accidents should be reported and if an animal is injured and in a suffering condition it should not be left without rendering all possible aid.

Many people are unaware of the fact that such acts of cruelty are against the law and subject the offenders to prosecution.

PLAN EXPANSION OF HAMMONASSET PARK

Hartford, Feb. 11—Plans of the state park and forest commission to acquire approximately 400 acres of land to the east of Hammonasset Park, making Hammonasset beach 3 miles long, probably longer than any other public beach in New England save Nantasket, were revealed today. Purchase of adjoining property have already begun and ten acres have been added to date by the acquisition of several odd beach front lots upon which private cottages were to have been erected the coming spring.

Negotiations for further additions are now underway but the main part of the project depends upon a proposed appropriation for the purpose which is to be sought in the next session of the legislature. The completion of the plan will increase the acreage of the park from 550 acres to about 1,000 acres. The amount of the appropriation to be asked has not been determined, but will probably be incorporated in the commissioner's biennial report.

At a meeting of the commission to be held tomorrow, it is expected that consideration will be given to a proposal of the New Haven and Shore Line railway company, made through its president, W. Scott Eames, that the state build a spur track from the beach in Hammonasset park to a connection with the main line of the railway, to make its facilities available to more people without motor vehicles.

ON TRAIL OF MURDERERS OF LOUISE LAWSON

New York, Feb. 11—Detectives are seeking the murderers of Louise Lawson, the music student slain in her apartment last Friday tonight were working on two definite theories.

One was that the murderers were among the host of bootleggers believed by the police to have delivered liquor to the girl; the other theory was that a well known "lounge lizard" who pretended to be a physician and lolled about Times Square, was one of the slayers. His photograph was identified in the rogue's gallery by Thomas Kane, elevator boy, who unwittingly took the murderers to Miss Lawson's apartment.

"Get every bootlegger who has done business with Louise Lawson within the last year," headquarters ordered.

Police was informed that much liquor was delivered to Miss Lawson and they believed she obtained much of it for her friends. They said she was supplied with champagne and whiskey by some of the rum merchants who deal with cabarets in the white light district.

Letters from men friends in Chicago and San Francisco to Miss Lawson were found by the police but beyond saying they would be studied carefully they attached little importance to them. The names of the writers were not revealed, although it was learned that the San Francisco writer resided on Sacramento street there.

American Divorcee in France

Paris, Feb. 11—As a result of the comments on the brevity of the proceedings by which Mrs. Frances Rugat McAdoo was granted a divorce from her husband, son of the former American secretary of the treasury, in November last and the prominence given the whole question of American divorces in France, Premier Poincare has written a personal note to the public prosecutor saying it is regrettable that greater attention has not been paid his first note on this subject in October last.

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 11—John Taylor, of Colchester, John Ty Tupper of Goshen avenue, Miss Esther Brown, of Baker street, Mrs. Florence Lake and infant son, of Maple avenue, Mrs. William Homan, Howard street, Miss Mary Rakinoff, Montauk avenue, Clifford Winters, Waterford, Mrs. William Gianke, North Bank street, Master Arthur Jutea, Federal street and Mrs. Anna Fogarty, of Jay Street, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital were discharged today.

The funeral of Frank P. Potter, formerly of New London, whose death occurred in Brooklyn, N. Y., last week, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at 33 Shapley street. The services being conducted by Rev. J. Hamond Dalgarn, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Raymond Bailey of Truman street, is spending a few days with her parents in Bristol, Conn.

The funeral of Miss Mary E. Connor, whose sudden death occurred Friday night at the home of her sister, Mrs. Catherine Sugrue, of 28 Starr street, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A mass of requiem was sung by Rev. John J. McGrath. The bearers were James R. May, Christopher J. Collins, Thomas Moles, William T. May and William A. Murray. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Margaret Mary Winthrop, 85, widow of Benjamin M. Carroll, died Saturday night at her home, 941 Bank street, death ending an illness of about three weeks' duration of infirmities attending advanced years. She was born on Fishers' Island a daughter of the late William and Mary Winthrop and was a descendant of John Winthrop, founder of the city of New London. She was a charter member of the Woman's Relief Corps and a member of the Second Congregational church. Mrs. Carroll is survived by a son, Charles M. Carroll and a daughter, Mrs. John H. Lake, both of New London and by three sisters, Mrs. Belle Beebe of New London, Mrs. Edward A. Colby of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Mary P. Smith of Westport. Two brothers, Henry Winthrop of New London and Frederick Winthrop of East Lyme, also survive.

Mrs. John C. Ellis of 23 Sheeman street complained to the police this noon that a thief had operated in her home either Sunday night or early this morning and that two of her lodgers had lost a part of their belongings. Sergeants Frank Howard and Nelson Smith investigated, finding that one of the lodgers, Herman Appledorn had lost a gold watch, Waltham movement, attached to it was a gold Scottish rope chain and another lodger, Joseph E. Bliven had lost a light tan overcoat. Mrs. Ellis suspected John Thomas Ryan as the thief, as Ryan had been a lodger in the house, but disappeared this morning. Ryan had stated that he was a deserter from the United States marines stating that he had communicated with the war department at Washington that he was in New London and that he intended to deliver himself to a military reservation. Inquiry at the United States Coast Guard brought the information that Ryan was stationed there at one time, but that he deserted and the military authorities were anxious to get him. Ryan is known to have been in the city a number of days, but the police had no knowledge that he was a deserter and was wanted by the government until the revealing of the theft this noon.

Miss Madeline Heath is in Boston, where she will enter a hospital for the treatment of a malady from which she has been a sufferer.

Dr. James R. Linsley of the Thames Club apartments is in Washington for a several days' visit with his son.

Miss Frederica Hunt of Chicago, a former resident of New London is being entertained by Miss Madeline Ely Freeman, sister of Congressman Richard P. Freeman, at her home on Williams street.

The police cleaned up a nest of law violators Saturday afternoon, when they raided the residence of Mamie Marine, at 10 Shaw street and the home of John Henry Quinn, in the Palalabba building, Bank street. The latter building has at intervals yielded up money at the police court for liquor law violations, but it didn't serve that purpose this morning when the gangs arrested were presented in the police court. Mamie was fined $25 and she managed to scrape that money together, with the costs of her trial. Quinn was an object of pity when he appeared to testify in the court. He is paralyzed because of an ailment of the spine and he was of necessity assisted to the witness stand. He had been preceded by Joe Phillips, whose mother is the wife of Quinn, though Phillips antedates in age his stepfather. Phillips declared when he testified that Quinn had been selling liquor to those who visited his place. Phillips said he knew this and that he had seen the liquor sold. Phillips is an habitue of the Learned Mission and does not possess the intelligence that a man needs in these days to keep going in a way that brings any degree of success. Quinn denied what Phillips had said and declared that Phillips was not a person mentally competent to know what anyone does, especially to realize what was done at the home of his mother. Quinn disclosed that the city was aiding him and his wife and mother to the extent of $4 a week. He did not disclose what other support he received, though it was apparent to anyone that $4 a week would hardly supply the coal that was used. Food and clothing and other necessary expenses went far beyond $4 a week. But the prosecutor did not pursue the testimony of Quinn further. Mr. Cronin said Quinn was an object of pity and intimated that the money he made was not of great amount anyhow. He asked and the court allowed continuance of the case for six weeks or to the 30th of June that Probation Officer Mansfield may ascertain just what is going on in the Quinn home.

In the Marine house a jolly party of boozers had assembled and they made so much noise that they could be heard in the street that the police were attracted there. They found among the bunch Leone Stein and he appeared to be the "angel" who was furnishing the money and the stuff to drink. He was inclined to be independent when he was arraigned and talked so much while he was being prosecuted that his case could not be heard and he was locked up, to await appearance tomorrow. A bond of $50 was fixed to hold him. Stein and his friends had a great time at the Marine house, one of them said. When Stein has had the medicine the court will administer to him he will realize that there is a prohibition law and that he must conform to it.

Allan J. Morris of 105 Howard St., was fined $3 for operating an automobile without possessing a license to do so. He said he supposed he had a license until he was stopped by an officer of the motor vehicle department and then realized that he had lost the necessary document.

Donald Chapman of Hartford has to answer to a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He has been in court twice already but he has not been presented. He is represented by Attorney Peck of Hartford and that lawyer is away from home this week.

Mrs. Nancy Darby, mother of Mrs. John T. Gray wife of Lieut. Commander Gray is dead and was buried today in Boston. She had been visiting in Boston a few weeks. Commander Gray is stationed at New London.

The case of Raymond Pinsky of Old Mystic, charged with violation of the automobile law in operating his automobile Saturday in a reckless manner was continued one week, at the request of the accused who desired to obtain witness to testify that he operated his machine in a careful manner and is not guilty of the charge against him.

Frank S. Shea of Connecticut avenue, formerly employed as a clerk by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad in this city and who was recently admitted to the Connecticut bar, last week passed the bar examination for the district of Columbia.

Trolley cars of the Groton-Stonington Traction Company made their last trips between New London and East Lyme tonight and with the last trips ended, the cars were taken to the Stonington barn where they will be stored awaiting future service. The only service hereafter between New London and East Lyme now will be by bus.

Assessor Frederick C. Burrows, who has been ill at his home on Darrow street for a week, today resumed his duties at the municipal building.

For a long time desk sergeants at the police station have been annoyed because of the practice of residents in calling by telephone to ascertain the time. In most instances the calls are made by women. Of late the practice has increased until it has become such as to interfere with the duties of the officers at times. The first of the long series starts between 5 and 6 o'clock and does not end until between 9 and 10 o'clock. In many instances the call is received from the same person every night in the week and practically at the same time each evening. If the practice continues it is likely to cause an order to be issued to refuse to give time to callers. This prohibitive order was put into effect several years ago but the Southern New England Telephone Company because of the frequent calls received at the exchange for the correct time.

Mrs. Nancy H. Darby, formerly of Baltimore, Md., died Friday, the 8th inst., at the home of her sons-in-law and daughter, Lieut. Com. and Mrs. J. P. Gray, former residents of New London, who removed to Boston two months ago. Mrs. Darby had been ill but a few days with pneumonia. The funeral took place this afternoon in Boston.

As a precaution against the city being made the defendant in additional suits for damages by reason of pedestrians falling on slippery sidewalks, the highway department last night and again today caused a force of laborers to be assigned to work sprinkling sand upon such walks as were coated with ice from Sunday's storm. The business section was taken care of last night and today the streets adjacent to the principal thoroughfares and in the outlying district claimed the attention of the workmen. The city is made the defendant each year in actions for damages because of walkers falling and being injured on ice-coated sidewalks and only a week ago was made defendant in two such actions, involving aggregate damages of $15,000.

Complaint was made at the police headquarters late this afternoon because of the practice of youths in throwing snow balls while returning from school. Particular complaint was voiced from officials of the Young Women's Christian Association who objected to the boys using the association's windows as a target for the missiles.

Mortimer Conley of 115 Howard street, employed by the Robert Gair Company at Montville, was arrested at his home this evening by Sergeant Charles Hammond and Patrolman John Clifford at the request of the Norwich police, who hold a warrant for Conley's arrest on a charge of obtaining money under misrepresentation. Conley was locked up in the police station, but later was taken to Norwich by Sergeant P. T. Murphy and Patrolman Domkoski who came to this city in the police patrol. Conley is well known in New London having been employed by the Connecticut company at one time and later on by automobile service stations. He is married and has two children.

A HERO'S WELCOME WAS ACCORDED C. H. GRIFFIS

New York, Feb. 11.—Fresh from a German prison where he landed after an unsuccessful attempt to bring Grover Cleveland Bergdoll to America for trial as a draft evader, C. Hooven Griffis arrived on the United American liner Albert Ballin today and was accorded a hero's welcome.

The city's official welcoming tug, The Macon, went down the bay to meet the Ballin and take Griffis to the Battery, whence he was to have been transported to the city hall to be greeted by Acting-Mayor Collins and given the freedom of the metropolis.

Aboard the Macon were the ex-prisoner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Griffis of Hamilton, Ohio; heads of the national committee to effect the release of Lieutenant Griffis, officers of several war veterans' associations; Mayor Hylan's committee for the reception of notables; a bodyguard of war veterans; several high police officials; the police department band and glee club and a half dozen newspaper and movie men.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, Feb. 11.—Sandwiched in between two holidays, today's stock market failed to develop a definite price trend. There was a fair accumulation of buying orders at the opening, based on the unexpectedly favorable showing of the January unfilled tonnage statement of the United States Steel corporation, but when these were disposed of the market lapsed into dullness and irregularity which continued for the rest of the day.

The widest price fluctuations took place in a selected list of specialties. Commercial Solvents A and B pumped 3 and 10½ points, respectively, on reports of increased business and an early resumption of dividends on the B stock. Fisher Body climbed 7 points to 186¾. National Enameling broke more than six points to 32½ on unconfirmed rumors that $4 dividend was in danger, and then rallied 2 points from its low.

U. S. Steel common sold as high as 108¾ but dropped back more than a point from the top and closed at a net loss of ⅝ on the day. Baldwin and American Can each gained a point, closing at 125½ and 119¾ respectively. Independent steels showed moderate strength in the early trading but lost most or all of their gains before the close.

Some good buying took place in the motors on speculative expectation that February production figures would show an increase of forty per cent. over those for the same month last year, the same increase shown by the January figures. While Motors touched a new top at 59⅞ on publication of preliminary 1923 earnings showing about $14.80 earned on the capital stock.

Trading in the oil shares was still under restraint owing to speculative fear that other disquieting developments are likely to result from the senate oil lease investigation. The Pan-American issues lost about a point each and a number of the other active issues yielded fractionally. Atlantic Refining, however, advanced three points.

Leather shares again came in for considerable attention, American Hide and Leather preferred climbing 3½ points to 65, a new high for the year, and 15 points above the recent low. Central Leather preferred advanced 1¼. Copper shares failed to make any response to the statement that January shipments of the red metal foreign and domestic, by North and South American producers totalled 215,000,000 pounds, the second highest on record.

Rails held relatively firm. Wabash preferred A moved up nearly a point on the prediction of the chairman of the board that unless there was a marked change in business conditions, the net earnings that year would total $6 a share on the common. Lehigh Valley, Canadian Pacific, New Haven, "Nickel Plate," Texas and Pacific, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, and Delaware and Hudson each gained a point or more.

Foreign exchanges ruled sightly lower because of uneasiness over the opening of the British parliament and the threatened dock workers' strike. Demand sterling again dropped below $4.80 for a loss of more than a cent over the week end and French francs sold about five points lower at 4.55 cents. The Chinese silver and South American exchanges were strong.

Call money ruled at 4¼ per cent throughout the session. The time money market was quiet with quotations ruling at 4½ and 4¾ per cent, depending upon maturity.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Feb. 11.—Considerable irregularity developed in today's curb market but except in the oil shares in which gains and losses were about evenly divided, the majority of active issues pointed upward.

Heaviness of Prairie Oil and Gas, which broke nearly five points and then recovered about half its loss, had a depressing effect on a number of the other oil shares. Standard Oil of Indiana, Vacuum, Magnolia and Penn-Mex Fuel each lost about a point. Gains of one to four points were recorded, however, by Standard Oils of Kentucky and Nebraska, Cities Service and Chesebrough Manufacturing, while Swan and Finch jumped 14 points. Latin-American Oil touched a new high.

Candy products was the most active feature of the industrial list, touching a new top at 2⅜ on the announcement of the purchase of the Chase Candy company. Dubilier Radio also hit a new top at 21¾. Gillette Safety Razor broke 4 points on a small turnover. Lehigh Valley Coal eights improved fractionally.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Feb. 11.—Bond prices hesitated today in a quiet pre-holiday market. Aside from activity in Japanese government issues, which were eagerly sought on the eve of offering the new Japanese loan, and in a few of the speculative railroad liens, trading interest was at a low ebb.

U. S. government and treasury bonds were moderately active and firm, but fractional recessions were general in other sections of the stock exchange list. Bond traders, however, reported a good demand for popular public utility issues in outside trading. New York Railway liens, considered likely to benefit by the revised reorganization plan, were in demand at higher prices.

On the expectation that holders of present Japanese bonds would be given an opportunity to exchange their securities for those of the new issue, numerous buyers for the second 4½s and the second 4s were found. Prices advanced briskly. Other foreign issues were quiet, with French municipal losing ground.

Among the other bonds which gained were the New Haven convertible sixes, Chicago and Alton 3½s, Western Pacific 5s and Seaboard adjustment 5s, but fractional losses were the rule throughout most of the list. Independent steel mortgages were higher on favorable trade reports.

No new bond offering were made today, their absence being attributed to the approaching holiday and coming sale of the Japanese loan.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Feb. 11. — After touching new high price records for the season, the wheat market today fell back as a result of profit taking sales and in sympathy with weakness of corn values. The wheat upturn was largely due to an unexpected advance at Liverpool tending to confirm need of liberal fresh supplies abroad. Wheat closed unsettled ⅛ @ ¼ to ⅝ @ ¾c net lower; May and July both $1.11⅝ to $1.11¾, with corn ⅛ @ ⅝ to ¾c down, oats at ¼ @ ⅝ to ⅝ close, and provisions ranging from five cents decline to a gain of 2 cents.

It was regarded as significant that foreign wheat markets should be strong in the face of huge world's shipments 21,275,000 bushels and netting an increase of 7,480,000 bushels in the amount of wheat on ocean passage. A consequent rush to buy which took place here was also encouraged on account of correct opinions that the domestic visible supply would show a decrease today. There was gossip current, too, about prospects of bullish legislature developments at Washington. Selling on the advance, however, proved of greater volume than the wheat market could readily withstand in view of opposite action of corn.

Much selling on the part of a house that has been closely identified with the bull side of the corn market, had a good deal to do with the downward swing of the future deliveries of cereal. Besides, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha reported liberal receipts. On the other hand, arrivals here and country offerings as well were light. Moreover, export orders here were close to a working basis. Oats followed corn.

In the provision market demands from cash interests brought about a rally from declines associated lower quotations on hogs.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

There was a marked decrease in the number of permits issued during the past week at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton, only one permit being issued. This is normally the slack season for building in Norwich and records up to the present time average well and above the normal for the winter months. This condition is true practically throughout the state. The prospects for a record building year are bright, according to local contractors who report large amounts of work ahead which will be started within a short time. The largest project in this part of the state for the coming year so far reported is at the Norwich State Hospital where three buildings are to be erected. The contract has been let to the H. Wales Lines company of Meriden and work will be started as soon as possible.

Those projects on which local contractors have been working this winter have been brought along with commendable progress during the past week. Several of the dwelling houses being built in Norwich are practically at the completion stage. These include the two houses on Broadway and the houses for B. Krieger on the old Blackstone property at the corner of Washington street and Yantic street.

The one building permit issued by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton is to Gustave E. Lambert, giving him permission to erect a frame shed to be used for the storage of coal. The shed is to be located on Barnes street near the tannery in Greeneville. The shed will be 25 by 25 feet and will be of frame construction with a composition shingle roof.

NEW LONDON

The dwelling on the site of the proposed building to be erected on Bank street for the C. H. Klinck estate is being demolished, and it is planned to start building operations in the spring. The building will be 64x75 feet, three stories high, of brick, fireproof construction, with artificial stone trim. It will be arranged for four stores on the ground floor and the upper floors will be arranged for business purposes.

Plans and specifications are being prepared for a three-story garage to be erected for Joseph Birenbaum, at 96 Green street. The building will be 36x70 feet, of brick and steel, fireproof construction. There will be steel sash and concrete floors. The building will be heated by steam, probably using an oil burning plant. There will be lavatories on all floors and other improvements.

The contract for the erection of a cottage for Theodore Bodenwein, on Vauxhall street has been awarded. The house will be 26x28 feet, arranged for six rooms, and will have steam heat and other conveniences. The estimated cost is $4,000.

Applications for Building Permits

James P. Sullivan, dwelling, Hillside avenue, $30,000.

Colonial & Dixie Filling Stations, Inc., gasoline station, Pequot avenue, $6,000.

F. L. McGuire, alterations, Elliot avenue, $300.

Theodore Bodenwein, dwelling, Vauxhall street, $4,000.

George D. Packer, garage, 26 Perry street, $600.

Number of permits issued for the week, 6; estimated cost of buildings, $41,050.

DANIELSON

The Pace Mfg. Co. is considering the erection of an addition to its plant in this place. It is proposed to build a one-story addition, of brick, 19x53 feet, mill construction, with concrete foundation.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were 13 sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week, an increase of 11 sales over the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans were $27,800 and $123,850 for the respective weeks.

In New London during the past week there were 10 sales of real estate as compared to 6 sales for the corresponding week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $44,350 and $18,500.

The State Building Situation

The past week has brought to light very little new in the building line, even if there seems to be a lot of work that is not yet ready to report. Notwithstanding the fact that new ways are constantly developing to provide for a safe continuation of building during the cold weather, there is still a noticeable amount of timidity when it comes to starting building operations in the face of uncertain weather. A total of 167 permits is reported for the week, for buildings costing $860,495, whereas in the first week of February, 1923, there were only 59 permits, the buildings costing $183,315, and 60 in 1922, the buildings costing $168,015.

MYSTIC

David Leeds Gallup, 81, died suddenly Saturday at his home in New York city. His funeral was held on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. B. Noyes, on Willow street, Mystic, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. Mystic loses in him not merely an annual summer resident, but a loyal son of whom she was proud.

Born in Mystic on Dec. 17, 1842, the son of Edwin R. and Eliza Leeds Gallup, he lived the early part of his life here and when a young man taught school for some time, later going to Boston, thence to Chicago and finally to New York, where he was connected with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway company for many years, and was at the time of his death comptroller of that road. He married Fannie Noyes, daughter of Nathan S. and Nancy Denison Noyes, and is survived by two daughters, Mrs. George S. Scott and Miss Agnes L. Gallup, and a grandson, David Gallup Scott, all of New York.

By his successful life in the world of affairs, Mr. Gallup made not only a name for himself, but brought honor to his native village. While his business kept him in New York most of the year, he spent about two months here each summer, was keenly interested in all that pertained to the welfare of the village, and was a lover of all the natural beauties of Mystic and the surrounding country. He was a benevolent and kindly man and his friendly interest in those he knew made for him a host of friends by whom he will be greatly missed.

Miss Frances Noyes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Noyes, had a party Saturday afternoon to which eleven of her young friends were invited. Various interesting games were played, including a cherry tree contest, pillow game and cuckoo game. Miss Helen Barber won the prize in the pillow game and Hylana Richmond was the successful contestant in the cherry tree game. The table decorations were in red and white and the favors were fancy caps. A Jack Horner pie was another pleasing feature and from it each child received a gift. Refreshments were served as the crowning feature of a very delightful party. Those present were: Lois Kinney, Doris Gleason, Kenneth Newbury, Hylana T. Richmond, Helen Hass, Esther Barraclough, Ruth Sellis, Helen and Robert Barber and Elsie Bruncke.

Everyone wants to see the flag kept flying.

The Missionary society of the Baptist church is to meet this week with Mrs. Elmer C. Hall, at her home on Cove avenue.

The boys of the Congregational church held a successful cake sale in the parish house Saturday afternoon.

Today, a legal holiday, the bank will be closed. It is not, however, a post office holiday.

Charity Chapter, O. E. S., is to meet this evening.

A very enjoyable whist was held in St. Mark's parish house Thursday evening with ten tables in play. First prizes were awarded Mrs. Truman Jewell and Harry Myers and consolation awards went to Miss Ruby Jewell and E. C. Cameron.

The Monday club met at the home of Mrs. H. B. Noyes, on Willow street. The club is studying Egypt this winter and the paper of the afternoon was relative to this subject.

The bowling teams of the women of the Baptist church and St. Mark's Episcopal church will bowl Friday of this week, instead of Tuesday afternoon as heretofore.

HOPKINTON

Mrs. Lovinia Richmond and Rev. John Jerne, who were married recently, will reside at Mrs. Richmond's former home near Brightman Hill.

The jurors from Hopkinton to serve at the February term of the superior court for Washington county have been drawn as follows: Grand, Edgar H. Babcock and James L. Niman; petit, Dalton L. Edwards, Frank H. Saunders and William G. Hobbiton.

A birthday party was given Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. James last week, as their birthdays were Feb. 4th and 5th.

During the ice storm last Tuesday night a tree limb fell and broke the electric wires at Hopkinton City, causing a display of fire seen for many miles until the current was shut off, when it suddenly disappeared.

Fred C. Allen of Boston visited at the home of his father, ex-Lieut.-Gov. E. B. Allen, over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxson Kenyon of Westerly were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo P. Kenyon Friday. Mrs. Dora J. Kenyon and son of the Shore road called on them Saturday.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Traveling Out Into the World

"Hello, little rabbit!" said the Old Brown Horse, with a swish of his long silky tail. "How is Lady Love?"

"Maybe a little lonely," answered the bunny boy. "I'd trot many a mile before I'd find one so pretty."

"Please don't," sighed the little bunny, and before the Old Brown Horse could enquire why, the little rabbit asked:

"Are there any mice in your Big Red Barn?"

"No sires," answered the Old Brown Horse, commencing to munch his breakfast of oats. "The farmer who owns this place has a cat. She's a fine mouser and keeps the barn well rid of those pesky creatures."

"Oh, take me for a sail," shouted the bunny boy

"Well, goodbye," said Little Jack Rabbit. "I must be on my way," and off he hopped, down the lane to the dusty road.

By and by, after a while, he met an old women with a basket on her arm.

"Please, ma'am, will you tell me where I may find a lollypop?"

"Goodness me!" laughed the old woman, "What a sweet tooth you have." And she laughed again, only very kindly, you know.

"I'd like a lollypop," went on the little rabbit. "At the Big Brown Bear's cosy cave there are loads of them."

"Dearie me!" exclaimed the old woman. "And why don't you call on him?"

Just then that same little yellow bird commenced to sing:

"Lollypops are very nice,
So are candy chocolate mice.
But, indeed, I'd rather hop
To a pretty millinery shop."

"Who are you, little bird?" asked the bunny boy, forgetting the old woman's question. But the Yellow Bird had flown away, so the little rabbit hopped off again on his journey.

After a while he came to a bridge that spanned a silver river, on which a pretty boat with pink sails was running before the wind.

As little Jack Rabbit had never seen a boat with pink sails, at first he thought it was some strange kind of water fowl, until, looking closer, he saw at the helm, a Duck Captain.

"Oh, I'm the captain of this boat,
The neatest of all the ships afloat.
Its mast is silver, its sails are pink:
It's a staunch little craft,—Well never sink."

"Oh, take me for a sail," shouted the bunny boy, when, all of a sudden, a voice sang softly:

"Come and see my bonnet
With the purple ribbon on it.
It is only just a hop
To my pretty little shop."

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

'Nothing Like It'

That is what Brooklyn man thinks of Tanlac, because it ended his suffering, he says.

GERARD LOSURDO

"After a year of suffering from indigestion and other troubles that took the pleasure out of life, it certainly is joyous to eat, sleep and feel as fine as I do now," declares Gerard Losurdo, 716 Fourth Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., in speaking of the benefits he has received from Tanlac.

"Everything I ate disagreed with me and my pain and misery were terrible to endure. I was also bothered with nervousness, constipation, headaches and dizziness, lost considerable sleep, and a diet of the lightest foods only served to pull down my weight.

"Sticking to Tanlac faithfully for two months has made me a changed man. I eat like one starving, sleep ten hours every night and my weight has gone up twelve pounds. I gladly recommend Tanlac — there's nothing like it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills.

NORWICH TOWN

"I seek not yours; but you."—II Corinthians 12:14, was the text of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey's sermon at the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church. Rev. Mr. Bailey said in substance: St. Paul differentiates between what a person is and what he has. I think you and I do the same, as a rule. The popular habit of life is to reverse St. Paul's order. We are seeking yours, rather than you. We are more interested in what people have than what they are. It is not the merchant himself that concerns us, it is the goods upon the counter we want. We are much more free to give our possessions, than to give ourselves. Religious and philanthropic causes may have our contributions, so long as we ourselves may be exempt from identification with them. A contribution to the church is easier than a contribution of ourselves. There are some who would rather have the things of Christ, than to have Christ Himself. Like the soldiers at the cross who cared only for Christ's garments; but were not concerned about the Christ.

Money cannot take the place of heart devotion. Modern nurseries and trained nurses cannot take the place of a mother's love in the life of a child. God has provided us with a beautiful world for our home here on earth; but better than that, is the love wherein He has loved us. Our best contribution to religion is, not our money, but our hearts and our lives.

This sermon was an introduction to the evangelistic visitors who were to begin their work Sunday afternoon, 13 having signed up for work from this church, in response to the request from the minister. The workers are to be served a supper each evening at 6.15 at the Community House by the several churches. The Norwich Town Congregational and Methodist churches, join in serving the supper Thursday evening. Those who are to furnish food from the Congregational parish have been asked to leave their contributions at one of the following places before 1 o'clock Thursday: The parsonage, Elm avenue; Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington's, Peck's corner; Mrs. David M. Dean's, Town street; and Mrs. Charles P. Learned's, West Town street.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday morning, Rev. James B. Aldrich preached from Luke 9:37, And it came to pass, that on the next day, when they were come down from the hill, much people met Him. The Young People's Christian Endeavor service was omitted at both the Methodist and Congregational churches, as these societies united with other societies at the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church for the evening meeting.

The mid-week prayer service at the Methodist and Congregational churches Thursday evening, are to be omitted this week; as well as the meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society, which was scheduled for Thursday afternoon.

PALACE AUDIENCE SPELLBOUND BY CHANEY'S DRAMATIC ART

It can be said without fear of contradiction that The Hunchback of Notre Dame, now playing at the Palace theatre is truly a super-production of the screen and is without doubt the best motion picture ever shown in Norwich. If a motion picture can be made to convey to the audience the exact feeling of the author who wrote the story, then Lon Chaney in the role of Quasimodo has given the public a clear insight into the innermost feelings of Victor Hugo when he wrote The Hunchback of Notre Dame.

Lon Chaney is known to the motion picture world as one of the greatest character men on the screen and in this picture he has far exceeded anything that he has ever done. If an actor can live his part then Lon Chaney has certainly accomplished a work that will be recorded as one of the greatest pieces of emotional acting ever produced in the silent drama. Surrounding Chaney in his role of Quasimodo is an excellent cast, a cast that would appear even more brilliant were it not for Chaney's super-exposition of dramatic art. His portrayal of Quasimodo is not overdone for he reveals the emotions of a man with a warped body yet with a spirit more like a dumb animal than a human being. Chaney's portrayal of the devotion for Esmeralda is wonderful as is his hatred for those who would injure her. He builds up the character in such a subtle way that it bursts upon his audience in the final mob scene and his death with his beloved bells in such a way that leaves his audience believing they have discovered a master.

In the filming of the picture two thousand "extras" were gathered in the huge area, before the towering replica of Notre Dame. From the shadows of the quaint mediaeval buildings they silently watched Quasimodo, (Lon Chaney) going through the pillory ordeal. The executioners dragged and bound the misshapen figure to the revolving wheel. One of the giants raised his whip and the lash whistled through the air. Actual sobs broke from the audience of players. They were picture folks, part of the illusion themselves, but still as impressionable to really fine acting as laymen.

With the end of the scene came such an outburst as never before heard on a motion picture lot. They applauded, they wept and cheered. Chaney astounded, tried to speak, but couldn't. As he faced the cheering host—his own people—he actually wept. And he is not ashamed of it. Incidentally, the scene cost him a painful beating, for a lashing cannot be faked in a close-up, but the star says he was amply repaid for the pain that he endured.

Chaney, besides studying for months to sense the soul of the misshapen man-brute, had the aid of Victor Hugo's own sketches and the conceptions of all the distinguished French illustrators who had expressed the form of "Quasimodo"—Brion, De Beaumont, Steinheil, De Rudder, and De Lemund. Chaney's makeup is the mystery of the theatrical world for he always demanded and obtained absolute privacy when donning the trappings.

Chaney is five feet, nine inches tall, but when he issued from the dressing room and faced the camera, he was a squat, distorted creature, not much more than four feet in stature, and, as the story describes the character—nearly as broad as he is tall. To preserve the exact semblance throughout down to the finest detail, "still photographs" were taken at the end of each day's work and at the beginning of the follow day's labors. In this manner the tiniest flaw in make-up was readily detected.

How well he succeeded in making the character a living, breathing personality is now a matter of history. The Hunchback of Notre Dame is attracting capacity crowds in half a dozen cities from coast to coast, but it is the great production that it is, largely because of the excellence of Lon Chaney's work.

BIG LOT OF POWDERED OPIUM IS RECOVERED AT STATE HOSPITAL

A quantity of powdered opium, said to be enough to supply all New England, has just been delivered to narcotic Agent Louis L. Kelly of the New Haven office of the narcotic squad by Superintendent Franklin S. Wilcox of the Norwich state hospital, who took possession of the opium after it had been brought to the hospital by a friend of one of the woman patients.

Recently Dr. Wilcox notified Internal Revenue Collector Robert Eaton that he had the opium and when Collector Eaton turned the information over to the narcotic division, Agent Kelly was sent here to take possession of the drug. There was 10 pounds in the lot, contained in nine one-pound tins and two half-pound tins, which were delivered to Agent Kelly Saturday.

The stuff is worth from $15 to $16 a pound at legitimate sale prices, but it is stated by the narcotic authorities that it might realize over $50,000 in the hands of illegal narcotic peddlers.

Dr. Wilcox said Monday night that the opium had been intended to reach the hands of one of the woman patients at the hospital, Mrs. Frances King, 66, of Madison, but it had been handed over to him and had never been in the possession of Mrs. King. The opium was brought to the hospital some time last year, he said, by a woman who belonged to quite a prominent family in the state, but whose name he did not disclose. She was a friend of Mrs. King and while looking over the King house had found the cans of the drug which she brought to the hospital and gave to one of the hospital staff to pass on to Mrs. King. Instead of this the hospital employe handed it over to Dr. Wilcox.

Mrs. King, who is feeble minded, has lucid intervals, said Dr. Wilcox, and in one of these she told him that she bought the opium before the Harrison narcotic law went into effect.

One of the points that struck the narcotic investigator was that the tins in which the opium is contained are similar to a lot that was stolen from a warehouse in New York several months ago and he is to continue his investigation in company with two other men who are expected to arrive here today (Tuesday).

MORAL GRANDEUR IN ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S LIFE

The topic of Rev. Charles H. Ricketts' address at the noon meeting under Y. M. C. A. auspices at the Richmond Radiator plant Monday was the Moral Grandeur of Abraham Lincoln, and he spoke in part as follows:

There are five definite things I want to emphasize in my remarks today.

1. Lincoln's refusal to let poverty keep him down. Considered by themselves alone both poverty and riches are neutral; they have nothing to do with character and ability. The extremes of either, however, are not conducive to the development of the highest mental and moral strength.

Contrary to popular opinion Lincoln was not born into abject squalor. As it was a pioneer home it had its limitations, and Lincoln saw that if he was to make the most of life he must rise above it. Hence his firm resolution in this respect shows that a great soul is born and not made.

2. He also refused to let ignorance classify him with incompetents and non entities. He had greater exposure to ignorance than to poverty. His means of even rudimentary education were slim. His pioneer life was long before the days of compulsory school attendance. But he early disclosed a thirst for knowledge and he mastered the few books which the humble home contained and all others that were kindly loaned him. This burning thirst for knowledge was his intellectual salvation. With this desire was an indomitable will to gratify it hence he put forth an iron resolution to break away from the shackles of illiteracy. This intense motive emphasized the fact that where there is "a will there is a way."

3. Lincoln's patriotism urged him to specialize in Americanism. Lincoln was not a profound general scholar like some of his contemporaries. He was denied a certain breadth of intellectual outlook by his lack of classical learning. Later he might have felt this when he touched shoulders with college men. But when these men came under the spell of his unique personality, no one of them thougnt anything about Plato or Aristotle as they heard him express his thoughts so forcibly and clearly in short, crisp Anglo-Saxon speech. He knew one topic from A to Z and that was Americanism. Patriotism was his absorbing passion. He believed that democracy was human government in the last analysis and that the American people ought to make it the most perfect device for the administration of law.

4. Lincoln was the greatest of all our expounders of political freedom. He hated slavery in all forms. He believed that all men ought to be politically free and that the color of a man's skin had no more to do with the question than the color of his eyes. His political creed came as near to that of the New Testament as that of any man who ever sat in the presidential chair or ever occupied a throne. Banish all forms of human slavery, live according to the teachings of the Golden Rule and then will come the dawn of a new and better day. Political millenniums do not spring up in a single night. It is giving to be a lonely and tedius evolutionary process, simply because of 3000 years of tyranny, misrule, injustice and wrong. The only platform that will bring peace and prosperity and consequently human happiness is that which gives the other fellow an equal chance. This was the platform of the Man of Nazareth; it was the backbone, blood and muscle of the emancipation proclamation.

5. His patriotism should inspire us to banish all forms of slavery. We love our country, we know its the only outstanding nation of the earth, and that it is the best place in which to live, and yet this ought not to blind us to existing faults. No attempt will ever again be made to fetter human flesh. But there is a tendency today to fetter human speech. It appears in both church and state. A party is springing up in churches, saying, "believe our cast iron creed or get out into outer darkness." It denies the right of private interpretation of the scriptures. It is saying to our colleges, "cut out modern science and go back to the Middle Ages when they believed that the earth was flat and motionless." We find the same in state. The recent experience of Edward K. Bok to explain to a congressional committee why he dared to offer a prize for a workable peace plan. When we see these and other things we feel like exclaiming: "thou God of Mercy send us some great moral leader to guide us to the larger freedom, and may he have the moral heroism of Abraham Lincoln!"

COST STATE $47,661 TO CARRY HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS

It cost the state last year, to assist towns in high school conveyances, the sum of $47,661.54. The towns paid $51,375.99. There were 2,252 pupils conveyed.

Dr. Albert B. Meredith, state commissioner of education, has prepared a statistical statement, showing the effect of the operation of the law for the conveyance of children living in towns where there are no high schools, to towns which maintain these schools. The object of the law was to give ambitious boys and girls in the rural communities the opportunity to secure a high school education. The transportation of children to state trades schools are also recorded in the document and in such a way as not to confuse them with the high schools.

The figures show that 90 towns in the state took advantage of the law to place within the reach of their boys and girls the benefits of high school training. There were 2,332 boys and girls conveyed from non-high school towns to towns where high schools existed. This was a large number and the figures show that the state was well advised in adopting, by an act of the legislature, a policy to make it easier for the boys and girls living in sparsely populated districts to obtain an education which should enable them to compete with their brothers and sisters of the cities and other centers of population.

Rural Drawback Conquered.

The law met one of the serious drawbacks to rural life in Connecticut and overcame it. The problem was solved by the state's undertaking to pay a part of the expense of transporting children to high schools. The total expense for the year was $99,037.52. The rural boys and girls were enrolled in 64 high schools.

The total expense incurred by each town, ranged from $25 by the town of Union where the state paid half to the highest amount of $4,645 by the town of Norfolk of which the state paid $1,260 leaving a balance of $3,385 for the town to meet. The state and the town of East Windsor paid the sum of $4,229.05 for transporting children to the high schools in East Hartford, Enfield, Rockville and Windsor Locks, East Windsor's share of the expense being $2,114.53. Haddam carried 56 children to high schools in other towns at an expense of $4,394.48, the state paying $1,960 of the amount leaving the balance for the town to meet.

Transportation of children to the schools in other towns cost the picturesque town of Pomfret and the state each $1,830.30 or a total of $3,660.60. The expense of conveying two pupils to Manchester cost South Windsor and the state $27 each. Stafford provided transportation for one pupil in Manchester at an expense of $71.90, only $36.90 however being left for the town to pay when the state had extended its helping hand.

Thirteen Methods Used.

There were 13 different modes of transportation to schools employed. The number of pupils who used the railroad exclusively was 323, nine used the railroad and team and 44 the railroad and auto. The important place which the trolley fills in the transportation system of the state is shown by the fact that 910 used the trolley exclusively, 18 trolley and team and two trolley and railroad. Four were taken to school in team and automobile and 136 in teams. The ferry and railroad conveyed only one, and the automobile, ferry and railroad two. The usefulness of the automobile is shown by the fact that 786 were conveyed by that method alone. That the residents of our rural communities have not discarded old Dobbin is shown by the fact that 17 were conveyed by horses. Three used bicycles.

The towns with the number of pupils conveyed by each are as follows:

Number for Each Town.

Andover, 24 (one to Manchester trade school); Ashford, 18; Avon, 27; Barkhamsted, 31; Beacon Falls, 17; Bethany, 9; Bethlehem, 17; Boston, 17; Bozrah, 24; Bridgewater, 9; Brookfield, 17; Brooklyn, 25; Burlington, 19; Canaan, 10; Canterbury, 9; Chaplin, 9; Colebrook, 31; Columbia, 19; Cornwall, 13; Coventry, 29; Cromwell, 32; Eastford, 11; East Granby, 28; East Haddam, 30; East Hampton, 74; East Lyme, 65; Easton, 13; East Windsor, 68; Ellington, 51; Franklin, 8; Goshen, 15; Granby, 25; Griswold, 40; Haddam, 56; Hampton, 18; Hartland, 9; Harrington, 25; Hebron, 30; Kent, 2; Killingly, 13 (to Putnam trades school); Killingworth, 10; Ledyard, 8; Lisbon, 21; Litchfield, 2 (to Torrington trades school); Lyme 8; Middlebury, 41; Middlefield, 16; Monroe, 23; Morris, 5; New Fairfield, 5; New Hartford, 34; Newington, 72; Norfolk, 36; North Branford, 23; New Haven, 79 (11 to Meriden trades school); Old Lyme, 8; Orange, 33. TEACHERS ASSOCIATION STATE OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Connecticut State Teachers' association was held in the New Haven high school auditorium Saturday. Dean Brown of the Yale Divinity school and Dr. William H. Kilpatrick of Columbia university addressed the meeting, which was presided over by the retiring president, Miss Janet M. Purdue of the New Haven high school.

Dr. Kilpatrick said that there were two kinds of learning, anything learned for the future he called extrensic learning; anything learned because of immediate need he called instrensic learning. He said in part: "We pick out those things grown people need, reject those which will be learned anyway and those that won't be learned we arrange in order and assign under more or less compulsion."

The election of officers resulted in the following: President, H. Everitt Cortright, Bridgeport; first vice-president, Janet M. Purdue, New Haven; treasurer, E. B. Sellew, Middletown; auditor, Gilbert W. Miller, New Haven; recording secretary, E. Mae Keefe, Waterbury; assistant recording secretary, Florence Smith, East Hampton; corresponding secretary, Samuel P. Willard, Colchester. Executive committee, Carolyn Merchant, New Haven. Helen Archer, New London; R. M. Brown, Thomastown; Edwin C. Andrews, Greenwich, and Harold L. Bugbee, West Hartford.

Percival Barnes of East Hartford was elected to finance committee to succeed James F. Connolly, resigned.

ALFRED E. ROGERS WILL REMAIN IN PANAMA

Alfred E. Rogers, formerly of Gales Ferry, Klondike and the Panama canal, who is now at Balboa Heights with his daughters, Mrs. George W. Geer and Miss Marion Rogers, writes Norwich and Gales Ferry friends that he is for the present engineer on a government dredger at $250 a month and maintenance, has a good thing, and will probably remain in Panama. He worked there as a government engineer 16 years prior to 1921, but he does not now mind the regular 86 in the shade any more than he did in the by gone years. Mr. Robers is 57 and in good health. It was in August, 1897 that he and the late Charles N. Brown of Hamilton avenue, Bridge district of Preston, went to the gold country. They were there when Jack London and Rex Beach were gathering material for their stories, and when Tex Rickard was mayor of Nome and Joe Juneau—for whom a city has been named—was the champion dog trainer and driver of the northwestern wilderness. Mr. Rogers says he made no money in the Klondike, but add that he had the time of his life in those strenuous days. At one time, after returning from hte zone, he thought of settling permanently at Trout Brook cottage at Gales Ferry, but after the death of Mrs. Rogers last year he became lonely and yielded to the demands of his daughters to go to them in Panama, prepared to stay. Thirty years ago he was a Norwich and Worcester engineer. Old time railroad men on the New Haven remember him well.

POETRY

Abraham Lincoln

Not as when some great captain falls,
In battle, where his country calls,
Beyond the struggling lines
That push his dread designs

To doom, by some stray ball struck dead;
Or, in the last charge, at the head
Of his determined men,
Who must be victors then.

Nor as when sink the civic great,
The safer pilots of the state,
Whose calm, mature, wise words
Suppress the need of swords.

With no such tears as o'er were shed
Above the noblest of our dead
Do we today deplore
The man that is no more.

Our sorrow hath a wider scope.
Too strange for fear, too vast for hope,
A wonder, blind and dumb,
That waits—what is to come!

—Richard Henry Stoddrad.

The Perpetual Soldier

We sing about the soldier lad who works for meager pay;
He gets about a dollar as a maximum
per day.
No words of praise for such as he can ever be misplaced;
The most appalling dangers all unflinchingly he's faced.
But have you ever stopped to think, you kindly hero "fan."
That often such a hero is the sturdy farmer man.
We ride along the fertile fields where stand the wheat and corn
That wave their heads and tassels in the balmy breeze at morn.
We know the market prices of the things
before our eyes;
We know a healthy deficit is oft the farmer's prize.
Yet will he stop, and starve us just because the price is low?
To his eternal credit he has always answered, "No."
Regardless of the cash reward, his battle flag's unfurled
To fight starvation's armies that besiege this hungry world.
His grumblings (like the soldier's) may from here and there arise,
And seem to find no answer from the sultry summer skies.
Though heedless be the world of just rewards that he may ask
But ever, like the soldier, goes unflinching at his task.
Here's glory for the soldier and his thankless sacrifice;
Whenever we behold him, there's a mist
before our eyes.
Yet when his brief enlistment in the world's defense shall cease,
When tanks are turned to tractors to prepare the fields of peace,
The hero work goes forward with an army larger still,
From gang-plow on the prairie to bull-tongue on the hill.

—Strickland Gillilan in Farm Life.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Heavens, no. She asked me if I cooled my car by stripping the gears!"—Harvard Lampoon.

"There are two sides to every question," sternly said huge and hawkbilled Mrs. Meek.

"Yes, my dear," replied skimpy little Mr. Meek, "yours and who else's?"—Kansas City Star.

Caller—So the angels have brought you a new baby sister.

Elsie (disgustedly)—To see the fuss Nurse makes over her you'd think she came from Paris.—Boston Transcript.

"O Jackie! Listen to that marvelous jazz!"

"Why, that's a classical number they're playing."

"Well, it sounds good enough to be jazz!"—Yale Record.

Unconscious humor is a brand all its own. In a Nevada town the other day a teacher asked: "What is an oyster?" Sixteen young minds worked on the problem, but Willie beat them to it, announcing his definition, triumphantly: "An oyster is a fish built like a nut."—Kansas City Star.

"Did you ever see that pinhead which contains the Lord's Prayer?"

"No, but I know a pinhead who has all of Shakespere's plays at his tongue's end."—Farm Life.

Mrs. Tellum—That bit of gossip you told me about Mrs. Miggs wasn't true.

Mrs. Spreadit—Well, I didn't much believe it at the time, but I thought I might as well pass it along.—American Legion Weekly.

The teacher, a woman of uncertain age, was having a hard time getting Johnny to memorize the name of the presidents.

"Why, when I was your age," she explained exasperated, "I could recite the names of presidents forward and backward."

"Yes'm," replied Johnny, unimpressed, "but when you were my age there wasn't nearly so many presidents."—Los Angeles Times.

It is a curious fact that three of the last eight presidents of the United States deliberately dropped the first of their baptismal names when they came to manhood. Stephen Grover Cleveland became Grover Cleveland. Thomas Woodrow Wilson became Woodrow Wilson, and John Calvin Coolidge became Calvin Coolidge. It took something more than dropping a first name to make these men presidents; but, asks an American writer, "did you ever think that, although nine men out of ten support both a first and middle name, six out of the last eight presidents have borne only a single 'Christian' name?" Apparently there is something in the shorter, crisper form that helps in the game of politics.

DENVER OIL MAN TELLS OF FRAUD AND SECRET DEALINGS

J. Leo Stack Testified That He Became Convinced Soon After Sinclair Got the Lease That There Had Been "Bad Faith" —Opposition in Senate to Special Counsel Selected by President Coolidge to Investigate Legality of Naval Reserve Oil Leases.

Washington, Feb. 12.—J. Leo Stack, Denver oil man, who has contractual rights in claims in Teapot Dome, told the senate oil committee today that he became convinced soon after Harry F. Sinclair got the lease that there had been "bad faith, fraud and secret dealings" in the matter.

Stack said information had come to him that Sinclair, Robert W. Stewart, of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, and H. M. Blackmar of the Midwest Refining company, a Standard Oil subsidiary, had gotten together at Mexia on the Teapot Dome subject in December, 1921.

"The information had come to me," Stack added, "that Sinclair had said to Stewart that he would like to have a chance to handle Teapot and following that event, the Midwest interests had, through Stewart's influence, encouraged Sinclair to go ahead."

The witness declared to his mind the real consideration that the Standard and Midwest interests received from Sinclair rather than the million dollars paid for their rights in Teapot Dome was that the Standard was to have fifty per cent. interest in the pipe line which was provided for in the lease obtained by Sinclair.

Asserting that the pipe line would have capacity for carrying more than the requirements of oil from th Teapot and Salt Creek fields in Wyoming, Stack said that the pipe line "really provided a continuing monopoly to the Standard interests and Sinclair, and was of great value."

Stack testified that the Pioneer Oil company, a Midwest subsidiary with whom he had a contract to undertake to obtain a lease for Teapot Dome, had offered to pay him $50,000 in cash for his claims whereas it was to receive oil from Sinclair when and as obtained from the new field. This, he said, was to his mind, a suspicious circumstance.

Stack, whose name was brought into inquiry by H. L. Doheny, California oil magnate, read a long prepared statement concerning his efforts to obtain the lease of Teapot Dome, his suit against the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Midwest and Pioneer companies to enforce his contract and the eventual settlement with Sinclair.

Also he told of unsuccessful negotiations with Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, to get a lease for offset wells in the Salt Creek field and how he had continued the negotiations after the Harding administration came into office.

The witness said he conceived the idea of obtaining a lease to Teapot Dome in 1917 but found the navy was without authority to, "even put a stake in the ground of the reserve" and dropped the matter. There was a renewal of efforts, however, after congress gave the navy authority in 1920 to operate or lease the oil reserves.

"Having known Mr. Creel for a number of years, both as a newspaper man and as police commissioner of my home city, Denver," he said, "and knowing that Mr. Creel was a warm personal friend of Mr. Daniels, I interested Mr. Creel in the proposition and asked him to make it possible for me to meet Mr. Daniels and present the matter to him personally. Mr. Creel arranged for the interview and accompanied me to Secretary Daniels office.

"The secretary was firm in his stand that he would not consider any proposition to open up the reserve. I tried to argue the point that the reserve was being drained and he stated that if it was being drained, he land adjoining the reserve was government land and the government was getting the royalty just the same."

After conferring with navy officers, Stack said he went into the Teapot Dome field and made maps which subsequently were checked by government officials and found to be correct.

"I then presented the maps to Mr. Doheny," he said. "He was startled. He said that he could not conceive why any one man with the responsibility of the government's interests, refusing to listen to a proposition to protect the government's interests by drilling offset wells on the reserve. I suggested, knowing that Mr. Fall had been a life long friend of Mr. Doheny and knowing Mr. Fall was now the new secretary of the interior he should take up with Mr. Fall the question of a contract for Teapot Dome.

"Mr. Doheny refused to do so, stating to me 'Mr. Fall and I have been life long friends; we prospected together in your state before it was a state, in the old territorial days; in view of that friendship, I would not ask Mr. Fall anything in reference to this Teapot Dome matter, feeling that on account of my friendship, he might be influenced to change his policy, if he had one established, in my favor, and I would not ask him to do it.'

"I then called on Secretary Denby and Secretary Denby was of the same opinion as Mr. Daniels, that is that he wanted the naval reserve preserved intact for the navy. I exhibited to him the results of the investigation which disclosed drainage that had long been in progress and upon considering these facts, he said: 'Then it is for the best interests of the navy department that offset wells should be drilled.'"

Contending that the Pioneer company had rights in the whole of Teapot Dome, Stack described his efforts to get the Pioneer company to join with himself and Doheny in endeavoring to get a contract from the navy department to drill offset wells. Doheny finally tired of the negotiations and withdrew, he said requiring the Pioneer company to take over Stack's contracts.

Later Sinclair obtained the lease, Stack continued, and he was advised by the Pioneer company that "they had sold out their titles and what they thought also was my interest for $1,900,000 and they offered me a check for $50,000 as my five per. of the $1,000,000."

The witness added that he refused to accept the money and decided to begin suit, as Mr. Doheny had represented his contract as being worth much more than that.

Being without adequate funds, Stack said he went to Frederick G. Bonfils, publisher of the Denver (Colorado) Post who agreed to back him. Sinclair and the Mammoth Oil Company were joined as defendants, he said, but before the ten days for filing the bill of complaint in court "the Pioneer people started negotiations for a compromise."

"They maintained they had sold their interest to Mr. Sinclair," he went on, "and that Mr. Sinclair was thereby responsible for my interest. At the invitation of Mr. Sinclair, or his counsel, Mr. Bonfils, Mr. Schwartz and I went to New York for a conference with Mr. Sinclair and his counsel; he stated that he knew of my contract and that in his opinion the Pioneer company had made a poor contract and he wanted to know if the Pioneer people were not in the habit of keeping their contracts saying: 'If I made that contract, I would keep it,' and suggested that the responsibility was on the Pioneer company.

"The conference came to an end without agreement, but evidently later the Pioneer people convinced Mr. Sinclair that the responsibility was on him or the Mammoth Oil Company, for Mr. Sinclair later started negotiations which ripened into a settlement contract between the Mammoth Oil Company and Mr. Bonfils and me."

OPPOSITION IN SENATE TO COUNSEL COOLIDGE SELECTED

Washington, Feb. 12.—An organized fight in the senate against confirmation of Silas H. Strawn and Atlee Pomerene as special government counsel in the oil cases promises to furnish another dramatic chapter in the rapidly unfolding story of the naval oil leases.

Definite indications that Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, dominant figure in pressing the inquiry, is opposed to the lawyers selected by President Coolidge provided the chief development of the day in the oil investigation.

The oil committee considered the nominations at two executive sessions but without reaching a decision. Between times it heard six witnesses at public sessions in efforts to obtain more light on the circumstances surrounding the leasing of the Teapot Dome reserve to Harry F. Sinclair and the California Elk Hills reserve to E. L. Doheny.

Members of all senatorial groups showed a disposition today to treat as a closed incident the refusal of President Coolidge to entertain the senate's request that he demand "immediately" the designation of Secretary Denby for his part in the leases.

Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, announced that on Thursday he would introduce a resolution proposing a full investigation of all of the official acts of Attorney General Daugherty and of all branches of the department of justice under the stewardship of Mr. Daugherty.

George Creel, former chairman of the committee on public information, told the oil committee he had been employed by Doheny as "publicity consultant" five months after he left the government service, but had resigned after three months because of a disagreement with his chief. His salary was at the rate of $10,000 a year. He also disclosed that he had interested himself in obtaining a lease for offset wells in Teapot Dome and had taken the matter up unsuccessfully with Secretary Daniels.

J. Leo Stack, a Denver oil man, with whom Creel was associated, and who had contractual rights in claims in Teapot Dome, testified that he had become convinced soon after Sinclair obtained the lease that there had been "bad faith, fraud and secret dealings."

The committee sought, but with little success, to establish definitely who supplied the $200,000 for the purchase of The Albuquerque, New Mexico, Journal, by Sidney M. Well from Carl C. Magee in May, 1922, but it was in evidence that Joshua Reynolds, chairman of the board of the First National Bank of Albuquerque, had taken it over from Well after thirty days.

Magee told of attacks he was making on Albert B. Fall in his paper and of efforts he made to sell the plant. He said he received an offer from the Los Angeles Herald, which, he asserted, "represented Doheny money" and also that Frederick C. Bonfils and H. H. Tammen, of the Denver (Colorado) Post had sent a man to see him, but he refused to deal with them.

NO MONEY FOR HARTFORD STREET CLEANING FORCE

Hartford, Feb. 12.—Failure of the common council Monday night to approve under suspension of the rules a request of the street department for an extra appropriation of $55,000 resulted today in the withdrawal of the entire street cleaning force of the city from duty, involving about eighty men and sixteen teams, because of lack of funds. It was said that this is the first time in the history of the city that action of this nature has been necessary.

The aldermen referred the request for the extra appropriation to the board of finance. Unless some arrangement is made in the meantime for providing funds with which to re-engage these men and to again employ the owners of teams, the street cleaning force cannot be returned to work until the council meets again on February 25.

One of the serious problems arising as a result of this condition is the fact that no funds are now available for snow removal. While some snow clearing work was accomplished after the recent storm, the extra workmen were released from duty last week, due to scarcity of funds. In the event of a severe snowstorm now his department would be hampered to a great extent.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

GERMAN LABOR LEADER MADE GOOD IMPRESSION

Berlin, Feb. 12 (By the A. P.)—None of the German witnesses who have appeared before the committee of experts impressed General Dawes and his colleagues quite as favorably as did Peter Grassmann, vice chairman of the Federation of German Trade Unions who today discussed the German workingman's attitude on reparations, the eight-hour day, taxation and other topics of current interest to the members of the committee.

The candor with which the German labor leader answered the numerous questions put by the experts netted him a vigorous handshake by General Dawes at the conclusion of the hearing.

Mr. Grassmann was put through two hours of cross-examination. Incidentally he told the committee that there was no chance for communism in Germany as the rank and file of German workingmen rejected sovietism in spite of their present social and financial plight. He believed the existing vestiges of radicalism in Germany would disappear with the improvement of social conditions. Referring to a tax on luxuries upon which his opinion was sought by one of the experts Mr. Grassmann said:

"With the battery of American and English pipes which confronted me I could not very well include tobacco among luxuries, even admitted that I needed it as a nerve soother."

The union leader said he favored a drastic tax on caviar and oysters and believed generally in direct taxation.

TRIAL OF MRS. ASA G. CANDLER POSTPONED

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 12.—Illness of Chief of Police James L. Beavers caused postponement today of the cases against Mrs. Asa G. Candler, Sr., W. J. Stoddard and G. W. Keesling, charged with violating a section of the city code which provides for the arrest of people who are found in places where intoxicants are found.

The cases were continued until Chief Beavers is able to appear in court. He has been ill since Sunday. He and Police Captain A. J. Holcomb made the arrests Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Candler, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. J. B. Brown, arrived 15 minutes before the cases were reached and they sat in Chief Beavers' office until called into the court room. Mr. Stoddard, prominent dry cleaner and president of the National Association of Dry Cleaners and Dyers, and Mr. Keeling, president of a local brick manufacturing company, also were in court. Counsel for the defendants vigorously opposed the motion of J. M. Wood, assistant city attorney, to continue the cases until the police chief could attend.

Recorder George G. Jackson, in postponing the cases, declared, "It doesn't make any difference whether they are a millionaire or a pauper, they all look alike in my court down here in Decatur street."

Mrs. Candler and the two businessmen were arrested in an apartment house while they were sitting around a table on which reposed a bottle containing liquor. They were released under bonds of $100 each.

Mrs. Candler is staying with her mother, Mrs. T. M. Little. Mrs. Brown told the reporters. She has not been in the home of her husband since Saturday, it was stated.

Mr. Candler has made no statement since the arrest of his wife, who before he married her last June, was Mrs. May Little Ragin, a public stenographer.

HOUSE TO LIMIT DEBATE ON TAX REDUCTION BILL

Washington, Feb. 12.—Informal agreement made today by house leaders designed to confine general debate on the tax reduction bill to three or four days when it was taken up on the floor Thursday is believed to assure disposition of the measure in the house within three weeks at the most and possibly in two.

Chairman Greene of the ways and means committee and Representative Garner of Texas, ranking democrat, expressed the hope that general debate on the bill could be concluded on Monday and the income rates, the center of difference on the measure taken up Tuesday and disposed of in two days.

Discussion on the bonus bill today developed the opinion in the committee that it would not be given consideration before the tax bill is disposed of. Chairman Green said, however, the bonus measure would be first on the program of the committee after the floor contest on the revenue bill is finished.

The revenue measure was given a clear track in the house by a decision of the republican steering committee today to withhold all other legislation from the calendar during its consideration with the possible exception of appropriation bills if delay is encountered in its disposition.

Both Chairman Green and Mr. Garner expressed the opinion that with the income rates contest disposed of consideration of the remainder of the bill could be completed within ten days.

MRS. WILSON FAVORS AID FOR GERMAN CHILDREN

New York, Feb. 12.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, in a letter to Major-General Henry Allen made public today, expressed the hope that the fund for aid of helpless German children would continue to find general support.

Her letter, in answer to information from General Allen that the flag incident at the German embassy at the time of Mr. Wilson's death had alienated members of workers for the cause and caused the cancellation of some gifts, follows:

"Dear General Allen:

"The information contained in your letter of February 10, with respect to the starving children of Germany causes me genuine distress. As a private citizen, I will not venture to comment on the official aspect of the recent flag episode; but I am so convinced the feeling of my husband on the phase of the matter presented by you would so entirely accord with my own that I do not hesitate to express the hope that your fund in aid of helpless German children may continue to find general support.

"I am sure Mr. Wilson would not have the devotion and loyalty of the American people whom he so loved take on the guise of resentment which might cause suffering if not death among innocent children.

"Faithfully and sincerely yours,

(Signed) "EDITH BOLLING WILSON.
(MRS. WOODROW WILSON")

Details of Loss of The Cruiser Tacoma

Captain Sparrow Lost His Life While Endeavoring to Aid Members of His Crew Who Were Endangered.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Captain Herbert G. Sparrow, of the cruiser Tacoma, wrecked at Vera Cruz, lost his life while endeavoring to aid men of his crew who had been imperiled with him in the destruction of the ship's radio house in the great storm that made a complete loss of the cruiser.

Full details of the second storm which struck the cruiser after she had been driven aground by the first norther encountered have not reached the navy department. A naval board of inquiry is now in session at Charleston, S. C., going into all the circumstance surrounding the wreck.

A partial account of what happened aboard the Tacoma on January 16 when the second norther struck the stranded craft became available today at the navy department, however, and shows that Captain Sparrow and another officer and four radio operators were in the radio room endeavoring to maintain communication with shore.

"While so employed," the memorandum said, "the continual pounding of the heavy seas which were breaking over the vessel finally destroyed the radio house and threw the occupants out amongst the wreckage on deck. Captain Sparrow and the others managed with great difficulty to obtain temporary shelter in the hammock nettings where they were almost drowned by the continual wash of the seas.

"Captain Sparrow, believing that the men were less protected than he was went to their rescue, which proved to be the beginning of his own end. When he left his temporary shelter he was badly knocked about by the heavy seas and finally became unconscious. Two attempts were made by others to rescue him and these men in turn were either lost or seriously injured so that of the six originally in the radio house, Captain Sparrow and three radio men were killed and the others very seriously injured."

The navy department also has received a report from Lieutenant F. Muller, commanding the naval tug Bay Springs, one of the two tugs standing by the Tacoma when the second storm began. At the time of the disaster representatives in Washington of Adolfo De La Huerta, issued a cable message sent from Vera Cruz bearing his name, saying that Mexican rebel gunboats had rescued the men aboard the wrecked Tacoma.

Lieutenant Muller, in his report, states that the only assistance rendered to the tugs or to the Tacoma by the Mexican authorities at that time, so his knowledge, was permission, for the tugs to take shelter inside the breakwater during the gale, and the furnishing of a pilot to take the Bay Springs out through the mined area of the harbor later.

"There was no rescue work by the Mexican navy or Mexican government," Lieutenant Muller's report said.

The officer also expressed his admiration of the work done by Dr. Ogden D. King, of the Tacoma, who, he said, despite the fact that he had been badly cut up in making his way ashore over the coral reefs," gave all his attention to the sick without any thought for his own conditions.

AGUILAR SUPREME CHIEF OF MEXICAN REBEL ARMIES

[illegible] Texas, Feb. 12.—General Candido Aguilar has been named supreme chief of revolutionary armies as a result of a conference of rebel chiefs, Guadalupe Sanchez, Fortunato Maycotte, and Cesareo Castro, according to a telegram found among rebel papers at Vera Cruz information received by Mexican Consul General Enrique D Ruiz here today state.

The telegraph, addressed to Adolfo de la Huerta and signed by three rebel general, notified the "first chief" of the decision. De La Huerta's answer conveyed by telegraph and protesting their action, also was found. In his reply, de La Huerta declared he "did not expect an imposition so rude and unjust," on the part of the rebel commanders and urges them to reconsid.

Rebel leaders, according to information furnishes Mr. Ruiz have protested the alleged flight of De La Huerta from Vera Cruz and this action is believed to have caused the rebel generals to depose him as leader.

Garia Vigil, former governor of Oaxaca is enraged at the leave-taking of De La Huerta, an intercepted telgeram states, according to reports to Mr. Ruiz.

CHARGES OF HERESY MADE AGAINST REV. W. M. BROWN

New York, Feb. 12.—The Rev. William Montgomery Brown, of Gallon Ohio, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church and known to his opponents as "the bishop of bolshevists and atheists" faces trial on charges of extreme heresy, it became known today.

The charges framed by Bishops A. C. A. Hall, of Vermont; Joseph M. Francis, of Indianapolis, and William L. Gravatt, of West Virginia, and sent to the house of bishops, were based on statements made by Bishop Brown in his book, Communist and Christianism, and set forth that the churchman "holds and teaches certain doctrines contrary to those held by the Protestant Episcopal church of America."

Theodore Schroeder, author of books of religion, and friend of the Rev. Mr. Brown, made public the charges. Bishop Brown formerly was bishop of Arkansas.

House Passed Post Office Supply Bill

Carries $729,000,000—Largest Peace-Time Appropriation Bill Ever Before Congress.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The largest peace-time appropriation bill ever before congress—the annual treasury-post office supply bill, carrying approximately $729,000,000, was passed today by the house by a viva voce vote. The measure goes to the senate practically as drafted by the house appropriations committee, only a few amendments of importance having been adopted by the house.

One amendment, adopted at the last minute, increased the amount for maintenance of rural delivery service during the coming fiscal year from $32,250,00 to $89,250,000. The vote was 139 to 115.

Previously the house had increased the $87,000,000 for pay of city letter carriers by $400,000 and had raised the amount for transmission of mail by pneumatic tubes in New York city approximately $70,000, or a total of $526,872.

The chief change in the bill was the elimination of a section alloting $1,500,000 for maintenance of the New York-San Francisco airplane mail service. This provision was thrown out on a point of order by Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, who contended the service was unauthorized by law and the house was without power to grant it funds in an appropriation bill.

The point raised by Mr. Cramton cut short an effort led by Representative La Guardia, republican, New York, and Clancy, democrat, Michigan, to increase the appropriation for airplane mail to $3,000,000. During debate Mr. Clancy charged that the railroads were seeking to have the appropriation knocked out altogether.

Of the total carried in the bill, $610,000,000 is for the post office department, and $119,000,000 for the treasury. Included in the treasury allotment is $10-629,770 for prohibition enforcement, $10,652,000 for the coast guard, and $18,873,000 for the customs service.

Disposal of the bill, the second supply measure to be sent to the senate this session, cleared the way for house consideration of the tax bill which will be taken up Thursday. Tomorrow will be devoted to the consideration of miscellaneous measures.

$150,000,000 JAPANESE GOVT LOAN FLOATED IN THE U. S.

New York, Feb. 12.—(By The A. P.)—Floatation of a $150,000,000 Japanese government refunding and reconstruction loan in the United States was announced tonight by J. P. Morgan & Co., who with Kuhn Loeb & Co., the National City company and the First National bank will head a nation-wide syndicate which will offer the issue later in the week. Sale of the bonds, bearing interest of 6 1-2 per cent. and maturing in 20 years, will be made at 92 1-2 to yield approximately 7.10 per cent.

Simultaneous offering of £25,000,000 of Japanese government bonds of the same tenor, except that the coupon rater will be 6 per cent. and the maturity 8 years, will be made in the English market. Part of the American issue is to be placed in Holland and part in Switzerland by banking groups in those countries. No formal issue of the loan in continental markets will be made except as a part of the American issue.

Sale of the Japanese loan marks the largest financial operation for a foreign government since the floatation of the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan in 1915, and is the largest piece of long-term foreign government financing ever undertaken in this country.

Kengo Mori, a special finance delegate of the Japanese government announced that the loan, together with existing foreign balances would provide not only for retirement of substantially the whole of Japan's external debt maturing prior to 1931, totaling about $170 000,000, but also for the Japanese government's entire estimated financial requirements in foreign markets for reconstruction work.

Although the government's reconstruction program contemplates the expenditure of about $700,000,000, approximately $400,000,000 will be raised in Japan, and the present loan, together with existing foreign balances, will provide the remainder of funds which will be expended in foreign markets. The bulk of Japan's purchases, it is expected, will be made in the United States.

The new loan is the first direct external issue placed by the Japanese government in the American market since 1905, the year of the Russo-Japanese war. In that year approximately $187,500,000 bonds of a 4 1-2 per cent. sterling issue and a 4 per cent. international issue were sold in the United States.

ROUSING LINCOLN DINNER WELCOME FOR COOLIDGE

At Lincoln Day Dinner of the National Republican Committee at the Waldorf Astoria, New York—President's Statement That the National and Local Governments Should Reduce Expenditures Was Received With Approval—During His Address President Coolidge Was Frequently Interrupted by Applause—Opposition to Soldiers' Bonus Was Approved—President Coolidge Joined in Singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

New York, Feb. 12.—President Coolidge arrived from Washington at 4.55 o'clock this afternoon in the midst of a snow storm to address the National Republican club at its annual Lincoln day dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

Preceded by a mounted escort of 24 policemen, the president and his party motored from the Pennsylvania railroad terminal to the New Women's National Republican club in East 57th street, just off Fifth avenue.

Arriving at the women's club the president, Mrs. Coolidge and their party were received by women leaders of the republican organization of Greater New York.

The reception committee, headed by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, president of the club, escorted the guests through the living rooms and lounges of the club house, gay with flowers, and thence to the assembly room where an informal reception was held and tea served.

The hall was decorated with the flags of the states behind the tables stood the Stars and Stripes and the banner of Vermont, the president's native commonwealth.

Leaving the club the presidential party proceeded down Fifth avenue to the Waldorf-Astoria. There they were greeted first by Oscar, the Maitre d'Hotel and retired to the presidential suite to rest until time for the dinner.

The two thousand diners rose and cheered as President Coolidge entered the flag-bedecked ball room of the Waldorf-Astoria at 7.35 o'clock, while the orchestra played "Hail to the Chief." Mrs. Coolidge occupied a box in the gallery opposite the speakers' table. Over the table hung a large oil painting of Abraham Lincoln, surmounted by the four--storred presidential flag.

Included at the speakers' table were Nathanial A. Elsberg, president of the National Republican club, United States Senator James W. Wadsworth; Charles D Hilles, members of the national committee from New York; Postmaster General Harry S. New; Chauncey M. Depew; Representative Bertrand M. Snell and Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy.

During the dinner the president joined the diners in singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." It was 9.40 o'clock before President Nathaniel A. Felberg of the National Republican club rose to introduce the speakers of the evening.

Mrs. August Belmont read Lincoln's Gettysburg Address and at the conclusion Chauncey M. Depew rose to lead the wave of hand clapping.

Senator Wadsworth, the first speaker eulogized Lincoln.

Recalling the simplicity of Lincoln's Gettysburg address, Senator Wadsworth said, "a very simple utterance was made by the president of the United last night, when in language we all understand," the senator said, "he stated the proper functions of the executive as compared with the functions of the senate he performed a great public service and he stated a profound truth."

Senator Wadsworth pleaded that the government be kept as close to the people as possible.

The audience rose and cheered as President Coolidge rose to speak at 10.10 o'clock as the orchestra played "The Star Spangled Banner." The president's address was frequently interrupted with applause.

The president prefaced his prepared address by praising Senator Wadsworth, saying, "he represents you in a capacity unexcelled in the senate of the United States."

The president's statement that "the national and local governments ought to be unremitting in their efforts to reduce expenditures and pay their debts" struck a sympathetic chord with his audience. Likewise his praise of Secretary Mellon's work in retiring the public debt was accorded.

The audience which included many of the nation's financial leaders also received approvingly the executive's mention of the British debt settlement as "an exhibition of the highest type of international honor."

Reference to the position of the Mellon tax bill to reduce maximum surtaxes 25 per cent was applauded loudly.

Applause frequently interrupted the president's statement of his opposition to a soldier bonus.

Immediately he began his discussion of the oil land lease disclosures the audience grew unusually silent. Statement of his intention quickly brought forth repeated applause.

The president concluded his address at 11.25 o'clock amid a roar of applause.

New York, Feb. 13.—(By the A. P.)—President Calvin Coolidge left New York for Washington at 12.45 o'clock this morning, hurrying back to his official duties immediately after an address at the Lincoln day dinner given by the National Republican club in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel last night.

Under terms of the contract, which was made public today, Col. Simmons agreed to cease all opposition to the Ku Klux Klan and the administration of Imperial Wizard Evans, and promised not to take part in any organization or movement having for its purpose the disruption, disorganization or interference with the klan. He retains "Klan Krest," the home the klan gave him several months ago.

All pending litigation against the Evans faction and the klan is to be dismissed. Colonel Simmons also resigned from the klan and from the Knights Kamelia, Inc., which he organized.

LOTTERY LOAN PROPOSED IN FRENCH CHAMBER

Paris, Feb. 12—(By the A. P.)—The spectre of bolshevism was held up to the chamber of deputies today as an argument against the government measures to balance the budget.

M. Tardieu in a speech bitterly critical of the government's financial and general policy said the only result of the new taxes that could be forecast with some certainty was increased strength to the communist part in the approaching elections. He regarded the government's measures as full of danger.

M. Klotz proposed a letter ytoan to be floated abroad in order to accumulate a reserve of foreign money equal to 10,000,000,000 francs.

POLICY ANNOUNCED BY NEW BRITISH PREMIER

London, Feb. 12. (By the A. P.)—In a calm atmosphere, though not devoid of excitement, and in circumstance which a few months ago would have been regarded as impossible, the new labor prime minister, J. Ramsay MacDonald, today announced the policy of his government to a crowded and intensely interested house. His speech was characterized as able and well reasoned, and it earned compliments from the former premiers, Stanley Baldwin and H. H. Asquith, leaders respectively of the conservative and liberal parties.

There were no scenes of turbulence or criticism, such as have characterized many former great occasions in British parliamentary annals. It might have been a new government formed by either of the two great traditional parties, which in past times have alternately controlled Great Britain's administration.

The country has called for fair play for the labor government, and from anything visible in the house of commons today fair play will be accorded.

Taking into consideration the novelty of the position of the ministers, who only had three weeks to prepare to present themselves before parliament under exceptionally difficult circumstances — circumstances which would have severely taxed the energies of the well-versed and experienced administrations formed by the older parties—the house was willing to adjourn immediately the prime minister concluded his speech, and would have done so but for the pertinacity of a few members.

One squad of troops under Captain Ivey Hanson, on orders of acting Mayor Nale, arrested Otis Clark, one of the men implicated in the mine disorders two years ago. Clark, who lives just outside of Herrin, later was released.

WILLIMANTIC

An owl penetrated the precincts of the Mill section of the city, shortly after one o'clock Tuesday morning and the bird's persistent hooting became quite a source of alarm to the neighborhood. One young man said that he was on his way home about that time and had reached a section where the street lights are some distance apart when the calmness of the early morning was broken by what he thought to be a woman calling out "Ooooo!" He looked in every direction but failed to find his Juliet and when the calling continued he became somewhat alarmed. Suddenly the call came from another direction and the young gentleman confesses that he ran and did not stop until he was snug and warm beneath the blankets of his bed. It is believed this is the same owl that was heard in the Pleasant street district, during the past week.

The Willimantic Welfare Bureau held its annual meeting at its headquarters on Meadow street Monday evening with a good attendance. M. E. Lincoln, the president, was in charge, the principal business being the reading of his report and that of the treasurer by Miss Elizabeth Anderson, secretary of the organization. Treasurer Lorimmee was absent as he was attending the aldermen's meeting. All reports were satisfactory and showed the activities of the Bureau. Rev. F. C. Williams, rector of St. Paul's church spoke on the work of the secretary of organization such as the local Welfare Bureau and said that he believed Miss Anderson was deserving of a larger salary, supplementing this recommendation by a motion that the incoming board of directors advise the secretary's salary to be $1,200 a years or $100 a month. The recommendation was accepted. The future work of the Bureau was then discussed and directors were elected as follows: M. E. Lincoln, C F Risedorf, J P Bath, J P Carlsen, Mrs. A. E. Green, Mrs. H. C. Lathrop, Mrs. R. H Fenton, Mrs G F Taylor, Mrs W A Dawson, Miss Mary Leary, Judge Otto B Robinson, Selectman Russell A. Andrews, Nelson A. Daniels, Samuel Chesebro, George S. Bartlett, Mrs. A. C. In his report President Lincoln told of the excellent work accomplished by the bureau since its inception, ten year ago. Within two years after the organization began to function the infant mortality dropped nearly 50 per cent. and the pauper account was decreased both in and outside the poor farm and has never been as large since dispite of the increase in population and the present high prices of living. The directors will meet on a later date to elect their officers and committees for the year.

Turcotte of Willimantic, whose license was revoked February 1 and who appealed February 9 against the order of the public health council ordering his license among others, to be revoked upon recommendation of the Holden grand jury which is investigating medical frauds in Connecticut, has taken an appeal to the superior court and has retained Attorneys John Buckley and William M. The loss is estimated to be over $2,000 partly covered by an insurance of $600 on the furniture and $700 on the house, carried through a Willimantic agency.

Despite of recent burglaries and attempted burglaries some of the store-keepers about the city continue careless. During the past month about ten doors of business houses were found open by the police officers. A nightly trip around the streets with one of the patrolman would soon convince the most skeptical that some merchants invite robberies through their carelessness. One establishment has a large basement window which has been broken for several weeks. The proprietor was notified and did nothing more than cut out a piece of cardboard and fit it into the window. The sidedoor to one grocery store has not been locked in months. When the owner was told of this he said that the lock was broken. He ended his worries by pushing a paper box and a piece of furniture against the door. The officers take particular pains in seeing that all entrances are well secured and they certainly merit cooperation on the part of the merchants.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Looking for Lollypops

"I've a lovely yellow bonnet
With a purple ribbon on it,
And a pretty velvet habit
That would most become a rabbit"
Sang a pretty lady duck, smiling at Little Jack Rabbit.

"I'm not looking for hats and bonnets," he laughed, "I'm looking for lollypops."

"Well then, you've come just too late," answered the Lady Duck Milliner, "mouse ate all mine last night."

"Ha, ha!" cried Little Jack Rabbit. "I'll soon catch him," and he kicked off his boots and laid aside his hat. "Show me your pantry."

But goodness me. That little mouse must have heard him, for, as the bunny boy opened the pantry door, away went a pretty gray mouse, helter-skelter across the floor and out into the yard. But where he ran after that I can't tell for he disappeared so quickly from sight.

"Oh, dear," sighed Little Jack Rabbit. "He left before I could twinkle my nose."

"What's the odds?" laughed the little lady duck milliner, "I'm rid of him, thanks to you."

"You're very welcome," answered the bunny boy, pulling on his boots. "Now I must be going," and with a bow, he hopped over the bridge to the other side of the silver river. A quaint little town ran down to the water's edge, and a large sign post told him it was Mouseville.

"Hurrah!" he cried, "now I shall find plenty of lollypops." But, dear me, he was mistaken if he imagined he would be able to find the stolen lollypops, for, at that moment, a large giant mouse, in a blue coat trimmed with gold buttons commanded him to halt.

"What are you doing in Mouseville?" he asked, lazily swinging his club "rabbits are not allowed in this city."

"Dear me!" answered the little bunny. "I wasn't aware of that. What shall I do?"

"Turn back," replied the Mouse Policeman.

As there seemed nothing else to do Little Jack Rabbit hopped back again All of a sudden, the pretty boat with the silver mast and pink sails drew up to the shore, and the Duck Captain shouted:

"Hop aboard! I have just learned that you have cleared my house of mice."

"His wife must keep the millinery shop," thought the bunny boy, hopping down the bank and aboard the pretty ship.

NEGOTIATION OF LIQUOR TREATIES POSTPONED

Washington, Feb. 13.—Active negotiations with various foreign governments looking to the adoption of liquor treaties similar to the one aimed at rum smuggling recently signed with Great Britain will be deferred pending senate action of ratification of the British-American pact. Constitutional phases are expected to enter prominently into the senate discussion of the pact.

The American minister at The Hague recently began discussions with the Netherlands government for such a treaty but it was said today at the state department that the conversations were merely preliminary and that, although several governments had expressed a willingness to enter upon liquor treaty negotiations, no definite action would be taken along this line before the senate had passed upon the treaty with Great Britain.

SENATOR JOHNSON TO CAMPAIGN IN THE WEST

Washington, Feb. 12.—Senator Johnson of California, candidate for the republican nomination for president, left tonight for a two weeks' speaking trip in the west, the most extensive so far of his campaign. After a conference tomorrow at his Chicago headquarters, he will spend three days speaking in central and southern Illinois, and then several days each in Nebraska, South Dakota and probably North Dakota.

An English dictionary published in 1573 seems to be the first book of this kind published.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

East Killingly residents are immensely interested in the prospect of getting a good improved highway from Elmville during the present year. At present there is a section of hard surface road from a point near Elmville to a point near the Valley school house. From Elmville station up over the hill and out to the point where the road crosses the trolley line the going is very bad, particularly in the winter season, and from the Valley school house up the heavy grade into East Killingly the going is extremely poor in winter and usually not extra good at other times of the year. All other centers of population in Killingly are now connected with other villages of the town with good improved highways. East Killingly, patiently waiting, now appears justified in urging that no further delay should be allowed in giving them a good road out to the state highway routes. People up there feel that the coming summer should be long enough for them to wait to see the construction work under way. Such a road as they advocate would also benefit people living through the farming districts in the northeastern section of the town where Killingly's first industrial advancement was made and where there is a possibility of a worth while revival of industry if it is given such good facilities for transportation as a new road would provide.

There are some fine mill sites with good water power up there. These sites were once occupied by thriving manufacturing companies. The stream from which much of the power was derived is still available. Much horse power daily goes to waste. Making it easy to transport raw products from the railroad line and finished materials back to a shipping point would almost certainly attract new industries to East Killingly to the benefit of the entire town. In support of this contention it may be point out that East Killingly now has, with all the handicaps of doing business as to transportation facilities, two of the most stable industries of the town—the Davis and Brown mill and the plant of the Asceptic Products company.

Attorney Louis A. Woisard, newly appointed to his duties, will begin this week the work of collecting personal taxes in the town of Killingly. He will be engaged at the work about a month and has appointed certain days to be in villages of the town that persons not resident in the borough may have convenient opportunity to pay. Those who are taxed on real estate have their personal taxes included with them if they so desire

People in official circles here have received communications, probably from relatives of Eugene Sheedy, asking for details regarding his death in a shanty near Goodyear, about two weeks ago. Sheedy and a companion were burned to death Sheedy had been a rover and irresponsible for many years of his life, and it is believed that his relatives had not been in touch with him for a long time.

An ample supply of application forms for motor vehicle operators licenses are available at the postoffice for those who desire them. Many have as yet not filed their renewals, yet the present licenses expire on the 29th of this month. The department at Hartford is now rushed with applications, so those who would not be without a license on March 1, and thereby debarred from legally operating a machine will do well to send in their applications at once.

Though it is a bit early to center public attention on the matter, it has been recalled that next month will bring the borough caucus for the nomination of borough officials for the ensuing year. Borough officers serve without pay and few are the citizens who clamor for a place on the board. Yet to render public service gratis the borough manages each year to get an able board.

Tuesday afternoon, the funeral of Mrs. Edith B. Dexter was held at the Foster Center church, Rev. Fred M. Buker of the Knotty Oak church, at Washington, R. I., officiating. Burial was at South Killingly. The bearers were Frank Dexter, Herbert Dexter, Clarence Dexter and Olney Knight. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

A fine bird dog owned by Dr. George M. Burrogs is dead—killed by an automobile. The dog had left home only a few minutes and was on North Main street, near the N. D. Prince house, when struck by the car. The driver of the machine hurried away.

These truly appear to be dead days of the year. Outside activities are at a minimum, business has slowed down and the workers are just plugging along getting ready for spring. Trade appears to be normal for this particular period of the year, but in that stage known as just between seasons.

Members of French societies in Killingly have learned that the general convention of such organizations in Connecticut is to be held at Putnam June 2 and 3. The societies of this town will be represented at the convention.

In the surrounding territory much of the ice that is used by farmers in conducting their dairy enterprises and for dairy purposes has been harvested and in numbers of cases the ice is as heavy as 12 inches.

Killingly High school's basketball team has a game scheduled with Tourtelotte Memorial High school at North Grosvenordale for this evening. Killingly defeated Tourtelotte here last month by a wide margin.

Stanley Dutka, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dutka, died Tuesday at their home in Goodyear. The young man was a native of Glasgow, this state, but had been resident in Goodyear for some time.

The body of Edward Brisson, year and a half old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brisson of Danials Village, near Ballouville, was buried at Westfield cemetery. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Danielson's banks were closed Tuesday in observance of Lincoln's birthday. Flags were flown at many points in the borough in observance of the anniversary.

Speaking of the virginity of Abou Ben Adam—which no one is doing, it may be remarked that it is nice weather for writing about many things, isn't it?

Plowing on the ice harvest at Quinsbaug lake is expected to be undertaken this morning. The ice is sufficiently heavy now and of excellent quality.

Henry C. Meskell of New Bedford was a visitor with friends in Danielson Tuesday.

Mrs. R. R. James was dazed and severely sharken up when she slipped and fell on the ice near Academy street while on her way to church.

Hunters are pointing out that the past few days have been the most severe of the winter on game birds, as ice has covered much of the territory in which they feed hereabouts.

Again this year the annual field day and track meet of Y. M. C. A. and high school athletes of the county is to be held at the Brooklyn fair grounds, May 17. This event will bring a large number of competitors into action from various sections of the county.

Charles G. Carver has been appointed administrator of the estate of Melissa E. Carver.

Mrs. W. J. Craig had the members of the W. C. T. U. at her home for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Thursday evening's boxing exhibition here will bring together followers of the sports from many sections of eastern Connecticut.

PUTNAM

The new advanced rates of fares in force on the lines of the Connecticut company in this section of the state. Passengers are now buying 3 tokens for 25 cents, as against a charge of 2 tokens for 15 cents, a rate in effect since last spring. The advance is so slight that practically no attention has been paid to the matter by patrons of the road in this territory.

Valentine parties will be the rule in this city Thursday evening. Several such events have been scheduled. The approach of February 14 has brought on a lively sale of souvenirs of many kinds, and a majority of these will find their way into the mails today and tomorrow.

Wells great quantities of freight are being moved through Putnam over the tracks of the New Haven, the local freight is said to be running light, due to depressed conditions in the textile industry.

An icy turn, where the pavement slants at the corner near the First National bank building has been giving automobile drivers a thrill the past two days. Many machines have taken amazing skids at this point, though no accidents has occurred.

The current issue of the Country Gentlemen features a story relative to the Chester F. May orchard, in Woodstock, where a $6,000 crop of apples was picked last fall from trees that had been fertilized and sprayed under the direction of the County Farmers' association cooperating with the pomological department of the Connecticut Agricultural college. In previous years the orchard had not been doing uniformly well. Mr. May offered to sell the farm for $14,000 in the fall of 1922, and refused $20,000 in the fall of 1923. The place is not for sale. Scientific treatment of the apple orchard has greatly added to the value of the farm, where 1200 barrels of apples were grown last year.

Putnam's board of relief is now holding regular sessions and will continue to do so during the greater part of the present month.

Local members of the organization will be in Danielson this (Wednesday) evening to attend a meeting of the Rod and Gun club.

Peter Belanger, proprietor of a house that was raided in Woodstock a week ago last Sunday morning, has been fined $367 in Justice Charles M. Perrin's court in that town and sentenced to serve 20 days in jail. The $7 over and above $360 in his fine represents a penalty inflicted because of his keeping an unlicensed dog.

Miss Irene Champeau of Hartford recently visited here with her father, Isaac Champeau.

It has been definitely decided that a general convention of French societies of Connecticut will be held in this city on June 2-3. It is estimated that about 120 organizations will be represented and that delegations will be here from every part of Connecticut. The delegations will begin to assemble here on Sunday afternoon, June 1. Details for their entertainment are now being worked out.

In New York today (Wednesday) the trial of Joseph Diamond, on a murder charge, will begin. Diamond is a brother of Barlow M. Diamond, who was found guilty last Saturday of murder in the first degree. There is interest in their cases here because of the fact that Barlow Diamond was sentenced in the superior court in this city last year to serve six months in Brooklyn jail for an affair in which he became involved in Woodstock.

Charles Smith, chairman for the month, has charge of the preparation of the program for the senior men's monthly meeting at the Baptist church next Monday evening.

Secretary Albert F. Ralston of the chamber of commerce announced on Tuesday that plans are being made for the general spring opening in Putnam on April 5. A general Dollar Day event will precede this opening.

A meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association Tuesday evening in the assembly hall at the high school included the giving of a program suggestive of St. Valentine's day.

A recent item in this column made it appear that 15 raids for liquor recently were made at North Grosvenordale. This was far from the fact, as the raids represented a week's work by officers in various towns in the eastern part of the county. North Grosvenordale does not want to blame for all the raids, not even those made in other parts of the town of Thompson, and one cannot blame North Grosvenordale for that.

A committee of the common council has under consideration the recommendation of Charles T. Thayer, superintendent of the city's fire alarm system, that Boxes 12, 26, and 35, being obsolete be removed and replaced with more modern installations. There are 23 boxes in the city's fire alarm system.

An adjourned meeting of the common council is to be held Tuesday evening next for the purpose of preparing the budget for the year and to estimate the tax rate for the period. The council's recommendations later will come before a special city meeting for approval.

February 27 has been selected as the date for the Y. M. C. A. Father and Son banquet at North Grosvenordale. Secretary John H. Corbett of this city is much interested in the plans for this meeting.

There have been no announcements as yet relative to the offering at public sale of th property of the Manhasset company, as authorized by a court order issued the past month. It is believed that the receivers are advancing plans for the sale and that it may come next month, though this is not at all certain.

Harry Davis, a student at Suffield, has been a recent visitor with relatives in Putnam.

Deputy Judge Archibald Macdonald presided at a session of the city court Tuesday morning. The cases of three men charged with having been intoxicated were presented.

Walter N. King, secretary of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association has sent out notices of a meeting of the organization to be held in Plainfield next Monday evening.

Cars driven by Fred Robitaille of this city and George Sampson were in collision at the junction of Bridge and Chapel streets. Neither car was seriously damaged and no one was injured.

There was a considerable display of flags about the city Tuesday in observance of Lincoln's birthday.

Placards in cars of the Connecticut company on the Putnam lines call attention to the fact that the mild winter and absence of snow has not proved the boon to the company that many believe. It was an expensive operation to keep the lines open during the heavy storm periods of last winter, but the additional riding on the company's lines offset the snow removal costs by an excess of $100,000.

County Investigator W. E. Jackson and Prohibition Officer William Congdon, both of Willimantic, were visitors in Putnam Tuesday.

COLUMBIA

In a monthly circular issued by E. S. Russell, school supervisor for this district, he makes many interesting statements in relation to the schools under his supervision.

Regarding the subject of reading, he states that a child who is reading as well as the average of his age is credited with 100 per cent., those who are above, receive more, and those below less. He states that the average of the pupils in all of the Columbia schools is 96 per cent., while in one town in the district, it is as high as 102 per cent., and in another as low as 92 per cent. He also states that the children from these towns have shown good scholarship at the high school, attaining an average of 75 per cent. at the mid-year examinations of the freshman year.

Several schools are circulating a school paper, and at seven schools hot lunches are served. The pupils have all been weighed and measured for height, it being essential that a proper weight should be maintained as undernourishment is the usual cause of inefficiency in the school.

Interest is still maintained by the pupils in the savings system introduced in the schools last year, one teacher having a 100 per cent. enrollment in the savings bank.

As a result of the severe ice storm it is reported that many telephones in the North district, West street and Post Hill, are not working, necessitating in some cases, that persons must come to the center to telephone. During Friday employes of the telephone company were busy on the green in restoring broken telephone connections.

Saturday was an ideal day for harvesting the ice crop, and H. W. Porter embraced the opportunity by engaging men and vehicles for the purpose. By night fall the work was not completed, and was continued throughout Sunday. Erwin Collins, who had been engaged for a few days in filling his house, completed it by Saturday night. Many others were planning to begin Monday morning.

Charles K. Hitchcock is still confined to his home with a severe attack of neuritis, with which he has been afflicted for about two weeks.

The young people's social at the parsonage is anticipated with much pleasure, being held once in two weeks. Friday evening last there was a good attendance, the games being led by Joseph and Lawrence Hutchins and supplemented with refreshments.

Sunday morning, considering the treacherous walking there was a good congregation at church, the pastor preaching an able sermon on the text, "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

Thursday evening there is to be a community meeting at the schoolhouse on Chestnut Hill. Addresses will be made by School Supervisor E. S. Russell and Rev. Charles C. Haun. There will also be a debate by the pupils. It is to be a social meeting, and parents of the children as well as other residents generally have been invited to attend.

Mrs. Juna Belle Squier is taking a vacation of eighteen days from her duties as a nurse at the Mansfield Training school and is at present at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Utley on the green. Her son, Marshall, is with her. Some time ago he met with an accident to his foot, necessitating treatment in a hospital, where he was confined for five weeks, having recently been discharged.

The meeting of the Christian Endeavor society was held in the church Sunday evening and was attended by a large delegation from the Hebron society. Special music was furnished by an orchestra composed of seven members from Hebron and Columbia.

LEONARD BRIDGE

The repairmen of the Southern New England Telephone company have had a busy time the past week getting their lines back into working order after being badly affected by the ice storm. One lineman, while cutting a branch from a tree, had a branch fall, striking him on the head, cutting a gash about an inch long. He went into a nearby home where the cut was cleansed and cared for after which he was able to continue working. Another lineman fell from a telephone pole and was quite badly injured.

Bronchitis Best Treated With Vapors

Direct Treatment with Vaporizing Salve Immediately Reaches Congested Air Passages.

If a cold has been neglected and has gone down into the chest, producing acute bronchitis, thoroughly redden the skin over throat and chest with hot, wet towels to open the pores. Then massage briskly with Vicks for five minutes, spread on thickly and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths.

For hours after Vicks is applied the vapors of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Juniper Tar, etc., are inhaled directly into the infected air passages. At the same time Vicks is absorbed thru and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

Being externally applied, Vicks is especially good for children and is used by millions of mothers to prevent or relieve cold troubles.

"Coolidge Double" Charges Bok Peace Jury Too Favorable To League

Frank Hendrick, the New York lawyer, who submitted a "peace plan" in the American Peace Award contest of Edward Bok, and who has charged that the jury which selected the plan, on which the nation is now balloting, was naturally too predisposed to favor the League of Nations, so that no plan which ignored the League would receive favorable consideration. Note his remarkable resemblance to President Coolidge.

Such popularity must be deserved

TO BE singled out for public honor, a man must have proved his quality. And to be chosen by millions, even a cigarette must have "made good."

So Chesterfield's swift rise to popularity is more than a measure of success. It is proof positive of finer tobaccos—which means better taste.

And better taste is the sole reason for Chesterfield's huge sales.

POETRY

THE PERSIAN RUG

I saw a rug, rich in delicate tint,
Woven with inspired traceries of gold,
The life-work of some Persian master-hand;
Each thread had been selected for its shade,
The finest colors chosen without stint,
In soft relief the pattern was upwrought;
So carefully the artisan had planned
He did unto a perfect whole succeed.

I viewed a crowd of uncouth people pass
With mud-stained shoes and trample on the rug,
Not one gave thought for love or labor spent
To make that work a thing of beauty rare;
Unthinking fools, the product of a class
Who live in careless luxury, and exist,
Nescient to lovely things, indifferent
To all achievements;—they did not care!

How like, I thought, my weavings of the mind,
The threads of gold I strive so hard to make
Into the perfect patterns of my soul
Are trampled on, ignored and cast aside.
The colorful words that I with love combined
Are drab and dark. Life's crystals are opaque
To common hearts. O you who read my scroll
Think of that rug that was the Persian's pride.

—Charles L. H. Wagner in Boston Transcript.

Geraniums

Of all the flowers East and West
I like geraniums the best.
In gingham gowns they seem to dress,
Yet lose no whit of comeliness.
Of wholesome things they make one think—
Of apples and new milk to drink,
And pleasant neighbors met to talk
About the porch and garden walk.
An Joan and Darby, smiling still
At posies on their window-sill.

They are as commonplace and right
As books and tea and candle-light.
And all about them is the scent
Of home and comfort and content.
Roses and romance have their place,
But here's an old friend's honest face.
And who would trade so good a thing
For all the brief coquettes of spring?

Of all the flowers East and West
I like geraniums the best.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE SPEAKS.

In his Lincoln day address in New York, President Coolidge took occasion to deal with certain questions that were handled in his message at the opening of congress, while he dealt in no uncertain terms with other matters which are interesting the country.

On the subject of taxation and the reduction of taxes he displayed his unflagging support of the Mellon bill which has for its purpose the giving to the country all the relief from the burden of taxation which it is possible to give. He spoke strongly against compromise for political purposes and against bills which are presented just to have something different but which are impossible in practice, and he served notice upon the people that there was danger that the desired reductions in taxation would not be obtained unless they made their wishes known to congress. That should be plain enough to that great army which has been carrying the burdens of taxation long enough.

The president was emphatic regarding the bonus and gave his reasons for opposing the use of the government's money in such a way as to postpone tax reduction, increase the cost of living, dry up sources of credit, probably raise the rate of interest, causing inflation and danger to the economic system.

On the question of the oil leases the president displayed that same consistency that he has shown since the inquiry took the sensational turn. There is a commendable position he takes when he says, "We propose to follow the clear, open path of justice. There will be immediate, adequate, unshrinking prosecution, criminal and civil, to punish the guilty and to protect every national interest. In this effort there will be no politics, no partisanship. It will be speedy, it will be just. I am a republican, but I cannot on that account prosecute anyone because he is a democrat."

The president has proceeded in a sane manner to "the enforcement of our laws without fear or favor, no matter who is hurt or what the consequences." He is not proceeding in an hysterical manner, but with a determination to deal effectively with the facts, and there is no question but what the country has faith in his determination and sincerity, and likewise in his course.

The president's address was not given up to oratory but to a setting forth of facts, the policies of the administration and the endeavors for national welfare. It was an impressive statement which reinforced the belief that the country has the right man in the right place.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE SENATE.

The United States senate has been dickering around for a number of days with a resolution calling upon the president to ask for the resignation of Secretary Denby, a member of the president's cabinet, because the secretary of the navy made a poor impression before the senate committee investigating oil leases.

The senate was perfectly aware of the fact that Secretary Denby has not been found to have been concerned in any wrong doing, that he did not participate in any of the oil money that was distributed and that he has had no trial to determine any guilt on his part. It was likewise thoroughly familiar with the fact that it was undertaking something over which it had no control, that if it could not impeach a cabinet member, and Senator Walsh frankly said that he didn't consider it could be done, that it was trying to dictate to the president in a matter over which it had no jurisdiction, and the vote in itself indicates the political nature of the whole proceeding.

Even though the embarrassment of the administration was aimed at it missed fire. President Coolidge promptly and coolly let it be known that he would give no consideration to the senate's endeavor. He took occasion to state that steps had been taken to assemble the pertinent facts surrounding the oil leases by competent bi-partisan counsel and just as soon as they are ready he will take necessary action for the full protection of the public interest.

The president is fully conscious of his responsibility to the people. It is unfortunate that any cabinet member should be involved in the oil scandal, but the president is right in refusing to sacrifice any man before it is determined whether he is guilty or innocent. Justice is demanded, and wrong doing must be punished, but justice doesn't mean the lynching of a man without a hearing or a trial. The country will commend the president for his attitude.

CAPE COD CANAL.

Getting a favorable report for the purchase of the Cape Cod canal doesn't necessarily mean that it will be approved and the necessary money voted. That it will mean progress and help in the endeavor is recognized.

This is a project that has been before congress on previous occasions. The acquisition of this waterway by the government is urged for the purpose of bettering the defense of the New England coast and to improve commercial conditions. The waterway exists today and will continue to be used but it requires development that is not likely under private ownership.

The canal means a short cut for coasting vessels and it likewise means protection for the large amount of property and the many lives that are involved in negotiating Cape Cod. During the present winter there have been several vessels which have come to grief in trying to negotiate the narrow channel and avoid the sandbars along the cape. While much traffic is now accommodated by the canal there are those vessels which fail to take advantage of it because of restricted depth and width and because of the rates.

The advantage of such a waterway for defense purposes must be quite as apparent, even though on a much smaller scale, as in the case of the Panama canal. Whatever elimination distance, bad shoals and outside operations in severe weather is worth acquiring. The work of the coast guard vessels at such a point would be greatly relieved through government purchase and development of the canal.

INCREASED TROLLEY FARES.

Whether sober second thought will have guided the efforts of those who have been disposed to upset the increase in trolley fares, announced last month by the Connecticut company and put into effect this week, remains to be seen.

There isn't anything that seems to arouse greater opposition than the increase in trolley fares, however slight it may be. There is little disposition to accept any statements that show such a change to be necessary as honest. There is a determined effort on the part of some to make the introduction of expense saving facilities, such as would tend to make increased revenue unnecessary, impossible and yet improved service is demanded when the means to keep up existing service are inadequate.

The mayor of Waterbury takes the view that while he would like to see the trolley fare stay where it is he is not desirous of seeing the trolley company "handicapped by a fare so low that it cannot continue its present good service in Waterbury, or cannot go through with its plans to give Waterbury a better and safer service."

The increase in trolley fares must be considered on a matter of fact basis. The company would prefer to be able to put a lowered fare into effect at this time than to order an increase. It has done the latter because conditions demand it and it is to be presumed that it is in a position to substantiate its claims. The test that has been made with a lowered fare has not met expectations. Increased patronage has not kept pace with the increased expenses and the mayor of Waterbury realizes that there is ground for dealing justly with all, even with a trolley company.

LIMITING LOADS.

It is interesting to note that more states than Connecticut have been forced to adopt restrictions on the size of loads that can be driven over unpaved highways of the state. Not only has Indiana done so but thus far there have been ten drivers who have been arrested by inspectors for hauling heavier loads than the regulations permitted. These loads were from a half ton to three tons greater than allowed, and the effect of their arrest should be to direct more attention to a proper restriction of loads.

During the season of the year when frost is coming out of the ground big trucks raise havoc with a roadbed. They not only make bad places much worse but they contribute seriously to the breaking down of the roads which have cost much to construct and maintain, and which always involves heavy expense in getting back into shape after the overloaded trucks tear them to pieces. In spite of their dependence upon good roads it is the experience in Indiana, and it differs little from other states, that truck drivers in too many instances care little for the effects upon the roads so long as they get through.

Until the time comes when all highways are of permanent construction, the idea of limiting the capacity of highway loads during the months of the years when the frost is doing its stunts must be regarded as wise, and to accomplish its purpose it must be enforced.

REASON FOR WORRY

"How was the new play?" asked the girl with the squirrel coat. "I hear you went to the opening performance."

"Oh, the play was good enough," the debutante responded. "But I will never go out to the theatre or concert with Bill Morton a gain."

"Not go with Bill?" He is the most popular man in the older set, and you know it. Why, just having Bill take you out is enough to make all the younger fellows crazy about you. And Bill's such good company. What's the matter with you, anyway, Eve?"

"Oh, I know he talks well and is amusing most of the time, and he surely does know how to order a dinner and pick a good play, but just the same I'm 'off' Bill for life."

"Good gracious, Eve, what did he do? What did he say that makes you talk like that. Even that popular Mrs. Cameron says Bill is worth a whole evening of time from any woman."

"Well, maybe no other girl would mind, but I just didn't like his talking shop all evening."

"Shop? Bill doesn't keep shop! You know perfectly well he's an author, and if he only would talk about his work every girl I know would be thrilled to be confided in. Talk shop, indeed! You should shoot it from the housetops if you ever got Bill to talk shop."

"Well, you needn't get mad about it," Eve responded, airily. "I wasn't talking of Bill's shop, but you know while father was in the war mother was sure he would never get back and she'd have to earn her living, so she started a hairdressing shop, as hairdressing was the only thing she was clever at. Father admired her no end for it, but it made him unhappy, too, so we don't speak of hair in our family since father got back safe and sound."

"Honestly, Eve, what are you raving about? Bill didn't talk about your mother's shop, did he?"

"No, but he kept talking about hair. We sat in the fifth row and I never saw so many bald and nearly bald men in my life as were in the rows before us. You know, Bill's hair is getting pretty thin on top, and evidently he is worried about it, for before the play began he looked over the display in front of us and murmured, 'Honest Eve, am I as bald as that chap two rows in front of us?'

"I hastened to assure him he wasn't for that man was shiny as a billiard ball and 30 if he was a day. But evidently Bill expected more from us for after the first act he remarked, 'So many men get bald early these days. Look at all that let in front of us. And I suppose I'm as bad as some of them, at that.'

"I changed the subject as usefully as I could and didn't think any more of it, but after the second act we went out in the lobby and the first thing I knew there was Bill, squinting sidewise into a mirror on the wall and trying to compare the back of his head with that of a thinly thatched youth just beyond us.

"By that time I was pretty well fed up. And then, when we came out after the play and met the Winchells on the walk, Bill raised his hat, but put it on again at once, remarking, 'My hair is getting so thin I'm afraid to stand with my hat off in this chill wind. Might catch cold.'

"Alice Winchell laughed and said something silly about the hairs of one's head being numbered and she took hold of his arm as if he belonged to her and started ahead, leaving me to follow with that stodgy husband of hers, just looking over her shoulder to ask me if I thought it would be easy to count Bill's hairs."

"And then?" prompted her friend.

"Well, I guess Bill won't ask me to go with him again anyway, for I just said I hadn't given the matter any thought because I'd been taught never to speak ill of the absent."—Exchange

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Coal Prices and Export Taxes

Mr. Editor: What is all the talk we hear about coal and the governors conferences as though some one was trying to reduce the price of coal to the consumer? Is it all camouflage and darkening counsel, with words with knowledge to make the dear people think these officials are working for their interest? And the big holler about a tax, what does the constitution of the United States mean when it says no tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any state, nor shall vessels bound to or from one state be obliged to enter, clear or pay duties in another? I am no lawyer so I don't see any way to twist this so as to collect a tax either coming or going from one state to another. If Governor Pinchot or other officials of the state of Pennsylvania want to collect revenue on their property why don't they take the same means they did to collect of the farmers, lay a good big tax on the mine and collect it whether the operators work the mines or not? If these operators were obliged to pay even 4 per cent tax on the actual worth of their mines they would mine more coal is my opinion. Plenty of farmers who have mortgages on their farms pay to the holder 5 and perhaps 6 per cent. on the mortgage note, then pay the town from 2 to 4 per cent more, making the maximum 10 per cent. Many of these farmers can't manage anyway to make their farms pay them three per cent on their investment so in a few years their farm is confiscated and they became a burden on the town and state. Secretary Mellon advocates tax reduction for fear that people are making 200 per cent will stop doing business and put their money where it won't earn but 4 per cent but no reduction for farmers.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

E. F. W. Alexanderson, who has been decorated by the Polish government in recognition of his services in connection with the building of Poland's new radio station near Warsaw, is an American electrical engineer who has gained international fame by his radio inventions. It was his invention of the high frequency alternator which made possible the sending of wireless messages 3,000 miles at five times the former speed. It was his devices also that made possible the operation of the New Brunswick wireless station the last six months of the war with such marvelous results, demonstrating for the last time that transoceanic radio communication for 1,000 miles was possible practically every hour of the day. Mr. Alexanderson is a native of Sweden. He came to the United States 22 years ago and has been consulting engineer for one of the great electrical corporations. Today more than 100 of his inventions are protected by patents in the United States and other countries.

POLITICAL HYPOCRITES

"The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, God I thank thee that I am not as other men are..... or even as this (re) publication." These words naturally came to our minds as we read the pharisaical statement of Cordell Hull, chairman of the democratic national committee, that the democratic campaign cry this fall would be "Clean Government or Corrupt Government." Much better might each party cry out: "God be merciful to me a sinner."

Each party is on trial, each party must nominate candidates of known integrity, of unsullied reputation, men who believe in the Constitution of the United States; or the voters will themselves make the campaign cry "Woe unto Scribes and Pharisees and Hypocrites."

The oil investigation has been far reaching. It has blasted reputations. It will eliminate presidential candidates.

The two most valuable trademarks in the United States have been the words "republican" and "democrat." Politicians desiring to overthrow the constitution, to make this nation socialistic, communistic, even bolshevistic, have hypocritically attempted to use these trade marks in furthering their designs. There are today in Washington, elected as republicans or as democrats, senators and representatives who, believing neither in the constitution nor in the principles of either party, are doing everything they can to destroy the constitution and the party whose trade-mark they have dishonestly used.

It behooves the delegates to the national conventions of both the republican and democratic parties this year to see to it that their platforms are honest and straightforward, that their candidates are truly representative of their respective parties and their respective platforms, and that those who "bore from within" shall no longer be recognized as belonging to either party but shall be obliged to call under their true colors of communists, socialists and bolshevists.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

KABUL

"A city the size of Omaha or Atlanta, capital of an independent country of 5 million souls, might be expected to be at least as well-known to globe-trotters as Bagdad or Rangoon or Seoul," says a bulletin from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society dealing with Kabul, seat of the Amir of Afghanistan, with whom Great Britain is having friction over the Indian northwest frontier.

"And that in this city are numerous automobiles, grand pianos, phonographs, sewing machines and other implements connected with the superficial phases of modern civilization," continues the bulletin, "and one expects to find there the usual colony of Westerners that most oriental capitals harbor.

"But Kabul is not known to travelers and is devoid of a Western colony. It stands out among world capitals because of its discrimination between the things of the West and the people of the West. Some years ago it extended an exploratory toe, so to speak, into the sea of civilization to test the comfort of its temperature; and it has since been wading about ankle deep, seemingly not at all sure that it shall ever want to take the full plunge as did its fellow Asiatic states, Japan and Siam.

"Afghanistan's Amir, about the only absolute monarch left after the whirlwind of the World war, sets the pace for his country's and city's acceptance. He sought an old furniture and bookshop to see if it was obtainable. The proprietor brought out a well worn copy that had been bought with other second hand material. On opening it Charles found his own name written on the fly leaf. It was the book he loaned 25 years ago!

She Missed Part of the Show!

A woman who recently returned from a tour of the west was proudly displaying to her friends souvenir booklets she had collected of places she had been in and wonders she had seen.

One particularly attractive view showed a number of volcanic peaks in activity.

"I saw lots of them," she explained, "but when I saw them there wasn't any corruption coming out of them."

Keep Names Secret.

Writing of tabooed words in The Golden Bough, Sir J. G. Frazer says: "The Indians of Chiloe keep their names secret, and do not like to have them uttered aloud; for they say that there are fairies or imps on the mainland or neighboring islands who, if they knew folks' names, would do them an injury; but so long as they do not know the names these mischeivous sprites are powerless. The Araucanians will hardly ever tell a stranger their names, because they fear that he would thereby acquire some supernatural power over themselves. Asked his name by a stranger who is ignorant of their superstition, an Araucanian will answer: 'I have none.' When an Ojibway is asked his name he will look at some bystander and ask him to answer.

A woman never likes to admit that she is beaten—even after her husband beats her.

Stories That Recall Others

Borrowed Books

Borrowed books, like umbrellas may fail to show up again, but there's no use being downhearted. Charles loaned a valuable book to a friend something like 25 years ago. It was Max Maretzek's "Crochets and Quavers." The book didn't come back, but Charles needed a copy of it for reference.

WEDDINGS

Hobson—Smith

Clifton H. Hobson, superintendent of the public school at Palmer, Mass., and Miss Pearl May Smith of Springfield, were married last Saturday afternoon at the new home of the couple on Middlesex street, Springfield. Rev. E. R. Leach, pastor of St. James Methodist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a small gathering of relatives. Guests were present from Meriden, Conn., Palmer and Springfield.

The bride who was attended by her sister, Miss Grace Smith, wore a bridal gown of white satin with trimmings of shadow lace and a band of orange blossoms in her hair. She carried bride roses and valley lilies. The bridesmaid wore peach colored crepe de chine and with trimmings of robin's egg blue and carried sweetheart roses. Ernest E. Hobson of Palmer served his brother as best man.

Luncheon was served after the ceremony and Mr. and Mrs. Hobson left on a short wedding trip. Upon their return they will live in Middlesex street. The bride was formerly employed at Johnson's book store. Mr. Hobson is a graduate of Brown university and was superintendent of the Greeneville school in Norwich at one time.

KU KLUX CROSS APPEARS IN TWO PLACES ON NORWICH HILLS

Lincoln's birthday in Norwich was signalized by the appearance of the fiery cross of the Ku Klux Klan in two different places in the city Tuesday night. One of the blazing emblems was outlined against the sky on the Preston side of the Shetucket river across from Schofield's hill, and the other was seen on the top of Edwards hill at a point where fireworks were set off last summer.

Both places were well calculated to attract attention to the blazing crosses and the news quickly spread around the city that the Klan was making a demonstration, the first visible signs of the organization here. The crosses were placed and lighted with the usual successful secrecy that shrouds the activities of the Klan and both burned for about half an hour between 10.30 and 11 o'clock.

Investigation by the police showed that the crosses were about 16 feet high and as they blazed their form could easily be made out from the city streets.

Sergeant John Casey, who went to the location of the cross opposite Schofield's hill, brought back from a sign board about three feet high, fashioned from boards from boxes that had contained canned goods. Written on the board with a heavy black marking pencil were the following words:

"Abraham Lincoln, a 100 per cent American, once said the foundation of our country is laid in the public schools. We intend to keep it secure and untainted.

"K. K. K."

Tacked on the upper corner of the board were several pamphlets with the title Principles and Purposes of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan are outlined by an Exalted Cyclops of the Order.

Officers Elmer Allen and Patrick Murphy were sent to investigate the cross of Edwards hill but found nothing there except the cross which had burned out by the time they reached the place.

However, a note dropped into The Bulletin box during the night stated that the inscription for the Edwards hill cross was the following:

"Abraham Lincoln, a 100 per cent American, used Jesus Christ as his criterion of character. So do we.

"K. K. K."

The appearance of the blazing symbols of the Klan is taken to indicate that the organization has been effected here, following a recent meeting in a Norwich hall where the principles of the order were explained to a group of men who had received invitations to attend.

REV. E. C. DUNBAR SPEAKER AT Y. M. C. A. FACTORY MEETING

Y. M. C. A. representatives conducted another noon meeting Tuesday at the plant of the Norwich Belt company. Rev. E. C. Dunbar was the speaker and his message was listened to with real interest by the goodly group of employes. Mr. Dunbar's topic was A Religion of Three Dimensions.

He spoke in part as follows: Life has to do with vital facts—there must be standards of measurements. If a man sold you a cord of wood and youn found that he had given you less than the full amount, you would probably tell that man what you thought of him; on the other hand if the next time he gave you more than he should, you would probably not thank him for the extra wood I remember having purchased two boxes of strawberries in Boston at a bargain price, but when Mrs. Dunbar prepared to use them, she discovered that all except the top layers were very inferior berries; the man who sold them to me used the wrong standards in his business. You probably know the secrets of the leather business, and you have certain standards to go by. The machinist has his standards by which to do his important work. You have your idea of what a man should be; you make sure a preacher by a certain standard, and if he does not measure up, you have little use for him. The Christian life has a standard, and Jesus Christ is that standard. There are certain standards in religion, in the Congregational, Baptist, Methodist, Roman Catholic or any other church. God has one standard on which to base measurement, and this standard is suggested in that Bible passage, "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart." The three dimensions of religion I have suggested are as follows: When I studied geometry I was told that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points; the two points in religion are God and man, and it is very important that this line be kept clear; it is always clear on God's end, but we are apt to allow certain things to clog up our end of the line. This straight line suggests the thought of prayer, and therefore personal contact; we can go direct to Him, and in our trials and distress we cry, "My God." The mother in her struggle to bring a new life into the world, cries, "My God, help me." Jesus himself in the great crises of His life did this very thing; in the garden, He cried, "My God," and while He hung on the cross, He again cried, "My God." If He needed the straight line for prayer, how much more do we need it. This personal contact gives us courage; Washington knelt in the snow in a crisis, and prayed for help; Lincoln made much use of this personal contact with God. Another dimension of religion is the surface or breadth; the idea of co-operation; working together; we are all so dependent on one another; for our food our clothes, in fact for everything we have we must depend on one another. Not only individuals, but nations also are dependent upon each other; even America feels her dependence on the other nations. The third dimension is the idea of united service under organization. Someone has said that an army is an organized mob; a church is an organization of believers for service to the whole world. Every man needs the church for his own sake; he finds in the church an opportunity to serve with others. The church is greater than any other organization; it has a great influence on the political, social and religious life of the world, and it goes outside of itself that it may render service to all mankind.

AID FOR ALLIED VETERANS FREE IN K. OF C. SCHOOLS

The five evening schools of the New York Chapter, Knights of Columbus, in this city, are to give free tuition to veterans of the World War from any of the allied armies or navies who are now living in the United States, according to a decision of the supreme board of directors of the order, made recently. Up to-the time of this decision only veterans of the United States forces were received free of charge in the K. of C. schools, the tuition for these students being paid from the Knights' share of the United War Welfare fund collected from the public during the war.

"Many of the allied veterans have come to this country in order to earn a living, and it was felt that we owed it to our allies and to ourselves to help rehabilitate these men and make them useful citizens of the United States," says a K. of C. bulletin. The decision means that in addition to the 2,000 veterans now taking courses in the schools in this city the Knights will be called upon to teach several hundred allied veterans. The New York chapter now conducts a complete evening high school, a large trade school and three commercial schools.

Educational Director Anthony J. Pugliese says: "The decision of the Supreme Board is opportune, since we have just enlarged our evening trade school to double the capacity of last year, and we have inaugurated morning and afternoon auto courses. A branch of the evening high school has also been opened in the Bronx. Courses in English to foreigners and citizenship have also been added to our commercial school curricula, with an eye to inducing foreigners to partake more fully in the political and social life of the country of their adoption. Our service to the men who fought for us is far from finished; we have not forgotten them, and we shall continue to improve our facilities for giving them free training as long as there are veterans who need it. We are happy to be able to extend our service to the men who fought side by side with the boys of the A. E. F."

HAWTHORNE'S DAUGHTER WORKS FOR CANCEROUS POOR

She joined the Catholic Sisterhood and in time became superior of Rosary Hill Home, at Hawthorne, N. J., and is known in religion as Mother Mary Alphonsa (Lathrop).

Charitable Catholics and other friends aided her work, which New York papers warmly commended. On Tuesday, in a New York daily, she had the following statement:

DIAMOND BROTHERS NERVOUS, DISTURB OTHER PRISONERS

There is interest in Woodstock and Brooklyn in the fact that Morris B. Diamond, convicted in New York of murder in the first degree in the slaying of William S. Barlow and William H. McLaughlin, Brooklyn, N. Y., bank messengers, continues in a highly nervous state.

Warden Harry C. Honeck of Raymond Street Jail said the prisoner spent most of the day pacing back and forth in his cell, mumbling about his fate and criticising the trial in which a jury before Supreme Court Justice Cropsey found him guilty Saturday night.

Although his brother, Joseph G. Diamond, showed increasing agitation as his trial date—this (Wednesday) morning—approached, he was far less restive than Morris.

It was learned that the Diamond brothers paced up and down in their cells so nervously and called to each other so frequently Sunday night, that another prisoner, accused of setting fire to Bath Beach house in which six persons were burned to death, complained to the warden in the morning that he had been unable to sleep.

In a recent letter to a friend, Joseph Diamond took a rhyme in expressing his emotions.

District Attorney Dodd has designated Assistant District Attorney Joseph V. Gallagher to prosecute Joseph. Justice Cropsey will preside at the trial. Examination of talesmen will be begun this (Wednesday) morning.

So that he might be apart from others held in Raymond street jail as material witnesses, Angelo Farina, brother of John Farina, one of the men indicted for murder was transferred Monday to the Tombs. In Morris Diamond's trial, counsel for the defense made much of the fact the stories told by men held in Raymond street jail as material witnesses were similar. It was alleged that in their companionship in the jail the witnesses had had opportunity to make their stories agree.

BOY SCOUT PILGRIMAGE TO HISTORICAL PLACES

A delegation of Boy Scouts of Norwich had their pilgrimage Tuesday afternoon to historical places in the vicinity visiting Uncas Monument on Sachem street, the tomb of Samuel Huntington, the graves of the French soldiers and the John Mason monument at Norwich Town.

The pilgrimage began at 2 o'clock and at each place the scout oath was repeated, a wreath was placed on the grave, there was an address and the exercises closed with taps on the bugle.

Scouts throughout the state in practically every part of the Union made their "Anniversary Hike" to historical places Tuesday.

Arthur L. Peale spoke of the life of Uncas at the monument on Sachem street as follows:

Uncas was a Pequot chief, the son of Owaneco of the royal line, and his wife was the daughter of Tatoban or Sassacus, one of the renowned sachems of the Pequots. Five times it is stated he rebelled against the leadership of the great sachem and was expelled. Uncas then placed himself at the head of the Mohegan clans in the interior, who occupied lands east of the Connecticut river and west of the river now called the Thames. This fact shows that he was courageous and able to maintain independence of the Pequots. In 1634 he joined Capt. John Mason in the expedition against the Pequots, sailing down the Connecticut river from Hartford to Saybrook, then to Narragansett Bay where the party disembarked and marched overland to the fort near Mystic which was burned and destroyed, and the power of the great Pequot nation brought to an end. A few years later he defeated Sequasson and burned his village. In 1643 the memorable battle between the Narragansetts and Mohegans took place on the Great Plains and this has been called the most conspicuously purely Indian fight recorded in the annals of New England. Uncas had perhaps half as large a force as Miantonomo the sachem of the Narragansetts and on the approach of the enemy asked that a parley be held. Both sachems were large of frame, powerful in physique and equally courageous. Uncas then challenged Miantonomo to a duel to settle their differences expressing himself: "Let us two fight it out; if you kill me my men will be yours; but if I kill you, your men shall be mine."

Miantonomo replied: "My men came to fight and they shall fight."

After this decision, by a pre-arranged signal, Uncas dropped to the ground, and the Mohegans sent a volley of arrows into the ranks of the Narragansetts causing them to flee into the surrounding woods in great disorder. In their flight it is stated that many lost their lives in the turbulent waters of the Yantic at Norwich Falls.

Uncas was besieged in his fort on the Thames (Fort Shantok) many times. Mr. Peale referred to the erection of the Uncas monument and the visit of President Andrew Jackson to lay the corner stone. The many exploits of Uncas were mentioned and his relation to the settlement of Norwich.

John P. Huntington spoke at Norwich Town at the tomb of Samuel Huntington, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and a governor of Connecticut, reviewing the early life of the great patriot who he said was born at Windham and coming to Norwich in later life where he held many public positions of trust. Mr. Huntington served in congress for many years and was speaker of the house of representatives. The speaker stated that as a man he was greatly beloved by all.

B. F. Bishop was the speaker at the John Mason monument and referred to Major John Mason as follows: John Mason was born in England and fought in the low countries under Sir Thomas Fairfax, later coming to America where he settled at Dorchester. His first expedition was against a number of pirates, who were put to flight. He came to Connecticut with that band of settlers who founded Windsor. Maj. Mason was in command of the expedition which exterminated the Pequots in 1637.

He was Lieutenant Governor for many years and was the military head of the colony.

Maj. Mason who was one of the founders of Norwich, died at Norwich, is supposed to be buried in the old Post-Gager burial ground.

Westerly Case in Providence Court

Before presiding justice Tanner in the superior court in Providence on Tuesday morning in the Westerly case of Louis Alberts vs. Andrew J. Martin, et al., the temporary injunction was denied and the restraining order dissolved by which Alberts sought to hold possession of the store of the Workingmen's Clothing Co. His action practically leaves the status of the case where it was a week ago Saturday with the landlord apparently getting possession of the store.

They will have Joe Belair and Bob Benjamin forwards, Horan, former Holy Cross star and leading point-getter in the Industrial league of Worcester, at center, "Rag" Swanson and Provost to play guards, with Blake and Dougherty in the utility role.

The Army-Navy five will be without the services of Mandi Normandin, their flashy forward, who seriously injured his foot in the Recs-Army-Navy game in South Manchester Saturday night, but the management has secured three players who have performed on several occasions and who rank with the topnotchers of the chalked court in this state. The line-up is as follows: Angelli and Sallsieper of the Recs of South Manchester in the forward positions, Harry Mills will jump at center, with Benson of the Recs and G. Coleman will play the backfield. Cardie and T. Coleman will play subs.

NATIONAL LEAGUE OWNERS ABOLISH BONUSES FOR STAR BALL PLAYERS

New York, Feb. 12.—Abolishment of the system of granting bonuses to players for batting, pitching or fielding excellence and approval of a plan to select annually the league's most valuable star were decided upon today by club owners of the National league.

These were the principal steps taken at the annual mid-winter session, which also formally approved the 1924 schedule of 154 games, opening April 16 and closing September 28, but declined to act on a proposal to limit the number of coaches any club might have.

Action against the player-bonus, first advocated at the annual meeting in Chicago recently and urged again today by Christy Mathewson, president of the Boston Braves, was taken because of belief that special inducements for meritorious work is an unhealthy influence on the game, President John A. Heydler declared. He referred particularly to the undesirable effects resulting from the bonus for pitchers for a certain number of victories.

Abolishment of the bonus, however, was not made retro-active, Mr. Heydler pointed out, so that, with a majority of 1924 contracts already signed, it will not go into practical effect before the 1925 season. It applies only to such contracts sent out by clubs after today's meeting. It does not involve the contract clause permitting bonuses for good conduct.

In voting to follow the American league by having its outstanding star selected each year by ballot of baseball writers in the circuit's cities, the National league turned down an alternative proposal, made by John Heydon, of St. Louis, to have the most valuable player of each club chosen at the end of the season.

The plan adopted, under which Babe Ruth was voted the most valuable American league player last season, is the same as that rejected by the older organization two years ago when it was simultaneously proposed to both majors by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

The National league will give $1,000 in cash and a diploma or other suitable token of the award to the player selected.

Re-appointment of eight veterans and two newcomers to the umpiring staff was announced by President Haydler. The additions are Jack Powell, who had a brief trial at the close of last season after his release was purchased from the Michigan-Ontario league, and Monroe Sweeney, a native of Paris, Ky., who has been an arbiter in the Texas league for the past two seasons.

The veterans who will continue to handle the indicator are Henry O'S Day, William J. Klem, Ernest C. Quigley, Charles Moran, Barry McCormick, Robert Hart Charles Pfirman and Frank Wilson. In addition, Robert Emslie, veteran dean of the staff, will continue in his general capacity as supervisor and scout, a post to which he was elevated a year ago.

The National league's obligation under the lease held on the old Harrison field grounds, former home of the Newark Federal league team, has been wiped out, it was revealed after negotiations with the interests of Harry F. Sinclair, oil man and one of the outlaw league's backers.

All the clubs were represented at the meeting except Pittsburgh, whose president, Barney Dreyfuss, is ill. The Pirates' proxy was held by Mr. Heydler.

The following committees were appointed: Telegraph—William F. Baker, Philadelphia, and Charles H. Ebbets, Brooklyn; playing rules—William Veeck, Chicago, and Samuel Breadon, St. Louis, constitution—August Herrmann, Cincinnati, Charles A. Stoneham, New York and Baker; schedule—Heydler and Dreyfuss.

COMISKEY TAKES STAND IN HIS OWN DEFENSE

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 12.—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, took the witness stand today in defense of his club against the $18,500 salary and bonus claim of Joe Jackson, former outfielder. He related the story of the tense moments at the White Sox park in September, 1920, when Eddie Cicotte, one of the pitchers, confessed his part in the world series scandal of 1919.

He testified that Cicotte, asking to see the witness alone, told the story of the world series, how he had received $10,000 as his share for "throwing" the games and named seven other players as implicated jointly with him.

Mr. Comiskey explained that attempts were made to sign up suspected players while rumors of a "crooked" world series were current because a rule of the league required clubs to line up their personnel before February 1, in order to protect club rights. During the late fall and winter of 1919, he said the matter of a "thrown" world series had only reached the stage of rumors, on which the club has been unable to obtain definite information as to the facts.

WIDE RANGE OF TOPICS COVERED IN COOLIDGE'S LINCOLN DAY ADDRESS

New York, Feb. 12—The text of the Lincoln day dinner address by President Coolidge, before the National Republican Club at the Waldorf Astoria here tonight follows:

Mr. Chairman:

One hundred and fifteen years ago today Abraham Lincoln was born. How great he became can not yet be accurately measured, although nearly 60 years have passed since his death. Probably there has been no one justly entitled to be termed "the greatest man in the world." As there are many different kinds of greatness. This makes comparisons somewhat barren of results. But measured by ability, achievement, and character, America has long prized Washington and Lincoln as the two men in our history preeminently entitled to be termed "truly great." In this opinion we have the general concurrence of mankind. While others approach them, they are not outranked by any of the other figures which all of civilization has profound throughout its record of thousands of years.

Lincoln a Great Moral Force

In a way all men are great. It is on that conception that American institutions have been founded. Perhaps the differences are not so much as many suppose. Yet there are differences which set off some men above their fellows. What those differences are in a particular case is a matter somewhat of personal opinion. To me the greatness of Lincoln consisted very largely of a vision by which he saw more clearly than the men of his time the moral relationship of things. His great achievement lay in bringing the different elements of his country into a more truly moral relationship. He was the commander in chief of the greatest armies the world had then seen. They were victorious. Yet we do not look upon him as a conqueror. He directed the raising and expenditure of vast sums of money. Yet we do not think of him as a financier. The course which he followed cost many lives and desolated much territory. Yet we think of him not as a destroyer but a restorer. He was a liberator. He struck the fetters not only from the bodies but from the minds of men. He was a great moral force.

When Lincoln had finished his course, he had made the foundation of freedom stronger and firmer on which to build national unity. Strengthening that principle was the chief accomplishment of his life. He pointed out that the nation could not endure half slave and half free. The mighty work which he did finally left it to endure all free. He restored national unity by restoring moral unity.

The questions which he considered in his day we need have no hesitation in concluding were finally and definitely settled. There is no difference of opinion, no argument about them now. The conclusions which he drew have long since been the settled policy of our country.

The Industrial Struggle

The conflicts of his time have passed away. New developments have taken place, new problems have been met. The industrial struggle which came, lasting up to the days of the World war, for increased compensation to wage earners, for the bettering of their condition, while it has never been fully settled, does not appear at present to be acute. The rewards of labor engaged in commerce, transportation, and industry are now such as to afford the most liberal participation in all the essentials of life. What this tremendous opportunity now held by the wage earner, if wisely and justly administered, will mean to the well-being of the nation is almost beyond comprehension. It opens up the prospect of a new era in human existence. It justifies the assertion that while America has problems, it is not lacking in the ability or courage to comprehend and solve them. It is a warrant for confidence in the future.

That national unity for which Lincoln laid the foundation requires perpetual adjustment for its maintenance. How great our country really is, how diversified are its interests, is almost beyond the comprehension of any one man. Yet great and diversified as it is by any processes of sound morals or sound economics requires that each part, each section, and each interest, should be looked upon by the government with like solicitude, all sharing its common burdens, all partakers of common welfare. There is no sound policy which is narrow, or sectional, or limited. Every sound policy must be national in its scope. It is always necessary to determine what will be good for the whole country.

For necessary observance of these principles requires, at the present time, that a large amount of attention should be given to agriculture. This is the interest on which it is estimated that more than forty millions of our people are directly or indirectly dependent. It represents an investment several times as large as that of all the railroads of the country. It has an aggregate production of over $8,000,000,000 each year. Yet with all these vast resources of production and consumption, and the vast purchasing power for the products of the farm, which is represented by the prosperity of our industry and commerce, with here and there an exception, agriculture as a whole languishes.

Distribution and Consumption

Production has outrun the power of distribution and consumption. The farm population is not increasing, but the improved methods of tillage and inventions in farm machinery have all contributed to increase the percapita output. It is in this direction that the agricultural schools and colleges have placed their major emphasis. Their education has been substantially all on the side of improved methods of production and none on the side of distribution, consumption, and marketing.

When there is a difficulty which affects so large a population, so large an area, and so important an interest as that of agriculture it is distinctly a national question. It scarcely needs to be pointed out that agriculture is of vital importance to our country. It is the primary source of sustenance, enterprise, industry, and wealth. Everyone ought to know that it is basic and fundamental. Without a healthy, productive, and prosperous agriculture, there can be no real national prosperity. It is perfectly obvious that there is something radically wrong when agriculture is found in its present state of depression all the time when manufacturing, transportation, and commerce are on the whole in a remarkable state of prosperity.

No one would deny, I suppose, that industrially we are very flourishing. Every standard by which prosperity is measured, whether it be production, movement of freight, corporate earnings, employment of labor, or bank clearings, all point to the same conclusion. Disregarding the abnormal war time condition, for every important enterprise save agriculture the year 1923 undoubtedly holds the record. Earnings have been very greatly increased, and except here and there as in the case of some railroads must be looked upon with a great deal of satisfaction.

Agriculture Partially Revived

But agriculture has only partially revived. Its position has been improved, and the returns for the year are nearly 20 per cent in excess of two years a go. But the great food staples do not sell on a parity with the products of industry. Their average price is little above the pre-war level, while manufactures are about 50 percent higher. The farmer is not receiving his share.

The result has been a decrease in the value of farm lands, the choking of the avenues of credit with obligations which are worthless or doubtful, the foreclosure of mortgages, and the suspension of a large number of banks. To this depression there have been other contributing causes, but the main difficulty has been the price of farm produce.

Very likely you are wondering why agriculture should be discussed here in this metropolis. One reason is that I want to emphasize as forcibly as possible your intimate dependence upon agricultural welfare. That great interest can not be affected without the necessity of your being affected. The farm is one of the chief markets for the industries of the nation. You have a direct economic and financial interest. You can not long prosper with that great population and great areas in distress. You have a political interest. The people of these numerous states cast an enormous influence upon the making of the laws by which you are governed. Unsound economic conditions are not conducive to sound legislation. The farm has a social value which can not be overestimated. It is the natural home of liberty and the support of courage and character. In all the nation it is the chief abiding place of the spirit of independence. I do not need to dwell upon the moral requirement for the equitable distribution of prosperity and the relief of distress by the application of every possible and sound remedy. This problem is not merely the problem of the agriculture sections of our country; it is the problem likewise of industry, of transportation, of commerce, and of banking. I bring it to you because I know that in part it is your problem. I have already encouraged organization and cooperative marketing that organized agriculture may cope with organized industry. I have promoted tariff investigations for increased rates on wheat. I have extended relief through the war finance corporation and the federal reserve bank system.

Must Make Sacrifices

I shall not now discuss the details of legislation or enter upon a presentation of peculiarly agricultural remedies. I made specific recommendations in my message to the congress, and there are bills pending for carrying my suggestions into effect. What I am most anxious to impress upon the prosperous part of our country is the utmost necessity that they should be willing to make sacrifices for the assistance of the unsuccessful part. I do not mean by that any unsound device like price fixing, which I suppose, because it would not make prices higher but would in the end make them lower, it would not be successful and would not prove a remedy, but I do mean that the resources of the country ought to come to the support of agriculture. The organization recently perfected to supply money and management for the larger aspects of agriculture ought to have your sympathetic and active support. I am glad financial America is moving in that direction. It will be less work and less expense for you to meet this situation in that way, for you will meet it; you will be affected by its economic, political, and moral results.

When an examination is made to ascertain some of the causes of these conditions, among the first which suggest themselves is the amount and the method of national taxation. Out of an income of about $60,000,000,000 the people of this country pay nearly $5,000,000,000 in taxes, which is over $50 for every inhabitant of the land. Of this amount the national government collects about $3,200,000,000, and the state and local governments about $4,200,000,000. As a direct burden this is a stupendous sum, but when it is realized that in the course of our economic life it is greatly augmented when it reaches the consumer in the form of the high cost of living, its real significance begins to be appreciated. The national and local governments ought to be unremitting in their efforts to reduce expenditures and pay their debts. This the national government is earnestly seeking to do. The war cost of more than $40,000,000,000 is already nearly half paid. Amid the disordered currencies of the warring nations our money is, and has been maintained, at the gold standard. Our budget has long since been balanced, and our debt-paying program is at the rate of $500,000,000 each year. In spite of all these expenditures, the next fiscal year has an estimated surplus revenue of over $300,000,000.

This represents a great financial achievement in the past three years. In the first place, it was necessary to provide for more than $7,000,000,000 of short-time maturities. These have all either been paid or refunded, so that they will become due in the future at orderly intervals, when they can be retired or further extended. When it is realized that such large loans were made in a way that not only left business undisturbed, but was scarcely perceptible to the public, the skill with which Secretary Mellon managed them can well be appreciated.

To Eliminate Waste

Coincident with this was the even greater task of reducing national expenditures. Through legislative enactment and executive effort this has gone steadily forward, and is now proceeding from day to day. Under the watchful care of the budget bureau every department is constantly striving to eliminate all waste and discard every unnecessary expense.

Every reasonable effort has been made to secure the liquidation of our international debts. The largest, which was that of Great Britain, and which amounted with accumulated interest to $4,600,000,000, has been settled on terms that provide for its payment over a period of 62 years. Interest runs for payments in the immediate future of over $160,000,000 a year. They have the option to pay us in our own bonds, and in its practical working this agreement does not involve cash payments to this country, but simply a mutual cancellation of debts. The funding of the British debt was one of the greatest of international financial transactions. It had its effect on business confidence, which was world wide. It demonstrated the determination of a great empire faithfully to discharge its international obligations. In this respect it was much more than a financial transaction. It was an exhibition of the highest type of international honor. It showed that the moral standards of the world were going to be maintained.

National Tax Reduction

All of this has laid the foundation for national tax reduction and reform. In time of war finances, like all else, must yield to national defense and preservation. In time of peace finances, like all else, should minister to the general welfare. Immediately upon my taking office it was determined after conference with Secretary Mellon that the treasury department should study the possibility of tax reduction for the purpose of securing relief to all taxpayers of the country and emancipating business from unreasonable and hampering exactions. The result was the proposed bill, which is now pending before the congress. It is doubtful if any measure ever received more generous testimony of approval. Opposition has appeared to some of its details, but to the policy of immediate and drastic reduction of taxes, so arranged as to benefit all classes and a kinds of business, there has been made the most general approbation. These recommendations have been made by the treasury as the expert adviser of the government. They follow, in their main principle of a decrease in high surtaxes, which is only another name for war taxes, the views of the two preceding secretaries of the treasury, both of them Democrats of pronounced ability. They are non-partisan, well thought out, and sound. They carry out the policy of reducing the taxes of everybody, especially people of moderate income. They give to the country almost a million dollars every working day.

Proportion to Ability to Pay

The proposed bill maintains the fixed policy of rate graduated in proportion to the ability to pay. That policy has received almost universal sanction. It is sustained by sound arguments based on economic, social and moral grounds. But in taxation like everything else, it is necessary to test a theory by practical results. The first object of t axation is to secure revenue. When the taxation of large incomes is approached with this in view, the problem is to find a rate which will produce the largest returns. Experience does not show that the higher rate produces the larger revenue. Experience is all the other way. When the surtax on incomes of $300,000 and over was but 10 per cent, the revenue was about the same as it was at 65 per cent. There is no escaping the fact that when the taxation of large incomes is excessive, they tend to disappear. In 1916 there were 206 incomes of $1,000,000 or more. Then the high tax rate went into effect. The next year there were only 141, and in 1918 but 67. In 1919 the number declined to 65. In 1920 it fell to 33, and in 1921 it was further reduced to 21. I am not making any argument with the man who believes that 55 per cent ought to be taken away from the $1,000,000 income or 63 per cent from a $6,000,000 income; but when it is considered that in the effort to get them amounts we are rapidly approaching the point of getting nothing at all, it is necessary to look for a more practical method. That can be done only by a reduction of the high surtaxes when viewed solely as a revenue proposition, to about 25 per cent.

I agree perfectly with those who wish to relieve the small taxpayer by getting the largest contribution from the people with large incomes. But if the rates on arge incomes are so high that they disappear, the small taxpayer will be left to bear the entire burden. If, on the other hand, the rates are placed where they will produce the most revenue from large incomes then the small taxpayer will be relieved. The experience of the treasury department and the opinion of the best experts place the rate which will collect most from the people of great wealth, thus giving the largest relief to people of moderate wealth, at not over 25 per cent.

Social and Economic Question

A very important social and economic question is also involved in high rates. That is the result taxation has upon national development. Our progress in that direction depends upon two factors—personal ability and surplus income. An expanding prosperity requires that the largest possible amount of surplus income should be invested in productive enterprise under the direction of the best personal ability. This will not be done if the rewards of such action are very largely taken away by taxation. If we had a tax whereby on the first working day the government took 4 per cent of your wages, on the second day 10 per cent, on the third day 20 per cent, on the fourth day 30 per cent, on the fifth day 50 per cent, and on the sixth day 60 per cent; how many of you would continue to work on the last two days of the week? It is the same with capital. Surplus income will go into tax-exempt securities. It will refuse to take the risk incidental to embarking in business. This will raise the rate which established business will have to pay for new capital, and result in a marked increase in the cost of living. If new capital will not flow into competing enterprise the present concerns tend toward monopoly, increasing again the prices which the people must pay.

Farmers Underpaid

The high prices paid and low prices received on the farm are directly due to our unsound method of taxation. I shall illustrate by a simple example: A farmer ships a steer to Chicago. His tax, the tax on the railroad transporting the animal, and of the yards where the animal is sold go into the price of the animal to the packer. The packer's tax goes into the price of the hide to the New England shoe manufacturer. The manufacturer's tax goes into the price to the retailer, who in turn adds his tax in his price to his purchaser. So it may be said that if the farmer ultimately wears the shoes he pays everybody's taxes from the farm to his feet. It is for this reason that high taxes mean a high price level, and a high price level in its turn means difficulty in meeting world competition. Most of all, the farmer suffers from the effect of this high price level. In what he buys he meets domestic costs of high taxes and the high price level. In what he sells he meets world competition with a low price level. It is essential, therefore, for the good of the people as a whole that we pay not so much attention to the tax paid directly by a certain number of taxpayers but we must devote our efforts to relieving the tax paid indirectly by the whole people.

Taken altogether, I think it is easy enough to see that I wish to include in the program a reduction in the high surtax rates, not that small incomes may be required to pay more and large incomes be required to pay less, but that more revenue may be secured from large incomes and taxes on small incomes may be reduced; not because I wish to relieve the wealthy, but because I wish to relieve the country.

The practical working out of the proposed schedules is best summarized by the treasury experts, who find that $92,000,000 a year will be saved to those who have incomes under $6,000; $53,000,000 to those who have incomes between $6,000 and $10,000; and that less than 3 per cent of the proposed reduction would accrue to those who have incomes of over $100,000. A married man with two children, having an income of $4,000, would have his tax reduced from $83 to $15.75; having $5000, from $68 to $13.25; having $6,000, from $128 to $73; having $8,000, from $276 to $244; and having $10,000, from $456 to $394.

To Reduce Tax on Earned Income

In order to secure these results, the administration bill proposes to reduce the tax on earned income 25 per cent, and the normal tax on unearned income also 25 per cent. This would apply to all incomes alike, great and small, and would provide general and extensive relief. Further reductions would be secured by increasing the amount of income exempt from surtaxes, from $5,000 to $10,000. Such surtaxes increase progressively until on incomes of $100,000 or more they reach the maximum of 25 per cent which, with the normal tax of 6 per cent, make large incomes pay in all 31 per cent. It is also proposed to repeal many troublesome and annoying rates, such as admission taxes and sales taxes, the existence of which is reflected in the increased cost of doing business and the higher prices required from the people.

That is the tax measure which has been proposed, and which has my support. Because I wish to give to all the people all the relief which it contains, I am opposed to material alteration and compromise. It is about as far removed as anything could be from any kind of partisanship. At least, I do not charge that there is any party or any responsible party leadership that admits it is opposed to making taxes low and in favor of keeping taxes high. But the actions and proposals of some are liable to have just that result. I stand on the simple proposition that the country is entitled to all the relief from the burden of taxation which it is possible to give. The proposed measure gives such relief. Other measures which have been brought forward do not meet this requirement. They have the appearance of an indirect attempt to defeat a good measure with a bad measure. You have heard much of the Garner plan. Brought forward to have something different, it purported to relieve the greatest number of taxpayers. It gave not the slightest heed to the indirect effect of high taxes, or to the approaching drying up of the source of revenue and consequent failure of the progressive income tax, or to the destruction of business initiative. It is political in theory. When the effect of its provisions was estimated, it meant a loss of revenue beyond any expected surplus. It is impossible in practice. The people will not be misled by such proposals. It is entirely possible to have a first-class bill. I want the country to have the best there is. I am for it because it will reduce taxes on all classes of income. I am for it because it will encourage business. I am for it because it will decrease the cost of living. I am for it because it is sound.

People Alone Can Win

But the people must understand this in their fight. They alone can win it. Unless they make their wishes known to the congress without regard to party, this bill will not pass. I urge them to renewed efforts.

Since August, 1919, the public debt has been decreasing. About $4,500,000,000 has been paid off. This means a reduction in interest of almost $200,000,000. It is of the utmost importance in order to be able to meet a fast approaching foreign competition, that to keep business good and prevent depression we reduce our debt and keep our expenditures as low as possible. These are the economic reasons why the granting of a bonus would jeopardize the welfare of the whole country. It was estimated that under the bonus bill which was vetoed if all the beneficiaries had taken the certificates which it was proposed to issue, the plan would have cost $225,000,000 annually for the first four years, and a total of $5,400,000,000. This would more than destroy all the great labor which the country has gone through for the purpose of reducing its debt. It would mean the indefinite postponement of any tax reduction, another increase in the cost of living, more drying up of the sources of credit, and a probable raising of the rates of interest; all of which would result in inflation and higher prices, with the grave danger of ultimate disaster to our financial system. We have been through some period of deflation nearly all the men on the farms and many of the men in business have not yet recovered from it, and the country certainly does not want to take the risk of another like experience. A few months of good times are worth more to the service men themselves than anything they could receive in the way of a bonus.

But this question goes deeper than that. I am aware that some men made money out of the war. Many of them lost what they made, but not all. No doubt there are some such who are justly to be criticized for greed and selfishness. Unfortunately they would not pay the bonus. It would have to be paid by the country. I have already undertaken to demonstrate that taxes are paid by the great mass of the people. It is necessary to consider whether there be any moral justification for placing all the people under this great burden, in order to pay some money to a part of the people, many of whom do not want it and are offering pronounced objection to it. A very large body of service men do not want the bonus, and object to being taxed in order that it may be paid. Their request is entitled to just as much consideration as the request of those who do want it. They are just as eager now to save their country from financial disaster as they were formerly to save it from military disaster. They are entitled to be heard. This question ought to be decided in accordance with the welfare of the whole country.

Soldiers Bonus

No one doubts the patriotism of those who advocate the bonus. No one denies that the country owes a debt which it never can pay to those who were in the service. Their disabilities must be recompensed, their health restored, their dependents supported; all at public expenses. They are entitled to the highest honor. But the service they rendered was of such a nature that it can not be recompensed to them by the payment of money. America was not waging war for the purpose of securing spoils. The American soldier did not enter the service for the purpose of securing personal gain.

I have lately undertaken to define the outline of the foreign policy of the present government. Nothing has occurred since my message to the congress that requires any change in that policy. The prospect of a European settlement, however, has arisen, which holds some promise. Three Americans of outstanding and well-seasoned ability have been called to give their expert assistance and advice. They do not represent our government. Their only official standing comes from their being agents of the Reparation commission. Yet they can not help being Americans and will bring to their problem not the point of view of the American mind. Without doubt any settlement would call for a European funding American participation. The export of such capital as is not required for domestic business, and which the American people feel can be prudently done, having in view the financial returns, enlargement of our trade, and the discharge of the moral obligation of bearing our share of the burdens of the world, entirely in accordance with the choice of our own independent judgment, ought to be encouraged.

Our Foreign Policy

Our government does not want war anywhere. It wants peace everywhere. It does not look with sympathy upon the manufacture or sale of arms and munitions by which one country might make war upon another country. It recognizes, however, that every government must necessarily maintain some military establishment for national defense and the policing of its own domain. For such incidental purposes there could be little criticism if our government or private interests, having the necessary equipment, should furnish it. But it is a traffic which we wish to discourage, rather than encourage. We do not believe in great armaments. Especially are we opposed to anything like competitive armaments. While the present time does not appear propitious for a further effort at limitation, should a European settlement be accomplished, something might be hoped for in that direction. The United States stands ready to join with the other great powers, whenever there appears to be reasonable prospect of agreement, in a further limitation of competitive armaments.

Mexican Problem

A situation has recently arisen in Mexico which has caused some solicitude. We recognize that the people of that country have a perfect right to set up and pull down governments without any interference from us, so long as there is no interference with the lawful rights of our government or our citizens within their territory. We do not harbor the slightest desire to dictate to them in the smallest degree. We have every wish to be friendly and helpful. After a long period of shifting and what appeared to us to be unsubstantial governments in that country, we recently reached the opinion that President Obregon has established a government which is stable and effective, and disposed to observe international obligations. We therefore recognized it. When disorder arose there, President Obregon sought the purpose of a small amount of arms and munitions of our government for the purpose of insuring his own domestic tranquility. We had either refuse or to comply. To refuse would have appeared to be equivalent to deciding that a friendly government, which we had recognized, ought not to be permitted to protect itself. Stated in another way, it would mean that we had decided that it ought to be overthrown, and that the very agency which we had helped out as able to protect the interests of our citizens within its borders ought not to be permitted to have means to make such protection effective. My decision ran in a counter direction.

It was not a situation of our making, but one which came and had to be met. In meeting it, I did what I thought was necessary to discharge the moral obligation of one friendly government to another. The supremacy of the Obregon government now appears to be hopeful. Whatever may be the outcome, we are not responsible for it. We did what I believed was right to do under the circumstances. It was done not for the purpose of protecting any particular individuals or interests, but to exercise a legal right, while at the same time throwing our influence in favor of orderly procedure and evidence our friendship toward the friendly government of Mexico. Any other course would appear to me to be unworthy of our country.

I propose to continue whatever course of action may be necessary. I shall continue to afford protection in accordance with the requirements of international law. I propose to protect American lives and American rights.

Lately there have been most startling revelations concerning the leasing of government oil lands. It is my duty to extend to every individual the constitutional right to the presumption of innocence until proven guilty. But I have another duty equally constitutional, and even more important, of securing the enforcement of the law. In that duty I do not intend to fail.

Character Foundation of State

Character is the only secure foundation of the state. We know well that all plans for improving the machinery of government and all measures for social betterment miserably fail, and the hopes of progress wither, when corruption touches administration. At the revelation of greed making its subtle approaches to public officers, of the prostitution of high place to provide profit, we are filled with scorn and indignation. We have a deep sense of humiliation at such gross betrayal of trust, and we lament the undermining of public confidence in official integrity. But we can not rest with righteous wrath; still less can we permit ourselves to give way to cynicism. The heart of the American people is sound. Their officers with rare exception are faithful and high-minded. For us, we propose to follow the clear, open path of justice. There will be immediate, adequate, unshrinking prosecution, criminal and civil, to punish the guilty and to protect every national interest. In this effort there will be no politics, no partisanship. It will be speedy, it will be just. I am a Republican, but I can not on that account shield anyone because he is a Republican. I am a Republican, but I cannot on that account prosecute anyone because he is a Democrat.

Asks Support of People

I want no hue and cry, no mingling of innocent and guilty in unthinking condemnation, no confession of mere questions of law with questions of fraud and corruption. It is at such a time that the quality of our citizenry is tested—unrelenting toward evil, fair-minded and intent upon the requirements of due process, the shield of the innocent and the safeguard of society itself. I ask the support of our people, as chief magistrate, intent on the enforcement of our laws without fear or favor, no matter who is hurt or what the consequences.

Distressing as this situation has been, it has its reassuring side. The high moral standards of the people were revealed by their instant reaction against wrongdoing. The officers of the government, without respect to party, have demonstrated a common purpose to protect government property and to bring guilt to justice. We have the trials and perplexities of our day, but they seem insignificant compared with those which taxed the genius of Lincoln. The government maintained itself then; the government will maintain itself now. The forces of evil do not long triumph. The power of justice can not long be delayed. The moral forces of Lincoln is with us still. "He that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep."

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

FEBRUARY FARM NOTES

After a heavy snow, tramping it down around the fruit trees will keep the mice from hiding under it and feeding on the bark.

Sows bringing litters this month need extra and succulent feed. Such feed keeps them in good condition and stimulates the flow of milk for the young. A ration of potatoes, carrots, cabbage or other vegetable will be very beneficial.

While February is early to set the incubator for raising pullets for laying, as there is danger of fall moulting, it is ideal for setting to hatch out broiler chicks, which will be ready for market at the time when the demand is greatest and prices are at the peak.

At this time, there are likely to be apples beginning to spoil. A sorting will help preserve those unaffected. If there is any quantity of specs, it will be worth while to run them through the cider mill. Fresh cider is "good medicine" when the system has been fed up on beans and "taters."

It pays to study the individual tastes of cows. Year round production of milk is unnatural and is dependent very much upon the cow's state of mind. Hence, any means to make her more contented will contribute to her production. Here and there are cows that fancy some special feed and a little pampering brings good dividends.

The latter part of this month is an ideal time for pruning. Earlier pruning, when there are hard freezes, is not best, as the tender bark is frozen back and healing of the cut is retarded. Those fruits more easily winter-killed should be left until the cold weather damage can be checked up as one may find trees needing very little pruning.

It is so easy to neglect removing the horns from the young calves! It is quickly done when young, but a most difficult job when they are older. It should be taken care of within the first five days. Clip the hair away from the horn button. Moisten then rub with a caustic pencil and, behold, a muley cow.

Now with the market for sheep, lambs and wool steadily improving, every lamb brought into the world this spring is worth more than he has been worth for several seasons. Warm, clean quarters will give the new lamb a better chance for life. The first few hours are the most critical. After they stand up to the ewe they are almost past danger. One needs to watch them closely, for it is the one season of the year when sheep do need attention. But, since they can be pretty well forgotten thereafter, the time should not be begrudged.—Farm Life.

GARDENING IN THE SHADE

A garden that is shaded during the entire day is rather a hopeless proposition for vegetables but one that is shaded for half the day has many possibilities. For the garden shaded all day, practically the only crops possible will be the early radishes, lettuce, spinach, and young onions from sets for they will complete enough growth before the trees have leaved out sufficiently to deprive them of sunlight.

String beans yield in gardens shaded for part of the day not as heavily as in full sun but enough to make them worth planting. Many war-time gardens ill advisedly planted in shaded back yards found beans gave the only return of the crops which required warm weather to mature them.

Lettuce, particularly the leaf varieties, will give fair crops in shaded situations and the heading varieties are grateful for a little protection in the warm days of midsummer.

Swiss chard will yield if planted in a half shaded situation. Parsely will give sufficient leafage to make it worth growing, but in general a vegetable will yield much more heavily in the full exposure to the sun than in the shade.

The sunniest possible position should be selected for the vegetable patch, saving the shaded portions for flowers. Warm weather crops like string beans, corn, tomatoes, peppers and egg plants must have the warmth of the hot midsummer sun to mature them.

If the garden is partly shaded, it should be given an extra measure of fertilizing and cultivation to stimulate early growth.

Few of the root crops will flourish in shade sufficiently to make it worth while planting them. Kohlrabi in midsummer will do well in a position shaded part of the time, but they are at their best either planted for a fall crop or an early crop as they turn woody very rapidly in midsummer.

CROP ROTATION IN THE GARDEN

The same crops should not occupy the same space in the garden from year to year. There are several reasons for this. One of the chief ones is to avoid perpetuating diseases which may have afflicted some of the vegetables the germs of which may carry over in the soil. As members of the cabbage tribe and the bean and pea family suffer from different ailments, their positions should be switched in order that any such pests may be discontinued.

A good plan is to reverse last year's plan and then change it back again next year thus furnisheing a rotation of crops. If this is not done, at least the arrangement should be changed by moving sections devoted to one vegetable this year to some other position in the garden removed a few feet at least next year.

A good rule would be to plant the root crops next year where the leaf crops such as lettuce and spinach have grown this year or to give the root crops the space next year where the legumes, a term applied to members of the pea and bean family, have been this year. It will not be a difficult matter to study out this arrangement with a little practice.

Planting the taller growing crops such as corn and tomatoes on one side of the garden one year and then moving them over to the other side the following season will be a convenient method of securing rotation. If rotation cannot be conveniently arranged because of the small size of the plot, the best way is to make up for the deficency by careful fertilizing and occasional liming of the soil to sweeten it up.

HOW TO PRODUCE GOOD HATCHING EGGS

A good criterion of one's ability as a poultry raiser, the department of agriculture says, is the number of chickens raised to maturity in proportion to eggs set. Success depends to a large extent on this one factor.

The causes for enormous losses in eggs and dead embryos occurring annually in the country are many. A conservative estimate places the loss due to eggs that did not hatch in 1923 at over $1,000,000. Be sure, department poultrymen advise, that your breeders are in excellent health, have sanitary quarters, and that one male is mated to not over 15 females. Other losses are due to the fact that many poor eggs are set. Test your eggs carefully, and take out all with thin and spotted shells or with cracked shells. Make sure that all eggs set are also of standard size.

The greatest loss in incubation occurs in the embryos that die in the shell. This may be due to faulty methods of incubation or to eggs of poor hatching quality. Immature pullets, breeding stock that has been sickly and birds that have been forced heavily for winter production are apt to produce eggs that will not hatch well.

All breeders used should be thoroughly healthy; they should have abundance of constitutional vigor; and they should receive good breeding relations. The department advises against the use of too much protein, probably not over 15 per cent, in the mash rations; plenty of green food should be provided. Furthermore, give the breeders as much exercise as possible. In fact do everything possible to insure the production of eggs of good hatching quality and many apparent troubles in incubation will be solved.

BRIDGE GRAFTING CHEAP WAY OF SAVING MANY FRUIT TREES

Fruit trees injured by rabbits or mice during the winter can be saved without undue expense by bridge grafting. Bridge grafting is a simple process but requires skill in the handling of the scion tools. A bridge graft is made by using scions to connect the two portions of the bark of a stock or limb which have been separated by an injury such as girdling by animals or other means. In other words, the injured area is "bridged" by scions, the ends of which unite with the uninjured parts above and below the wound in such manner that a connection between the tissues is established.

This kind of tree repair is described in a very thorough and understandable manner in a new bulletin just issued by the United States department of agriculture, as Farmers' Bulletin 1369, Bridge Grafting. The subject matter is illustrated with a large number of photographs of actual grafts which make the method readily understood by the amateur.

Bridge grafting may be used on almost any kind of fruit tree that admits of being readily propogated by grafting. In practice there is occasion to resort to it much more frequently with the apple than with any other fruits, but pear trees are often treated, at least in some sections. No reason is apparent why the method should not be successful on plums and cherries. Peaches graft less readily than the other trees mentioned, and there may be some question as to the usefulness of the method in the case of this fruit. Bridge grafting is seldom used on shade or ornamental trees, but with some kinds, it would probably prove successful in overcoming certain types of injuries.

Mechanical injuries which may be remedied by bridge grafting are usually inflicted in one of three ways. By animals that feed upon the bark and tender wood, by insects that burrow through the growing layer of bark and tender wood, or by implements used in the tillage of the orchard, usually the result of the carelessness of workman. The animals liable to do the most damage by girdling are the common meadow mouse, pine mouse, pocket gopher, and rabbit. Injuries caused by diseases such as "body blight," sunscald, etc., which girdle the trees may be successfully treated by this method of grafting as well.

Bridge grafting is done in the early spring about the time the trees are starting into growth, the same as in cleft grafting for the purpose of top-working. It does not matter if the trees to be bridge grafted have started slightly, but it is of great importance that the scions be perfectly dormant. The chances of success are materially decreased if the buds on the scions have started appreciably. It is often necessary to secure the scions some time in advance of the time they are to be used in order to have them in a dormant condition when needed, storing them meanwhile where they will not dry out and where it is cool enough to keep them dormant.

WALLER ESTATE, NEW LONDON, IN TRUST FOR BENEFIT OF SIX CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 12.—The will of ex-Governor Thomas M. Waller, whose death occurred two weeks ago, was admitted to probate this afternoon. The instrument, which was drawn Feb. 22, 1922, bequeaths Mr. Waller's entire estate to his children and grandchildren. The estate has not been inventoried, but is large.

The will was witnessed by Charles A. Gallup, H. N. Alexander and Albert E. Talbot.

The will provides that all of the property of the testator is bequeathed to his son, Charles B. Waller, and the testator's son-in-law, William H. Appleby and to the survivors of them, upon the following trust:

To have and to hold the same and to sell and dispose of the same or any part thereof and to invest and reinvest the avails thereof, as in the judgment and discretion they may think best for the interest of the estate and to pay over the income thereof and distribute the principal thereof as set out and directed.

The testator directs the trustees to pay to each of his sons, Tracy, John, Robert, and Charles and to his daughter, Elizabeth W. Appleby, as an aid to the support of said children, the income of one-sixth of said trust estate in annual or semi-annual payments, during the lifetime of each of said children as it was the intent of the testator that such income be as an aid to the support of said children and their families and not subject to alienation. The trustees are authorized to pay the principal of the trust, not exceeding one-half, to each of the children, should an emergency arise or if in the discretion of the trustees, it is deemed for the best interest of the children.

Upon the death of any of the testator's children leaving issue, the trustees are authorized, to pay over to said issue the income of any portion of said one-sixth of the trust estate not paid over to such child of the testator, for the term of 10 years from the death of such son or daughter of said testator. Upon the expiration of said 10 years the trustees may pay over to the said issue of such deceased son or daughter any portion of the principal of said one-sixth of the trust estate.

In case of death of any of testator's children, leaving no issue and no wife surviving such children, the trustees are directed to distribute the income and principal of any trust property which was held for the benefit of such deceased child, to the testator's surviving children and their issue, in accordance with the provisions stated.

A condition of the trust is, that if the aforesaid discretion of the said trustees in allowing any one of the children of the testators any portion not exceeding one-half thereof of the principal of said trust to which such child may be entitled, shall be exercised in favor of the testator's son, Charles B. Waller, such discretion to be approved in writing by at least two of the other children.

Since the execution of the last will made by the testator he has surrendered to the testator's son, Charles B. Waller, a note for $15,000, which testator held against said son, and has discharged said son from all liability therefore. The testator made this provision because said son had earned the recognition by his faithful, profitable aid and service to the testator.

The sum of $500 is bequeathed to the New London Cemetery Association, in trust, the income of which is to be expended in the care and maintenance of the testator's lot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Charles B. Waller is named executor of the estate, without bond, and it is the expressed wish of testator that Charles B. Waller be managing trustee of the estate.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Winthrop Carroll, widow of Benjamin M. Carroll, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, 941 Bank street, and was largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Sidney H. Barrett, 74, a former resident of Waterford, died yesterday at the home of his son-in-law, Dr. Sidney Morrison, of Burlington, Vt., after a long illness. He is survived by his widow, five sons, Gaine H. Barrett of Hennar, N. H., Rollin H. Barrett of Burlington, Vt., Walter I. Barrett and Ernest S. Barrett of Waterford, and Leighton E. Barrett of New London and by four daughters, Mrs. Park B. Smith of Canterbury, Mrs. Robert Hescock of Amherst, Mass., Miss Maude Barrett, of Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. Sidney Morrison, of Burlington, Vt.

An automobile owned by the Southern New England Telephone company and a car owned and operated by John J. Otis of 17 Davis street, Rockville, were in collision late yesterday afternoon, corner of Williams and Main streets. Neither machine was badly damaged.

Mark Chamberlain, an employe on the New London line steamer City of Lowell, Claude Treat of Glastonbury, Mrs. John Halperin, Ledyard street, Miss Eleanor Brown, Blackhall street, and Mrs. Raymond Smith and son, of 23 Acorn court, patients at Lawrence hospital, were able to return to their respective homes today.

Traffic Officer William Corcoran, who has been confined to his home on Jefferson avenue a fortnight ago as a result of injuries to his ankle when he fell from the police automobile, which was responding to a fire alarm, has recovered and has returned to his station at the corner of State and Bank streets.

The Patterson Company, Inc., is to erect a handsome three-story building on the site of the structure burned last Christmas morning on State street next east of the Cronin building. It will be of fireproof construction and brick and concrete will be the distinctive features from the outside though the steel construction will make it one of the safest and staunchest buildings in New London. Miller and Symington, the latter formerly with the H. Wales Lines company of Meriden, will be the architects. Every convenience will be incorporated in the structure for offices on the second and third floors and for the Patterson company on the ground floor. The intention of the builders is to have the structure ready for occupancy by the Easter season. The sub-contracts will be awarded to local concerns if they will bid for them as reasonably as out of town mechanics who will offer to do the work.

Louis Stotz, who was in the police court yesterday and from the effects of liquor was disposed to be a little inclined to talk, when he could not be listened to, was there again today, because Judge Prince yesterday ordered him to be taken from the court room because of his offensive conduct. He was docile today and pleaded guilty. Judge Prince imposed a fine of $10 and gave Stotz to understand that he was insulting in the court yesterday. He also advised him that he might expect if he appeared again. Stotz was the "angel" at the party at the home of Mamie Marino last Saturday afternoon when he was spending the money that was distributed there and which is said to have supplied the booze that got the party in trouble.

The Perry Ice company and the New London Ice company have been cutting seven-inch ice the past three days, and will get a crop that will go a long way toward filling their houses. It would not be surprising if the companies got another cutting, for cold weather seems certain and the ice is adding an inch or more a night.

Two of the city's automobile trucks were in collision with other motive power apparatus this afternoon, but in neither instance was the damage great. One of the trucks in passing through Howard street, near Bank street, collided with a commercial car operated by Frank Bilteliff of 29 Cottage street. Another truck in traversing on Bank street, collided with a commercial car owned by the Shalett Company. James Ruddy, driver of the city truck, has been ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning.

Irving Brown of Quaker Hill was taken seriously ill at his home last night and this morning he was placed aboard the trolley car that is scheduled to arrive in New London at 5.45 o'clock from Norwich. The police were communicated with and requested that officers meet the car in New London and this was done. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman George Laboue causing the patient to be transferred to Lawrence hospital.

Stanley Wysoki, of Hudson, Pa., is a patient at Lawrence hospital, having been removed to the institution last night following a collapse. Wysoki who served in the world war, and was gassed, was walking from New York to a New England city and in passing through lower Bank street fell to the walk unconscious. Patrolmen John Clifford and Ernest Opperman went to the man's assistance. He could not be revived when removed to a store and City Physician George P. Cheney was summoned. The patient's removal to the hospital followed and there it was determined that besides suffering from the effects of being gassed, Wysoki is a subject to epilepsy. His condition tonight was considered serious, but not necessarily dangerous.

Mrs. Raymond Manahan of New York, is spending a few days in New London, the guest of her father, George T. Salter, of Saunders street.

The automobile owned and operated by Charles W. Smith, of 52 Lewis street and a machine, owned and operated by Leslie J. Martin of 548 Williams street, were in collision this afternoon at the corner of Rosemary and Cole streets. Both cars were damaged.

James W. Tourgee, 86, of the Quaker Hill section of Waterford, died late yesterday at his home from infirmities caused by advanced years. Mr. Tourgee was one of the very few remaining members of W. W. Perkins Post, G. A. R. He is survived by his widow, three sons, Roscoe and William, E. Tourgee of Waterford and James F. Tourgee of New London.

A strike of short duration occurred yesterday when a score of laborers employed by the Arthur Jackson Co., of New London, contractors engaged on the construction of a new school in Groton, walked out because of dissatisfaction over wages. The strikers returned to work later in the day when an adjustment was effected by the employers.

The laborers became aggrieved because they were being paid at the rate of 45 cents per hour when men employed by the company in New London were compensated at the rate of 60 cents per hour. This was explained by officials of the company as being due to the fact that the men receiving the higher wage in New London were skilled in their particular line, while those employed on the Groton job were unskilled.

The first public hearing for the purpose of permitting citizens to voice their disapproval of the recent increase of trolley fares by the Connecticut Company in New London will take place in the municipal building Thursday evening at 7.30 o'clock. The hearing was called late this afternoon by City Manager William A. Holt. If the sentiment of the attendants at the hearing is sufficiently strong to warrant a protest being made to the public utilities commission, that course will be followed.

Dr. Ross E. Black had occasion to go to the Chapman Technical High school this evening and left his automobile parked in front of the building. When he started to drive the car away he discovered that one of the tires had been mutilated, presumably by a knife in the hands of a mischievous boy. The physician reported the incident to the police.

NEW ENGLAND CANDIDATES FOR NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, Feb. 12.—Will two New England states put up candidates at the approaching National Conventions? Such is the rumor here at the Capital. President Coolidge will be the leading candidate at the republican convention at Cleveland, of that there aseems to be no doubt at this moment. And will Homer Cummings of Connecticut be put up as the democratic standard bearer at the democratic Convention in New York? There is a strong rumor to that effect going the rounds here since the appearance of Mr. McAdoo in the Oil tangle.

Washington newspapers are carrying large headline comments on the possible candidacy of Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut and also several cartoons showing Cummings with his ear to the ground have appeared as front page attractions. One of them showing Cummings saying, "Hush: I thought I heard some one call Homer"! However that may be the name of Cummings is often heard as a possible candidate, but whether the rumor has a firm foundation on which to stand, is not yet known, but that it has some foundation and is not to be whistled down is certain.

M'ADOO LEAVES POLITICAL STATUS UP TO LEADERS

Washington, Feb. 12.—William G. McAdoo announced tonight that he would leave to the leaders of his movement in each state the question of whether his employment of counsel by the E. L. Doheny Oil companies had made him unavailable as a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination.

A request that a conference of such leaders—men and women—be called in Chicago as soon as possible is made by Mr. McAdoo in a letter to David L. Rockwell of Ohio, his campaign manager in charge of national headquarters at Chicago. The letter was made public here tonight by Mr. McAdoo.

"I want this conference to consider and determine," the former treasury secretary wrote, "whether or not the fact that an honorable professional service rendered by me to a client, but having no relation whatever to the oil leases now under investigation by the senate committee, is prejudicial to my leadership in the cause of progressive democracy."

"If they think I am unavailable," he added, "I shall gladly withdraw and fight as a private in the ranks; if they think I should lead, I will do so with all the power that is in me. I will do anything that they think is right and best for the service of the party and the country."

The former secretary also asked that there be invited to the conference "representatives of progressives outside of the democratic party, representatives of labor, representatives of the farmers, and any others you think advisable in order that we may get as far as possible a true index of public opinion."

The first Alaskan grand jury to include women within its membership was empaneled at Valdez, Alaska, last September for the third division of the territory.

BREED THEATRE

A combination of actor and author that should attract the attention of the most fastidious of motion picture followers and provide a distinct treat as an entertainment comes to the Breed Theatre today and Thursday with Tom Mix, the William Fox star and Zane Grey, the noted American fiction writer.

The screen offering is "The Lone Star Ranger" with the Saddle Monarch in the title role. The story is an adaptation of Mr. Grey's famous book, which, according to its publishers, has been read by more than five million people in the few years since its appearance on the literary market.

With Mix, Lambert Hillyer, the director, has accomplished new heights in the fields of romance. He has assembled a talented cast. Miss Billie Dove, the beautiful Ziegfield Follies dancer, plays the feminine lead. Others are E. C. Shumway, Stanton Heck, Ed Pell, Frank Clark, William Conklin, Minna Redman, Tom Lingham and Francis Carpenter.

The production was staged in the heart of Texas.

Other pictures on the bill include a news, scenic and comedy.

Veterans Disability Applications

Col. Edward Olmsted, acting district manager of the United States Veterans' Bureau for the second district, comprising the state of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut urges that all veterans who desire to file an application for a certificate of disability do so immediately. March 1, 1924 is the last day to file such an application. This is in accordance with an amendment to the War Risk act and all applications must be addressed to the Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau so that they will reach him before March 1, 1924.

An application for a certificate of disability is for the veteran who has not filed a claim for compensation during the past five years and the purpose of the certificate is to protect such veteran should he, at some future date, suffer from a disability incurred in or aggravated by his service, for which he may claim government aid.

Mr. Casey made famous by Thayer's poem, "Casey at the Bat," is E. Robinson Casey, now a business man of Syracuse, N. Y. The famous game was played in Minneapolis.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

The Keith vaudeville at this theatre improves with every change of program which is Monday's and Thursdays.

Today will be your last chance to see Charles Horn and Co. in the well played one-act comedy drama, The Automobile Broker. It is a sure cure for the blues.

Hazard and Mary are very clever on the wire and their chatter is amusing. The act is well named, Watch Your Step.

A very pleasing singing and talking bit is put over by Caverly and Wald.

In Millard and Marlin you will find a pair of tour pair in a knock about cast, called Honeymooning.

Manthey and Girls put over several neat singing and dancing numbers.

The featrue picture, You are in Danger, with Carmel Myers and a select cast of players is a story of the underworld and high society. A thrill with every foot of film.

Starting Thursday and for the remainder of the week the vaudeville program will feature the Brown Girls.

There are seven of them, seven grown girls and even the color-blind person will admit that brown as it applies to these young women is most attractive. The Brown girls are pretty, part and attractively costumed. These seven girls constitute a combination band and symphony orchestra, a symphony orchestra because the instrumentation includes the harp, the cello and violin and a piano, a band because there are drums and xylophones and cornets but the combination is thoroughly effective. Each of the girls is a musician, each a master of the instrument she plays. Their program is well selected and well rendered and the act is attractively staged.

On the same bill four other big time Keith vaudeville will show you their wares, they have a large stock on hand.

Pearson Song Recital

As a guarantee of the piano work for the Song Recital at Slater Hall on Monday evening, the 18th, Miss Pearson is bringing with her Miss Helen Wolverton, who is reported to be an accompanist of high rank.

That Miss Wolverton has been used on repeated occasions by such artists as Arthur Middleton, Lucy Marsh Grace Kerns and Paul Althouse, is perhaps a sufficient assurance that the accompaniments for Miss Pearson's programs will be rendered in a thoroughly satisfactory manner.

Selection of reserved seats will begin this morning at Cranston's store, and an early contact with the seating chart will be necessary to ensure possession of the seating coupon which will mean happiness when Miss Pearson's recital begins.

Price of the seats is $1.50, tax exempt.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

AT THE PALACE

From time immemorial the fool has been the butt of punsters, scorned of the intelligent and generally downtrodden. As one poet has so aptly expressed it, "A fool's a fool, and there's no denying that!" However, even as every dog has his day and the devil will have his due, so too has the fool had his moment of glory in history.

It was in Paris of old that the fools held sway of power for the nonce. During the reign of King Louis XI the strange festival of the fools was celebrated in its palmiest glory. This was the one day of the year when full license was granted Parisians of every class. The result was that for the day the ancient city became a Babylon gone mad.

From early dawn the boulevards were thronged with people of every class—beggars who forgot to beg, thieves who forgot to ply their trade, and respectable shopkeepers who forgot to be respectable. Madness ran riot and buffoonery ruled. Music and song mingled with the hoarse shouts of the mob and wine ran freely.

An interesting feature of the celebration was the serpentine dance which was executed at the height of the wild orgy. Marching in the form of an endless, weaving serpent, men, women and children swayed through the streets, chanting a weird singsong.

The festival of the fools is one of the strange phases of history revived in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the Universal production now playing at the Palace Theatre.

"Smilin' Through" to be Presented at the Palace Theatre

"Smilin' Through," the great comedy success by Allan Langdon Martin which was originally produced in New York with Jane Cowl in the leading role has been selected as the opening play of the Chicago Stock Company's engagement at the Palace Theatre which Monday matinee and night.

The story of "Smilin' Through" after a prologue that is far too unique to be spoiled by being told in advance, starts in the garden of a crusty old man who has his ward, a delightful wisp of an Irish girl with all the charm of the central figure in "Peg O' My Heart." For years he has bitterly remembered the fact that another man has won the woman he loved. Therefore, when he finds that this girl has fallen in love with the son of the man, he is furious and swears that they shall never marry.

Right here, comes in the quaintness of the piece, back through the hazy film of years that have passed comes memory visualized. He lives over again the years he cannot forget and from them learns the lesson that he never learned before with the result that, when the young lover returns, he permits them to be happy and in doing so finds happiness himself.

While there is a sweetness and inimitable charm in the story of "Smilin' Through" the skill with which the characters are drawn is probably the most attractive feature of this great play. It is one play in a hundred and critics everywhere have styled it the wonder play.

Manager Rose Kam of the Chicago players has provided the play with a beautiful scenic production and the acting cast headed by Jean White and W. James Bedell is said to compare very favorably with the finest of dramatic attractions.

Reserved seats on sale Thursday at box office for not only the opening attraction but for the other five New York successes that will be presented.

Norwich Minstrel Follies Has Unanimous Approval of Public

Judging from the crowds that have been storming the box office at the Broadway theatre this week the Norwich Minstrel Follies have made a decided hit with the public.

The production has met with instant approval by all who have seen the play.

A complete change of program will be given for Thursday, Friday and Saturday with new specialties.

What police and social workers say is one of the finest motion picture stories of criminals ever screened comes to the Broadway theatre for Thursday and Friday.

It is "White Tiger," a Universal-Jewel special production. The star is Priscilla Dean and the author-director Ted Browning, the same star-director combination responsible for that amazing underworld screen play of two or three years ago, "Outside the Law."

Miss Dean has in "White Tiger," the role of an underworld queen of the society brand. She is one of three famous, or infamous, international crooks who operate in the exclusive circles of society and turn up their aristocratic noses at jewels worth less than 50 or a 100,000 dollars.

Properly speaking, such a story isn't an "underworld" story in the final sense, and yet, as police records show, the underworld is its final haunt, the headquarters and the training ground of the society class of criminals, so it all amounts to the same.

One of the most interesting situations in "White Tiger" shows the trio of international thieves quarrelling among themselves, unwilling to trust each other, and at the same time believing an honest meddler, whose only purpose is to draw the girl from her path of crime, to be a crook waiting for his chance to demand a "divvy."

Grange Meeting of Interest

Members of Norwich Grange are anticipating an especially interesting evening at their regular meeting tonight. A debate concerning old age pensions is on between Judge Barnes and Lawyer James. There will also be vocal solos by Mrs. Olive Potter and Mrs. Beckwith and a discussion on our most useful American citizen. The lecturer's hour beginning at 8.45 p. m., will be an open meeting that friends of the members may enjoy the program.

Continue your daily reading. If you would be happy.

TEAMS MAKE GOOD REPORT IN NORWICH VISITATION EVANGELISM

There was a large and enthusiastic group at the Community House Tuesday evening, this being the second get-together meeting of the team workers in the lay evangelistic effort of the Norwich churches. More than 100 were at the tables and an air of confidence and victory prevailed. Brief remarks were made by a number of those present and all the speakers declared that this form of campaign is the best way to win folks to Christian decisions. A total of 133 Christian decisions were reported up to the supper hour Tuesday evening. The team workers were seated by churches at the tables and the pastors made reports on the work that had been done. A chicken pie supper was served.

The campaign director, Rev. Earl Kernahan, gave a brief talk on Why Folks Are Lost to Positive Christian Discipleship. He said there are four main reasons:

First: Failure to Intelligently Train Our Children. I place this reason first because as we visit with our prospects we learn that nearly all of them were members of a Sunday school at some period of their childhood but slipped through our fingers into a non-Christian life. The departments of religious education in our seminaries are presenting us with a constructive program which if accepted and practiced by our churches will grow a generation of Christians and give Christianity a real chance. I plead for parents and ministers to give more study, thought and time to the religious training of the child. It is largely because of inefficiency in dealing with children that we have to conduct evangelistic campaigns.

Second: Preoccupation. May I give this in the form of an illustration?

My team mate and I were assigned to interview a manufacturer in a northern Indiana city. We called at the man's office. His secretary informed us that he was very busy but that if we could be through in ten minutes he would give us this much time. Entering the office, we immediately told him the purpose of our call and then followed our usual custom of first visiting until a friendly atmosphere had been created and second visiting until we knew his attitude toward Christ and the church. We first used the appeal of service and informed him of the modern program of the church, referring to the centenary movement and the fine service a new Centenary church was rendering in a low grade semi-foreign community. We called his attention to our week-day religious education in the Calumet region, where 5,400 children are receiving week-day religious instruction, over 2,000 of them coming from non-Christian foreign homes. We also mentioned the new church hospital at Gary and other services the church was rendering. We made the appeal that a man of his prominence and influence in the community should be a Christian and a member of a church that was rendering this type of service. He acknowledged that he thoroughly believed in the work the church was doing, was glad it was being done, but was not ready to make his decision.

We next used the appeal of conscience and talked about his personal need of Jesus Christ and salvation. He acknowledged that he ought to be a Christian, that it was the right life to live, but he was not ready to do it. We then made the appeal of having a Christian home. We had information about the family, knew that the young man in the household was causing the father some worry so made the appeal on the basis of what it would mean to the father to have children of Christian principles of conduct and a Christian home. The father recognized the value of this for his family, became confidential as we talked about it but would not make his decision. Our time was up, the conversation had been friendly so we had prayer and asked him to give serious consideration to the proposition with a viewpoint of reaching a decision upon which he would be willing to act. He promised to do this.

Four days later, at the supper hour, the telephone rang and the conversation was something like this: "At each meal-hour for the last four days the subject of conversation around our family table has been the proposition that was put to me in the office. My wife, son, daughter, and I have all consecrated our lives to Christ. If it is satisfactory with the pastor we want to be received into church membership on Sunday morning and take our place as a Christian family in the community and in the church."

Here was a man who was so busy that he begrudgingly gave ten minutes' time for an interview about the Christian life. Yet when he took time to give it serious consideration he realized that there was nothing more important for himself, for his relationship to his community or for the welfare of his family than for him to become a Christian and let his life's influence count on the side of Christ and the church.

Third: Confusion. One of the outstanding needs of today is for the clergy to preach modern constructive sermons on the fundamentals of our Christian faith. Laymen and the non-Christian public are often confused and do not know, since we have passed through a reconstruction period, just what they can believe. I find the ear of laymen keen for a statement of truth from a modern viewpoint.

Simply to suggest Christian Science, Russellism, Mormanism, and a good many other isms, indicates that there is confusion as to what it means to be a Christian. We also find much confusion on this subject among people who have been raised in the Sunday school and church.

As an illustration of this type of confusion—a pastor handed out a special assignment for a team to call on a business man who, the pastor said, was as fine a moral man as could be found in that entire community; but that he did not claim to be a Christian and was not a member of the church. The man frankly told the workers that when he was a young man he desired to have the type of conversion experience which he had heard some elderly Christian testify about. He went to the mourners' bench three nights, earnestly prayed, but was disappointed in not receiving that kind of an experience. He was honest, did not consider himself a Christian and would not unite with the church, but decided that the Christian principles of conduct were the best to follow, so he had adopted them in his own life. He frankly stated, "If I should now become a Christian, as far as I know there would be no change in my habits." He also stated that he now had a different opinion as to what he had to do to become a Christian. He said that he now thought that if he put his faith and trust in Christ and united with the church, that probably this would be all that was necessary. He asked if he would be willing to receive him on that basis. We first inquired whether he understood that putting his faith and trust in Christ included a personal devotional life of prayer, worship, and Christian service. He said he understood that these things were included.

I have asked a hundred ministers if they would receive this man on this basis, without an emotional conversion experience, and have not found one who would have rejected him. Why wasn't this man who had been well raised in a Christian home, received into the church twenty years ago so that he could have been a pillar in the church of Christ all these years?

Fourth: Sin. I have purposely placed old fashioned moral sin last because I find that this is not what stands in the way of the majority of the people we interview. Illustrating this type of a case:

The furniture in the home, the appearance of the man and the expression of his own countenance, all showed the marks of sin. This man had been a drunkard for many years and had lived a vile life. The visit with the man furnished the point of contact, because he had come from an old-fashioned Methodist home. He had a praying mother who had gone to glory, and he was personally acquainted with the old-fashioned mourners' bench revivals. The appeal of mother, mother's prayers, and to meet mother over yonder softened his heart and he came under conviction. We felt that this man needed to get upon his knees. The workers first prayed and then had him pray for himself. As the victory came, he arose to his feet, threw his tobacco and bottle-openers in the stove, went into a shed in the back yard and broke some whiskey or beer bottles or something worse and returning to the house, informed the workers that he was now ready to live the Christian life.

NORWICH MAN ESCAPED IN WRECK OF TACOMA

Maurice J. Kennedy of 46 Union street was one of the crew of the U. S. cruiser Tacoma to escape when the naval vessel was wrecked on a reef of Vera Cruz, Mexico, on Monday night, Jan. 21.

In a letter to his mother, Mrs. John Kennedy of East Hartford, Kennedy, who was chief store keeper on the Tacoma tells how Homer Henry Lussier of 74 Divinlay St., Bristol, the Tacoma's wireless operator and his two assistants were killed when the waves tore the radio shack from the cruiser. The three were boys and were pounded by the waves and numbed by the bitter cold wind until they lost consciousness.

Capt. Herbert G. Sparrow of Greenwich, who also lost his life, stopped in the midst of the maddening tussle to pass a word of greeting and cheer to Kennedy. The Norwich man was gripping to the gun deck when the captain passed and said: "Well, Kennedy, you never shipped for this." He then went to the radio shack and after that had been carried away. He started to make his way to the bridge when he was killed.

Kennedy's letter to his mother is as follows:

U. S. Receiving Ship
Charleston, S. C.
Feb. 4, 1924

My dear mother:

"I arrived here Saturday from Vera Cruz after being shipwrecked and I feel all right after all we went through. I was one of the forty-eight men sent back to save what we could and was lucky to save my hide. The first morning we went on the rocks, January 16, we thought it looked bad. No help could be brought to us all that day and all during the night. On the following morning the Mexicans came out and took 278 men off and landed us in Vera Cruz.

"Then the Richmond came in and took us off the beach and the paymaster, a chief yeoman and myself were sent back on Saturday, the 19th, to the Tacoma to help salvage her. And on Sunday, the 20th, the second storm started. It began at 1 o'clock and the captain thought that it would be like the first storm, lasting about twelve hours. But it was the worst storm that ever hit the gulf.

"Sunday afternoon the seas pounded up terribly and the two tugs that had been hovering near us had to leave and get in behind the breakwater or they would have been lost. They could not help us any as they could not get near enough and would have been lost if they had tried a rescue.

"About 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon the gun ports and air ports began to loosen and we tried hard to keep them closed but it was like trying to bail the ocean out with a spoon.

"The last I saw of the captain was after we had worked up to our necks in water on the gun deck and had found out that it was useless and gave up. The captain said: 'Well, Kennedy, you never shipped for this.' He then went up to the radio shack, where the chief radioman and the three boys who were later killed, were staying.

"The radio shack was carried away at 6.30 o'clock and the seas were coming over the stacks. We were down on the gun deck on the opposite side from the sea and standing in water up to our hips. We didn't have any water or food and were on there for forty-four hours before the seas calmed down and we were taken off by a life boat.

"The captain was killed when trying to get forward to the bridge after the radio shack had been carried away and the three boys had been killed by being pounded by the waves and being exposed to the bitter cold wind.

"We are now at Charleston, S. C., and intend to put the Galeston in commission and will probably get leave after they have held a court of inquiry. The captain's body is to be sent to Washington today for burial. All the men who were on the packet the second time lost everything they owned. I did not save any thing and am waiting to be fitted out again."

Kennedy's twelve years of service in the navy include the war-time years when he was stationed at the submarine base on the Thames and later at Colon, Panama. He re-enlisted only last November and when he has served sixteen years he plans to retire. He is married.

His brother, James Kennedy, was disabled in the service during the world war and is a member of Hartford chapter, No. 1, Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

STANDARD TIME LEADER REPLIES TO BRIDGEPORT

G. Warren Davis, writing in reply to a recent editorial in the Bridgeport Post, which expressed the general weariness felt at the frequent effusions on standard time by Mr. Davis, says:

There is a disturbance in Bridgeport; the Bridgeport Post complains about my application of the goodly word 'Scofflaw.' I did not coin the word. In American English we often make short-cuts just as we do in American mechanics! American applications of the sciences, and our American culture seems to thrive on the custom. When daylighters began upsetting the standard time law in 1922 it was the usual thing to say: The law says so and so, but the daylighters scoff at it. Some wise word-economist invented the word scofflaw, and it takes the place of ten or twelve words—a great economy; for now we simply scofflaw and let it go at that, devoting the saved energy to expressing some other fact pertinent to the case. I cannot remember, Mr. Editor, using the word outside the pale of conservative nomenclature. Many times I have heard in connection with the disregard for the standard time laws words of such emphatic nature that I feel it would be quite useless for me to incorporate them in public remarks or in your columns. I am very sure they wouldn't "get by." Nor should they; they are too lurid.

It is too bad the Post nurses grievance about how he shall run his watch; about how he shall go to bed and how to rise therefrom—"privately." But he doesn't do them "privately." He is like the boy with firecrackers who finds no fun at all in firecrackers except he can shoot them where mother or somebody can hear them go with him. Likewise the Post, he isn't content with running his watch in his own way; isn't content with going quietly to bed alone, or in getting up alone, letting others do the same.

When the caprice seizes him to meddle with his watch he is sore, if the rest of the state doesn't start right in with him to set all watches and clocks just like his —— public clocks, too. Then he isn't satisfied to get up "privately"; no, indeed. He has to jerk the rest of the state out of bed when his caprice urges him to get up; has to jerk out of bed several hundred thousands of school children and so loses for them several hundred thousands of sleep hours each morning, and he does that for 150 mornings, robbing the kiddies of many millions of sleep-hours each daylight-saving period—just so he can have the privilege of getting up "privately"! Worse! Long before Mr. Post-Daylighter gets up he has compelled scores upon scores of high school boys and girls to get up at four-thirty to catch a bus or train; gives them an unendingly long day away from home which they reach late in the afternoon weak with fatigue and hunger. All this so Daylighter may get up "privately"!

Mr. Post-Daylighter is in seasonal mood. This league has watched him and his kind for a season or two. We begin to know their habits. About Ground Hog day they rub their eyes and complain about some fancied wrongs imposed upon them by somebody or other. They keep on "bely-aching around," seeking this or that group as an accomplice in law-breaking, and they then proceed to "feed" their sensitive press to buoyantly tell everybody else to get up with them—"privately"!

This league, Mr. Editor, believes the laws of Connecticut are made for all of the people of Connecticut, and not for a part of the people of Connecticut. We simply try to follow some of the things which Governor Templeton and "Cal" Coolidge have said were the right things to follow. Those things appear to flow from common sense.

The patients of the Norwich tuberculosis sanatorium were given an unusual treat Saturday night, when, through the kindness of Manager Davidson of the Broadway theatre, the picture, The Mailman, which is now running at that theatre, was presented at the sanatorium.

Through the courtesy of the manager of the Strand and Broadway theatres the patients are given an opportunity of viewing a picture every Saturday night; it is needless to say the patients are very appreciative of this kind act.

ATTENDED FUNERAL OF OLD RAILROAD MAN

About 50 railroad men, mostly employes of the Central Vermon system, attended the funeral of former-Conductor Robert F. Wheeler at Brattleboro Sunday afternoon, some arriving by special car attached to a regular train which left New London, at midnight.

The service was held in the Wheeler residence at 29 Pearl street. Rev. Dr. Clark T. Brownell of the First Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Prospect Hill cemetery. The bearers were: Conductor John O'Brien of White River Junction; Conductor George Blake of New London; Engineer Charles Hincky of Palmer, Mass. and Conductor Thomas Rouse, Brakeman William Howard and Engineer J. S. Klinefelter of Brattleboro.

Mr. Wheeler, who was 76, and was made station master at the Union passenger station in Brattleboro, three years ago. He had been afflicted with heart disease for a year or more.

Mr. Wheeler was employed on New London division 48 years, 42 years as conductor, beginning his duties just after the road became a part of the Central Vermont system. His run was between Brattleboro and New London for 25 years.

Mr. Wheeler was born in Brattleboro, a son of Joel and Phila (Miller) Wheeler. He was twice married. He leaves a daughter, Miss Kate R. Wheeler, a nurse of Brattleboro, a son J. Frank Wheeler of Springfield, Mass., a railroad man and a step-son, Dr. Dean C. Bangs of Milford, Conn.

NEW ENGLAND SETS HIGH MARK FOR INSURANCE

New England managers and agents working for the Metropolitan Life Insurance company set a new high mark for that territory in the amount of insurance written during the past year, a total of $121,018,000 in ordinary, being reported at the annual meeting of the Metropolitan superintendents and managers in New York. This figure showed a gain of 91 million over the previous year, and contributed to a large extent in the unprecedented record made by the company in writing $2,359,000,000 during 1923.

Out of the nine territories in which Metropolitan policy holders are divided, New York led in the amount of insurance written. New England was second. In the amount of industrial insurance, however, that section was in the lead of the entire country, writing $99,466 against $42,113 the year before. During the year, the staff was increased by the addition of 127 men.

An outstanding feature of the year's work was the marked improvement in general mortality, President Fiske declaring that compared with the death rate in 1911, last year showed a saving of 52,000 lives. This number, he said, was equal to $13,840,000 in death claims.

Announcement was made that as a result of health demonstration conducted by the company at Framingham, Mass., there had been a decrease of 62 per cent. in the death rate of that city.

A significant feature of the report was that of the seven cities leading in the amount of industrial insurance written per week in the United States and Canada, five were in New England, and three of the five in Connecticut. The list follows in the order of the rating: New Haven, Brooklyn, New York, Boston, Providence, Hartford and Bridgeport.

BRANDEGEE WITH COOLIDGE ON DENBY RESOLUTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, Feb. 13.—Senator Brandegee made a brief but forceful speech against the Robinson resolution demanding the resignation of Denby just before the vote was taken. Mr. Brandegee took the ground that the senate had no more right to instruct the president what to do than the president would to instruct the senate to demand the unseating of a senator.

"It would be a rank piece of impertinence," remarked the Connecticut senator. "We would say to the president: 'This is no business of yours, you attend to your own business and we will attend to ours!' I believe those who vote for the pending resolution will live to regret it." Mr. Brandegee voted against the resolution. Senator McLean was paired against it with Senator Glass of Virginia in its favor. The sentiment expressed here today is strongly in accord with the statement of President Coolidge, New England senators especially rejoicing that the president is keeping a level head and not yielding to democratic clamor.

A WORD TO WOMEN

A hundred and twenty-one thousand women would comprise a vast army. Yet a canvass was recently made among more than that number of women who had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for feminine ailments. The result proved that ninety-eight out of every hundred reported benefit from its use. This is most remarkable evidence of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of womankind, and should influence every sick and ailing woman to try it.

Arm Caught in Rollers

Eugene Nugent, superintendent of the box shop of the Robert Gair Co. mill, Montville, sustained severe bruises to the right arm last week when it became entangled between two rollers of a conveyor.

Mr. Nugent, directly after the accident, was attended by Dr. Morton F. Fox and later removed to the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospital in New London, where an X-ray examination failed to reveal any broken bones.

Palmertown Boy Injured

John Callahan, a Palmertown boy, sustained a deep gash in his head Sunday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile owned and operated by Ernest Coe of Huntington street. The accident happened as Coe was driving through Palmertown about 4 o'clock. Ten stitches were taken in the boy's head to close the wound after he had been taken to a hospital. Coe reported the accident to the state police.

Give the children a piece of WRIGLEY'S after every meal. It satisfies the craving for sweets and the chewing of the gum will help digestion and act as a pleasant, antiseptic cleanser of mouth and throat. You would "give almost anything" if the children would keep their teeth clean. Why not reward them with and have the very reward itself do the work! Try it for a month and observe results. Three cents per day per child will pay the bill and make them happy!

The Economic Triangle

THERE are three factors in industry which form an equilateral triangle—producers, investors and consumers. But the individuals within the triangle continually intermingle. Both producers and investors, for instance, are consumers, while consumers and producers are also investors. Thus we find that their interests are the same.

If investors demand more than the use of their savings is worth, if labor demands more than its services are honestly worth, the cost of production increases to such an extent that the consumers cannot or will not pay the price. If this happens nothing but loss follows, for both labor and investor depend upon the sale of goods to reward them for their services and investments.

OIL SCANDAL INVESTIGATION BECOMES MORE ASTOUNDING

Frank A. Vanderlip Has Brought the Name of Warren G. Harding Into the Muddle in Statement About the Sale of the Marion Star—Vanderlip Has Been Subpoenaed to Appear Before the Senate Committee—Admits He Has No Definite Proof of Accusation—Vanderlip Also Stated That the Investigation of Fall Was Halted Because the Latter Was Ready to "Peach" on Transactions That Would Have Gone Into "Higher Places."

Washington, Feb. 13.—Developments in the oil scandal tumbled over each other so rapidly today and went so far afield that when night came the national capital had not recovered from the shock.

President Harding's name and the circumstances surrounding the sale of his newspaper, The Marion Star, were brought in by Frank A. Vanderlip, New York banker, who promptly was subpoenaed by the oil committee to appear tomorrow morning and tell what he may know.

Bainbridge Colby, a former secretary of state, and one time law partner of President Wilson for a brief period, was mentioned in information brought to the committee in connection with the vast array of lawyers retained by various oil interests.

President Coolidge, informed by republican senators that neither Silas H. Strawn nor Atlee Pomerene could be confirmed as special government counsel in the oil cases, made preparations to withdraw their nominations.

James R. Garfield, secretary of the interior under President Roosevelt, was considered for appointment as one of the government attorneys, but investigation showed that Mr. Garfield's firm had had legal connection with the Doheny interests in Mexico.

Without a record vote the senate adopted a resolution by Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, of the oil committee, calling on the state department for all diplomatic correspondence relating to the Colombian treaty, ratified by the senate after secretary Fall had urged that it was necessary to protect American oil interests in Colombia.

Then the senate adopted another resolution by Senator Dill calling for similar correspondence with Great Britain and eight other countries relating to oil concessions.

Ground work for a sweeping investigation of the administration of Attorney General Daugherty, particularly his failure to act in the oil scandal and other matters, was laid in a resolution presented by Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana.

Steps were taken by the oil committee to question, probably tomorrow, Oscar Sutro, counsel for the Standard Oil company of California, regarding his statement that his and other oil companies refrained from bidding on the Fall oil leases because they considered the leasing policy to be without authority in law.

A subpoena was issued for Karl C. Schuyler, a Denver attorney, to produce correspondence relating to Teapot Dome which was described to the committee as sensational.

J. Leo Stack, a Denver oil operator, followed up previous testimony of an understanding between Harry F. Sinclair and Standard Oil interests by testifying that he had been informed a week beforehand officials of the Pioneer Oil company that Sinclair would get Teapot Dome.

Replying on the senate floor to President Coolidge's statement on Secretary Denby, Democratic Leader Robinson declared that eventually the president would have to put out of his administration all of those connected with the Fall leasing program.

Some senators professed to have definite information that both Secretary Denby and Attorney General Daugherty soon would retire from the cabinet, but there were no outward developments either at the White House or the navy or justice departments to indicate that resignation of either was impending.

The injection of President Harding's name into the oil muddle created a sensation of scarcely less magnitude than did E. L. Doheny's unexpected testimony of two weeks ago that he had made an unpaid loan of $100,000 to Albert B. Fall.

News of the speech delivered by Mr. Vanderlip last night at Ossining, N. Y., asking for investigation of the source of the $500,000 paid to Mr. Harding for the Star just before his death traveled like wildfire through the senate cloakrooms and throughout official Washington.

There were hurried conferences between Chairman Lenroot and other members of the oil committee with an apparently unanimous agreement that Mr. Vanderlip should be summoned immediately. An air of almost feverish tension pervaded the senate chamber and spread throughout the administration.

Senators gathered in groups on the floor, in the cloakrooms and the marble room discussing the latest shift in the storm of charges and suspicions enveloping the capitol. Until they saw the actual dispatches on the Vanderlip speech they were too astounded to comprehend that a man Mr. Vanderlip's recognized standing had publicly charged an investigation into the affairs of Warren G. Harding.

On all sides it was agreed that the publication of such grave charges made it more imperative than ever that the oil investigation should be pushed to the fullest possible limit irrespective of where it might lead. Some senators pointed out that suspicion had become so widespread that no one could consider himself immune and that it was essential to the public interest that the guilty should be separated from the innocent as soon as possible.

[illegible] that some of the rumors [illegible] about senators without [illegible] them, one senator declared, made it all the more [illegible] senate to get to the bottom of the charges and rumors [illegible].

Barely an hour after the publication of Mr. Vanderlip had been announced Senator Chairman Lenroot had attached his signature to a subpoena for the New York banker. Avoiding the slow process of formal service, Senator Lenroot had the senate sergeant-at-arms communicate by telephone with Mr. Vanderlip who expressed readiness to appear before the committee tomorrow morning.

The New York financier will be questioned not only with reference to his statements about the sale of the Marion Star, but also about his charge that the oil committee did not go further in investigating Fall because the former secretary was ready to "peach" and what he would have said would have gone into "high places."

E. L. Doheny may be recalled by the committee in connection with reports reaching it during the day and bringing the name of former secretary Colby into the list of former government officials whom Doheny employed or sought to employ.

Information brought to the committeemen was that the California oil magnate tried unsuccessfully to employ Mr. Colby at a large fee just about the time Woodrow Wilson withdrew from the law firm of Wiland Colby and the firm was dissolved.

Committeemen also heard reports that Mr. Doheny had employed or sought to employ former members of the senate. If he is recalled he will be asked as to these also.

Until it was overshadowed by these unexpected additions to the list of probable committee witnesses, the largest upset in President Coolidge's plans for employment of special counsel to prosecute the oil cases had been a subject of the first moment both at the capitol and in administration circles.

Upon returning here from New York early this morning, Mr. Coolidge learned that neither Mr. Strawn nor Mr. Pomerene would be acceptable to the senate. In fact, he was told by republican leaders that neither could obtain a favorable vote even in the oil committee which has been considering their nominations for some days.

Immediately after breakfast he conferred with Chairman Lenroot and Senator Curtis of Kansas, the assistant republican leader, and later began a new canvass of his field for available counsel. He called Mr. Garfield into consultation, but it was apparent afterwards that his appointment was unlikely in view of the past connection of his law firm with the Doheny interests in Mexico.

President Coolidge has been advised of the conviction of many senators that he should select as government counsel one outstanding criminal prosecutor and one prominent civil lawyer with a wide knowledge of public land laws. In the view of a majority of the oil committee the two men selected do not fill these specifications, and the president is said to feel that he should save them the embarrassment of rejection by himself withdrawing their nominations before the committee makes its report.

The oil committee will have still another duty thrust upon it should the senate decide that an inquiry is necessary on the basis of the state department information regarding foreign oil concessions asked for in the Dill resolutions adopted today. Senator Dill desires particularly to inquire into former Secretary Fall's activities in connection with Colombian treaty.

This treaty was negotiated by Secretary Bryan, but it failed of ratification until early in the Harding administration when Mr. Fall earnestly urged his former colleagues in the senate to vote their approval. One of the arguments he advanced was that favorable action would be in the interest of American oil companies seeking to develop fields in northern South America.

BRUSH DENIES ACCUSATIONS MADE BY F. A. VANDERLIP

Cleveland, O., Feb. 13—The implications of irregularities in the sale of the Marion Star by President Harding to Louis H. Brush and Roy D. Moore, made by Frank A. Vanderlip, New York financier, in a speech at Ossining, N. Y., last night, brought a sharp denial from Mr. Brush tonight. Brush is president of the Harding Publishing company, in addition to owning several other newspapers in Ohio and has been a lifelong personal friend of the late president. His statement follows:

"Mr. Vanderlip's attempt to implicate the late president Harding and the new owners of the Marion Star, through the sale of that newspaper to Roy D. Moore and myself is inexcusably false. His statements were so venomous that it is impossible for him to soften their effect by claiming a desire to protect Mr. Harding's memory by forcing an investigation. When he appears before the senate committee tomorrow, which I presume is a result of my request that he be called, Mr. Vanderlip will explain that his speech was based entirely on rumors and admit that he had made no effort to confirm them before shooting them broadcast through the press of the country without regard to the harm he might be doing to the late president's reputation and to Mr. Moore and myself in our business careers.

"Mr. Vanderlip asks 'Where did the money come from; where did it go.' Every dollar of it came from our own pockets, some of it borrowed, it is true, but with the customary securities back of it. The money went to Mr. Harding and the minority stockholders, and Mrs. Harding's share is now a part of his estate. Practically all of the facts have been and are now available in the Marion county probate court through the executor of the Harding estate or at the offices of the Marion Star for the benefit of Mr. Vanderlip, the senate committee or anyone else.

"No authorized statement has ever been made by us as to the actual purchase price of the Star, although terribly exaggerated figures have been repeatedly published. But since a man of Mr. Vanderlip's standing comes out boldly and tells the world that we have 'no financial standing,' hitting us in an apparent effort to throw mud at the Harding administration in general, we are willing to parade our private business affairs on the ground that there is a public interest and official demand for the details.

"The actual purchase price of the Marion Star, including every share of stock, was $330,000. The contract with President Harding was signed at the White house two days before he left for Alaska upon the payment by us of $50,000 in cash. The contract provided that other payments and details of the transaction should be cleared up on his return from Alaska, for which purpose he had planned to stop at Marion.

"Of the $330,000, Mr. Harding was to receive $263,000, the remainder of stock then being held by Star employes. We were to pay the president $63,000 in cash, including the $50,000 paid to him in Washington, and to turn over to him preferred stock in the re-organized Harding Publishing company amounting to $100,000. In addition the president was to sign a contract of employment with the Star as associate editors at a salary of $13,300 per year. This arrangement constituted a compromise on the price and as a result of our prospects of making considerable profit from the syndication of his writings at a comparatively small salary, the payment of the salary was guaranteed for ten years.

"The earnings of the Star over a period of several years averaged a return of ten per cent. On the full purchase price. These facts are given to show that Mr. Vanderlip does not know any more about the value of the Marion Star than he does about the men whose financial standing he has assailed or the price paid for the Star.

"The important position Mr. Vanderlip occupies in the financial world his former connection with the biggest banking interests and the flat unqualified and unjustified charges he made constitute the worst and most damaging kind of slander. Mr. Moore and I have notified Senator Lenroot, chairman of the investigating committee, that we will be in Washington tomorrow ready to give his committee any information it may want. Unless Mr. Vanderlip falls absolutely flat before the committee, should like the privilege of appearing before it. I predict, however, that the whole thing will be thrown out in disgust.

VANDERLIP ADMITS LACK OF DEFINITE PROOF

New York, Feb. 13.—Frank A. Vanderlip, financier and former president of the National City bank, who in na address at Ossining last night criticised the sale of "a certain Marion newspaper" and arraigned public officials in connection with "flagrant national scandals," announced he would leave for Washington at midnight tonight.

He said he had received a request by telephone from the sergeant at arms of the senate to appear before the senate committee which is investigating the Teapot Dome oil leases.

He asserted that if he were called before the senate committee he would not be able to furnish definite proof of his statements of last night. "All I can tell them is what I have said," he added.

FORMER SECRETARY IN DEFENSE OF HARDING

Washington, Feb. 13.—President Harding's private secretary George B. Christian, Jr., declared in a statement here tonight that Frank A. Vanderlip was "an unconscionable traducer of the memory of the dead."

"Even when hysteria is the order of the day," Mr. Christian said, "the suggestion that the sale of Mr. Harding's private property has any connection near or remote with the lease of government oil lands is so wantonly inexcusable that adequate comment is hardly possible. Mr. Vanderlip has the choice of proving that he has been misquoted or standing the most contemptible of men."

REFUSED TO NAME MEN WHO RECEIVED $225,000 BONUS

New York, Feb. 13.— William A. Brady, producer, testifying today at Commissioner of Accounts Hirschfield's investigation of theatre ticket speculating, refused to name the three men he previously declared received $225,000 bonus for peddling tickets. Mr. Brady said he withheld the names because he soon was to appear before an aldermanic committee of speculation investigation.

Samuel F. Kingston, manager of the interests of Florenz Ziegfeld, testified that it was customary to allto blocks of tickets to legitimate agencies. He deplored the "hucksters" evil, suggesting that a way to protect the public against "hucksters" would be to make them wear big tin license plates.

The speculators' evil would not exist, Aaron Applebaum, an attorney, said, if it were not for the fact that New York was full of "suckers."

Mr. Brady, during a heated conversation with Commissioner Hirschfield, dared the commissioner to meet him in debate next Sunday on the ticket speculation evil and offered to pay Hirschfield $500 for accepting.

The commissioner accepted.

McAdoo Conference In Chicago Feb. 18

To Decide Status of McAdoo as Candidate For Dem. Nomination For President.

Chicago, Feb. 13—A nation conference of McAdoo supporters, representatives of labor, farmers "and other liberals" to consider the availability of the former secretary of the treasury as a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination was called tonight to meet in Chicago, Feb. 8.

"The means you propose for ascertaining whether the present partisan attacks upon you have in any degree lessened the demand for your candidacy is the surest method that can be devised," Judge David Ladd Rockwell, national director of the McAdoo campaign, said in a letter to the candidate acknowledging the latter's suggestion that such a conference be called.

"This is the most daring, direct and courageous step ever taken by any presidential candidate," the letter said.

In addition to avowed supporters of the McAdoo candidacy, invitations will be extended to "representative progressives" [illegible] democratic [illegible] and spokesmen of labor and the farmer.

Mr. McAdoo requested the conference "to consider and determine whether or not the fact that an honorable professional service rendered me to a client, but having no relation whatever to the oil leases now under investigation by the senate committee, is prejudicial to my leadership in the cause of progressive democracy."

Hundred of supporters in all sections of the country have wired national headquarters here of their intention to attend.

The conference probably will be held in Chicago's famous coliseum, scene of many nominating conventions.

Dawes Reparation Committee Satisfied

With Its Exhaustive Study of German Budgetary and Currency Problems.

Berlin, Feb. 13 (By the A. P.)—Expert Committee No. 1, headed by Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes, left here for Paris tonight after having devoted two weeks of exhaustive study to the German budetary and currency problems. The members of the committee were almost a unit in expressing satisfaction over the progress of their researches; they were equally unanimous in their appreciation of the accommodation extended to them in official German quarters as well as the cooperation accorded by industrialists, banks and labor, all of whom, it was stated, dealt with the problems under discussion with absolute candor and sincerity.

There is a strong sentiment among the majority of the experts that not only have their investigations been thorough and comprehensive, but that the findings of both committees are of such a character in their immediate bearing upon the international economic situation that the fullest publicity will be given to the report upon its presentation to the reparation commission.

"Our report will reflect a business man's analysis of a business proposition," one expert stated informally, "and there is no reason why it should not be broadcast as soon as we have definitely complied it."

He believed that such publication would materially contribute to a better popular understanding of the German problem and reparations and that the world at large would undoubtedly be keen to receive a non-political appraisal of the whole question which involves numerous international ramifications.

General Dawes and his colleagues expect to devote another three weeks to sifting the voluminous data accumulated in Berlin and unless more rapid progress is made the report will not be forthcoming until the middle of March. Dr. Schacht, head of the Reichsbank, will have a final conference with the committee on currency in Paris Monday.

EGYPTIAN GOVT CLOSES THE TOMB OF KING TUT.

Luxor, Egypt, Feb. 13.—(By The A. P.)—The crisis which broke with dramatic suddenness today between Howard Carter and the Egyptian government and resulted in the closing of Tutankhamen's tomb undoubtedly had its origin in a contract signed by the late Lord Carnarvon securing the sole rights of descriptive articles and pictures of the discoveries in the tomb to a London newspaper. The Egyptian government which claims that its rights over the tomb are incontestible has been seriously embarrassed by requests from American and British newspapers in behalf of their correspondents at Luxor for facilities in describing the discoveries, facilities which the excavators have declined to grant, relying upon the so-called copyright clause in excavators' licenses granted by the department of antiquities in behalf of the Egyptian government.

Consequently between the excavators, jealous of their newspaper contract, and the government, jealous of its rights, there has been a whole series of bickering mainly on this question of visitors which, however, did not find serious expression until today.

Pending a solution of the difficulty, watchmen of the department of antiquities will take over the immediate guardianship of the tomb from Mr. Carter's native foremen. If no solution is found there are indications that the Egyptian government will take over the tomb and have the work of exploration completed by the department of antiquities.

INVITES INVESTIGATION OF SHIPPING BOARD

Washington, Feb. 13.—Investigation of the administration of the shipping board, called for in a resolution introduced by Representative Davis, democrat, Tennessee, "will be welcomed by me and I believe all other members of the board," Chairman O'Connor said today in discussing statements made in connection with the proposed inquiry.

"We consider the records of the board as public records," said the chairman, "and we will be glad to turn them over whenever congress wishes."

Regarding a published report that the seven 502-foot steamers recently sold by the board to the Dollar Steamship company brought a price of only $5.24 a ton, Mr. O'Connor said "this statement is such a manifest perversion of fact that it calls for prompt correction."

"The sale price of the seven ships was $3,850,000," he said. "Their total deadweight was 91,372 and their average gross tonnage was $10.533. The sale price, therefore, works out at approximately $42.14 per deadweight ton or $52.32 per gross ton.

"It is proper to add that the Dollar Steamship company has agreed as part of the contract of sale to operate these vessels on a round-the-world service for a period of five years, constituting not alone the first round-the-world passenger steamship service under the American flag but the only round-the-world passenger service under any flag."

HALTERS IN IDENTIFICATION OF JOSEPH DIAMOND

New York, Feb. 13.—After having identified Joseph Diamond as one of the gunmen who shot and killed two bank messengers in Brooklyn last November, Jacob Selikowitz, the prosecution's star witness, recanted when he was confused by photographs and admitted doubt, at the opening of the second Diamond murder trial today.

Morris Diamond, Joseph's brother, was convicted last Saturday of murder in the first degree and at that trial, Selikowitz's identification of Joseph as one of the slayers threw the court room into confusion. The accused man's relatives became hysterical and had to be carried out.

Today, Selikowitz again repeated his identification of Joseph but under cross examination by the defendant's counsel, in which he was shown several photographs, the witness apparently was confused and admitted he now has doubt. The new turn given to the case might be used by the convicted brother, it was said, in asking a new trial.

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST JAPANESE "INCONSISTENT"

Secretary Hughes So Informs Chairman Johnson of the House Immigration Committee—Mr. Hughes Advises the Elimination of the Exclusion Provision in the Interests of Our International Relations.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Sections of the immigration restriction measure, pending in the house, would operate to exclude Japanese from the country and such exclusion would be "inconsistent" with treaty obligations with Japan, Secretary Hughes contends in a letter to Chairman Johnson, of the house immigration committee, made public today at the state department.

"I am unable to perceive that the exclusion provision is necessary and I must strongly urge upon you the advisability in the interests of our international relations of eliminating it," Secretary Hughes said.

"The Japanese government has already brought the matter to the attention of the department of state and there is the deepest interest in the attitude of congress with respect to this subject," the letter added.

Secretary Hughes called attention to the existing understanding between the two governments under which Japan undertakes to prevent immigration of laborers to the United States, adding that the Japanese government in this connection "now regulates immigration to territory contiguous to the United States with the object of preventing the departure from Japan of persons who are likely to obtain surreptitious entry into this country."

If a provision making certificates necessary for immigrants coming to the United States were made applicable to Japan, Secretary Hughes said, it would be possible to obtain active cooperation of the Japanese government and an arrangement could be perfected "involving a double control over the Japanese quota of less than 250 a year" which could enter the country.

Such an arrangement, the secretary added, would accomplish "a much more effective regulation of unassimilable and undesirable classes of Japanese immigrants" than would be possible by attempting to establish "a general bar against Japanese subjects without cooperation of the Japanese government."

In connection with his opposition to the Japanese exclusion features of the bill, Secretary Hughes said:

"The Japanese are sensitive people and unquestionably would resent such a legislative enactment as fixing a stigma upon them. I regret to be compelled to say that I believe such legislative action would largely undo the work of the Washington conference on limitation of armaments, which so greatly improved our relations with Japan."

Chairman Johnson said later in reference to the letter that in his opinion the committee "having voted many times and in many forms on the provision relative to oriental immigration will be inclined to stand by the provisions as they appear in the bill."

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN IN NEW ENGLAND INDUSTRIES.

Boston, Feb. 13.—An increase in part time and a decided labor demand are reported in New England industries in the January report of the United States industrial survey for the New England district, made public today. Building operations were active in all states and housing conditions fairly satisfactory. The demand for farm labor was slight. The report by states follows:

Connecticut: Employment conditions have improved throughout the state during the past month. Very little unemployment evident. Machine and wire industries working overtime. Shortage of skilled workers in the metal trades reported. Scarcity of experienced help in the tobacco industry. Rubber factories on part time basis due to seasonal conditions. Building construction continues active with factories fully employed. Farm labor situation fairly satisfactory at present time. Housing shortage exists in certain sections of the state.

Rhode Island: Industrial employment slackened during the past month and surplus of textile workers, jewelry workers and machinists exists. Nearly all plants are on a part time basis. Cigar industry showed increased activity during the month and increased its working forces, absorbing many of the unemployed in other lines. Building operations continue active for this time of the year and furnish work for a large number of tradesmen. No farm labor problem at this season. Housing conditions as a whole are satisfactory.

Maine: Industrial employment has slackened somewhat during the past month, and some cotton mills are closed entirely, while others are on part time schedule. In some sections of the state there was a slight improvement in the boot and shoe industry although there is still a surplus of these workers. Woolen, paper and shirt factories on overtime basis.

New Hampshire: Although there in some parts of the state. * * * was a slight improvement in the textile industry during the month of January there is still a surplus of workers who are unable to secure employment in any other line. EARNINGS OF NEW YORK FEDERAL RESERVE BANK

New York, Feb. 13.—Total earnings of the federal reserve bank of New York for the year ending Dec. 31, 1923, made public today, were $11,459,143, or $71,965 above those of the year before, but net income was only $3,043,476 as against $3,721,593 in 1922.

The fact that total earnings in 1923 and 1922 were about the same is explained by the fact that approximately equal amounts of earnings items were held during the wto years and discount rates throughout both years were at 4 or 4 1-2 per cent.

ASSAILING POLICIES OF NEW BRITISH PREMIER

London, Feb. 13 (By the A. P.)—Premier MacDonald's remedies for dealing with the evils in Europe and the problems of his own country were searchingly analyzed in the house of commons today by former Premiers Baldwin and Asquith and other members of the opposition. Most of the criticisms was directed against his policy in recognising Russia before the soviet gave any pledges concerning the fulfillment of obligations to the British government, corporations or individuals.

Mr. Baldwin declared that Italy had not accorded recognition to Russia until she had secured valuable concessions and privileges from Moscow.

The prime minister was criticised for failure to present details of the proposed solutions of such vital questions as unemployment, public economy, safeguarding the industries and housing, as well as strengthening the army, navy and air forces.

His handling of the popular issue, whereby the minister of health gave the popular guardians considerable latitude in the distribution of unemployment relief, was vigorously assailed by Mr. Asquith, who, however, in other respects exhibited an extremely lenient, almost paternal, attitude towards the new premier.

Mr. Baldwin, in opening the attack said that Premier Macdonald's policy of "sweet reasonableness" in dealing with Europe might be carried to excess without reaping any of the rewards which were its due. The present cabinet, he said, was pursuing the policy in Europe which had been followed by the former government for twelve months. He declared that Mr. Macdonald would find his policy towards Russia impossible of fulfillment, arguing that Germany, which knew Russia better than any other country, had been unable to achieve any substantial business success there, although it had been granted the widest concessions.

WILLIMANTIC

The case of George Burnham, member of the firm of Burnham Brothers, blacksmiths and wagon builders, was taken up in the police court Wednesday morning. Burnham was charged with failure to keep up payments for the support of his wife, Olive B. Burnham, and their nine-year-old daughter. Burnham was not put to plea, as Prosecuting Attorney Harvey stated that this was not necessary as the only question to be decided upon was the amount of money which the defendant would be made to pay for the support of his wife and child. Burnham was before the court last July on a similar charge and arrangements were made whereby he was to pay $15 a week and he did this during the six months allotted by the court. This year, Burnham failed to send the weekly amount for a few weeks and then made payments alleged to be less than fifteen dollars.

The plaintiff, Mrs. Olive B. Burnham, told the court about her financial affairs since last July. Six months after that time the weekly amount stopped being paid by her husband. She is now working as a waitress and her wages are small. She alleges that she had to go to work, as the $15 was not sufficient to support herself and child properly. The room rent and board of her child along with the necessity of clothing and an education for her daughter took all but one dollar of the fifteen each week. In reply to a question by Attorney Harvey, plaintiff said that last year her husband was receiving $30 a week but this had been increased to $35 a week. Burnham was represented by Attorney Gaucher, who asked the plaintiff if she could not get along on $10 a week. She asserted that she could not. Burnham said that all he earned was $30 a week. The extra five dollars in question had been allowed him by his brother and he still owed that amount for a period of twenty-six weeks, during which time he was paying $15 a week to his wife.

Burnham said that he lived in South Coventry and that he paid $12 a week for his board. Lunches in the city cost him $1.50 a week more, and laundry fifty cents a week. On this basis he was "absolutely broke" when he finished paying the $15 a week to his wife. He found it rather hard to get money for his clothing and to pay his doctor's bills. On cross-examination, Burnham said that the profits of the Burnham Brothers' business during the past year had not been much over $300. He could pay his wife $10 regularly.

Judge Foss stated that he did not know who was to blame for the separation of the couple, but figuring it out from a mathematical point of view he thought that if Burnham paid $15 a week to his wife and child, the income of both would be on a fifty-fifty basis. Burnham, he said, should do all in his power to provide for the physical and mental welfare of his young daughter. The split of thirty dollars a week, the income of profits of the firm going to the defendant and the wages of the plaintiff added to what she gets from her husband would about balance it up. Judge Foss then ordered Burnham to pay his wife $15 a week for the next six months and furnish a bond of $400 or a guaranty.

Lincoln's Birthday and Guest Day was observed in delightful manner Tuesday afternoon by Anne Wood Elderkin chapter of the D. A. R. About 200 were present including guests from surrounding towns and were entertained at the Congregational church house from three until six o'clock. Three dramatic sketches were given by the State College players from C. A. C., under the direction of Prof. H. A. Seckerson. The players were very proficient in their parts and were heartily applauded. The plays and casts follow: "Supressed Desires," by Susan Glaspell: Russell White, Pauline Girard, Dorothy Stellenwerf. "Fancy Free," by Stanley Houghton: F. E. Sweet, Lawrence Parker, Marie Brenson, Irene Ellis.

"The Finger of God," by Percival Wilde: Milton Moore, Phyliss Smith, Forsen Pinkham.

Miss Florence Howe gave two beautiful piano selections during intermission. The D. A. R. salute to the flag, led by the regent, Mrs. Carrie Larrabee, opened the program. America was sung by the assemblage. The hostesses who served luncheon, assisted by several high school girls, were Mrs. George S. Elliott, Mrs. A. L. French, Mrs. James L. Harroun, Mrs. Della Bill, Mrs. Leonard, Mrs. Cora Thompson, Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. Doris Ward.

Officers of Court Veronica, Catholic Daughters of America, of this city, who attended the anniversary of Court Isabella, in Stafford, Tuesday evening were: Misses Veronica McQuillan, Mildred Fitzgerald, May Connor, Kathleen Colgan, Mildred Pickett, Helen Hearty, and Florence Gradey, Mrs. Walter J. Costello, Mrs. William A. Costello, Mrs. John J. Farrel, Mrs. M. F. Grady, Mrs. John Danahey and Mrs. Edward Hanson and Miss Margaret Maxwell.

The Catholic Social Welfare council held a membership reception at St. Joseph's hall on a recent evening with an attendance of nearly four hundred. The chairmen of the program committee was placed in charge of the meeting, following a brief business session. Rev. John E. Clark, chaplain of the council, delivered a short address in which he outlined the principles of the Social Welfare council, the causes leading up to its foundation and its achievements since its inception. The talk was for the benefit of new members. New lines of activity were suggested and he urged members of St. Mary's and St. Joseph's parishes to join the council and become identified with its work. A varied and interesting program was carried out after the address, including an excellent recitation on Prohibition by Miss Eileen Murphy. Refreshments were served by a committee.

On the tenth birthday of her daughter Leona, Mrs. J. B. Carpenter recently entertained fourteen little friends at her home on Valley street. The rooms were decorated in attractive colors, with red and white as the basis. Each child had a red and white paper cap. Favor baskets of salted peanuts and candy and Valentines with miniature flags, were given. Assisting Mrs. Carpenter were Mrs. A. J. Harper, Mrs. Edward Gernier and Mrs. E. F. Ackely. Miss Carpenter was well remembered with gifts. Those present included: Pauline Grenier, Vivian Ackley, Margaret Alescia, Annie Alescia, Charlotte Sheffield, Francis Grace, Martha Tew, Forrest Ackley, Dorothy Grenier, Isabel Sheffield, Virginia Case, Nellie Alescia, Rose Lavigne and Fern Bronson.

The offices of the town building are being redecorated. The office of the probate court was recently given an overhauling and painters are now at work in the offices of the selectmen, town clerk and tax collectors, and the two small lobbies in connection with the offices. Flat white paint has been applied to the ceilings, the side walls are a glossy buff and the woodwork and office furniture has been revarnished. The chandeliers have been regilded and the radiators bronzed. The offices now present a much more inviting and pleasing appearance. Wednesday afternoon the contractors started redecorating the common council chamber which will be quite a task. For a score of years the council chamber has remained untouched. The painters expect to take up the work of painting the police court room later on. The court room at present is probably the worst appearing of any of the public rooms in the building.

Miss Marcella Kegler was given a miscellaneous shower by Misses Flora Baker and Doris Curran, at the home of Miss Baker on Chestnut street, recently in honor of her approaching marriage with James McNally of Norwich. There were pleasing vocal solos by Miss Helen Bradshaw. A luncheon was served in a prettily decorated dining room, the color scheme being red and white. Favors at each plate were Valentine baskets and red hearts. Miss Kegler received many gifts. Those present were Misses Marguerite Healey, Mildred Moulton, Ellen Thornberg, Dorothy Pendleton, Helen Bradshaw, Anna Johnson, Doris Curran, Flora Baker, and Mrs. Harry W. Avery.

The Social Corner observed Donation day at the February meeting in Central Labor men hall, Wednesday. About sixty members were present, Miss Rose Clapp of Clark's Corners was hostess. An abundance of articles were donated and divided equally between the Welfare Bureau and the Salvation Army to be given out. At noon there was an appetizing dinner of cold meats, potato, salads, pickles, pie, cake and coffee. Mrs. Clapp, a member of the Corner and chairman of Wednesday's session was married in December, last, and to commemorate that event a mock marriage ceremony was carried out. Albert Gilman of South Coventry played the piano and Mrs. Gilman was at the piano. They played a wedding march. Mrs. Clapp was the bride and Mrs. Bessie Lynton of Coventry impersonated the groom. The attendants were Mrs. Herman Myer of South Coventry and Mrs. William Elmendors as matron of honor and best man respectively. Miss Ellen Potter was flower girl and ring bearer. Mrs. Charles Lamb did the "hitching" act. Following the ceremony Mrs. Clapp was presented an aluminum double steamer which she received with a brief speech of appreciation.

Several selections were then given by Mr. and Mrs. Gilman. Miss Elizabeth Anderson, secretary of the Welfare Bureau, addressed the Social Corner members on the achievements of the bureau. A Valentine social followed. Adjournment was taken at 3.30 o'clock. It was announced that sunshine boxes had been sent to Mrs. George B. McCracken, Miss Bertha Daniels and Mrs. Sarah Billings. Mrs. May Russ of Valley street will be the chairman of the next meeting.

Mayor Hermisdas Dion has made the announcement that he has reserved Mountain street above Pleasant street for coasting purposes. The information will greatly please the children in that locality. Mayor Dion will provide for police protection on that street from four to nine p. m.

The patrons of the South Coventry-Willimantic branch of the Connecticut company are dissatisfied with the new advanced rates in force on the lines, tokens at the rate of 2 1-3 cents apiece or three for twenty-five cents. The patrons now pay one dollar for twelve tokens, as compared with ninety cents for the same number in the past. Commuters between this city and South Coventry must now pay 32 1-3 cents for a round trip, as compared with twenty cents when the trolley line was opened several years ago. The line is between eight and nine miles long.

Finn's tonight Charley Chaplin, in his greatest comedy "The Pilgrim." —adv.

There is a man, a native of Maine, who comes to Jewett City summers and enjoys a visit with his relatives.

He asked Old Cluey Watso.. if he ever heard of Old Sabattus. Cluey says that whoever undertakes to write the early history of the state of Maine, would give an incomplete account without liberal mention of Old Sabattus. All over the state, he says, one keeps coming upon Sabattus hills, Sabattus lake or Sabattus pond. He used to hunt and fish through the section which was Cluey's boy hood home.

He had a squaw and a wigwam near the rise of the West Branch, above Mt. Kathadin, and was doubtless a Passamaquoddy himself. I remember him as coming to our camp one night, in some way lost my father and Mr. Edwards were cleaning up.

On going down to it one night, we spied a strange looking object booging over our fire. We thought it at first to be some animal, but Mr. Edwards, pronounced it to be Old Sabattus. He was on his way to his wigwam, from a visit to the settlement to dispose of his furs and was about as full of trader's rum as he could be and go. He had contrived to knock over a hedgehog, which he had on his back for several miles. And such a plight as he was in for the quills had gone through his blanket and fixed themselves in his body in hundred places.

Father and Edwards made pincers of split sticks and worked over the old man all the evening. A great many had gone in already too far to be got out, and the old chap carried them away with him the next morning. Father was of the opinion that they would work through into his lungs and heart, but Mr. Edwards didn't believe anything could kill the old man.

"Well, some three weeks after, who should we see coming in one night but Old Sabattus, bringing us a fine quarter of deer.

"The quills were just coming out of his breast. They had gone clean through him, or else around him, under his skin. He declared, however, (which was easy to believe) that the sensation had been creeping and horrible to the last degree."

Bad Case of Woman's Illness Remedied by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Louis, Mo.—"I had such a bad case of female trouble that I could not walk because of the pains from inflammation. My back was all done up. They Paid $200,000,000 for Studebaker cars last year

Find out why folks did it

LAST year 145,000 people paid over $200,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

The demand for these cars has almost trebled in three years. It has become the sensation of Motordom.

There is a new situation in the fine-car field. You should learn what it means to you.

Studebaker had to lead in this field. This concern has led in its lines for two generations. Any other place would be unfitting.

This is how we became the world's largest builders of quality cars.

$90,000,000 assets

Studebaker has $90,000,000 of assets. Of this $50,000,000 is invested in modern plants and equipment.

We have spent $32,000,000 for new plants and equipment during the last five years. So they are modern and efficient. They contain 12,500 up-to-date machines.

We have $8,000,000 in drop forge plants, $10,000,000 more in body plants. So we build complete cars without paying other makers profits.

We spend $500,000 yearly on an engineering staff. There are 125 skilled men employed in our department of Research and Experiment. They make 500,000 tests per year.

We employ 1,200 inspectors. Each Studebaker car must pass 30,000 inspections during manufacture before it leaves the factory.

Those enormous facilities enabled us to produce the utmost in a car. And we had the will to do it.

No stinted costs

We never stint on costs. Every steel used is the best steel for its purpose, regardless of the price. Then on some steels we pay makers a 15 per cent bonus to insure exactness in them.

Every Studebaker car is Timken-equipped. The Special-Six and the Big-Six have more Timken bearings than any car selling under $5,600 in America. The Light-Six more than any competitive car within $1,000 of its price.

We use genuine leather upholstery.

We use Chase Mohair for the closed car upholstery. Some good upholstery would cost $100 less.

To curb vibration, we machine all surfaces of crank shafts, as was done in Liberty Airplane Motors. Very few cars do that.

How such prices?

How can we give such extra values—scores of them—yet sell at our low prices?

Because these values brought us buyers—145,000 last year. The major extra costs are divided by enormous output.

Let us show you the extras you get, because of these matchless facilities.

Learn Why 145,162 Bought Studebakers in 1923.

DANIELSON

An accident Wednesday marked the opening of active operations in getting in ice at Quinebaug lake. In this affair that occurred within two hours of the beginning of work at the lake, Raymond Medbury of the firm of Medbury and Trowbridge, ice dealers in Putnam, was whirled around a shaft, badly lacerated and possibly internally injured.

He was rushed in an automobile to the office of Dr. George M. Burroughs here and given aid and a thorough examination to determine the extent of his injuries, the full extent of which may not be known for several days. From the office of the physician, Mr. Medbury, who is about 30 was taken to his home in Pomfret.

Mr. Medbury, here to assist the Quinebaug Lake Ice Company in harvesting its year's supply, was engaged in an endeavor to get a chain that drives the carrier bringing the cakes of ice from the lake up the runways to the houses back into a position from which it had slipped when his clothing, it is believed became entangled in a set screw holding a pulley. He was unable to tear himself loose and gradually was gathered in and eventually spun around the shaft several times.

Dr. Burroughs found that about half the skin on Mr. Medbury's back had been scraped off and that a similar condition existed under his right arm. About all the skin also was gone from his right ear and he had a slight scalp wound.

Mr. Medbury complained of a sharp and piercing pain in his side. This might indicate internal injuries, it was stated, but this will not be definitely known until later. Dr. Burroughs' examination did not indicate that Mr. Medbury had any broken bones as the result of his harrowing experience.

Death came just before 10 o'clock Wednesday morning to Mrs. Amanda Woisard, 57, of Mechanic street, Danielson, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Blanche Phoenix, at 61 Whitcomb street, Webster, where she had been visiting the past two weeks.

Her passing was a great shock to the members of her family and to all the friends who had come to know her during the 38 years she had been a resident of this place. Mrs. Woisard was taken ill a week ago Sunday. Her condition during the first few days of her illness was not such as to cause worry and her recovery during the past few days appeared to be only a matter of time. Complications developed, however, and by Tuesday night, when members of her family were summoned to her bedside from Danielson, it was evident that the end was near.

Mrs. Woisard was born in Ste. Marie, now Marieville, P. Q., 68 years ago next month. She came to this country as a young girl and for a time lived in Baltic, where she married Francois X. Woisard 50 years ago last July. Mr. Woisard died here 17 years ago.

The family came to Danielson in 1886. In the year's that have intervened all the children of the family have grown to adult age and have come to be among the very well-known residents of the borough or to those who live here. The children are Telesphore of Putnam, Henry and Attorney Louis A. Woisard of Danielson, Mrs. Felix Bedard, Mrs. Henry Gareau, Mrs. Charles Phoenix, all of Webster, Mrs. Albert Lagasse and Miss Rose F. Woisard, of Danielson.

Mrs. Woisard, who before her marriage was Miss Amanda Mitigul, possessed all of the admirable traits of Christian womanhood. Her home life was ideal and she was the inspiration of the family circle. Beloved by her children, admired by all who knew her, ever faithful to the exacting duties of life, she lived through the years building for eternity, and her death will leave a great vacancy in the hearts of all who knew and loved her.

Mrs. Woisard's body was brought to her home here Wednesday afternoon.

One of the pleasantest events in the history of the Roundabout club took place Tuesday afternoon when members and their guests were entertained at a Valentine party at the home of Mrs. Annie Greene on Maple avenue.

The rooms were attractively decorated with red hearts, cupids and flowers.

Each member invited one guest, making six tables in all, and whist was enjoyed, with hearts as trumps, during the afternoon.

Mrs. Ida Armington and Mrs. Ethel Ingalls held highest scores and received basket pendants, Miss Miriam Boomhower and Mrs. Ella Gilbert had the low scores and received fancy candles.

A dainty and delicious lunch of butterfly salad, rolls, coffee, heart-shaped cookies, candies and apples were served by the hostess and her assistants.

The only regret of the afternoon was the absence of one of the members, Mrs. Maud Keech, whose son, Jerome, is so seriously ill at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. The club and their guests sent flowers to him as an expression of sympathy.

The efficient committee in charge of the afternoon program was Mrs. Helen S. Dowe, Mrs. Ella Gilbert and Mrs. Annie Green.

At her home in Goodyear Wednesday morning the death of Mrs. Zoe Jacques, 82, occurred. Mrs. Jacques, wife of Hormidas Jacques, was born in Canada 82 years ago and came to this country during the early years of her life. She lived in Goodyear when it was known as Williamsville, having made her home in hte village for 28 years. She leaves her husband and one daughter, Mrs. Philias Masse.

There was every indication Wednesday that close to 1,000 fans, followers of boxing, will be on hand tonight for the opening of the Casino arena with an exceptional card of bouts, the events scheduled including a 4-round exhibition by Johnny Wilson, former middle weight champion of the world, and Johnny Hart of New York.

The arena will be brand new, spic and span for this evening's opening. Its appointments will be a revelation to those who see it for the first time. Not to create the impression that it is to be used solely for boxing exhibitions, it may be mentioned that dances are to be held there, as announced elsewhere in the paper this morning, and that the first of these will come this week end. Roller skating will be another attraction and the arena will readily lend itself to use as a basketball court.

It was stated Wednesday that orchestras which has made exceptional hits in the cities of Connecticut and in other states is to be brought here by Frank Barber of the Casino arena. The dance fans are promised a number of exceptional musical organizations to play for them, beginning with the opening dance and continuing through the season.

Laying of the finish floor of the arena was completed Wednesday. This is of hard wood, smooth finished and ideal for dancing and roller skating. The arena is brilliantly lighted and has every convenience for the comfort of those who will find amusement there.

Many residents of Danielson would have counted themselves fortunate had they been present Tuesday evening at the smoker given at the state armory by members of the Service battery, and with a few guests in attendance, in observance of Lincoln's birthday.

It so happened that Major Lord and Captain Schroeder, adjutant of the 192nd Field Artillery, were accompanied to Danielson for this event by President Benjamin T. Marshall of Connecticut college, he also being regimental chaplain of the 192nd Field Artillery. Addresses of the New London officers featured the meeting.

Particular interest attached to President Marshall's talk. It included much valuable advice to the battery member son good conduct and clean living. It was marked, too, as was appropriate to the occasion, by many allusions to President Lincoln. Particularly striking was President Marshall's estimate of President Wilson, who, he feels, when time has served to set his place right in history, will unite with such immortal Americans as Washington and Lincoln.

At the end of the first day of driving work to fill the ice houses at the Quinebaug lake 6500 cakes had been stored away Wednesday—an especially auspicious start with the big job which does not usually go as smoothly at the outset as was the case on Wednesday, although an accident to Raymond Medbury delayed things and rather stunned the big crew during the early morning hours.

The ice that went into the houses on Wednesday was 8 inches thick after it had been planed. It is excellent ice in every respect, thought materially lighter than what was harvested last winter. The men will be back on the job today and by Saturday night with no untoward handicap, the houses will be filled or nearly so.

The Chamber of Commerce has referred the matter of closing the stores Thursday afternoons throughout the year, as petitioned for by a large number of clerks, to the merchants committee of the organization. This committee will make a canvass of the business houses of the borough to ascertain the feeling of the proprietors in regard to the proposal and will report to a future meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

Jerome Keech, who was operated upon earlier in the week for appendicitis at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, was reported Wednesday as slightly better and his condition was regarded as encouraging.

PUTNAM

Frank Chilicki was being sought by the police Wednesday. They want to ask him some questions. They had a warrant in which his name appeared when a squad of them raided a place on Van den Noort street, of which he is the alleged proprietor.

When a squad of officers headed by Captain William Jarvis swooped down on the resort Tuesday evening there was a group of young men in the place, but no one of them would admit being in charge. Chilicki was not about and no one there would admit knowing when he would return. Up to Wednesday afternoon that point continued to be uncertain.

The officers waited about for a few minutes, expecting Chilicki's return, and when he failed to appear within a reasonable length of time they set about searching the place. Among other things they found a bottle containing what appeared to be about 90 proof, as shown by a subsequent test, alcoholic mixture and a gallon glass jug containing some more of the same liquid. These were seized and taken away.

While the search was going on the young men who were found there were not allowed to depart. At the close of the raid they were taken to the police station and held as frequenters. In court Wednesday morning two of them paid actual costs amounting to $10.14, their cases being continued for six months. Two more were held under bonds of $100 each for appearance in court Saturday morning. Joseph Gagne, fifth member of the group, who was on probation after a previous conviction for intoxication, was ordered committed to jail for 10 days.

Officer Ernest Chandler was left in charge during all of Tuesday night at the place raided. When he was relieved Wednesday morning the officers brought away numerous jugs, measures, bags of corks and a wooden case containing hundreds of new glass bottles—these bottles have a content of about 3 ounces and known as "individuals". All these goods are stored at the police station.

Announcement was made Wednesday morning, following a meeting of Putnam lodge of Elks, that the organization has decided to make use of some rooms on the second floor of the Elks' building, and now used by professional men as offices, as additional quarters for the lodge which heretofore has used for its own purposes only the third floor of the building.

Use of rooms now occupied as offices will permit of reserving the entire upper floor for the lodge room proper, for another large area may be used for dinners or dances and another section for the grill.

Billiard and rest rooms will be fitte dup in the offices to be vacated.

An adjustment satisfactory to the city of Putnam and the town of Woodstock has been reached, it was made known Wednesday, in the matter of assessing property owned by the city of Putnam in Woodstock, this property a part of the city's water supply system.

Under the agreement reached after a conference between Corporation Counsel Charles L. Torrey and the member sof the board of relief of the town of Woodstock, this agreement approved by the water commissioners of the city, the city's assessment on the land it owns in Woodstock has been reduced from $30,800, hte amount set by the Woodstock assessors on the grand list recently completed, $15,800.

Heretofore the assessment by Woodstock on the city's land in that town has gone into the list for $10,800. The past year the city expended a considerable sum of money in installing a new filteration system in Harrisville, in the town of Woodstock, where the pumping station for the city's water system also is located. This expenditure is regarded as the basis for the sharp increase in taxation now successful appealed from.

As told in this column Monday morning, it was contended by Attorney Torrey, representing the city's interests, that under the law of this state buildings and other properties owned by the water company in one town and adjoining another town are taxable in the other town not as such but merely as improved farming land.

Writing from Winter Haven, Fla., under date of February 6, F. A. Babbitt tells his friends here and hereabouts that February 2, hail-stones as large as marbles beat the back of Florida for the first time in 39 years, but it was all a memory four days later, when the temperature had run up to 82. Flowers are blooming and that happy land, where winter lasts only three or four days, is now enjoying much the same weather as comes to this section in late June. Mr. Babbitt went south in a "house on wheels" last fall, having rigged a unique structure containing many possibilities for comfort and convenience on a Ford chasis.

Raymond Medbury, member of the firm of Medbury and Trowbridge of this city was seriously injured at Quinebaug lake, two miles south of Danielson, Wednesday morning, as told in the news from that place. Mr. Medbury was removed to his home in Pomfret.

Chief Special Deputy Howard A. Elliott of the bureau of domestic animals, is spending a few days in the towns of the state checking up cases that have come to the attention of the department he represents. These cases concern cattle and dogs.

At Grange hall in Abington tomorrow (Friday) the Pomfret Poultry club is to hold a quarterly meeting and will make an all-day affair of it. The first session is to open at 10 o'clock. The afternoon session will open at 2 o'clock. Roy E. Jones, poultry specialist from Connecticut Agricultural college, and County Agent F. L. Davis of this city will be in attendance. All interested in poultry subjects are invited to be present.

It is not a regular thing this winet rto find men brought to the police station while intoxicated to be found packing a wad of bills, but such a case was developed Wednesday noon when a well dressed elderly man was brought in. All his wealth was in his hip pockets—the roll in one, a half pink in the other—verily a two-pocket man, though not a two-gun man.

An international conference of ten days duration is to be held next spring at the Stanley Kelley camp, Eastford, it is announced, of the American Youth league, of which Mr. Kelley is the founder. Representatives of England, France, Belgium, Germany, Italy, Japan and China as well as delegates from various parts of the United States will assemble at the camp and discuss and endeavor to promote ways and means of insuring international peace. The object of the league is to promote understandings among the youth of all nations that will go a long way toward obliterating the national and racial hatreds that have been the underlying causes of many of the wars of history.

Mrs. Alina Theroux, who died Monday night at her home in Woonsocket, was a sister of Miss Hermine Preault of Putnam. Mrs. Theroux was born in Notre Dame de Stanbridge 66 years ago. She had been a resident of Woonsocket 14 years. Mrs. Theroux leavs three sons, eon and Xavier of Woonsocket and Wilfred of Iberville, P. Q., in addition to her sister.

Hazen's Pets evened up the bowling series with the Taxi Drivers' team Tuesday evening by winning 2 strings out of 3 rolled in, addition to a tie score. The teams will meet again for the deciding match.

A contract was closed here Wednesday between the brokerage house of Barstow, Hill and Company of Boston and the L. A. W. Acceptance corporation of this city under which the Boston firm will undertake the marketing of $700,000 of the stock of the L. A. W. corporation.

This stock is to be offered in blocks of 10 shares of preferred to 5 of common. Prior to the making of Wednesday's contract $300,000 of the stock has been taken by investors. L. A. Wolfe, president of the corporation said Wednesday afternoon that the contract closed with the Boston firm gives promises of giving the L. A. W. a capital of $1,000,000, and this in turn means that Putnam is to be the headquarters of one of the largest financing firms in southern New England.

There is a prospect that the office force in the headquarters of the corporation here will be increased during the year to 20 or 25 members.

Only last week announcement was made that the L. A. W. corporation had declared a quarterly dividend of $1.75 as of March 15, and payable April 1, this out of the earnings of the past few weeks. The earnings of the corporation during January were four times as great as during the corresponding month of 1922.

REMOVING THE DEADWOOD.

During storms, and especially wind storms, it is frequently the case that streets and yards are well littered with the branches of dead limbs varying in size. There are also times when live branches are twisted or split from the trees.

The difficulty of telling what live branches of a tree are not going to be able to stand the whipping by a storm is understood, but it is realized that much might be done in the way of removing the dead trees, the dead wood on live trees or limbs which have been broken at other times but have not been shaken free from the other branches.

As a means of protecting the highways of the state Commissioner Macdonald is to give special attention to the elimination of trees that are dangerous, or dangerous limbs of otherwise sound trees. It is an additional method of giving protection to the highways, and means not only timely steps for the prevention of accidents but will undoubtedly mean less chance of traffic being held up or blocked entirely.

What is to be done on the state highways might well be undertaken in regard to city streets. For the prevention of accidents sidewalks and slippery hills are sanded and safeguards are employed to protect the public at dangerous points. One doesn't have to look very long through the trees of a city's streets to find good sized limbs of trees that are dead and which, if they fell on an individual, would inflict no slight injury. The same would be true should they drop on passing vehicles.

Nature will undoubtedly take care to prune out the dead wood, but it is desirable to see that the work is done in such a manner that no one will be hurt. Somehow nature provides no insurance when it gets busy. By the removal of the dead and dangerous limbs before anything happens no small amount of public protection would be afforded.

NO ISLANDS WANTED.

Periodically there is set afloat a story to the effect that negotiations are underway for the balancing of accounts between this country and France by having France turn over to us its islands in the West Indies for which we would cancel the war debt. It is a story that is denied as often as it is revived. So far as known there is nothing official connected with it.

In the first place this country is not desirous of acquiring the French possessions. Secondly, it is not the desire of France to dispose of them, and thirdly, it doesn't take long to figure it out that no country would pay such a price for the French islands. It is quite evident that France hasn't gone bankrupt and there is no chance that it will, and yet it is probably only through some such development could it be expected that the islands would be accepted as an offset to the debt.

This country has done some island buying within memory. When it purchases the Virgin islands it was considered that it paid a high price, but it was desirous of protecting itself in more ways than one and it parted with $25,000,000 for the three islands which were formerly the property of Denmark. Island values haven't increased to any great extent in that region and it isn't to be supposed that taking into consideration any increased valuation which may be placed upon the French islands over the Virgin islands, either through greater territory, better development or more advantageous geographical conditions that they could command even a quarter of a billion dollars.

But with this country not in the market for them and France unwilling to part with them it is quite evident that there is no chance for a change in ownership or a settlement of the indebtedness in such a manner. France isn't in fact any more willing to part with an island a year as interest settlement than this country is to accept it. The debt adjustment must come in a different manner, as both countries understand and rumor spreaders ought to know.

THE JAPANESE LOAN.

Japan experienced a severe blow from the earthquake of last year. It will not only require much time to reconstruct its cities but it will require a large sum of money. Japan was aware of this and it immediately made huge appropriations for the purpose of meeting the situation, in addition to such help as was forwarded from other countries for immediate relief.

Such a tremendous loss is unusual. That Japan should not be able to finance her reconstruction entirely within its limits is by no means surprising. It has obtained a loan of about $125,000,000 from British sources and the $150,000,000 obtained this week from bankers in this country means that it is not only getting the funds that are necessary to rebuild its cities, but that it is providing for the redemption of the remaining Manchurian bonds which come due next year.

In view of the fact that Japan has been able to get such a large loan in this country it doesn't indicate that there is anything to the talk that bobs up every now and then to the effect that the two countries are drifting apart. For a long time there was a treaty relationship between Great Britain and Japan which held these nations together and which would be expected to aid Japan in getting British financial assistance. But that went with the Washington conference, and with it developed a better understanding between this country and Japan.

No serious consideration has been given to the likelihood of any break between this country and Japan. As if to stifle any thought of such a thing the new loan stands out significantly, for it is not to be supposed that any such transaction would have gone through had there been any possibility of such a thing, for financiers keep their ears to the ground so as to cover all angles.

Japan is involved in a big job of rebuilding what it required but a short time to destroy and it is only natural that other countries should be glad to loan it the necessary funds.

BETTER MAILING WEEK.

Are you going to participate in the Better Mailing week which Postmaster General New has set for next week? It is arranged for the purpose of endeavoring to overcome an economic waste which the postmaster general fixes in round figures at near a million and three-quarters dollars, and it is an effort in which each and everyone who writes a letter has a chance to participate.

The aim is to prevent or greatly reduce the careless addressing of letters and packages, in fact all mail matter, either through incomplete, inadequate or incorrect addresses.

There has always been a demand for the purpose of insuring its delivery to the person addressed. But the legible address doesn't help unless there is accuracy in the address. The postmaster general regards it as an effort to stem the tide of waste and to prevent the huge losses that develop from mistakes and carelessness.

That it is not the individual who only occasionally writes a letter, or sends a package, that needs to give the most attention to Better Mailing week is shown by the postmaster general's statement when he says, "Private business and private industry every year lose millions of dollars from the same cause which, strange to relate, is in most part preventable."

It is an old story that haste makes waste. In this matter it not only makes trouble for the postal service, involving much additional expense, but it means waste of time, effort and material on the part of the users of the department's facilities. It takes much time to try to complete addresses which never should be imposed upon the postal service, and time thus used means expense.

S O S CALLS.

Not much sympathy will be displayed for those British sea captains who are making complaints against the Yankee captains under the claim that the latter are using their distress radio calls too frequently and in too many instances without reason.

The S O S call is not to be regarded as a plaything. It means a serious situation and must always be regarded as such by the one using it or those in a position to respond. To make every call at sea an S O S call would soon rob it of its value. Possibly that is the position that is taken by the British subs. If their aim is to clothe it with the seriousness that it requires, well and good. The impression is gained, however, that the captains of the liners are disposed to feel that they are above being called to the assistance of those who may be lumbering along on a tramp ship, even though the situation warrants it.

There are those captains who have failed to heed signals of distress from boats that are much smaller than tramps. They turned a deaf ear because they didn't want to stop, even though human life was at stake. It was only natural that suspension from duty should follow and that there should be widespread resentment and criticism. There is not much sympathy wasted upon those who are unwilling to do what they can in a time of distress. There is no reason why a liner should not turn from its course to aid a tramp steamer, or a fishing boat for that matter, if occasion requires it. Somehow there is a feeling that the tramp would be prompt to do such a thing for a liner. There should be at all times, however, a judicious use of S O S calls.

One of the strangest things is the amount of suspicion that members of congress are not likely to believe that their constituents want their taxes reduced.

It is always hard to please. There will be those who will be displeased because they get a valentine and there'll be those who will be peeved because they get none.

Michigan wants pedestrians to walk on the left side of the road and carry lights at night. Those encountered on the wrong side of the road at night are very often lit up.

Now that an old ring has been found in a locality where Capt. Kidd is said to have frequented, all the many Kidd treasure grounds will probably be raked over for the steenth time.

THE CHEMIST'S SHOP

"What do you think!" cried the conventional-minded woman in despair. "I went into a big drug store downtown today to get some toothpaste and the gentleman clerk tried to sell me some tinned plum pudding! It did seem so funn!"

"Oh, I don't know," said the man who was realigned to almost everything because he had been so much for so long. "You don't realise what an obliging affair one of our drug stores is, trying, as it were, to surround you with every luxury. I fully expect before I die to find American drug stores dispensing marriage licenses, coffins, beefsteaks and shampoos.

"No matter how hard and fast the druggist works he never is able to keep up with the outrageous demands of the populace. Just as he fancies he has shown great acumen and ambition in setting up a showcase of buttons and hooks and eyes somebody blows in and demands canary birds, electric-light bulbs or a carpet sweeper.

"I tell you the English people treat a drug store in the proper manner. The druggist isn't a druggist at all. He is a chemist, I thank you, and he runs a chemist's shop and coming in for a prescription is something the same as having an audience at court and is approached in the same fashion.

"This was forcibly brought to my attention when I first attempted to patronise a drug store in Canada. The hotel clerk had assured me that, yes, there was a chemist's shop right outside, sir.' Outside I went and walked up and down the sidewalk. Nothing came to view but an unbroken expanse of hotel granite with the first floor windows above my head. It was a large hotel and after I had walked down one side of it I walked down another.

"If there was a drug store present it was most efficiently camouflaged. Just as I was about to give up I saw a highly polished and moderately lighted window with things in it which had told the truth. But there seemed to be no door leading within. A detective working 24 hours at his job could have found no entrance.

"Re-entering the hotel I found myself in a totally wrong corridor, walked blindly and naturally came to the door leading to the chemist's shop, which was in a sort of blind alley within.

"It was a small shop in immaculate order and a curious silence reigned. Wherever I looked I viewed drugs and medical supplies. Standing in rigid order on the glittering shelves, those bottles of drugs loomed ominously. A chill crept over me and I sneezed whereupon, with a slight frown on his face as though I had eaten with my knife, a pale, distinguished gentleman stepped out from behind something, a glass retort in his hand. I don't know whether he precisely had on evening cloths but the effect was the same. He appeared slightly annoyed at my inopportune intrusion. I—er—I want this prescription filled,' I got out. 'And can I have it in a hurry as I—'

"Not a muscle moved on his countenance as he lifted my bottle from the counter where I had profanely set it. 'Just as soon as I have completed the prescription upon which I am engaged,' he said in low, polished tones, 'I shall be able to attend to yours.'

"He faded away behind whatever he had emerged from and once more I was left in the deathly stillness of that mortuary spot. I was just as comfortable and at ease as though I were alone in a morgue at midnight.

"After hours and hours he came out, took another hour to tie up what he had been achieving and then he retired with my order. More hours passed and the silence was even blister. There wasn't a cigar lighter in sight and I didn't dare strike a match. There was no place to sit down. There was nothing to look at but medicine. He tied up my bottle just as thoroughly as though about to ship it 1,000 miles and he bowed me out with the courteous kindness one used toward the awkward and the humble. I recovered consciousness a litter later in my room, mopping my dazed brow and breathing hard. But—

"I'd rather mix plum puddings with the quinine!' declared the conventional-minded woman. 'Why, that doesn't sound at all like a drug store!'"

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Thomas J. Walsh, the man who lifted the oil lease lid, is the senior United States senator from Montana. In his home state and in Washington he is known as a man of vigor of thought and action with marked administrative qualities. He grew up in Wisconsin, and has his bachelor of laws degree from the university of that state. His professional career opened in South Dakota, but Montana since 1890 has been his home and base of operations. Soon after beginning the practice of law in Helena he began to flourish professionally and politically by challenging the powers that had long controlled the state. His reward did not come until 1913 when he was successful in a triangular fight for the United States senate. Senator Walsh has an intimate acquaintance with political conditions in the middle and far west and in 1916 was given charge of the Democratic campaign headquarters in Chicago.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
by DAVID CORY

QUACKVILLE

"Heigh ho, how the winds blow.
The spray from the water drifts like snow,
The madcap waves come tumbling along,
And the sea-gull sings its weird, strange song.
But what care we in our strong little boat.
The prettiest, staunchest ship afloat."

Sang the duck sailors as the ship with Little Jack Rabbit and Captain Drake sped down the river to Tart Island.

By and by, when it grew dark, a red lantern was hung on one side of the ship and a green one on the other. The moon was out and all the stars and the evening breeze was fresh and sweet. It whistled a silvery tune through the rigging, making the green and red lanterns go winkerty blink.

"Sit down on this coil of rope and I'll tell you a story," said Captain Drake, taking the wheel while the sailor duck went down below for supper.

"Once upon a time, when the world was young and it was spring, always spring, the ducks in Quackville made up their minds that they would build boats, being more fond of the water than the green land. Before long they had quite a fleet, and pretty soon Quackville was the largest fishing port in all Duck Country. Of course, they never went fishing for whales or swordfish, but for the little sardines which swam in the shallow places.

One day, as the fleet, heavy laden with these little fish, returned to port, a small dwarf, dressed in a tight-fitting red suit and a green turban met them on the wharf. His eyes twinkled like bright coals and when he laughed, Oh, dear me! it sounded like a tinkling bell.

"Sailor Duckman," he said, as my father, the first Captain Drake in the family, jumped to the wharf, "Will you sell me your cargo of sardines?"

"Perhaps," answered my ancestor, "but tell me to what use you wish to put them?"

"Well," replied the little dwarf, scratching his ear, "My dwarf friends and I own a large tin mine. From the tin we make all kinds of pretty boxes. We would like to fill them with sardines to sell to the men who live in great cities, far from the sea."

"That's not a bad idea," said my ancestor. "And soon, all the duck sailors in the fleet had a old their cargoes to the little dwarf. That was many years ago. Now-a-days men in big cities control this business and the little dwarfs and their tin mine are forgotten.

"And do you never fish?" asked Little Jack Rabbit as Captain Drake finished his story.

"Only once in a while," he answered. "When we reach Tart Island you shall see what sort of a cargo we will bring home." And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Stories That Recall Others

The Detour

Auntie is a successful business woman and a spinster of 36. Being like most spinsters she wishes her nieces to marry young and "avoid trouble." So she constantly gives them advice on the subject.

The other evening they had company and auntie said, "I think every woman should marry."

The company, a rather pert young woman retorted, "But you haven't married."

"Oh," auntie smiled easily, "I intended to. I'm just making a detour now."

Father Goes Shopping

Four year old Arthur while visiting his grandparents developed a desire for a Teddy bear. It was no passing whim and they were not allowed to forget it. Finally grandmother called grandfather at the office and told him to get one before he came home. He immediately went out to the store. Arriving at a counter served by three girls, after getting directions from another clerk, he said:

"I want a Teddy bear."

"What size, please?"

"Oh, just a medium sized one."

"All right we have 'step-ins' and those with buttons, like this one," said one of the girls holding before his astonished eyes a dainty creation of a little silk and less ribbon.

Falteringly he confided, "I don't know what that thing it, but what I am trying to buy is a wooly, four-footed Teddy bear, with a head and tail, for a four year old boy to play with."

The one remaining young woman before sinking to the floor in convulsions of laughter managed to gasp, "Children's toys are at the rear."

John W. Curtis yesterday was re-elected president of the New York curb market, upon completing his first term of office. The boar dof governors also re-elected all other officers of the exchange.

POETRY

A VALENTINE

O heart of me! Dear heart of me!
Though flamed with love your shrine fires glow,
How can you breath your ecstasy
How can you fond devotion show?

The day is here for tender song—
The music of a lover's vow,
To Cupid all the hours belong,
'Tis time to whisper secrets now!

Where, then, shall you, O yearning heart
For loving aid and ardor turn?
Where find the language to impart
The hopes that on your altars burn

O heart of me! Dear heart of me!
The day is here, the day divine!
And love's strong champion shall be—
The sweet, impassioned Valentine!
—E. Sheldon.

The Higher Pantheism

The sun, the moon, the stars, the seas, the hill and the plains—
And not these, O Soul, the Vision of Him who reigns?

Is not the Vision He? Be not that which He seems?
Dreams are true while they last, and do we not live in dreams?

Earth, these solid stars, this weight of body and limb,
Are they not sign and symbol of thy division from Him?

Dark is the world to thee; thyself art the reason why;
For He is not all but thou, that hast power to feel "I am I?"

Glory about thee, without thee; and thou fulfillest thy doom,
Making Him broken gleams, and a stifled splendor and gloom.

Speak to Him, thou, for He hears, and Spirit with Spirit can meet—
Closer is He than breathing, and nearer than hands and feet.

God is low, say the wise; O Soul, and let us rejoice,
For if He thunder by law the thunder is yet His voice.

Law is God, say some. No God at all, says the fool;
For all we have power to see is a straight staff bent in a pool;

And the ear of man can not hear, and the eyes of man can not see;
But if we could see and hear, this Vision—were it not He?
—Alfred Tennyson.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Jack—I say! How long did it take you to learn to drive?

Betty—Only four cars. — London Opinion.

Constituent—What are you going to do about child labor in this session, senator?

Senator—Why do anything about it? The children don't vote.—Life.

"Lost your job as a caddy?" said one boy.

"Yep," replied the other, "I could do the work all right, but I couldn't learn not to laugh.—Washington Star.

"Well, Mrs. O'Brien, you've got your Christmas decorations up early this year?"

"Och, your riverince, I keep manin' to take thim things down. 'Tis lert up they are from last year."—Punch, London.

Admirer (to famous ski-runner)—Have you ever fallen into a crevasse?

Admired—I spent two days in one once.

Admirer—Good heavens! Weren't you terrified?

Admired—Well, as a matter of fact, it left me cold.—The Bystander (London.)

"Boy, is this the field on which the great battle was fought?" asked the historian.

"No, sir: that be at the top of the hill," answered the native boy.

"Dear, dear!" exclaimed the historian; "that must be a mile away. Why didn't they fight it in this field?"

"I suppose because this here field belongs to Farmer Johnson. He never would lend his field for anything, not even for the village sports."—Pittsbourgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

A victim of chronic bronchitis called on a doctor to be examined. The doctor, after careful questioning, assured the patient that the ailment would respond readily to treatment. "I suppose you must have had a great deal of experience with this disease?" said the sufferer.

The doctor smiled wisely, and replied: "Why, my dear sir, I've had bronchitis myself for over 15 years."
—The Christian Evangelist (St. Louis.)

KALEIDOSCOPE

Armadillos normally produce quadruplets which are always either all male or all female.

The semi-centennial of the opening of the first school of medicine for women in London is to be observed this year.

A woman who died in Paris recently left her husband a large sum of money on condition that he stay away fro mher funeral.

Four hundred and twenty-seven women are included among the owners of racing stables listed by the American turf organizations.

What is held to be the largest uncut precious stone in the world is a flawless black opal discovered in this country and now said to be in the office of a government official here in Washington. The gem contains approximately 21 cubic inches, weighs 3,-572,333 karats and is valued by the owners at $250,000. The colors are translucent blues and greens with a little red. The famous Viennese opal, which was without equal until the American specimen was found, weighs 1,658,927 karats, but has a number of flaws.

An automobile tire company displays in its salesrooms in New York one of the most perfect machines yet devised for demonstrating the working of a tire under road conditions. Mounted on a heavy stand, a big iron drum is driven by an electric motor. An axle and wheel are mounted over the drum, with the tire in contact with it and bearing its weight. The tire is under the same pressure as if on a loaded touring car. The test, a most severe one, consists in driving nails, spikes, etc., into the tire and tube and then running with them in at a rate of about 25 miles an hour. The machine is operated by electric power, and is also equipped with a speedometer, which gives a correct speed of wheel, as if in real road use.

Feels Made Over

McLoud says friends now remark about his fine health since he took Tanlac. Was physical wreck.

"When I compare my present perfect health with the physical wreck I was a few years ago, I can say Tanlac has accomplished something bordering on the miraculous," is the praise statement of Harry McLoud, prominent fraternal order man and veteran employee of the Bethlehem Ship Building Corporation, Sparrows Point, Md.

"Everywhere I go my friends ask me what has given me back such robust health, and I answer with one word—Tanlac.

"At forty-five I was almost a complete physical and nervous wreck, and had to spend fourteen weeks in hospital. About a year and a half ago I took my first Tanlac, and three bottles made a marked improvement in my appetite and general condition. Last March I resumed the treatment, and half a bottle a week has run my weight up thirty-five pounds, leaving me just like a man made over. Tanlac is simply great."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

WEDDINGS

Williamson-Shaw

Henry Bradford Williamson, Jr., of Houston, Texas, and Miss Elizabeth Pedric Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander F. Shaw of Providence, formerly of this city, were married Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Central Congregational church, Providence. The altar was banked with ferns and Southern smilax and the pews were roped with white ribbon, clusters of yellow daffodils marking those occupied by the family and relatives.

Before the background of green, the ceremony was performed by Rev. Arthur H. Bradford. Entering, the church to the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, played by Miss Helen Hogan, the bride was accompanied by her father and her attendants. The bride was attractive in a gown of heavy white satin with a bertha collar and trimmings of Princess lace. A train of satin and lace fell from the shoulders and her veil of tulle, in cap shape with coronet of Princess lace and orange blossoms, was caught at the waist with orange blossoms. Gardenias and lilies of the valley were effectively combined in the bouquet she carried.

The attendants' gowns were fashioned of chiffon in rainbow colors and bouffant in effect. Miss Alice May Shaw, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore Nile green chiffon and carried a shower bouquet of Sweetheart roses. The bride's attendants, Mrs. Alexander F. Shaw, Jr., Miss Ruth Hester of Passaic, N. J., Miss Flora McGeachin and Miss Lillian McGeachin of Larchmont Manor, New York, wore gowns of orchid color combined with silver lace, in bouffant style, and carried Colonial bouquets of purple and yellow pansies. Leaving the church to Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," a reception followed at Churchill House, which was decorated with palms and roses. The bride's mother wore a gown of cut velvet and chiffon in fuchsia shade with corsage of white orchids and lilies of the valley. JURY QUICKLY FINDS VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT IN FALSE ARREST CASE

Having the case only about 15 minutes, the jury in the superior court at New London late Wednesday afternoon before Judge C. L. Avery handed in a verdict for the defendant in the $10,000 damage suit for false arrest brought by Giuseppe Viola against Mrs. Concetta Poretta. Both plaintiff and defendant are New London residents.

In his suit Viola claimed that he was arrested on Feb. 10 of last year on false accusations made by Mrs. Poretta that he owned and operated liquor stills at a house in Belden street. As a result of these accusations and the arrest Viola alleged that his character in the community had been damaged and he sued the woman for $10,000.

Police Sergt. Nelson S. Smith of the police force was the first witness called for the defense Wednesday and he testified that he had known Viola since 1917 and that he knew his reputation as a law-abiding citizen was bad. He admitted that he had never heard of Viola being convicted for violation of the liquor law but he had heard of his conviction for making money or counterfeiting, during a visit here of some United States secret service men.

Joseph F. Fitzpatrick of New London, prohibition agent, said that he had known Viola for the past two years, during which time he knew that his reputation was bad. He had become acquainted with his reputation through several complaints which had been made to him that Viola was bringing alcohol into the city. He said that he had never heard of his conviction for violation of the liquor law, however.

Clemente Cramontano, president of Christopher Columbus lodge, Sons of Italy, in which office he succeeded Viola last June, testified that he "had never heard anything good" about Viola. But he had heard a lot that was bad about him, especially as to bootlegging.

He denied under cross-examination that he had ever tried to get Viola expelled from the lodge, although the witness said that Viola had been suspended for one year for not telling the truth in answer to a question about his moral character in his application blank.

Kept Lodge Secrets.

At this point, Judge Avery told counsel that he thought that they ought to be considerate in pressing the witness concerning secrets of the lodge. He said that while the court had the power to make witnesses testify about such matters, the questioning was of a collateral nature and not material and he did not think that the witness ought to be embarrassed by being made to divulge secrets of an organization. Judge Avery's point was made when the witness expressed reluctance at telling matters of a secret nature in the lodge.

After this it was brought out that Joseph Poretta, husband of the defendant, had placed his application for membership in the lodge after the filing of the suit and while Viola was president and that Viola had held the application for three months. After the witness took the chair as president Viola made a speech against Poretta's admission into the lodge.

The witness testified that Viola had been expelled by the lodge, but its action had been appealed to the state body which had changed its action into suspension for one year. Cramontano denied any enmity against Viola in any action taken by him in the lodge, but said that he was merely discharging the duties of his office.

Produces Counterfeiting Record.

At this point, Attorney Thomas E. Troland for the defense offered for evidence a certified copy of the record of the United States district court for Massachusetts of the indictment and subsequent conviction of Guiseppe Viola for counterfeiting, and its purport was explained to the jury.

Ralph Harris, a barber, was put on the stand and testified to the bad reputation of Viola, whom she had known for seven or eight years. Cross examined, he denied that he had tried to get Viola to use his influence with the Italian people in getting their endorsement for his (the witness') candidacy for city councilor. He admitted that he engaged in an argument with Viola in the barber shop of Frank Losacano in Golden street at that time, but he denied that he held any hard feelings against Viola on that account.

The defense rested and the plaintiff, Viola, was called to the stand in rebuttal and testified to having received notice of his suspension from the lodge on Jan. 30 last.

Frank Losacano, owner of a barber shop at 26 Golden street, said that he remembered an argument which Viola and Harris had in his shop and testified that Harris had threatened to hit Viola and that the latter had expressed his willingness to meet Harris in a half hour and fight him.

Both sides rested and Attorney Harry Brogan, associated with Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky as the counsel for the plaintiff, made the first argument.

It was the maiden effort of Attorney Brogan who has been practicing law only a few weeks.

He was followed by Attorney Thomas E. Troland for the defendant, after which Attorney Hollandersky began the closing argument. He was in the midst of his argument when court recessed for lunch and he resumed at 2 o'clock. At the conclusion of his argument, Judge Avery charged the jury. The verdict was returned at 4.10.

NORWICH GRANGE HEARS ENTERTAINING DEBATE

Norwich grange, No. 172, Patrons of Husbandry, had a well attended meeting Wednesday evening in Steinert hall, at which the brief business meeting with Worthy Master Arthur W. Avery presiding was followed by an interesting programme for the lecturer's hour in charge of Mrs. Ida E. Richardson, the lecturer.

After a report of the 39th annual meeting of the state grange at Hartford by Mrs. Ivy Peckham, past worthy master, and a solo by Mrs. Olive Foster, the feature of the evening was presented in a debate by Judge John H. Barnes and Attorney Charles V. James. The subject was Resolved, that old age pensions should not be granted by the government. Judge Barnes, who maintained the negative side of the question, was given the decision by the judges against Attorney James who spoke for the affirmative. The judges were Former Congressman Edwin W. Higgins, Attorney Andrew B. Davies and Mrs. Mary H. B. Wade. Their decision was announced by Mr. Higgins in an apt speech.

A well rendered duet by Mrs. Potter and Mrs. Richardson was followed by a discussion upon the topic, "Who is the most useful American citizen—and why?" which was opened by Charles F. Whitney. Others followed in the discussion and the names of Secretary Mellon, Henry Ford, Burbank, President Coolidge and Edison were brought into the discussion.

Doughnuts, cheese and coffee were served by the feast committee, H. L. Richardson, Carl W. Brown and Fred Leffingwell.

Lecturer Gray of the grange at Brownfield, Me., was a visitor and speaker at the meeting.

SNEAK THIEF GOT JEWELRY AND CLOTHING

Clothing, money and jewelry was the booty of a sneak thief in two Franklin square places Tuesday afternoon and the methods employed make it appear as if the same man might have operated at both places.

At the Columbian house the thief pulled off a clever ruse that enabled him to get away with a watch and a ring. He got into a room there and secured the vest, a watch and a ring belonging to one of the roomers. As he was coming down the stairs with the vest on his arm he met the proprietor of the Columbian house. Quick as a flash the thief handed over the vest to the proprietor, telling him it was to be delivered to one of the roomers at the house. As nothing then was known of any theft the man got away with the watch and the ring.

At the rooming house kept by Mrs. Ellen Casey at 279 Main street, a suit of clothes, $60 in money and a suit case were among the articles stolen. The thief apparently got into rooms with a key. In one room a watch that was hanging in plain sight was not molested.

DR. EVANS IN ARMENIA WRITES OF EARTHQUAKES

In a letter received this week by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byron H. Evans of Court street, Dr. John H. Evans of Alexandropie, Armenia, wrote the following: "Up to this date, December 25th, 1923, three earthquakes have been experienced, two previous to Christmas and the third on Christmas Day. The last was so severe that houses shook, windows rattled, doors slammed, and furniture danced round. The earthquake, which also made a terrific noise, was such that we do not wish to experience another.

Dr. Evans and Mrs. Evans who have been engaged in Near East work nearly two years are located in Alexandropie, where Dr. Evans has under his care 5,500 boys. There are also 5,500 girls in the other department. There is one hospital of 400 beds. Dr. Evans is desirous of making such arrangements as to lessen the work, also lessen the expense of the Near East by having those in outlying districts brought into one place.

A box of supplies for the Near East Relief was shipped from Gouvoneur, N. Y., recently, the box addressed to Dr. John H. Evans, Polygon District, Alexandropie, Armenia. Most valuable of the contents was a quantity of choice garden seeds, contributions from Tent No. 14, Daughters of Veterans; of Utica, Tent No. 43, of Webster, members of Tent No. 51, of Gouveneur and from the firms of two large seed houses of New York city. The retail value of the seeds was $3.-500. Another contribution was ten new dresses for girls made and given by Mrs. A. E. Hoffman, 923 State St., Watertown. The balance was a quantity of very good clothing and two new bed comfortables from Gouveneur people. It is hoped that the box will reach its distination in ample time for planting the seeds. Letters from Dr. Evans have recently been published in the Free Press, and the 5,500 boys in his charge will be the recipients of the seeds. Planting, and cultivating will be done under the supervision of instructors.

Dr. and Mrs. Evans comprised a party of seven, scheduled to leave Brooklyn N. Y., on the Megali Hellas, bound for the Near East, two years ago today February 14th, but owing to severe storm the ship did not sail until two days later. Dr. Evans was in charge of the party which was expected to arrive at Constantinople seventeen days later, or about March 5th. As the result of severe wind storms, etc., the steamer was one week and one day overdue. Were they to return to the United States immediately upon the expiration of their contract about the middle of March, Dr. and Mrs. Evans would not reach Norwich until about the first of June. It is generally hoped by their relatives and friends that they will not decide to renew their contract, but return to their native land.

INCREASING SUCCESS IN VISITATION EVANGELISM

Reports of a total of 228 decisions for Christian discipleship through visitation evangelism were made Wednesday evening when the workers met for supper at the Community house on Church street. Workers' speeches were brief in making reports and all revealed the deepening confidence of the workers in the visitation method. One of the ministers reported an interview with a man who had heard almost every sermon of his Norwich pastorate but who was only won to professed discipleship of Jesus by the personal invitation given in the man's home Wednesday. Many were found who thanked the workers for their interest and showed eagerness to make their diciaion to follow the master.

It was announced that a committee from Providence would be here Friday evening to observe the effect of this week's work in Norwich.

The director of this work, Dr. E. A. Kernahan of Boston, has given an interesting story of the development of the method in practical experience. In part he said:

"It is difficult for us to realize that we are facing the dawn of a new day, yea, that we already live in a new day. So that you will realize this, I need bu suggest that my grandfather never talked over a telephone, never rode in an auto, never attended a movie, or a good many other things that are very familiar today. We all recognize that there have been outstanding changes in our educational, social, industrial and economic life. Do we also recognize that changes have occurred in the interpretation and expression of our Christian life? These changes make it necessary to change some of our methods so we can efficiently serve our generation. Because the evangelistic methods used by our fathers are not as successful today as they were yesterday, will we become discouraged and throw up our hands and decide that we cannot advance the Kingdom of Christ during our generation? Or will we be willing to plow a new furrow—adopt new methods that will succeed today?

"In looking for a new method of evangelism that will succeed in the United States of America in the year 1924, we will turn to the Bible because a Biblical method should meet the approval of all Christians.

"On the occasion of the baptism of Jesus, John the Baptist uttered those familiar words, "Behold the Lamb of God." Andrew, hearing, followed Jesus, had a personal interview and became one of Christ's Apostles. Andrew brought his brother Peter; a personal interview and Peter became an Apostle. Jesus gave Philip a personal invitation. "Follow Me," and Philip became one of His Apostles. Philip brought his brother, Nathanial; a personal interview and Nathaniel became an Apostle. Nicodemus went to Jesus by night to have a personal interview about the spiritual things of the Kingdom of God and became one of Christs disciples.

"As Jesus was walking across Samaria he met the Samaritan woman at the well. He spoke to her about the spiritual things of the Kingdom of God, illustrating His Message by the Living Water, and won her as one of His disciples. I challenge you to name a single outstanding follower who was won by Jesus Christ by another than the personal invitation or interview method. It was Christ's method of evangelism, Christ never held a series of evangelistic meetings. We have no record of Jesus winning any of his outstanding followers as a result of preaching. But the Master was never too busy to take time to have an interview with a single man or woman about the life the Heavenly Father would have them live.

"In the early church the Christians were firebrands. They considered it their duty to take the message of the Christ to their relatives, friends, neighbors and fellow workmen. It was their business to win people for Christ.

"In Korea one of the conditions of membership in the church is that a convert must first win someone else for Christ.

"Suppose in our church in the United States, one of the conditions of membership would be that the applicant must first win a soul for Christ. Would all the members of your church be able to qualify? Did Christ expect his followers to become fishers of men? Do the laymen of your church think that the winning of souls is their task? Can the Christians in our American churches be as successful soul winners as the Christians of the early church or of the Korean church?

"I personally, believe that our laymen can be just as efficient and successful in winning souls for Christ and His church as were the early Christians or the Koreans. I want to testify that when you show laymen that this is their task, then properly organize, train and direct them, giving them definite assignments, that they have outstanding success in winning people for Christ."

TWO MANAGERS AND FIGHTERS DRAW SUSPENSION FROM N. Y. COMMISSION

New York, Feb. 13.—Madison Square Garden, largest metropolitan indoor arena, was suspended today from staging boxing bouts for one week by the state athletic commission as a result of the match last Friday night between Pancho Villa, world's flyweight champion, and Georgie Marks of California, which was robbed of its title aspect when Marks entered the ring four and a half pounds overweight.

At the same time, the commission suspended for sixty days Marks, his manager, Charley Cook, and Frank Churchill, manager of Villa. Marks and Cook, were set down for failure of the boxer to make the flyweight limit of 112 pounds, while Churchill was banned for refusing to claim the weight forfeit of $1,250 required of Marks.

No action was taken against Villa but the midget Filipino automatically will be kept inactive, so far as boxing in this state is concerned, while his manager is under suspension. No blame was attached to Villa, the commission explained, it being pointed out that he was simply a victim of circumstances.

Suspension of the garden was ruled for several reasons. These included a report to the commission that Marks had posted the required $2,500 weight and appearance forfeit when he had not done so; alleged failure to take proper measures to notify the public that the fight was not a championship affair, after Marks was found to be overweight; and for not keeping informed as to Marks' true weight during his training activities.

It was the first time the garden has come under official ban since it was turned into a center of pugilistic activity under the direction of Tex Rickard.

The suspension period was announced by the commission as effective February 16 to 23 but since the arena will be occupied all next week by floral exhibit the period will be extended to prevent the boxing show scheduled for February 25, the intent of the ruling being to bar one ring card as punishment. The show arranged for next Friday night will not be affected.

Rickard, when informed tonight of the ruling, denied that he or his associates were to blame for the fiasco. He declared he was given assurances Marks would make the weight and that two days before the fight an examination showed the challenger at that time to be within a pound of the flyweight limit. The promoter also declared he took every step possible to advise the public of the sudden shift in the situation when Marks was found to be well over-weight the afternoon before the bout.

Despite his advantage in weight, Marks was decisively beaten by Villa, who won the judge's verdict after 15 rounds.

The drastic action taken by the commission is its first important step under George E. Brower, new chairman.

"BO" McMILLIN WILL NOT BE GRID COACH AT CENTRE

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 13.—"Bo" McMillin will not coach Centre college's football team this coming season, according to action taken by trustees of the little Presbyterian college here today, when it was decided not to ask McMillin to break his contract with Centenary college at Shreveport, La., which has a $50,000 pact on him.

The trustees intimated, however, that "Bo" McMillins might be asked to assume the leadership of his alma mater's eleven in 1925.

BROADWAY ATHLETES HAVE TRYOUTS AT "Y" GYM

With visions of winning the J. A. Ferguson trophy cup in the final school-boy athletic meet, the Broadway athletes met in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon for their preliminary meet, with the result that the broadwayites made some good records and demonstrated that they have an excellent chance of winning this season's indoor meet. Vitgliano proved to be the school's "best bet," who won first place in most of the events, and made an especially good record in the eighteen-foot rope climb, "shinnying" up the thick strand in 6 2-5 seconds. Foster took second all round honors, showing up well in the running and jumping events.

The final meet between Broadway, Greeneville and Elisabeth street schools will take place next Tuesday afternoon, and judging from the records made by the schools thus far, all schools are on a pretty equal footing. The fine trophy cup, which has been contributed by Jeweler John A. Ferguson, will be exhibited in his store window on Main street within a few days.

Standing broad jump—Vitgliano 8 ft. 4 in.; Foster, Wersing, Mathers, Szostok.

Obstacle race—Vitgliano 10.2 seconds; Foster, Mathers, Flather, Wilbur, D'Atri, Yalen, Ottoviano, Harkness, Tiger.

NINE ATHLETES AT JOHNS HOPKINS BARRED

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 13.—Athletics at Johns Hopkins university have been thrown into an upheaval by the suspension of nine of the best and most promising men because of low scholastic status, it was learned today.

The "black list" includes Burton Proctor, South Atlantic, Middle Atlantic and intercollegiate high jump champion, Robert Gwinn, South Atlantic cross country champion; Roy Dorcas, member of the medley relay team, and Wardwell, a promising candidate for the 440-yard dash in coming meets.

The first result of the suspensions, it was said, will be the withdrawal of the Hopkins medley team from the Wilco Athletic club games in New York on Saturday. There is much speculation as to whether Hopkins will enter a medley team in the Georgetown games, Feb. 21, and the Johns-Hopkins Fifth Regiment games here on the twenty-third.

INTERNATIONAL ADOPTS 168-GAME SCHEDULE

New York, Feb. 13.—The adoption of a compromise playing schedule, a revision of the present constitution and submersion of the much-discussed draft issue were the highlights of the International league's mid-winter meeting, which closed a three-day session today after a stormy debate over the 1924 playing program.

Virtually two days were required to frame a schedule which proved satisfactory. As accepted today, the revised schedule of 168 games opens April 16, a day later than the major league inaugurals, and closes September 28.

The question of accepting a modified form of the draft such as the other class AA circuits—the Pacific Coast league and American association—have approved as a result of major league pressure, was pigeonholed by the International magnates when it became apparent that it was opposed by a decided majority of the clubs.

The season openers will find Buffalo at Baltimore, Toronto at Newark, Rochester at Jersey City and Syracuse at Reading. The same clubs will be opponents when the northern clubs open their home seasons April 30.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

While George Sisler is signing and buying catchers for the St. Louis Browns with such reckless abandon on the Coast, he should not forget that the Browns also have on their list one John Simmons, voted the best player in semi-pro or amateur ranks last year by a committee named to make the selection, and that in competition with the pick of the talent from the country wide.

Matty Fitzpatrick, umpire by profession, probably has cooked his goose for any further employment. He "thought" he had engaged himself to the Pacific Coast League, but learned later that he was not wanted. So he took his case to Commissioner Landis. He is due, doubtless, to find out that whatever the powers of the one-time circuit league presidents will do their own selecting of umpires.

John Leci, a big Indian who played football with the Haskell team, has been signed for a trial with the New York Yankees. He is hailed as the successor to Jim Thorpe." Besides his football stunts he made some reputation with the Haskell Indians as a baseball player. He is a first baseman. He weighs 205 pounds and is said to have tremendous strength, coupled with a lot of speed.

That fans of Harrisburg have serious intentions about entering the New York-Pennsylvania League is indicated by plans made. An organization for a club has been formed and a delegation appointed to attend the coming league meeting. Overtures have been made to both Frank Baker and Eddie Plank to take the management of the Harrisburg team. Baker already seems to have made other plans.

Fred Thompson, obtained by the St. Louis Cardinals from the Lincoln Club of the Nebraska State League for trial in the spring is "Terrible" Thompson, the former University of Nebraska football star and line smasher. In baseball he has made some reputation as a catcher and it is at that position he will get a trial with the Cardinals. He played professional football last fall with an Omaha team.

The veteran Frank Dwyer, almost forgotten in baseball, has been given a job by John McGraw—who can find a job for most any veteran if properly appealed to. Dwyer of late years has been a member of the New York State Athletic Commission for something or other. Most of his baseball career was spent with the Cincinnati Reds as a pitcher. Before that he was with Cap Anson's Colts. He is going to help coach the young pitchers of the Giants this spring in Florida.

A news item from Sacramento is that Lewis Morsing, president of the Sacramento Club of the Pacific Coast League, has turned down an offer of $175,000 for his club from a syndicate headed by Jack Kearns, and representing as its chief stockholder Jack Dempsey, the prize fighter. The Moreings, it seems, are eager enough to get out of baseball—as operated by the present Coast League "Control"—but are a bit particular as to whom they sell.

"True to his pledge to the St. Paul fans, President John D. Norton of the St. Paul Club is reported as having sent back to the Cincinnati Club last week a check for $15,000, telling Garry Herrmann he did not want money, but players, as final payment for Tom Sheehan—half in money and half in players, but the players could not be agreed upon, so the check was sent in lieu thereof only to be rejected by Mr. Norton.

Stories that Doc Johnson is done as a first baseman with the Seattle Club are not exactly true, according to club officials. It is admitted that Jimmy Welsh has the call for first base on the Seattle team the coming season, but the ancient Johnson will be kept around as a sort of handy substitute. The reason probably is that the Seattle Club has such an investment in Johnson that it hardly can offord to let him go.

Among other matters passed on by the Southern League magnates in their recent schedule meeting at New Orleans was numbering ball players. It was decided that players of all teams should wear numbers on their sleeves, that the fans might better identify them. The idea was suggested by President John D. Martin. It was inaugurated in the major leagues last season by the St. Louis Cardinals and seemed to please the fans.

ARMY-NAVY FIVE BEATS PLAINFIELD IN FIRST GAME OF TITLE SERIES

Before the largest crowd of the season at Parish hall Wednesday evening, the Army-Navy Five took the first game of the three-game series with Plainfield for the basketball title of Eastern Connecticut, winning in easy fashion by a score of 35 to 16. Both teams were somewhat strengthened for the battle, the Army-Navy team having three players from the Rees of South Manchester, and the Plainfield team using Horan, Holy Cross star athlete. The Army-Navy team got away to a smashing start and completely smothered the Plainfield boys for the first few minutes. The score at the end of the half being 14 to 8. The local five continued to forge ahead and at no time during the game were they in danger.

Ballisper and Angelli, playing in the forward positions for Taftville, were a sweet combination and accounted for more than half the points. Horan, the college star, exhibited a wonderful brand of floor work but his support from the rest of the team was not up to standard, although it was difficult for the Plainfield boys to break away from the close guarding of Benson and Coleman.

In the preliminary game the Army-Navy Seconds outclassed the Plainfield Buddies, winning 42 to 18. The summary:

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

PALACE THEATRE

Military methods were used in handling the 3,500 players used in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame, the Universal production which is now playing at the Palace theatre. Owing the enormous daily cost during the filming every effort was made to conserve time. The first move was the appointment of Charles Stallings, formerly air service efficiency engineer ing officer. He adopted military regulations and checked in the 3,500, handed out the wardrobes, dressed the players, loaded them on trucks and had them on location in fifty minutes each morning.

The handling of the mob scenes has always been a matter of grave concern to producers, but Universal solved this problem by utilizing lessons learned from the radio. Loud speaker horns were placed all over the lot, spaced twenty-five feet apart, all wired to one transmitter and this connected to a telephone on a raised platform. From this lofty perch Director Wallace Worsley barked his orders.

Lon Chaney, star of the production, was on the lot each morning three and one half hours before the remainder of the company as he required four and one half hours daily to don the complicated make-up that transformed him into "Quasmodo," the deformed bell-ringer of Notre Dame. Incidentally, it is interesting to note that all critics are in accord that this is the greatest piece of make-up ever done on either stage or screen. Throughout the day Chaney was forced to carry 72 pounds on his back. It was another one of his famous torture roles and one for which he later paid the penalty by spending three weeks in a private hospital.

PALACE THEATRE

The management of the Palace theatre takes pleasure in announcing to their patrons of this city and vicinity that they have made arrangements with the Chicago Stock Company to play a solid week's engagement at that popular playhouse beginning Monday afternoon, February 18th.

This organization needs no introduction to theatregoers as it played a record breaking week's engagement in Norwich two years ago and this year come direct from a long engagement in Pittsburgh where the attraction boasts of playing to ten thousand paid admission a week for nearly a half year.

The acting cast is headed by Jean White, former leading lady in the production of Turn to the Right and W. James Bedell a leading man who if said to be a typical matinee idol of the Richard Dix type. Sixteen other artists will support the stars and the staging of six plays to be presented during the week has been given special attention, in fact each play will have stage settings in exact replica of the original New York production.

The plays themselves are well known to followers of the latest New York hits. The engagement will open with a big scenic production of the wonder play Smilin' Through, in which Jane Cowl scored a tremendous success on the spoken stage and Norma Talmadge scored the greatest hit of her brilliant career in the movie world.

Following this great play the players will be seen in the automobile comedy Six Cylinder Love, the New York Klaw theatre hit Nice People, the sale of laughter in which William Courtney appeared Her Temporary Husband, A. H. Wood's laugh festival Getting Gertie's Garter, the smashing dramatic hit The White Sister and the American sweetheart play The Love Test.

There will be change of play daily, one performance being given in the afternoon and one in the evening. Seats will be placed on sale for the evening performances one week in advance. Watch the daily papers for further announcements.

Only Vaudeville in Norwich at the Strand Theatre

Another group of big time vaudeville acts will hold the boards at this theatre the last half of the week starting today.

The Brown Girls, there are seven of them, seven grown girls and even the color-blind person will admit that brown as it applies to these young women is most attractive. The Brown girls are pretty, pert and attractively costumed. These seven girls constitute a combination band and symphony orchestra, a symphony orchestra because the instrumentation includes the harp, the cello and violin and a piano, a band because there are drums and xylophones and cornets but the combination is thoroughly effective. Each of the girls is a musician, each a master of the instrument she plays. Their program is will selected and well rendered and the act is attractively staged.

Everybody knows Jim Donovan. His full name is James B. Donovan. King of Ireland and this King of Ireland is a friend of good fellows and a friend of entertainment. His little partner Marie Lee is called the "Dancing Butterfly." They offer a combination of songs, dances and old blarney called Doing Well, Thank You.

Sim Moore and Frank Mitchell term themselves worse-a-tile comedians.

One of the most difficult of acrobatic stunts to accomplish is the toe-catch. There are few teams executing it. One of the few is Moore and Mitchell who are not strictly acrobats for a part of their turn is devoted to comedy talk, songs and dances.

You will find a top-notch juggler in Lawton. He says he has a few ideas in juggling. He has a few mighty good ones, so good that they make him decidedly distinctive in their line.

The feature Defying Destiny. The story is one which every member of the family will enjoy, for there is not only a strong love interest but, also, a real live business tale woven in with it.

Monte Blue takes the part of the hero, Jack Fenton, whose face is pitifully marred as the result of his rescuing Beth Alden (portrayed by Irene Rich) from a burning house. Beth is so much in love with him that she never sees the scars. All is happiness until a large sum of money disappears from the bank in which Jack is cashier. He is arrested, in spite of Beth's protests, and is tried for embezzlement. The jury declares him innocent, but the townspeople do not agree with the verdict. Cut to the soul by their injustice Jack leaves town. He is determined never to return until he can clear his name and get even with those who have hurt him.

It would be a shame to reveal whether or not he accomplishes his purpose, but we will say that Defying Destiny is a thoroughly satisfactory production and we think only a very cranky critic could disagree with us.

Franklin criticized the Englinsh for beer drinking.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

UNDER THE RED ROBE COMING TO BREED THEATRE

What in many respects is expected to be the outstanding event in the history of photoplay presentation in Norwich will take place next Sunday night when Under the Red Robe, a sumptuous screen version of Stanley Weyman's famous historical romance bearing the same title, makes its bow at the Breed theatre.

Featuring Robert B. Mantell, John Charles Thomas and Alma Rubens the new picture not only presents a remarkable cast of actors, but represents the most careful regard for historical accuracy in the important features of settings and costuming. The picture was nine months in the making, and the total cost is upwards of $1,500,000. In lavishness of production, beauty of setting, power of drama and excellency of acting the film is said to be unequalled in photoplay history.

All of the famous examples of the architecture of the period represented are faithfully reproduced. The Palais Royal at Paris, formerly the palace of the great Cardinal under Louis XIV is an instance, produced castles of the famous historical personages appearing in the picture—as the Castle de Cochefort in the south of France—represent the result of much research.

In many of the settings and in the costuming through there is richness and elaborateness far surpassing anything heretofore attempted. This is noticed in the big mass scenes, which fill the eye at some representations of the court of Louis XII.

Robert B. Mantell has the role of Cardinal Richelieu while John Charles Thomas appears as the heroic Gil de Berauk. Alma Rubens will be seen as Renee. Others include Genevieve Hamper, William H. Powell, Rose Coghlin, Ian MacLaren, Mary MacLaren, Otto Kruger, Evelyn Gosnell Gustav von Seyffertitz, Sidney Herbert, Charles Judels, Martin Faust Arthus Houseman and Andrew Dilbor.

Under the Red Robe is adapted from the Weyman story by Bayard Veiller, directed by Alan Crosland, and the settings are by Joseph Urban.

There will be two shows daily at 2:30 and 7:30 and all seats will be reserved at the evening performances. Tickets are now on sale at the box office for all performances.

BREED THEATRE

The assemblage of film fans that crowded the Breed theatre last night for the opening of Jane Cowl's and Jane Murfin's screen version of Zane Grey's The Lone Star Ranger repeatedly gave evidence of its pleasure at the thrilling antics of Tom Mix, the popular hero who is cast in the title role.

It seemed as though the virile, robust cowboy had appeared in person and that his followers had turned out to pay him homage.

Much credit must go to the unusual "Tony," Tom's talented steed, whose response to his master's demands of hard-riding is miraculous.

Lambert Hillyer, who staged the picture, has developed every element of suspense and excitement that is contained in the noted author's successful best-seller.

In all, the feature provides the best entertainment that has been seen in this city in many months.

The Lone Star Ranger will be shown again today at the Breed and other pictures on the bill include a news, scenic and comedy.

Norwich Minstrel Follies Remains at Broadway Theatre

The last half of this week will see the Norwich Minstrel Follies at the Broadway theatre but with several changes, however, and a new photoplay.

There will be several new numbers by the local people and the cast of principals will present new specialties.

A beautiful queen of the underworld, but not the sordid underworld of today's fiction, rather the highest strata of international crookdom, is the heroine of "White Tiger," the Universal-Jewel special which opens at the Broadway theatre today. And Priscilla Dean, the fiery beauty of "Outside the Law," one of the greatest of all crook film plays, "The Flame of Life" and other famous successes, plays the role.

Supporting Miss Dean are Wallace Beery of "The Flame of Life," and "Robin Hood," Matt Moore of "The Storm" and Raymond Griffith. Dean, Beery and Griffith are the trio of international lightweight transfer artists in the dramatic story. Tod Browning wrote and directed "White Tiger" as he did "Outside the Law."

The story embraces the early training of the three crooks, but the main event is their biggest haul in America, and the unromantic developments that follow. The three are characterized just as they would be in real life, not comradely souls with a sense of honor and loyalty, but three fighting creatures each determined to get his share of the booty and unwilling to believe that the other two will let him have it.

Probably in average fiction they would have had a number of very thrilling escapes, a romantic death pact among them and a few other hokum subterfuges which the ordinary writer uses to avoid portraying real life. But in "White Tiger" they are selfish beings, constantly scrapping and quarrelling over trivial things it is, safe to say that the trio of characterizations of Dean, Beery and Griffith is one of the finest examples of "team work" the screen has seen.

PROVIDENCE VISITOR IN NEW LONDON LOSES CERTIFIED CHECK FOR $24,500

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 13—Frederick A. Starr, 64, well known fraternally through his connection with Masonic orders and president of J. Warren Gay company, died suddenly of heart trouble this afternoon at his home, 38 Richards street. Mr. Starr is survived by his widow. Mr. Starr had been a sufferer from high blood pressure a long time and of late he had been under the care of a physician, although he had not been confined to his home. He was at his business this forenoon and apparently was in good health. He left for home about noon and as he entered the house he greeted his wife and then was stricken. Mr. Starr was able to reach a chair and as he seated himself in it he passed away.

Mr. Starr was the son of the late Dominick Starr and was one of three brothers, the other two Joseph and Frank Starr having passed away many years ago. For many years Mr. Starr was an inspector connected with the customs house, but resigned to go to other employment in New York. Several years ago he married Miss Hattie Woods of Governor N. Y. In his earlier life Mr. Starr was an Adams Express company messenger. He was a member of the Union Masonic lodge and all the other Masonic bodies of the Connecticut Consistory and Pyramid Temple of Mystic Shriners and was a past commander of Palestine Commandery, K. T. He was a member of Konomoc Hose company and of the Odd Fellows.

Herbert W. Dench, 80, formerly of Bridgeport, died at Odd Fellows' home in Groton, last night, after a lingering illness. Mr. Dench was unmarried and was born in Sharon, the son of John B. and Lorendi Woodruff. He was a farmer by occupation and had been at the home for a long time. Mr. Dench was a member of Adelphine lodge, I. O. O. F., of Bridgeport.

Stanley Hayward, a teamster in the employ of the City Coal company, died at Home Memorial hospital last night following an operation which he underwent a few days ago.

Mrs. Fred Halyburton of Willetta avenue and Miss Rose Divona of Waterford, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Clifford L. Perkins, 63, died this morning at his home, 57 Fairview avenue, Groton. He was a laborer by occupation and was born in Ledyard March 13, 1861, the son of Lorenzo B., and Prudence Chapman Perkins. He is survived by a son, Raymond Perkins of Groton and by three daughters, Mrs. Dennis Hershard of the Navy Yard, Mrs. Lawrence Gillette of Wellsburgh, N. Y., and Mrs. Edna Main of Groton. Two sisters, Mrs. Edward Bruce, of Gales Ferry and Mrs. Fannie Avery, of New London, and two brothers, Newton and Elmer Avery of the Navy Yard, also survive.

Raymond H., the five months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Dodd, died this morning at their residence 35 Cottage street.

Miss Anne Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Smith, of 12 Darrow street, was given a miscellaneous shower by Miss Isabel Austin at the home of the latter, 52 Georton street last evening. The bride-elect received many presents. During the evening cards were played and musical selections heard. A collation was served. Miss Smith will shortly become the bride of C. S. Bailey, community secretary of the local Y. M. C. A.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Sol Kanaler of 320 Montauk avenue of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances, to Joseph Levinson of Newburgh, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Palmer have returned to their home on Pequot avenue, having spent several weeks in Florida.

Mrs. John Murray has returned to her home in Springfield, Mass., after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gurdon Watson of Williams street.

William Millard, pursuing studies at Princeton university, is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Millard, of Pequot avenue.

Lieut.-Com. H. A. Flanigan and family have vacated their apartment at the Hotel Mohican and have moved to a house on Ocean avenue.

At a meeting of the directors of the Mariners' Savings bank held this forenoon Judge Charles E. Waller was elected vice president to succeed his father, the late Thomas M. Waller, who held the office many years. Judge of Probate Arthur P. Anderson of Noank was elected a director to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Waller's death. The meeting passed a resolution on the death of ex-Governor Waller, who was the last surviving member of the incorporators of the institution and a copy of the resolution will be forwarded to each son and daughter of the deceased.

City Manager William A. Holt this afternoon administered the oath of office to Mrs. Chase, wife of Captain Lewis Chase of the Salvation Army. The reason for Mrs. Chase's appointment is that when a policewoman is appointed to succeed Mrs. Alice Hunt, who resigned two months ago, the women detained by the policewoman will be sheltered at the Salvation Army barracks instead of at the police station and while under detention will be in charge of the police matron. When City Manager Holt will appoint a policewoman is not known. Several candidates are seeking the office, but it is not believed that an appointment will be made for several weeks.

Mrs. Carrie Frances Manson, widow of Frederick T. Manson of East Boston, Mass., died suddenly of heart trouble this morning in her apartment at the Hotel Mohican. Mrs. Manson was a native of Boston and had a residence in Cambridge. She had resided in New London about five months. Mrs. Manson is survived by her mother, Mrs. Frances Wentworth, a sister, Mrs. F. O. Wellington and a nephew, Dr. H. W. Wellington, all of 503 Montauk avenue.

A chimney fire at the residence of Louis Haven, of Baker avenue, Groton, was the cause of the borough fire department being called out at 6.45 o'clock this morning. The blaze was discovered by a member of the Haven household, who caused an alarm to be rung in from box 143, causing the Pioneer Hose company to respond. The fire was quickly subdued with chemicals.

The condition of State's Attorney Hadlai A. Hull has improved considerably the past few days and his strength appears to be gradually increasing. Today Mr. Hull followed his usual practice of sitting up much of the day and devoted the greater part of the time to reading and smoking. With a continuance of the improvement it is anticipated that the patient will be able to exercise out of doors in favorable weather, within a few weeks.

Another evidence of the existence of the Ku Klux Klan in New London was displayed last night in this city and Niantic, when three fiery crosses blazed from conspicuous points for a period ranging from an hour to an hour and a half.

One of the crosses was erected among a string of pine trees on Soldiers' hill off Williams street, on the outskirts of the city and its flames could be witnessed for miles. The other cross was ignited from an overhigh part of the city and in the rear of the Redden farm off Colman street. The cross at Niantic was ignited about 8 o'clock, upon McCook's Point, another elevation.

The Niantic cross was set afire about 8 o'clock and it is apparent that the cross was the first of the several to be fired in this city. Following the burning of the cross on McCook's Point, the two crosses in New London were set afire, within a short time of each other. The cross off Colman street was the first to appear, being noted about 9 o'clock. A short time before the fire forming the cross was observed an automobile was noticed parked for 20 minutes close to the point where the cross was erected. When the cross appeared ablaze the automobile had vanished and a half hour later the burning cross on Soldiers' Hill was seen. Later two crosses were burned on elevated parts of Norwich, a fact that indicates that the New London demonstration and the Norwich display were promoted by the same members of the Klan.

There are, it is understood between 200 and 250 members of the Klan in New London, many of them identified with some of the fire companies and the United States navy, but there are many of the Klan who joined the white-robed order two or three years ago, especially navy men, who have since removed from the city. However, that the membership of the Klan is still strong in New London is evidenced frequently by literature that has been circulated.

Alfred Coit, president of the Union Bank & Trust company and Joseph A. Stanners, trust officer and assistant cashier of the institution, are at the Commodore, Hotel New York, attending the annual convention of the trust companies' division of the American Bankers' association.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters this evening when an out-house on property owned and occupied by H. Addison Rogers of 901 Bank street, was discovered ablaze. The Niagara Engine company dispatched to extinguish the blaze with chemicals. The origin of the fire is not known.

Edward L. Singsen of Providence was in New London this afternoon and during his stay here he lost a certified check for $24,500. Singsen reported his loss to the police and with the opening of the banking institutions tomorrow the bankers will be notified of the loss of the check. Whether the check is recovered or not will not make any loss to the maker or the payee as the negotiation of the check would be impossible without an identification because of the large amount involved.

Singsen came to New London to transact some business and while in the Far East restaurant on State street, he had occasion to remove from his pocket papers, among which was the certified check. That is the last Singsen remembers seeing the check for when he went to a real estate office a short distance away, he ported it to the police. An investigation was started at once in an endeavor to recovr the check, but no trace of it could be found. After reporting the loss to the police Singsen returned to Providence.

The check was drawn by the Robert L. Walker company of Providence, on the Union Trust company, also of Providence and was made payable to "John G. Clarke."

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germs.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking, according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

MYSTIC

The weekly rehearsal of the Community house chorus went off smoothly Monday evening and Director Charles D. Geer of Norwich was pleased with the progress being made. There is, however, a need of more voices in the chorus, especially male voices, and next Monday evening a social will be held at the Community House to which each member of the chorus has been asked to invite one or two friends, with the purpose of increasing interest in the chorus. The regular chorus rehearsal will be held during the evening and will be followed by the singing of community songs, and there will be a special musical program followed by refreshments. Afterward from 10 o'clock the facilities of the house, such as bowling, pool, etc., will be free to those who wish to enjoy them. of 600 firms and individuals were discounted, the average loan amounting to about $600. Much of this paper represented automobile financing, and motor car dealers throughout eastern Connecticut benefited in their sales through the service made available by the L. A. W. corporation.

None of the shares of the corporation ever been issued for good will or promotion purposes. Having made up such a good record since its organization in 1921, the corporation looks for a great expansion when the issue now put forth in sold.

MARKET WAS SPECULATIVE

New York, Feb. 13.—Speculators for the decline, taking advantage of the public apathy in the stock market and the latest developments in the oil investigation at Washington, forced a substantial recession in prices in today's moderately active session. Calling of loans by banks in anticipation of the Japanese government loan financing resulted in a stiffer call money rates, which also was a contributing factor to the selling of stocks

Prices showed a tendency to advance when the market opened with special strength developing in the copper shares as a result of the increase in the price of the red metal. Pools also resumed operations in a few high priced specialties. Persistent selling by professional shorts and the lack of effective support by operators on the long side eventually brought about a general reaction, net losses in the active issues ranging from 1 to 3 points.

Constructive forces found encouragement in the report that Japan would spend a large part of the proceeds of its international loan for the purchase of reconstruction materials in this country. Steel and copper shares were bought on the theory that those companies would benefit from this business, but they yielded with the rest of the list in the late wave of selling.

U. S. Steel closed a point lower at 106 3-4 and the independent steels sustained net loss of 1 to 2 1-4 points. Baldwin dropped 2 1-2 points. American Can fell back nearly 2 points despite the publication of a 1923 earnings statement showing $19.63 a share earned on the common stock as compared with $18.30 in the preceding year.

Oil shares proved vulnerable to short attacks in the face of another advance in Corning Crude prices, brokers reporting considerable liquidation by investors who had become frightened or displeased by the disclosures before the senate investigating committee. Losses of 2 to 4 points were sustained by the Pan-American issues, Standard Oil of California, Marland, Cosdel, Pacific, Houston and White Eagle.

Fisher Body continued its sensational advance on buying reported to be for the account of W. C. Durant, the stock advancing 15 3-4 points to 202, or more than 30 points above last weeks low. South Porto Rican Sugar was heavy following the announcement of a resumption of dividends because of the traditional "selling on the good news," but it rallied later and closed a point higher at 79 1-4.

Public offering of 41,000 shares of the Jordan Motor Car Company's 126,000 outstanding no par common stock will be made tomorrow at $31 a share, subject to prior rights of stockholders to subscribe at $30 a share before Feb. 16.

Rail shares yielded with the industrials, some of the selling in this group being inspired by reports that Senator La Follette was preparing another attack on the present railroad rates and regulations. South Railway was off more than 2 points at one time on profit taking, but it recovered part of its loss.

Foreign exchange rates were irregular. Heavy over-subscription of the London of the Japanese loan had a cheerful effect on sterling exchange, demand bills advancing about 1-2 a cent to $4.30 1-2. French francs broke more than 6 points to 4.48 3-4 cents.

Call money opened at 4 1-4, advanced 4 1-2 and thence to 5. Time money and commercial paper were unchanged.

BOND MARKET

New York, Feb. 13.—Dominated by the influence of the new $150,000,000 Japanese loan, the bond market was today forced lower under liquidation of many issues for the purpose of "switching" operations. Heavy inquiry from investors in all sections of the country presaged the success of the offering, which will be made publicly on Friday. General selling of securities was reported for a transfer of funds into the Japanese bonds.

Announcement from London that the 25,000,000 pound issue sold there had been more than twice oversubscribed stimulated interest in the loan here, which has a higher yield—7.10 per cent. as compared with 6.96 per cent. in Great Britain. Considerable activity in existing Japanese issues developed on announcement that 4 1-2's due next year would be called at parity next October and that the provisions were made for paying subscriptions to the loan with old bonds on a favorable yield basis.

Despite general selling there were conspicuous strong spots in the speculative railroad list, with Chicago & Alton 3 1-2's advancing 1 1-4 points to a new high level on the present movement. New Haven 7's also were strong, along with Seaboard adjustment5's, Frisco 4's and Erie Consolidatde 4's.

As a result of Washington developments, attacks were renewed on Sinclair Consolidated Oil issues, the 7's losing more than 2 points. California Petroleum 6 1-2's, Consolidated Coal 5's and Eastern Cuba Sugar 7 1-2's also yielded part of their previous gains. Further selling of U. S. government issues tended to depress the prices of these bonds.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Grain underwent a sharp setback in price here today owing largely to a decline in Liverpool wheat quotations and as a result of more liberal receipts of corn. The Chicago wheat market closed heavy, 3-4 cents to 1 3-8c net lower, May 110 1-2 and July 110 5-8 a 3-4 to 110 3-4. Corn also lost 3-4 to 1 3-8c, and oats 1-2 to 5-8c. In provisions, the outcome ranged from 5c drop to 12 advance.

Developments regarding the dock strike at Liverpool appeared to be at the bottom of the Liverpool wheat market weakness. Notwithstanding this circumstance, efforts to bring about rallies here met with little success, although considerable buying was because of a somewhat prevalent opinion that wheat values in this country are on a domestic basis for at least the time being. A heavy tone in the New York stock market contributed to the bearish feeling in the grain pits, and there was increased selling of wheat as well as fresh downturns in price as the day drew to an end. Reports of liberal holdings of wheat by southwestern mills counted as a late depressing factor, despite Kansas gossip emphasizing meagerness of farm reserves.

Selling out of corn both for immediate and future delivery was on a somewhat broader scale than has been the rule of late, and demand was inadequate. Receipts here today, 538 carloads, were in excess of what had been looked for. Besides, mild weather acted as a check on corn buyers, as did weakness of the wheat market. Export business in corn proved relatively insignificant.

Elevator interests shared in the selling of oats.

Lard responded to higher quotations on hogs, but call for meats was slack.

CURB MARKET

New York, Feb. 13.—Stock prices crumbled in todays active curb market with the oils bearing the brunt of the selling pressure and sustaining the sharpest losses.

Solar Refining broke 12 points, South Pennsylvania Oil 8, Prairie Oil and Gas 6, while losses of 1 1-2 to 4 points were registered by Standard Oils of Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky and Ohio, Prairie Pipe, Ohio Oil, Magnolia Petroleum and several others steady, probably because of another increase in Corning crude.

Losses in the industrial group were held to fractional, although a few issues such as Dubilier Radio which touched another new record top at 21 3-4 showed small net gains. Candy Products, the most active feature closed unchanged.

Activity in the mining group was confined largely to the penny stocks with price changes generally unimportant.

St. John's Council, Knights of Columbus, held its first annual banquet and Lincoln anniversary, Tuesday evening, at Lawton inn. The dining room was decorated in patriotic colors and under the direction of Edward King, manager of the Inn, the following menu was served to about a hundred members and guests:

Fruit Cocktail
Olives Celery Candies
Tomato Bisque
Roast Turkey
Mashed Potato Hubbard Squash
Waldorf Salad
Sultana Roll, Claret Sauce
Coffee

Rev. R. P. Morrissey was toastmaster and introduced John Phillips, state secretary, as the first speaker. A short musical program was given comprising a piano solo by James Olson and a song by Charles Harrington.

Rev. John J. McCabe of Jewett City was called on for a brief address, and Father Morrissey then introduced J. J. Collins, state advocate, who made a short speech with reference to the day.

Rev. J. C. Mathieu was next to be called on. Then followed a humorous monologue by Matthew Exley. The last speaker was William J. Mulligan of Hartford, state deputy. That all the speeches were entertaining was shown by the attention and appreciation with which they were received. Driscoll Bros' orchstra furnished music during the evening. One of the features of the entertainment was the chorus singing by the members and guests, led by Father James J. Tyler.

The banquet and entertainment proved a splendid success, of benefit and pleasure to all the members and their guests.

The second anniversary meeting of the Lincoln club was held Monday evening in the vestry of the Congregational church. A splendid chicken pie supper was served by the Ladies' Aid society, seventy-four men sitting down to the tables. The Camp Fire Girls were the waitresses.

The business meeting was called to order by the president, Alfred D. Ashley and the minutes of the last meeting and the report of the executive board were made by the secretary, William F. Hall. The treasurer, Milton E. Winsor, reported a balance in the treasury. Reports of the visiting and membership committees were made by Elmer Phillips and Clarence Jeffers. A careful report was made by the chairman of the welfare committee, Henry Dorrance, bringing the following matters before the club: parking on Railroad street; additional lighting for the dark corners in the town of Plainfield, a system of signs and markers for the borders of the town to aid travelers passing through—also a brief report of the new trunk line through Scotland. These matters brought forth considerable discussion on the floor and action in some cases. Edward Hall brought up the matter of the position of the Lawton Fire company in responding to outside fires. Samuel T. Butterworth spoke briefly, further defining the position of the fire company with reference to outside calls. Several members expressed the gratitude of the public for timely aid rendered when property has been threatened by fire.

The address of the evening was given by Rev. Simeon E. Cosad of Putnam on The Message of Lincoln for Men of Today. Mr. Cosad held the close attention of his hearers while he gave an able and eloquent address on the great American. The address abounded in wit and humor, with many fine passages descriptive of the wonderful leadership of Lincoln and revealed a grasp on the life and character of Lincoln.

An unusually fine musical program was given by the Leach orchestra, of Wauregan, composed of Henry Leach, leader

ROTARIANS GAIN MUCH KNOWLEGE OF MELLON PLAN IN DEBATE

An interesting feature of the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel was the debate on the subject: "Resolved: That the Mellon Tax Plan should be adopted by congress as a beneficial measure." Many interesting phases of the plan were brought out and argued pro and con by six members of the club chosen irrespective of their personal views on the subject. All those engaged in the debate entered into it heartily with the result that those who heard the debate gained much useful knowledge regarding the plan.

The affirmative of the question was ably presented by Arthur M. Brown, Judge Nelson J. Ayling and James L. Case, while the negative was upheld with equal ability by Grosvenor Ely, Lucius Briggs and William G. Park. At the conclusion of the debate which lasted for half an hour, each speaker taking four minutes to deliver his argument, Mayor Milo R. Waters, speaking for the judges, said that owing to the lateness of the hour and the extreme necessity of careful consideration, the judges would reserve their decision until some later date.

At the business session President Charles A. Saxton presided and the singing was conducted by Fred S. Crowell and Jim Madden, who introduced Bert Gager as the Whistling Rufus of the Rotary club, who gave a delightful solo, assisted by several members of the club. Adelard Merin was heard in a pleasing solo.

President Saxton brought before the club a proposition to bring the spring play of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to Norwich this spring. The play, The Hidden Idol, was written by Witter Tingley Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. William I. Cook of this city, who is a student at M. I. T. The play is a musical comedy given by the students of Tech and the plot is laid in Turkestan, giving ample opportunity for an interesting plot.

The club members expressed themselves to be in favor of the idea of bringing the play to Norwich, several speaking very highly of it, especially Stanley Osborne of the Hartford club who was a guest of the local club. The matter was left until a future meeting when more complete details will be available.

Secretary Nelson J. Weymouth read a cordial invitation from the Lions club to the members of the Rotary club to attend the charter banquet to be given on the evening of February 29th. The invitation was heartily accepted and many of the Rotarians will be present at the banquet.

George L. Ingalls, who was recently elected president of the Norwich Boy Scout council, gave a brief talk on the Scouts during which he called attention to the coming drive for the annual budget. The drive starts next Monday to raise $6,000 for the current expenses. Mr. Ingalls urged the Rotarians to lend their hearty support as in the past few years. A team to represent the Rotary club in the coming drive is to be captained by E. LaRue Bliven, who will be assisted by the following members: J. Nelson Weymouth, William G. Park, Arthur M. Thompson, Charles A. Saxton, Dr. Clarence A. Spear, Herbert B. Cary, Grosvenor Ely, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Edwin A. Harris, Alfred G. Lillibridge, John J. O'Rourke, Dr. R. R. Agnew, F. Russell Smith, Lewis M. Young, Lucius Briggs, Shepard B. Palmer and Frank P. Welch.

The right hand of Rotary fellowship was extended to one new member by President Charles A. Saxton. There was a very good attendance at the meeting and those that were absent have promised to make up their attendance during the coming week.

The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

ENDED OLD PASTIME OF 'KNOCKING NATIONAL GUARD

"The World war had at least one great and glorious result for this country in that it put an end, for all time, to the old American pastime of 'knocking the national guard'", according to Philip Curtiss, former captain, First Connecticut Infantry, in a statement made public Wednesday by C. N. G. headquarters at Hartford. "The same battlefields that produced the tin hat abolished the legend about the tin soldier," said Captain Curtiss.

As a matter of fact, according to Captain Curtiss, the tin soldier had not existed in this country for a generation before the great war. As far back as the early nineteen-hundreds the national guard of the more progressive states was a well-organized, well-drilled, well-equipped and grimly efficient body of men which, as a literal fact, was better trained in marksmanship than any army in Europe except the British.

"In the days of the revolution and the war of 1812," said Captain Curtiss, "the militia of the United States consisted, in a technical sense, of what it does today. That is to say, every male citizen between the ages of 18 and 45 was regarded as a member of 'the militia.' In the early days of the republic, all male citizens were supposed to keep a 'firelock' and bayonet in their houses and once a year report for one day of training.

"In the early wars of the country this militia was actually called out—as it was—and put right on the battlefield. That it made a poor showing was a matter of course, yet to confuse this early 'militia' with the national guard was as unfair and ridiculous as it would be to confuse the present fire department of the city of New Haven with an old hand company which might have existed in Guilford or Durham in the year 1811. Yet that is exactly what was frequently done up to 1917.

"Another reason for the lack of true recognition of the national guard was the total ignorance of the American people regarding all soldiers, professional and amateur. It took the world war to teach us that any military force, the best and the worst, is merely a collection of human beings who have ups and downs entirely in accordance with the character of their officers, their own human failings and the support which they receive from the civilian population for which they serve. I remember in the early days of 1914 a famous American war correspondent writing with great awe of certain articles of equipment which he saw in the German army and noting them as typical of the 'superb German efficiency.' Every article he mentioned had been stock equipment in the Connecticut National Guard for at least five years.

"At various times between 1910 and 1916 I served in the National Guard, frequently beside the regulars, and once in a regular regiment, except that the regulars were doing it day in and day out I saw no essential differences between the two services. The types of men, the types of officers, the daily routine and the equipment were exactly the same.

"Today I believe that there must be even less diffrence between the national guard and the regulars. Both work for Uncle Sam and both receive their pay from Washington."

CALLS G. WARREN DAVIS A MAN IN A FOG

We are indebted to G. Warren Davis, mainspring of the Standard Time Clock at Norwich, for an explanation (via the Hartford Courant) of what he meant when he called a million or so of his fellow citizens in Connecticut "scofflaws." He didn't mean any harm. He meant it in the friendliest way. In thus comparing them with bootleggers he was only jollying them so that they would comprehend to the fullest the advantages of Eastern Standard Time.

A week ago we said that either Mr. Davis had never read the Standard Time law of Connecticut, or that he could not understand the English language, or was deliberately slandering his fellow citizens, and invited him to place himself in whichever category he belonged. He now chooses the third alternative but explains that he didn't mean any harm by it.

We are also indebted to Mr. Davis (directly this time) for a placard hailing Standard Time as "sun time." The fact that Mr. Davis doesn't know the difference between standard time and sun time is only another indication of his general state of mental fog on the whole issue.—Bridgeport Post.

DECISION FOR DEFENDANT TO RECOVER HIS COSTS

Decision for the defendant to recover costs has been handed down by Judge Allyn L. Brown in the suit of Ferdinand and Mary Villano of New London against Carlegero and Maria Librizsi of Waterford in which the plaintiffs sought $1,500 and an injunction.

The case was recently tried before Judge Brown in the superior court there on the claim of the plaintiffs for an injunction to restrain the defendants from maintaining buildings on a 30 foot strip which was claimed as a right of way on property between Bloomingdale road and Cone street, Waterford. The defendants claimed adverse possession for more than 15 years, since Aug. 1905 when the tract was closed in with fenses and a greenhouse and sheds erected on it.

COMPARES COOLIDGE HUMOR WITH ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Professor Henry W. Lawrence, Jr., of the faculty of Connecticut College for Women makes the following comparisons of the humor shown by President Coolidge and Abraham Lincoln.

Read the following stories, and be convinced that the humor of Lincoln was heartier and more contagious than that of Coolidge. These are fair samples of the Coolidge chuckle and the Lincoln laugh.

It is related that one summer's day a party of young people from Plymouth, Vermont, were starting on an excursion to Ausable Chasm. This necessitated a drive of several miles to the railway station at Ludlow and there all the couples had arrived in good season excepting Cal Coolidge and his girl.

Very shortly before train time however, they drove up in great haste, while the sweat poured down the tired horse.

"Howd' you come to drive so fast, Cal" inquired a would-be tormentor, while the crowd grinned expectantly.

"Well, you see," replied Cal, nothing abashed, "I was just tryin' to get the horse here before he sweat."

Lincoln's humor was always the spice of the court room. Once, on the western circuit which he followed as a young lawyer, a wrestling match occurred during the court's adjournment for lunch. One of the contestants a member of the bar who was to try a case that afternoon, sustained such an injury to the nether portion of his trousers that his coat was not long enough to conceal it. As he stood up in the court room, the consequent exposure caused no little mirth. Some wag began to circulate a subscription paper for funds to pay for the obviously needed repairs. When this paper reached Lincoln, he gravely wrote something on it and passed it to his neighbor. The neighbor read what was written, and snorted aloud in explosive glee. The judge, indignant at this contempt of his court, rebuked Lincoln and fined him $5; then asked that the offending paper be handed to him. On reading it, he too chuckled out loud, and acknowledged defeat by remitting the fine. What Lincoln had written was, "I can contribute nothing to the end in view."

Casey, acting as auctioneer, disposed of the touring automobile and truck of Amos Burdic kfor which a court order was held. The automobile were much "courted", having passed through five courts, three in Rhode Island, district, superior and supreme, and two in Connecticut, the town and county superior courst. Regardless of their court record, the machines seemed to be much desired property. The Overland touring car was started at a $50 bid and raised to $116, for which amount it was struck off to Charles Shippee. The Ford ton-and-a-half platform truck had even more admirers, being nearly new. The bid was started at $100 and after much spirited competition between Charles Brown and Harry Trefes it was finally sold to Peter Fiori for $370.

WESTERLY MAN FINED— STOLE CLOTH AT BRADFORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, R. I., Feb. 13.—Martin Dortch, colored, of 4 Pond street, Westerly, employed as a laborer at the Bradford Dyeing association, pleaded guilty in the Third district court, before Judge Michael J. Turano Wednesday evening, to the theft of cloth from the dye works in Bradford. He was fined $50 and costs which was paid. Upon the reported loss of the cloth, Inspector J. P. Delaney of the Watts Detective Agency, Inc., has been working on the case and making investigation for about two weeks. The issue of a search warrant on complaint of Thomas E. Brown was the result and the home of Dortch on Pond street was searched, Wednesday morning by the chief and Sergeant Donald Ferguson, accompanied by Inspector Delaney and Clifford Holdsworth, superintendent of the Bradford Dyeing association plant.

Since June 1, 1923, it was alleged in the warrant, quantities of cotton underwear cloth, cotton lining and cotton shirting had been stolen from the Bradford plant. A thorough search was made of the Dortch place where 20 yards of cloth and one-half spool of silk were found, the cost amount being $10.80. Some of the stolen cloth had been made into shirts by Dortch's housekeepr and some was being used for sheeting. Pieces of cloth were found in bags and boxes and it was evident that the theft dated back to the time about thirteen months ago, when several employes of the Bradford Dyeing association were arrested and, on convictions, paid heavy fines.

More tailors should be elected to congress. They know a lot about measures and men.

New Safe Way To Whiten Teeth Instantly!

Marvelous Discovery Bleaches Dark Teeth White

A new harmless treatment has been discovered which dissolves teeth stains instantly, giving dull teeth charming whiteness and lustre. This new treatment is called the Bleachodent Combination. It consists of a marvelous liquid and a new kind of paste. The liquid instantly curdles or softens the stains—while the paste removes them and prevents the formation of future stains. You just brush your teeth with a few drops of the liquid—then use the paste—and before your very eyes your teeth acquire a clear, flashing whiteness that even an hour's scouring by old-fashioned methods could not give them.

Safe Method

Bleachodent Combination is safe to use, as its mild ingredients are intended to act only on surface stains—not on the enamel itself. Teeth stains, as all dentists know, are caused by a glutenous substance called "mucin" which collects on teeth, where it attracts staining substances and hardens. Formerly this hard coating of "mucin" could not be removed without often grinding away a part of the enamel. But now, thanks to Bleachodent Combination, these stains can be dissolved away—without affecting the enamel in any way.

No More Tobacco Stained Teeth!

Surely nothing spoils one's appearance quicker than yellowish, tobacco stained teeth. Yet with Bleachodent Combination unsightly teeth stains are no longer necessary. No matter how stained the teeth may be from tobacco or other substances, the stains disappear with almost magical quickness, and the teeth acquire a wonderful flashing whiteness and glisten.

Fine for Children's Teeth

It is vitally important that only a safe mild preparation like Bleachodent Combination be used in children's teeth which are especially subject to stains and decay. Bleachodent Combination was first made for children's teeth to avoid the use of harsh, gritty, dentrifices which are so ruinous to teeth in their formative stage.

Get Bleachodent Combination Today!

You risk nothing in trying Bleachodent Combination for unless you are more than delighted with results of first application, your money will be instantly and gladly refunded without question. Say Goodbye to dull stained teeth!

Note: Do not expect Bleachodent Combination to remove stains caused by a silver filling. Bleachodent Combination will instantly remove surface stains, but it is not intended to act on enamel, and therefore cannot be expected to remove stains which go below the enamel's surface. Sold at all good stores, such as: G. G. Engler, H. M. Leroy, Andrew McLaughlin, Lee & Osgood.

PACHUCA

Pachuca, capital of the state of Hidalgo, Mexico, captured by Mexican revolutionists, is one of the world's greatest and most famous mining centers, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"One of Pachuca's silver mines, the Real del Monte, contained the counterpart of Nevada's famous Comstock Lode," says the bulletin, "which as everyone knows is the accepted synonym for mining riches; and the wealth of romance and adventure that has sprung from it has rivaled the metallic treasure. An inconspicuous muleteer became the owner of the mine in 1739 when its value was unknown. His pick opened up a bonanza vein such as seldom has been uncovered. Soon he was a multimillionaire in a day when even millionaires were rare. He presented several fully equipped war ships to the king of Spain and for his happy thought was made a count—Conde de Santa Maria de Regia. This Mexican 'Count of Monte Cristo' spent his millions with a lavish hand and his memory is cherished in Mexican traditions.

"The famous mine came to a tragic end soon after the Count's rise to fortune, by the bursting into it of a subterranean river. Its drowned riches remained untouched until near the middle of the nineteenth century when efforts to reopen it by British engineers led to frenzied speculation and a crash among London investors rivaling those of the Mississippi Bubble. Local Pachucans bought up the bankrupt company and promptly found a second bonanza vein even richer than the first. Silver valued at more than 80 million pesos has been taken from the second vein.

"Pachuca's mining fame does not rest alone on the Real del Monte Mine. The town lies in a big gulch with hills on three sides. The slopes of these hills are honey-combed with hundreds and hundreds of mine tunnels. Outside of each is a characteristic terrace of gray stone tailings. In the town are reduction works, assay offices and the other inevitable accompaniments of mining in every part of the world. Most of the 43,000 inhabitants of Pachuca are connected in one way or another with the dominant industry and the place has the appearance of a mining 'camp' which in truth it has been since the first shaft was sunk in 1534.

"In the hills near Pachuca is an exposure of great six-sided basaltic columns which has been termed 'the Giants' Causeway of America.' Mexico City lies less than 75 miles to the south of Pachuca."

An expedition is outfitting to ascend the Fly river in New Guinea. Five expeditions has already gone up this mysterious waterway, and none has returned.

An Amazing Fact

TO many people it may seem incredible that a habit so common as coffee-drinking can be harmful. Yet if your doctor were to enumerate the common causes of indigestion, headache, and run-down condition, he would be likely to mention coffee.

If you are troubled with insomnia, nervousness, or are inclined to be high-strung, try Postum in place of coffee for thirty days, and note the difference in the way you feel, and how much better you sleep.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage, absolutely free from caffeine, or any harmful drug.

Postum for Health

"There's a Reason"

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum [in tins] prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal [in packages] for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

COOLIDGE COURAGE SHOWN IN RETENTION OF COUNSEL

Withdraws Nomination of Silas H. Strawn as Special Counsel in the Oil Land Lease Cases—Declines to Withdraw Name of Atlee Pomerene Because He Does Not Consider That Any Evidence Disqualifying Him Has Been Produced—President Acted After Senator Lenroot Had Informed That Both Attorneys Were Unacceptable to the Senate—Vanderlip to Be Called Today to Testify Before Senate Oil Committee

Washington, Feb. 14.—The nomination of Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, as a special government counsel in the oil land lease cases was withdrawn from the senate by President Coolidge late today.

The president acted after the senate committee had directed Chairman Lenroot to inform him that both Mr. Strawn and Mr. Pomerene were unacceptable as attorneys in the oil cases. The name of Mr. Pomerene was not withdrawn, however. It is understood, because the president does not consider that any evidence disqualifying him has been produced.

Mr. Coolidge was represented as believing that Mr. Strawn's directorship in Chicago banks having oil interest connection might be made a basis of opposition to confirmation but that inasmuch as no such connection has been shown in the case of Mr. Pomerene, some legitimate reason should be produced to acount for the committee's action. There remained a possibility that Mr. Pomerene's name might be withdrawn, after Mr. Coolidge had conferred with Chairman Lenroot.

DEVELOPMENTS YESTERDAY IN OIL SCANDAL PROBE

Washington, Feb. 14.—Out of another day of lightning developments in the oil scandal there emerged tonight a definite determination by the investigating committee to go to the bottom of a rumor that a $1,000,000 oil slush fund had been deposited in Washington for distribution among men in high places.

Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, was summoned for questioning regarding the slush fund report, and committee members said Otto H. Kahn, of Kuhne Loeb & company, and Benjamin F. Yoakum, retired president of a western railroad, would be called later.

Information reaching the committee was that the story had been a subject of discussion among New York financiers, and that some of its details had been brought to Washington by Mr. Yoakum after he had talked to Mr. Kahn.

The oil committee continued to hold out tonight against approval of Silas H. Strawn and Atlee Pomerene as government counsel in the oil cases, and after being advised of this President Coolidge withdrew the name of Mr. Strawn. He took the position, however, that no conclusive evidence of Mr. Pomerene's ineligibility had been produced.

Throughout the day's hearings Frank A. Vanderlip, the New York banker, waited in vain in the hearing room to be called to the witness stand for questioning regarding his recent references to the sale of President Harding's Marion Star. He and other witnesses on the same subject will be heard tomorrow.

The testimony given during the long session related largely to the methods by which former Interior Secretary Fall put into operation his leasing policy, and provided the investigators with several new sensations.

John C. Shaffer, publisher of the Chicago Post and several other newspapers, testified that Fall told him in the same month he entered the cabinet that he would lease Teapot Dome to Harry F. Sinclair.

He himself, Mr. Shaffer said, got a one-eighth share in the $1,000,000 Sinclair paid the Pioneer Oil company in connection with the Teapot deal, and through an advance agreement with Fall was promised in addition 300 acres in Teapot Dome.

E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of the interior, testified that the Fall leases were negotiated privately and that not even the department's own solicitor was asked for an opinion as to their legality.

A letter written before the contracts were signed, by H. Foster Bain, director of the bureau of mines, saying he understood Attorney General Daugherty had given an "informal and verbal" opinion upholding the leasing policy, was put into the committee record.

As a result, the committee authorized a search o fthe files of the department of justice. Mr. Daugherty has said he never gave an opinion on the subject.

Oscar Sutro, general counsel for the Standard Oil company of California, testified that he had given the company a formal written opinion against the legality of the pipe line afterwards translated into contracts with the Doheny interests, to exchange naval fuel oil for tankage at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. It was disclosed that this opinion had been transmitted to the interior department.

While the three witnesses were being vigorously questioned today by the committee, Frank A. Vanderlip followed the proceedings with intense interest. Arriving at the committee room ten minutes before the session opened, he found a place not far from the seat occupied by Senator Walsh and chatted for a time with friends until the day's proceedings got under way.

There was visible disappointment among the spectators when the committee failed to call Mr. Vanderlip as the first witness. It had been the plan to examine him after Mr. Sutro left the stand, but the line of evidence given by the Standard Oil attorney opened up a field of inquiry which readily could not be pursued through other witness then present and the New York banker's examination was deferred until tomorrow.

Assistant Secretary Finney was questioned broadly with respect to all of the Fall leases and he told the committee that he thought the leasing policy was surrounded by "indiscreet circumstances." He agreed with committee members that Fall was without legal authority to lease a foot of the reserves themselves but contended that the contract with Doheny for the offset wells and construction of tankage at Pearl Harbor was entirely legal.

Moreover, Mr. Finney expressed the view that Fall was wrong in dismissing the proceedings which had been started by the government in an effort to recover two sections within Reserve No. 1 in California and which had been purchased by the Standard Oil company of California from the state.

Comparatively early in the examination of the assistant secretary, Senator Walsh said he regretted that he had to reach the conclusion that Mr. Finney was not telling the committee all that was in his mind in connection with the leases. Declaring that the senator was mistaken, the witness said that all he had was his good name and he regretted that Mr. Walsh had formed or expressed any such conclusion.

Later on, after committeemen had pressed him as to why he had not protested against the methods pursued in making the leases, several members said they could not feel that he had done his full duty, although all of them attested to the high standing for official integrity which the assistant secretary had enjoyed over the country throughout the twenty years of his service with the government.

Mr. Finney was visibly moved and as senator after senator first praised him for his fidelity to the public service and then criticised him in connection with the leases, he brushed tears from his eyes and in a faltering voice replied that he had gone as far as he thought he could in opposing the orders of his superiors.

There was another tense moment in the committee room as the letter of Director Bain was read into the court. It was addressed to the then Secretary Fall at his ranch at Three Rivers, New Mexico, less than a month before the Doheny Pearl Harbor contract was signed. It related largely to the question of the legality of such an agreement.

"None of us want Mr. Doheny to get into trouble," the letter said, "and I take it we will want to do anything we can to make it easy for him."

Bain informed his chief that the original proposal to have one of the smaller oil companies go into court and fight the contract had not been carried through because some had felt "it would embarrass the department and would give support to the troublemakers in congress."

SENATE OIL COMMITTEE SUPOENAS E. B. McLEAN

Washington, Feb. 14.—A subpoena for Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post was issued today by the senate oil committee.

Mr. McLean, who is at Palm Beach, was examined in Florida more than a month ago regarding his statement that he had loaned former Secretary Fall $100,000, but it is understood the committee now desires to question him about a wholly different matter.

The immediate presence here of the publisher will be required.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, said the committee desired to question Mr. McLean as to reports that a $1,000,000 "slush fund" had been sent to Washington by New York financiers.

Senator Walsh said the publisher also would be examined further about his testimony in Florida that he gave Fall checks for $100,000, but that they were returned to him uncashed.

BRITISH PREMIER NOT FOR INCREASED ARMAMENT

London, Feb. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Replying to questions raised in today's debate in the house of common, especially that of national defense brought forward by Stanley Baldwin, Premier MacDonald again emphasized his desire to avoid any policy calculated to increase armaments and said that it was on this basis that the government was exploring the whole question in a very much wider sense than had been done hitherto.

No nation, he insisted, wanted another great war and there was a strong moral and human feeling against any sort of military embarkation that ultimately would result in war conditions. In the minds of the masses of people in all countries there was a desire for agreements rendering armaments not exactly unnecessary but limited to proper proportions. The government had therefore considered this question not from a military viewpoint, but from the viewpoint of civil, foreign and international policy.

Town of Mexicali Sink of Iniquity

Judge Declares the Vice Conditions the Worst He Has Encountered in 25 Years.

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 14—Mexicali, the Mexican town facing Calexico, Calif., across the international boundary within the past few days has been made the clearing house for opium by the issuance of special licenses to two opium smoking dens and narcotic supply houses there, according to information sent to the state department at Washington by American consul Van Strub at Mexicali, said a report from Calexico tonight.

Almost simultaneously with the receipt of this information came a statement by Lucien Wheeler of the department of justice that vice conditions in Mexicali were the worst he ha dencountered in 25 years experience.

Reports from Calexico tonight said that prominent individuals and organizations in the imperial valley were preparing to wire to congressmen and senators at Washington protesting against the opening of the opium dives across the border from Calexico.

Wheeler's statement followed a trip to the Mexican boundary to investigate conditions there. He said he was preparing to submit a recommendation to the department of justice that the border at Calexico be closed nightly to prevent Americans patronins the gambling and other dens of Mexicali.

SHOW GIRL TESTIFIES IN DIAMOND MURDER CASE

New York, Feb. 14—Miss Joyce Norman, 20 year old show girl, testified today that Joseph Diamond, on trial for the murder of two bank messengers who were shot down and robber of $49,607 on a Brooklyn Elevated Railroad platform last November, told her in Philadelphia several days after the shooting that he had been "in a holdup".

"He told me," she said, "that he was a boxer and was supposed to be in training and did not want to be seen in the company of women. He also said laughingly that he was 'wanted'.

"Later in the evening he looked at a newspaper and got very nervous, terribly nervous. I asked him what was on his mind and he said something about having been in a holdup. I can't remember exactly what he said. He told me he used to steal automobiles with his brother but they were going to quit and go into the lumber business."

Miss Norman, who was brought by the authorities from New Orleans, where she was playing in a musical comedy, said she met Diamond three days after the Brooklyn shooting, when she was playing in a Philadelphia theatre.

Joseph, whose brother Morris awaits sentence as a convicted murderer of the two bank messengers, Miss Norman asserted, spent money lavishly upon her entertainment.

Jacob Selikowitz, who testified at the trial of Morris Diamond that he could identify the brother Joseph as the actual slayer, declared today he could not now be positive. Later he admitted that Diamonds' aged mother recently had called at his home and asked, with tears in her eyes, "Aren't you mistaken when you say Joe shot him?"

Selikowitz testified he promised Mrs. Diamond he would "tell only the truth." Prosecuting attorney dismissed him without cross-examination. Henry L. Channing, another witness who claimed to have stepped off a train just in time to see the shootings, said the bank messengers' slayer was a smaller man than Joseph Diamond.

NEW HAVEN POLICE HAVE CAPTURED "DINNER BURGLAR"

New Haven, Feb. 14—Perhaps the police have the much wanted "dinner-burglar," in a man caught on the street today. They think so, and as evidence that he is some one who is wanted the police say the man's clothing was filled with jewelry, including diamond rings, stickpins, trinkets and a watch and chain. He gave the name of Theodore Lester, of 615 East 135th street, New York city, and a handbag he had is thought to have belonged to Tyler Tolleson, of Newport, R. I. In the bag was a suit of clothes taken from a house here.

Miss Alice Bugbee living in York street, returned home from a shopping trip and found Lester in her room. He handed her a jewel case and told her to say nothing. Miss Bugbee followed the man to the street and called for help, and citizens took up the chase after Lester as he ran. Police and firemen joined in and he was caught.

The mysterious "dinner burglar" who has operated here made something like twenty-four calls in the early evening at houses in the residential district, entering through a window and making his selections of jewelry in bedrooms while the family members were at their meal.

No Duplication in Government Bonds

Secretary Mellon So Announces in Letter to President Coolidge.

Washington, Feb. 14—Charges by Charles B. Brewer, department of justice attorney, of bond duplication in the bureau of engraving were answered "once and for all" today by Secretary Mellon who, in a letter to the president, asserted the accusations were unfounded and the integrity of the public debt undisturbed. The letter to the chief executive was "a clear statement of facts" the secretary said, that any public uneasiness may be disabated.

In making public the letter to Mr. Coolidge, the treasury secretary also announced that Major Wallace W. Kirby, of the army engineer corps, would take charge as acting director of the bureau immediately, relieving Louis A. Hill, the director named when President Harding ousted James L. Wilmeth and twenty-seven other officials of the plant in 1922. Hill's resignation was tendered some weeks ago, upon announcement by the treasury of a decision to restore the ousted employes to their places, but acceptance was withheld until his successor could be selected.

In making known the selection of the new acting director, Mr. Mellon made public a statement by the president which explained that Major Kirby would retain his commission in the army and hat whe nthe bureau is put once more in good working order a permanent director will be appointed."

The president's statement was as follows:

Mr. Mellon's letter to the president dealing with conditions in the bureau related to details of the investigation conducted by the treasury in running down each charge presented by Mr. Brewer. Most of these, the secretary said, concerned affairs of the bureau under previous administrations, and related to the great war time issues of federal securities. But the treasury agents went back to check over these also, Mr. Mellon said, and added that the treasury's record of guarding against frund in the handling of the securities "invites the fullest inspection".

He recalled that Secretary Houston expressed a similar view of charges made by J. W. McCarter, of South Dakota, in 1920, after an inquiry into bureau affairs. The charges then, as now, in Mr. Mellon's opinion, were based largely on "misinformaiton and misunderstanding," and the secretary declared emphatically there was no evidence at any time to substantiate the charges of fraudulent issue of federal bonds.

Mr. Mellon said the Brewer charge, in fact, related principally to the temporary issues of securities, nearly all of which were exchanged into permanent bonds as rapidly as conditions "ited. That exchange, in the secretary's opinion, provided a good check upon the integrity of the issue of the temporary bonds and "it furnishes a conclusive answer to the charge of duplication." There are now only about thirty seven million dollars in temporary bonds still outstanding out of a total of more than fifteen billions issued, the secretary asserted.

"In order words," the letter said, "the Liberty bonds now in the hands of the public are practically all permanent bonds, which are not in any way affected by the charges, so that there is no occasion for any public uneasiness in this regard."

Beyond all this, Mr. Mellon asserted, there have been periodical audits of the accounts of paper stocks held by the bureau and on which the securites are printed. These audits, he explained, have covered the entire period since the beginning of the war and no discrepancies were found, he asserted, "beyond the petty discrepancies that would naturally be expected in transactions involving several hundred million pieces of paper."

Mr. Mellon said the treasury's investigation was not the only one conducted into the charges made by Brewer. The department of justice detailed another committee to study the charges made by Brewer, he said, and he found no apparent irregularities.

TO CONSIDER OBJECTION TO IMMIGRATION BILL

Washington, Feb. 14.—Objections of Secretary Hughes to the Johnson immigration bill, particularly with regard to provisions which practically would exclude Japanese from the United States, will be considered tomorrow at a meeting of the house immigration committee.

Chairman Johnson had intended to call the committee together today but press of other business prevented the meeting. He declined today to comment on the protest of Mr. Hughes beyond reiterating the prediction that the committee would not be disposed to back down on its stand against Japanese immigration. He did, however, issue a formal statement in which he charged that "professional leaders of foreign blocks, aided by paid leaders of other groups, which benefit from the continued arrival of aliens are now boldly proclaiming that they have beaten the proposal for restrictive immigration legislation this year."

"They are gloating too soon," said Mr. Johnson.

FIGHT OVER TAX REVISION HAS OPENED IN THE HOUSE

Under an Agreement General Debate Will End at 4 p. m. Monday — Insurgent Republican Group Threatens to Join the Solid Democratic Opposition to the Income Rates Section—Representative Garner Has Proposed a Reduction of Taxes on Automobiles and Accessories With an Additional Tax on Cigarettes to Make Up For the Loss—Maximum Surtax Rate Will Excite the Greatest Contest.

Washington, Feb. 14.—The fight over the tax bill, centering on the revision of income taxes today reached the floor of the house.

General debate was begun on the measure, which substantially carries out the recommendations of Secretary Mellon, under an agreement for its termination at four p. m. Monday. Thereafter amendments will be in order, with the income tax section expected to be disposed of first.

Members of the ways and means committee, which framed the measure, occupied the floor today. After Chairman Green of Iowa, had explained the general provisions of the bill; Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking democrat on the committee, and Mills, republican, New York, whom Mr. Garner singled out as the "spokesman of the administration," opened the debate in partisan speeches provoking many personal exchanges.

Mr. Mills, who is a stauch advocate of the Mellon tax rates, said he expected that "about 20 or 30 men elected as republicans," would join the democrats "when one critical section of the bill" were reached, and granted that the "minority will then be the majority." He declared, however, that according to treasury estimates the democratic tax reduction plan would result in a loss in revenue of $620,000,000 annually against an estimated surplus annually under the present system of $320,000,000. He warned the democrats that they would be charged with responsibility, if their plan was accepted, for not raising sufficient revenue to poerate the government.

Representative Garner charged the public had never been given an opportunity to study the democratic tax reduction plan proposing lower normal income rates and higher surtaxes than the Mellon scheme because of "extensive propaganda for the Mellon plan," he also criticized the address of President Coolidge at New York Tuesday as "unprecedented and humiliating to members of congress" in its appeal for the public "to let congress know its wishes on tax reduction."

The debate attracted a large attendance on the floor and the galleries were filled as the bill, providing for a complete revision of the income taxes, was taken up after two months' consideration in committee. Applause was ferquent on the floor as speakers drove home their points.

The solid democratic opposition to the income rates section of the bill, brought about by a party caucus vote, was joined today by some of the members of the republican insurgent group. Leaders of which announced after a meeting that they would support the proposal of Representative Frear, republican, Wisconsin, and if this bill fails, vote for the democratic plan.

M. R. Frear will submit an amendment to cut the normal income taxes 50 per cent. and leave the surtax maximum at 50 per cent. Democrats want the maximum surtax cut to 44 per cent., whereas the Mellon plan provides for a maximum rate of 25 per cent.

Representative Longworth, republican, floor leader, predicted the measure would be passed within two weeks if the proposed course of procedure was followed. The majority leader also stated that a poll of the republican delegations had shown that 208 members would approve of a surtax rate of 25 per cent., or ten less than a majority if the 435 members of the house voted.

Other speakers today, included Representatives Oldfield, of Arkansas and Dickinson, of Missouri, democrats, and Young of North Dakota, and Kearns, of Ohio, republicans. Their arguments centered in the fight on the income tax provisions.

Representative Garner discussed the excise and estate taxes, declaring for repeal of more of the former than approved by the committee. He opposed a reduction, at least, of the taxes on automobiles and accessories, and proposed an additional tax on cigarettes to make up for the loss in revenue which would result. He argued for higher estate taxes and favored a gift tax as a "necessary complement" to the inheritance or estate tax.

Chairman Green refused to take up the controversial income rates section for questioning by members from the floor, declaring that as chairman of the committee he was interested today in presenting the complete plan, calling attention particularly to the provision in the bill providing for a 25 per cent. reduction in 1925 taxes payable this year.

Mr. Garner argued that any tax revision bill approved should be made retroactive to include the 1923 taxes.

Representative Oldfield, repeating arguments that the Mellon plan with a 25 per cent. maximum surtax rate would raise more revenue than the Garner scheme proposing a maximum rate of 44 per cent. He charged the Mellon plan was a scheme to "break down the income tax law" so that a sales tax might be substituted. He also favored restoration of excess profits tax with lower rates than carried formerly.

BOB-HAIRED GIRL BANDITS AT WORK IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 14.—Emulating Brooklyn's notorious bob-haired girl bandit, two armed women with clipped tresses today robbed the proprietor of the Paris Fur Shop of $375 and walked off with an expensive fur coat apiece.

"Now you sit right down in that chair like a nice man and remain quiet for at least ten minutes, for we want to make a clean getaway," the bandits were reported by Max Cooper, their victim, to have instructed him as they strolled away.

Cooper sat—quietly—and when he finally mustered up courage to call the police, the pair was out of sight.

Cooper, who police said had taken out bandit insurance" recently, discredited a police theory that the robbers were men in disguise. He claimed to have recognized the younger of the women as one who entered his shop last night and, while having a button sewed on her coat, expressed admiration for a $375 seal wrap that was draped over a dummy.

"I like that," she said. "What time do you open tomorrow morning?" Nine o'clock, she was told.

Shortly after that hour today, according to Cooper, the bob-haired young woman showed up and asked to see the seal wrap again. As he turned to lift it from the dummy he felt a pistol in his ribs.

"Never mind," the young woman said, "I'll help myself."

The victim described the bandits as "young, neatly dressed and attractive. One wore a beauty patch on her lower left cheek, he said.

BRANDS MEXICALI AS A "SINK OF INIQUITY"

Los Angeles, Feb. 14—Mexicali, the Mexican town facing Calexico, Cal., across the American-Mexican border, 230 miles south of here, is a "sink of iniquity," the evil influence of which permeates the entire imperial valley, according to statement made here today by Lucien Wheeler, of the United States department of justice bureau of investigation, who has just returned from a trip of investigation at the border.

Wheeler said he was preparing a report for the department at Washington in which he would recommend that the border be closed between Calexico and Mexicali every night at 7 or 8 o'clock to prevent Americans pouring into this "pot of vice".

PREMIER POINCARE WINS SECOND STAGE OF CONTEST

Paris, Feb. 14—(By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare successfully passed through the second stage of his contest in the parliament for new taxes today when the chamber of deputies rejected by a minority of 49 a socialist motion that would have killed the proposition.

The premier followed this up by obtaining the defeat of Deputy Forgeots amendment providing for a loan with lottery features. The government made the vote on this amendment a question of confidence and the proposition was beaten by 328 to 317. The socialist motion which was to separate from the taxation bill its third article, which provided for a 20 per cent. increase in taxes, was beaten by 301 of 213.

There were many abstentions in the voting on the taxation propositions, bu tthe vote was regarded in parliamentary circles as revealing an ample margin for the government, and assuring its final success, since considerably more than half the total membership of the chamber voted with the cabinet.

There are many amendments yet to be considered, but it is expected they will virtually all be rejected.

NOMINATION OF DUNCAN DEBATED IN THE SENATE

Washington, Feb. 14.—The senate debated in executive session for four and one-half hours today the nomination of Lieutenant Colonel Duncan K. Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, who headed the opposition evidenced by many New England senators to the promotion of Colonel major, occupied nearly three hours in a speech devoted largely to a summary of the record of his 26th division's service overseas and to evidence bearing upon Colonel Major's case taken by the military affairs committee.

A special session of Windham County Superior court was held in this city Thursday for three assignments made some time ago. They were the cases of Clinton C. Reed vs. Domenick Menditto; Queenie Watson vs. John Brecka and Laura B. Corcoran vs. Thomas J. Corcoran, Jr.

At 11 o'clock the session was opened, with Judge George E. Hinman on the bench. The case of Reed versus Menditto first called, is a suit for $190 damages arising from an automobile collision near the corner of Pleasant and Park streets, Saturday, December 16, 1922. Reed's vehicle, an Overland sedan was damaged to a considerable extent. Menditto assumed the blame for the collision at the time and agreed to settle for the damage to the Reed machine. Repairs on the latter car were made at the Thread City Garage. Attorney Frank H. Foss represented the plaintiff and Attorney Samuel B. Harvey appeared for the defendant.

The bill, amounting to $90.96 which included new parts and labor, was not a just one in respect to the hours of labor, according to Menditto's viewpoint. He paid $40 of the entire bill an dthen said that he wanted his name put down with the amount and that he would return the following month. Lewellyn W. Reed, the repairman testified to the work on the machine.

Clinton C. Reed, the plaintiff, testified how the accident occurred. Menditto's machine crashed into the side of the Overland as it was being turned into Pleasant street after coming up Jillson hill. Dominick Menditto said that Reed came to him with a bill for $90.96 which was not itemized and he thought that he was being overcharged.

Louis Zechiel, an automobile repair man was questioned as to the time necessary in doing certain work on an automobile. His estimates were from one-third to one-quarter the length of time that was charged in the bill. Albert D. Michau, another repair expert gave figures which corresponded with those given by Zechiel. William Tannee, who was riding with Menditto at the time at the accident, gave his version as to how the accident happened. Court adjourned for lunch at o'clock after Menditto and Mr. Jackson had both been recalled to the stand for questioning. Brief arguments were made after 12.40 o'clock by the attorneys.

The session was resumed at 2 o'clock, when Attorney Foss filed an amendment to the complaint with Judge Hinman. Judge Hinman reserved decision.

The case of Queenie Watson of this city versus John Brecka, of Ashford, was next taken up. This misunderstanding is also the aftermath of an automobile collision on Jackson St., opposite the Park Spring, February 20, 1923. The plaintiff's car was driven by her husband, Stokes Watson, who conducts a public service business. The machine is registered in her name. Mrs. Watson claimed damages of $300. Former Chief of Police Daniel J. Killourey testified that he received information of an accident and had investigated. He saw the machines and was told how the collision happened, but the information was practically worthless, as he had not seen the accident and the story was given him by both men. Watson said that Brecka backed his one and one-half ton Ford truck from the gasoline pump owned by Joseph Slovick, out into the road. Watson said that he had sounded his horn, but could not avoid striking the truck. One side of his car was badly torn up, but he stopped his machine within six feet of the point of accident. The testimony was being heard when court adjourned until this (Friday) morning.

Ralph Leese, a member of the American Legion Post No. 66, of Westport, Conn., will be in this city for a few days, working for the benefit of disabled world war veterans. Mr. Leese will go to Norwich within a few days.

All roads these days lead to the big ice houses at Dorrville, where Shea Bros. are bending every energy to complete the housing of their 5,000 ton ice harvest by quitting time Saturday night.

Thursday in mid-afternoon, everything was working fine and it was an inspiring sight to see the steady stream of cakes going in, at the rate of one every two seconds.

There seems to be, judging from the many who go to see, a peculiar attraction in the animated scene presented on the ice fields. This year Shea Bros have invested $700 in a tractor ice saw operated by gasoline power, that more easily and better does the work of many horses, with the old plow system.

Thursday the saw was cutting down five and a half inches, with the ice 16 inches thick. A gauge rigging in advance of the saw will permit a cut 14 inches deep, with a single passing of the machine.

Wednesday, the uniform 3x3 feet cakes were weighing 220 pounds Thursday the average was a few pounds heavier on this basis. Calling the delivery to the packers in the houses 27 cakes per minute, the harvest was close to 900 tons.

At a prize sheet held at the local rifle range Wednesday night, the following targets were made. Three prizes were awarded, one to each highest man in the 90, 80 and 70 classes. J. Kaufman, 97; E. Wyatt 97; H. Burke 96; C. Sheldon 95; E. Hiscox 94; J. Wolfe 93; J. Herbert 93; O. Gilbert 92; D. Ballou 91; Wm. Marshall 90; G. Guest 90; J. Medick 90; E. Gaudette 89; E. Gutknecht 88; J. Davis 87; H. Ballou 85; A. Cloutier 85; G. Davis 85; C. Garand 82; G. Gutknecht 81.

H. Ruzzenas with 75 and A. Bennie, with 74, received a portable lamp. J. Kaufman, with 87 and B. Gaudette with 89, both recieved carving sets.

Sarah A. Lee, has a large box of lilies-of-the-valley in bloom at her home. The bulbs were taken from an out of doors garden last fall, then forced in a warm southern window.

Thomas E. Lee, Charles H. Ray are entitled to the distinction of voting for Abraham Lincoln, in 1864, when he was elected the second term.

The older Jewett City people were much interested to read the obituary of John A. Rockwell in Tuesday's Bulletin. In 1876 and for some few years after, he and his wife lived in Lisbon on the place now owned by John Whalley. Their years of residing in this neighborhood were especially marked by the Christian activity of Mrs. Rockwell.

It was she who made a sweeping canvass among the younger population here at that time and inaugurated the Cold Water Army. Mrs. Rockwell enthusiastic in any good work. She secured the rent of the old Liberty hall and there devoted much time in endeavoring to instill right principles into the minds of her often unruly horde.

Lewis A. Thornton, now in his 88th year, like Clark C. Palmer cast his first vote in 1856 for John C. Freeman when he ran against James Buchanan. And has voted the straight republican ticket ever since including two votes for Lincoln in 1860 and 1864. Returning from the war, Mr. Thornton and his regiment while in Washington, D. C., were callers at the White House and each shook hands with President Lincoln.

Mr. Palmer and Mr. Thornton have helped elect Abraham Lincoln, U. S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield, Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, W. H. Taft and Warren G. Harding. They agreed Thursday to go together and vote for Coolidge if he is nominated. The man on the corner was overheard to say, Can you beat it?

Mrs. Willard Barber, 74, died at her home on Tuesday after a brief illness with pleurisy. She was born in Griswold January 20, 1850, the daughter of Samuel and Mary Ann Clark Green. She has lived in Jewett City several years. She was an attendant at the Baptist church, a member of the Ladies' Aid society and Whatsoever Circle of The King's Daughters. She is survived by her husband and by three nephews, George Green of Pittsfield, Mass., Irving Green of Centerville, and Elmer Green of Providence, R. I.

Exclamations of admiration were heard on every hand when the beautifully decorated tables were seen by the large crowd who attended. January table was in charge of Miss Ida Foster and Mrs. W. H. A large basket of pink roses was the centerpiece and other baskets of pink and white roses were on the table. The favors were pink and white roses.

Agnes Franklin and Georgina Campbell had the July table. The American flag was suspended between the posts which were wound with bunting. The centerpiece was of flags, as were the favors.

Mrs. John Harris and Ruth Bliven were in charge of the August table. Two shades fo yellow crepe paper were festooned as a background with a butterfly and sweet pea centerpiece. Butterflies were placed about the table and fans were the favors.

Mabel, Marian and Esther Frink had the September table. The centerpiece was of chrysanthemums and the favors were apples and baskets of peanuts. Yellow and gree streamers and autumn leaves were used in these decorations.

Martha Morgan and Emma Dearnley had the October table. An angry black cat on a fence was the centerpiece, while witches, cats and pumpkin moonshines hung over the table with black and orange streamers.

Miss Susie Morgan and Mrs. C. D. Babcock were in charge of the November table. The centerpiece was of wheat and corn, while citron, pumpkins, potatoes, carrots and beets added to the Thanksgiving effect. A big gobbler looked on and gobbler favors were at each plate. Autumn leaves decorated the table also.

Miss Alice Brown and Verna Tarbox, at the December table had Santa Claus and his reindeer as decorations and a Christmas tree as the centerpiece. Christmas candles, baskets of red berries and pine branches, red bags of popcorn and candy as favors, with red crepe paper made an attractive table.

January was furnished by Francis Campbell who gave a vivid account of the concert given by Harry Lauder in New London last week. February was a piano solo, Scotch in F minor, played by Margaret Jordan. March was a Scotch song, Hame o Mine, sung by William Thompson, who is just over from Glasgow, Scotland. His encore was Roamin' in the Gloamin'.

October was a recitation Little Jim, by S. R. Truesdell. November was a reading, The Breaking Waves Dashed High, by Miss Susie Morgan. December was a solo, A Sleepy Time Song, by Miss Irene Warner. Her encore was I Passed by Your Window.

The accompanists were Mrs. G H. Prior, Miss Alice A. Brown and Ellen Prior. Mrs. Francis Campbell, Mrs. N. J. Babcock, Mrs. Martin Davis, Mrs. Samuel Cathcart and Miss Ruby Thornton were in charge of the supper of roast pork, roast beef, mashed turnip, mashed potato, brown gravy, relishes, rolls, cake and coffee.

Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Rainville are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Cephas Brouillet of St. Jean Baptiste, Canada. Mr. Brouillet is a nephew of Dr. Rainville. Mrs. Brouillet is a niece of Mrs. Blanchard, whom they visited Thursday.

Five sacks of clothing were sent by the local chapter of the American Red Cross in answer to the appeal for Greek sufferers. They were valued at $125.

Invitations to the Williamson-Shaw wedding in Providence Tuesday evening were received in town. David Ballou, a student at Brown university attended the wedding. The Shaw family lived in Jewett City for several years when Mr. Shaw was superintendent at Aspinook bleachery.

GIVES SANITARY PRECAUTIONS FOR THE ICE HARVEST

While the ice harvesting is in full swing on the lakes, reservoirs and ponds of the state, the state board of health gives out some caution along sanitary lines.

People seldom think of the conditions under which ice is harvested unless they happen to be served with a piece of ice in which foreign matter is imbedded. It may be a comforting belief that the process of freezing has eliminated all harmful growths and while the evidence seems to support this, scientists are not yet firmly convinced. The freedom of pieces of ice from specks and foreign bodies is no assurance that there does not lurk there invisible bacterial growth menacing to public health, particularly in the white melted snow ice on the surface of the cakes.

The large ice companies, due to the activities of health officers, know or should know, the precautions necessary to observe in harvesting ice. With a large force of men and horses so often employed at night, this demands constant vigilance to see that laws of common decency are not violated. In general, they observe the rules of sanitation, difficult as these may be.

In case of the small ice ponds where the owner cuts for his own and perhaps his neighbor's use, knowledge of sanitary methods of harvesting and housing is not so general. This ice is used largely for cooling and cold storage purposes, and is a very important factor in dairy farming, frequently the ice house is in a tumble down and dirty condition. The pond from which the ice is cut is filled with refuse and decaying vegetable matter. The ice when housed contains lumps of manure, frozen sputum and other filth, due to insanitary personal habits of the workmen, and lack of any supervision during the cutting. Ice produced under such insanitary conditions should not be used for cooling milk as it may be a possible source of contamination. Milk for human consumption, so iced, can not be classed as high grade.

Recently the state department of health had occasion to draw up regulations governing the harvesting of ice in a particular case where it was important to observe all sanitary precautions because the water was used for drinking purposes.

These were the regulations—Properly disinfected pail privies to be provided and contents emptied, daily off the darinage area.

Pail for expectorating.

Motor driven plow instead of horse.

Rubber boots worn by men to be cleaned before going on the ice.

Signs furnished by health officers to be posted in conspicuous places, prohibiting insanitary practices.

No cutting of ice within 100 feet of intake pipe of a reservoir and this area to be fenced off in such a manner as will meet the approval of the health officer.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Squalor, poverty and lack of about every essential to comfortable and decent living was revealed Thursday, when Sheriff Frank C. Tillinghast, of Central Village, visited the home of Michael O'Connell, resident near North Sterling and only a short distance south of the Killingly line, to investigate a charge that a horse on the place was near death from starvation.

Ten children, seven of them under 10 years of age, were found in the home, which was squalid and illkept to the last degree. The children were in a pitiful state, a number of them without shoes or stockings and all with only a meagre amount of clothing of the shabbiest sort. These children, who have been going barefooted these bitter winter days had the kitchen floor for their couch at night.

The oldest is a girl about 16. She, too, has been going about the house without shoes or stockings. Incidentally, she is married, but her husband is not living with her. In relation to her status, officials who looked into the case Thursday were inquiring as to why a young man has been making his headquarters with the O'Connell family, who live on what is known as the George Arnold place.

The family came there a few weeks ago from Rhode Island, probably from the vicinity of Chapachet. Attention was first generally called to them through the father being brought before Justice C. B. Montgomery of Oneco to face a charge brought by a representative of a humane society, it being alleged that O'Connell abused the horse he owned by not feeding it. The fine imposed was $1 and costs, but O'Connell, having no money, was unable to pay. He was given time and has since paid a little, but not the whole amount due.

Further investigation of the case on Thursday led to a decision to shoot the horse, which was represented as being near death from starvation. In the neighborhood where the O'Connells lived, it was stated Thursday afternoon, that the poor animal has been turned out in the fields to graze off dead grass for some time past.

Thursday's investigation brought the O'Connell family's affairs to a climax. Judge A. O. Mowrey of the town of Sterling, ordered all the children over four years of age committed to the Windham county home for children at Putnam. The three younger children's cases will get consideration later. In addition O'Connell and his wife have been ordered to return to Rhode Island and have been given until a week from next Saturday to get out of this state.

O'Connell is a man in his fifties, while his wife is much younger.

In the neighborhood where the family has lived satisfaction was expressed Thursday that officials have taken the affairs of the family in hand. Official action will mean that the children who must have suffered throughout the winter will hereafter be given proper care.

Thursday morning, the funeral of Stanley Dutka was held from his home in Goodyear with a high mass of requiem at St. Joseph's church, in Dayville, at 8 o'clock, Rev. Ignatius Kost being the celebrant. The body was taken to Voluntown for burial. The bearers were Stanley Dutka, a cousin, Andrew Dutka, Martin Dutka, Joseph Dutkar, Charles Ossga and John Zawidaski. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Miss Josephine M. Wetherell, in her 82nd year, died Wednesday afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. S. P. Humphrey, Furnace street. She had been seriously ill for the past two weeks and in failing health for some time past.

Miss Wetherell was of a family long identified with this section of the county and herself almost a lifelong resident of Danielson. She was born in Pomfret, a daughter of Marshall and Roxie Carder Wetherell, one of a large family of children. It was recalled Thursday that Miss Wetherell was for 55 years a member of the Methodist Episcopal church in Danielson, and her devotion to her church was a measure of her splendid attitude through life. Miss Wetherell leaves three sisters, Mrs. Humphrey, Mrs. Ella Woodworth and Mrs. Amelia Young, all of Danielson.

Of interest hereabout is the wedding of Miss Henriette Hugneard, of 253 Ashley boulevard, New Bedford, and Joseph Noe Caron, of Moosup, at New Bedford, Monday of this week. The church service was attended by many relatives and friends of the bride and groom, who were attended by Miss Delia Caron, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid, and Henry Dubois of Moosup as best man.

The bride wore a gown of dark blue canton crepe, while the bridesmaid's gown was of brown canton crepe.

Mr. and Mrs. Caron have been spending this week on a honeymoon trip that has taken them to Boston and New York. They will reside in Moosup for the remainder of the winter and go to New Bedford to make their home in the spring.

The entertainment committee will arrange for a banquet of the club of the club to be held during March.

This (Friday) evening brings the Pawtucket High school team to Danielson to meet the basketball team of Killingly High school. This should be one of the high light games of the season. As an extra attraction at the meeting of these teams, Carroll Allen's Jolly Five and the Service battery team will also play each other.

Mr. Soule will give an illustrated talk on the subject Brooklyn is Bounded. Mr. Soule has made a careful study of the history of New England churches. A large attendance is anticipated at the services at which he is to speak on Sunday.

Further good progress was made during Thursday with the work of filling the ice houses at Quinebaug lake. A good part of the crop that the company will require for this year's business is already housed.

A number of cases are scheduled to be disposed of in the town court today (Friday). In one case a charge of reckless driving will be made. Other cases have to do with alleged violations of the dog laws.

PUTNAM

There may be a valuable lesson for Putnam young men, who have practiced the same stunt from time to time in and about this city, in the experience of a group of young men in Manchester, this state, who have been called upon by the superior court to pay the victim of their practical joke damages of $1500 for injuries he received when they had right properly frightened him, his fear causing him to make a blind leap in the darkness, to fall into a ditch and break his leg.

There is hardly a variation in the Manchester system as revealed in court and the one that has been used here from time to time, to the glee of those who have staged the frameups and the terrible discomfiture of the victims.

The young man selected for the sacrifice is usually lured by promise of a real live wire party. The friend that makes the proposal is going along with him, of course. He is told that the girl he is of have is a real peach and up-to-date. "Get her a boxful of candy" and, where the subject seems to warrant, "she would like a little hooch," his friend tells him. This makes it sound snappy and the subject usually starts out buying with visions of a grand time awaiting him. And there surely is, but not the kind of a one he is figuring on.

With the subject all primed, the boys who are in on the deal notify their friends and they hurry out and take up their hiding places about some unoccupied house. In due time the victim and his friend arrive. There are no lights in the house, of course, but the friend and the victim march boldly up to the door, ring the bell and call out "Hello, girls!"

Then the show starts. A man suddenly appears out of the darkness and shouts: "So you're the blankety-blank dogs that have been chasing around with my wife, are you?" There is a crash as a shot gun is fired and the young man with the candy is on his way, doing every hundred yards in world record time. Some of the victims have been known to run two miles and then drop exhausted. Some of them hereabouts have been hurt in their wild dash to get away. But none of them have ever said much about it, taking their medicine without squealing—and all the joshing that goes with it. There are variations and amplifications of the plan as here outlined, but the preparatory program is always much the same and an unoccupied house always figures in the deal, usually in some outlying section. The alleged husband who shouts about his wife and fires the gun is one of the gang, of course, but the victim doesn't know this until he has shot run himself to death.

The stunt is without doubt a dangerous one, as has been realized here, and has been fully demonstrated in the Manchester case—too dangerous some of those who have played at it now realize to be indulged in by them in the future.

The trade school athletic activities this season, besides basketball, include several forms of recreation such as skating, hiking, and setting-up exercises. The school team has played four games so far this season, losing two, winning one, and trying for one. Other games have been arranged for future dates.

In the past two or three weeks definite arrangements have been made to change the manner of instruction in the textile department. It will be the policy of this department in the future to concentrate on cloth production. The student will be required to carry the raw material through all the processes up to the weaving, beginning with the more simple plain weaving and gradually advancing to the more difficult designs and setups. Thus in making 500 yards of oxford shirting the student will be given right amount of raw cotton, he will put this through the picker, card, slubber, intermediate, roving frame, speeder and finally both the warp and filling. This material will then be spooled, warped and slashed, drawn into the loom and woven into cloth required. Thus the student will receive all the instruction involved in the making of this cloth.

Open night will be held this year the 15th of April. This is an annual event and the public will be invited to inspect the work done at the school. Students and faculty have come to look upon this occasion as an opportunity to enlist the interest and receive suggestions from the public generally in the manner and quality of instruction given at the school. Each department is planning on having an exhibition of work superio rto last year when a very large number of people visited the school.

The pupils of the 7th and the 8th grades taking pre-vocational work at this school have benefited materially this year from the instruction given in the five trades as well as in cooking and sewing for girls.

It is believed that something further may be done in the way of stimulating the cooperative course by making some adjustment in the number of subjects studied by these students.

PLAINFIELD

Andrew Tracy Wilbur, a Plainfield young man, is living in Lloyd, Montana. In one of his letters this winter, written to his father, Stephen Wilbur, he states that it was 48 degrees below and growing colder. He wrote that he had been riding eleven days in the "Bad Lands" for stray cattle, picking up twenty-one and came near freezing, his chaps and boots being frozen stiff when he rode in at night. He stated that cattle were dying like flies, some freezing to death, others perishing from the black leg. In the letter he says, "I tell you what, it is about as cold as I wish to see it and have to sit on a horse all day."

Healthy Women, Happy Homes

Good dispositions succumb. Irritability and snappy retort take the place of happiness and amiability. Sunshine is driven out of homes, in fact, they are often wrecked, and friends are estranged because women suffer with ailments peculiar to their sex. The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will overcome such ailments and restore health and happiness. Do not resort to strong stimulants or narcotics when this great strengthening, healing remedy made from roots and herbs is always within reach.

ALLEN'S LUNG HEALER

Read Mr. Folsom's Story of the Result.

Mr. H. J. Allen:

Dear Sir:—Your lung healer was recommended to me five years ago and I have been using it since then with splendid results. I had several attacks of pneumonia previously and my lungs had become very susceptible to colds and pneumonia. I found that when I used the Lung Healer in the first stages of a cold it would break it up quickly. As a result I have not had pneumonia for several years. Last winter I neglected a cold too long and before I realized it I had all the symptoms of the dreaded disease. Having read your circular recommending your anti-congestol to be used externally in preventing pneumonia (with the Lung Healer) I used both and received almost instant relief. The congestion and soreness began to disappear and in a few days were entirely gone and I was as well as ever. Your two remedies not only prevented, but cured pneumonia, and you can use this letter to prove it.

GOVERNMENT COUNSEL.

In the selection of counsel for the probing of the oil leases with a view to prosecution, civil and criminal, it is important that there should be no connection on the part of such lawyers with the oil interests. None of the names that the president has offered for such service has been associated with the oil concerns, and yet upon digging into the work of these attorneys and the offices they hold it has been found that a cabinet member of a former administration had served E. L. Doheny. It has been found that another is a director in a bank which is termed an oil bank.

In the first instance a substitute was named when the oil connection was discovered, and in the second case the name has been withdrawn. In neither of these instances does it appear that these men would not be able to render the highest impartial service to the president and the country in connection with this investigation. But the unwillingness to furnish any ground for suspicion prompts the selection of others. The action will be looked upon as wise in view of the circumstances, and as long as it is to be done the time to do it is now rather than later.

It is the purpose of President Coolidge to get the facts regardless of the revelations of who is guilty, and there is full confidence that he will succeed and that he will carry his purpose to accomplishment. In the matter of fitness and those in no way associated with oil none desires it more than he. If it is being found that some have served oil companies in a legitimate manner, or happen to be directors of banks where oil companies do business it doesn't necessarily bias them, but it permits of doubts being raised and it is well to avoid all such complications. There is no danger that the president will insist upon any man serving as counsel if an honest and careful scrutiny of his record shows him to be unfit for the particular business at hand.

M'ADOO'S TEST.

It is an interesting plan which William G. McAdoo has adopted for the purpose of determining whether he should withdraw as a candidate for the nomination as president by the democratic party. He intends to get the sentiment of the McAdoo leaders in all the states as to whether he should stick or withdraw.

He's been doing business with the oil men, having received something like $200,000 from the Doheny oil interests from first to last. He was in the midst of his candidacy while a paid attorney for Mr. Doheny, and it would seem that he would have continued such to and through election day but for the disclosures that have been made. Inasmuch as he has been shown to be profitably connected with oil he has considered it wise to end his services as attorney for the oil magnate. He has been driven out of that employment. He hopes thereby that he can still remain a candidate.

It doesn't appear that Mr. McAdoo has been involved in anything but legitimate work for the oil magnate. There were reasons why his services were desired, and he gathered prestige from his former cabinet job and his relationship. The oil man was getting the benefit of Mr. McAdoo's assistance while playing his extensive game, which had many angles.

The purpose of the conference by the McAdoo workers is to get a cold blooded view of the manner in which his connection with the oil game has reacted upon the various sections and whether it is considered that he has been irreparably injured, or injured at all in the eye of the public.

This would seem to be getting the judgment of friends, those who have a peculiar interest in his campaign. It may or may not be an acid test. Picking counsel for the government's action concerning the oil leases and picking candidates for nomination by a political party are decidedly far apart, but in view of the manner in which connection with oil interests are serving to disqualify government counsel, it is clearly evident that if Mr. McAdoo's candidacy should depend upon his selection as government counsel at this time he might as well recall his hat from the ring. He's been too deep in the oil for government counsel, but that may not serve as a disqualification for a presidential candidate.

REPENTING BLUNDERS.

Strenuous efforts are now being made to show that Germany did not intend to offend this country by the flag incident at the death of ex-President Wilson. There are attempts being made to have the responsibility fastened upon the German ambassador. By the ambassador it was stated that he was acting in accord with orders from Berlin. It is not improbable, however, that he will be recalled because of the affair and thus be made the scapegoat for the judgment of others.

The reason seems to be not so much that Berlin has repented for its conduct but that it has realized too late just what the effect of its attitude is likely to be. Germany is looking to this country for funds for the purpose of feeding its children in behalf of which organized efforts have been under way for a considerable time. Likewise there is the possibility of floating a German loan, or trying to, in the United States. It can be appreciated what the effect of the flag incident is certain to be upon such undertakings.

None understands this better than Major General Allen, who is in charge of the children's fund? His communication to Mrs. Wilson has resulted in a response that is intended to offset the resentment over the failure to display the embassy flag at half mast. In it she writes "I am sure Mr. Wilson would not have the devotion and loyalty of the American people whom he so loved, take on the guise of a resentment which might cause suffering, if not death, among innocent children."

It is perfectly clear that all such affairs are bound to react upon the innocent. That is the unfortunate part of them, but being in the position that Germany is it would have been supposed that there would have been sufficient diplomacy in the foreign office to meet just such a situation as arose and meet it in a way that would have helped Germany instead of injuring it. Germany blundered into its plight and it doesn't seem to be very anxious to get out of it. It is easier to guard against damaging blunders than it is to get rid of them.

A FAIR PROPOSITION.

When Attorney General Daugherty seeks a hearing before a senate committee before there is any attempt made to ask his removal, he probably doesn't please that body, but there is nevertheless good judgment displayed thereby.

If such a course is adopted the senate committee should be able to determine whether there is any ground for such action. It will have a chance to bring out the facts both for and against the secretary and thereby give him a chance to be heard in regard to the charges that are made against him. That is no more than fair. That is no more than should have been done in regard to Secretary Denby. The idea of asking for a resignation on unsupported and unproved assertions is the last thing that the United States senate ought to expect would be given consideration. Even though a cabinet member is within the jurisdiction of the executive the production of facts might be expected to have a bearing upon resignation or removal.

The attorney general has asked the senate to get away from the lynching bee idea. He has told them how the facts can be obtained, offered to participate in providing them and made a request that is certainly justified and which the senate should be eager to comply with, if, in reality, it is desirous of dealing with facts. The attorney general, of any other, is entitled to just such a hearing as he has asked for.

BREAKING WITH HONDURAS.

In Hohduras as well as in Mexico the United States has made known its opposition to the changing of governments by means of revolution. Its stand for constitutional government and the ballot instead of the bullet may some time be recognized as for the good of those particular countries as well as any others where like conditions exist.

When this country broke diplomatic relations with Honduras it followed the very course that it said it would. The term of President Guiterres expired with 1923. An attempt was made to hold an election with three candidates with the result that no successor was elected. Consequently Guiterrez has continued to hold on and plans to do so until his sucessor is elected. Instead of proceeding to bring that about the opposition has resorted to that familiar course of starting a revolution. Indications pointed in that direction some time ago when this government gave Honduras to understand that if anything of the kind developed diplomatic relations would be severed. That apparently didn't have the effect of preventing recourse to such a method, but inasmuch as it was done there was no other alternative for Uncle Sam. He has therefore withdrawn diplomatic representatives, and Honduras knows that Mexico had no easy time in giving assurance that it had a government that was fit for recognition.

Whether Honduras profits at all by the action remains to be seen. It cannot escape recognition of the fact that the manner in which it insists upon changing government was the direct cause of such a move. Whatever results from it must be regarded as self inflicted.

VAGABOND WATCH

The red-haired girl looked at the clock and sighed.

"Why so sad?" asked the young man who came every night when he could find an excuse to appear, and a few when he couldn't. "You know it's not yet nearly time to begin to hint I ought to be going home."

"No, but I can't look at a timepiece without realizing that my watch is gone again," explained the red-haired girl. "If it would only stay lost I'd get a new one, but I always feel as if I ought to advertise, and then it comes back and I have no excuse to squander my savings on another."

"You talk as if that watch had a habit of running off, like a fox terrier."

"That's it. A year ago I'd broken the ribbon and stuffed the thing in my pocket, and when I got home that watch was gone. Just evaporated. I'd not been around much downtown after the ribbon broke, just went up on the elevator and home. So I advertised and a lady called me up and said she and her little girl had been walking along the street and the watch had seemed to fall from the sky at their feet. I suppose I pulled out my handkerchief and the watch came with it.

"Well, I paid the reward and the little girl cried because the paper money wasn't as pretty as the shiny watch. And I got a new ribbon and the watch went ticking merrily on as if it had never fallen three stories and dented the sidewalk."

"And now you've lost it again?"

"Now? Good gracious, both now and then and also some more. Once last winter I went skating and I must have pulled the thing off with my mitten, for when I went to look at it, no watch was to be found. I acted true to form and advertised and a chubby-cheeked youngster brought it round saying he had found it next morning in a pool of shallow water near the skating pond. The sun shone on it and it glittered so beautifully, he explained, but he was willing to part with it for the reward.

"That time it needed a watchmaker to get it running again, but it was really none the worse for its bath. In fact, it seemed cured until last month when I took it off in the washroom on the train and it disappeared suddenly and completely. I wasn't sure enough to say any one of the three other women in the room had taken it, so I thought it was gone for good until the railroad company called me up and asked me to identify it as part of the loot they had found when they watched the silent, scared-looking little woman who had tried so hard to find it for me! She had been detained as she was leaving the station and they found all sorts of stolen goods on her, it seems.

"But this time I hope that watch is gone for good. I'm getting nervous about the thing. It's so uncanny the way it wanders off and comes back smiling."

"How did you lose it this time?" asked the young man, in a rather hesitating fashion.

"Last night mother and I went to the theater and I had it when we started for home but when we were home again, inside the house, mother asked me the time and that watch was gone again! I'd not worn it on my wrist because I'd wanted to wear the emerald band that father gave me for my birthday, but the watch was safely tucked away in my opera bag and I just couldn't have lost it from there! I advertised in tonight's paper but of course it was stolen this time. What are you grinning at?"

"Perhaps I'd better wait until I see what reward you offered before I confess," the young man said as he drew the vagabond from his pocket. "I stumbled against the mat at your front door as I came in tonight and my foot struck against this watch. I was wondering if it was yours and if you'd rather have it found or stay lost. Suppose we compromise on the reward. I'll get you that platinum watch you've been wanting, and you might accept it in lieu of the engagement ring you say you never would wear."

"But where do you come in on the reward, if you have to buy me a watch?" asked the girl.

"Oh, you get the watch and I get you," he replied airly, "and we will keep the old watch for you to wear if the new one also develops wanderlust tendencies."

"There seems to be a catch in it somewhere," the girl puzzled, "but, all things considered, I believe you may give me that new watch."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"LOOK TO THIS DAY"

Mr. Editor:

"Look to this day,
For it is life,
The very life of life,
In its brief space lie all the varieties
And realities of your existence,—
The bliss of growth, the glory of action,
The splendor of beauty;
For yesterday is but a dream, and tomorrow is only a vision,
But today, well lived, makes every yesterday a dream of happiness and every tomorrow a vision of hope.
Look well, therefore, to this day,
This is the salutation of the dawn."
—Sanscrit.

These words written long ago are so applicable to the present, we will be wise if we memorize them and weave them into the fibre of our daily living. Let us "look to this day" and read the messages of hope and inspiration that our daily papers bring to us from the four quarters of the globe. I can not but feel that today is the "salutation of the dawn" of a new era, in our Christian civilization. From far off Tibet comes to us a message that points to a progressive and intelligent public consciousness in the last place that we would look for it. Dr. W. E. Govern, the most recent visitor to Tibet, who has come to this country on a lecture tour, says that Tibet has the most drastic laws against cigarette smoking. 100 lashes [illegible] to anyone [illegible] smoking cigarettes. A drastic law it is true [illegible] it is doubtful if the small boy will risk the trial of it more than once. After all it is as dangerous as the habit of cigarette smoking which is ruining physically, mentally and morally so many of our boys. It is very evident that the officials of Tibet have an intelligent idea of the demoralizing effect of nicotine and mean to beat it into the minds of the public.

Christian American might learn a lesson from Tibet in paternal care of her young people. Another traveller comes from Constantinople and reports that there, too, the most drastic laws are in force against all alcoholic drinks and that they are being enforced so rigorously as to leave no doubt in the minds of the people as to the ultimate result.

There, too, we might learn a valuable lesson.

These are only straws, it is true, but it shows, plainly which way the wind of public opinion blows, and that every where there is a rising tide in favor of a higher and better way of living. That spirit of the new testament that teaches that the body is the temple of the living God is honey combing the world. All progress is slow and has its beginning in a small way. We may "look to the day", with a strong optimistic feeling.

Let us turn to Russia. The heart that is not thrilled by the suggestion of Lenine's widow must be blase indeed. She has informed the official companions of her husband that she does not wish any money to be spent on memorials except on hospitals, kindergartens, orphanages, institutions for the alleviation of suffering people, as she feels that Lenine would not desire any other kind.

This is indeed a step forward in the right direction and brings to the grief stricken Russia a "tomorrow" with "a vision of hope". Now we turn to Germany sunk in the despair born of hunger and behold the angel of mercy brooding over the wan children in the form of Baroness Katarina von Chelmik, a member of the German Reichstag who shouldering her trusty rifle and going to her estate shoots a huge buck deer, straps it on the trunk rack of her auto and brings it into the city to provide a venison barbecue for these children who had not had a real meal for months. There is hope for Germany for she has the mother heart in her government. We are familiar with the saying that it is the "straws that show which way the wind blows". These few straws culled from one daily paper of today breath a spirit of high thinking and generous sympathy which will be the leaven that will save the world of today from drifting back to the dark ages.

"To every man there openeth
A way, and ways, and a way
And the high soul climbs the high way,
And the low soul gropes the low,
And between, on the misty flats,
The rest drifts to and fro.
But to every man there openeth
A high way and a low,
And every man decideth
The way his soul shall go."

The way of men, decideth, the way of nations.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Anatole France, who is reported critically ill in despatches from Paris, is an eminent French novelist, who also has done notable work as a critic and historian. His real name is Jacques Anatole Thibault, and he was born in Paris 80 years ago. It was when he was 24 years old that his first work, a study of Alfred de Vigny, was published. It was followed in 1873 by a volume of verse, which attracted much favorable attention. But it was in prose that France was to shine more than in verse. A sceptic in religion and science, doubting all things, his opinions and doubts he put forth through the characters he created. He has a style that is simple and direct and the real character of the man is reflected in his works. Anatole France was admitted to the French Academy in 1896. Critics have pronounced him the most graceful writer of modern France.

OUR UNIVERSE AND THE ATOM

Recently physics has conceived the atom to be a tiny "solar system." The question arises: How big is an atom's universe, and how does it compare with our universe?

Making a model to give some little inkling of the size of our universe is not such an impossible task as might at first appear, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society, which classes the problem as a sort of "very special case of map-making."

"Archimedes boasted that if he had a fulcrum and a long enough lever he could move the earth," says the bulletin. "Similarly the map-maker or the model maker might say: 'Give me a scale small enough and I can model our universe.'

"There must be a clear understanding of terms, however. It is not the universe that can be built to scale. That, outside the Einstein school, is generally considered infinite in extent; and no matter how tiny the scale the infinite, of course, could never be brought within the limits of a model. But there is a definite thing that may be called our universe whose limits astronomers have estimated—the space marked out by the distance to the outermost star of the Milky Way.

"Imagine this star to be a piece of chalk tied to a string, the other end pinned to the earth. Swing it about in every direction with the string taut, and you will mark out a great sphere of space believed to be 350,000 light years across. A light year is the distance that light travels in a year, moving at the rate of about 186,000 miles a second. It is the yardstick of modern astronomy. A light year is in round numbers six trillion miles, and the distance across our universe is taken as 350,000 times six trillion miles.

"It must be understood that we are not assumed to be at the center of an actual globular universe. We have merely carved from space around us an imaginary, arbitrary globe in such a way that it includes practically all the stars that we can see, and have called it the 'universe.'

"The dimensions of this universe—'our star system,' is another name for it—when given in miles or light years mean little to most minds. Let us adopt the map-maker's plan and scale it down. Most maps have in one corner a legend such as, 'scale: 1 inch equals 500 miles.' Let us try for our universe model the scale, 'the period at the end of this sentence equals 1 solar system.'

"On the motion picture screen many of us have seen represented a large disk which is made to decrease rapidly until it becomes a mere dot. Imagine the great solar system shrinking in this way before our eyes until what was the path of Neptune, nearly three billion miles from the sun, is now the outer edge of the period.

"If the globular 'universe' that contains our star system shrank at the same time and in the same proportion, how big would it be when the solar system was the size of the little black punctuation dot? It would be represented by a globe nearly 12,000 miles across, a ball with a diameter half again as large as the earth! So our scale is far too great. If we are to have a workable model, the scale must be further reduced.

"At the lower end of the world of matter the atom is built like a tiny solar system. Its six sizes is known to science: and with its infinitesimal central 'sun' and its planetary electrons, it makes a most appropriate measure for the circling planets and stars. The helium atom may be selected because it is the simplest atom that swims free, goes about its business with no entangling alliances, like the solar system itself. The new scale, then, is to be, 'one helium atom equals 1 solar system.'

"Just how the helium atom mimics the solar system is worth noting. After many years of painstaking research, physicists are of the opinion that every atom consists of an infinitesimally small center, called a 'proton' which stands in the place of the sun; and one or more tiny bits called 'electrons' that revolve around the center more or less as the planets revolve around the sun. At the very bottom of the ladder is an atom consisting of a proton with one 'planetary' electron. This is hydrogen, the simplest of the atoms. Hydrogen is not taken as our universe model scale because its atoms 'insist on 'hooking themselves up' two by two, and also because only one planetary electron is involved. Helium, with two electrons flying around its proton, takes on a closer likeness to the solar system, and in addition each atom remains a thing apart as our planetary family does.

"The diameter of a helium atom is something like one-forty-millionth of an inch; and if the solar system were scaled down to that size, our universe would be represented by a globe 74 feet through.

"Even this does not show up the earth in all its unimportance. It must be remembered that the helium atom represents the whole solar system, the diameter of which is about 700,000 times as great as the diameter of the earth. In a 74-foot model of our universe the earth would be 'represented' by a 'dot'—if such a thing can be imagined—only one seven-hundred-thousandth as great as an atom. The earth 'dot' would be so small that in order to see it, we would have to use a microscope more than a million times stronger than the most powerful one yet built. The 'inhabitants' of such a tiny earth if they had reached heights of achievement comparable to ours, could reach out into space with their best telescopes [illegible] Everything more than 74 feet away would be unknown to them just as the vast reaches of space beyond the Milky Way are unknown to us.

Men's Bible Study at Y. M. C. A.

The session of Bible study at the men's class at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening proved intensely interesting. The topic was "The Christian's Influence" and the Scriptures used was Matthew 5: 1 to 16.

Some of the things brought out in the discussion were the following: The two significant things to which Jesus likened his disciples were salt and light. The particular property in salt that he had in mind was the preserving property; in other words, the Christian man should be a preserving power in the world. God has at times offered to spare cities if just a few righteous persons were found there. A Christian man becomes a preserver in his group when he tactfully frowns on the wrong and kindly but firmly stands for the right. A man can maintain his own spiritual life only as he prays, studies the Bible and continues in service to others. A Christian man becomes a light in the world when he lives a consistent life, and when he warns others of their moral danger; one hides his light under a bushel when he fails to show his colors. Jesus placed the emphasis on the individual rather than upon the group, and he taught that truth is effective only when it is incarnated in the individual. "God so loved that he gave," he was incarnated in His son. Jesus Christ. Folks want to see Jesus in our actions and words, and especially in our actions.

Jesus taught his disciples to live for God's glory and not for their own. The elements of character called for by Jesus' teaching are purity, courage and humility. Jesus programs for his disciples is found in Acts, 1st chapter and eighth verse.

Stories That Recall Others

Certainly a Quaint Practice

From the time he was a law student Bill has been known for his ready wit and genial disposition. These, with his legal qualifications, have won him and his partner a good business. But in the days when he first opened his office he sat waiting for his clients, as every beginning lawyer must do. One day a friend dropped into the office and by way of conversation inquired:

"Well, Bill, still practicing law?"

"No," he replied, solemnly, "My law shingle is still hanging out, but I am practicing economy."

Just Missed a Party

A young bachelor decided to give a dinner for a group of children who were infrequently entertained at such functions.

After the invitations were out he began thinking of the brothers and sisters of these youngsters who also would appreciate such a time and for a time deliberated about sending for them. A friend gave him a little warning; "There might be more brothers and sisters than you would have food for," he said.

So the bachelor didn't invite the brothers and sisters. Imagine his feelings the night of the party when he made a survey and found that had he invited them all there would have been 54 little guests, the total number of children of the six families.

MUST REPAY MONEY HE BORROWED TO MAKE WINE

Bridgeport, Feb. 14.—In a decision filed in common pleas court here today, Judge John R. Booth finds that money borrowed for the illegal purpose of wine making must be paid back to the leader. The question arose in an action to recover money loaned Andrew Gargano by Lucia Rizza, of this city for the purpose of purchasing grapes to manufacture wine.

In his decision Judge Booth says: As the illegality of the spending of the money was not pleaded as a special defense by the defendants, presumably for prudential and sufficient reasons, a verdict in favor of the plaintiff is returned."

A pile of steel shavings recently took fire at a large dynamo factory, presenting the unusual spectacle of a bonfire of steel. The shavings became heated from some rubbish burning nearby, and water proved useless in extinguishing the blazing steel. It was finally necessary to rake the pile apart in order to subdue the flames. In such a pile of steel oxidation takes place faster than the resulting heat can be carried away, and any heating from an outside source may actually lead to combustion.

TO BEGIN SCOUT CAMPAIGN FOR BUDGET OF $6,0000

Next Monday night at 6 o'clock the workers for the Boy Scout budget will meet at the Elks' headquarters on Main street and start the campaign for $6,000 to finance the Norwich Council, Boy Scouts of America, for the coming year. The organization has shown healthy and steady growth in the past three years, from five troops to sixteen and from 83 Scouts to 320.

During the time nearly every church has instituted a Scout trop and outside towns as have formed them. Norwich ranks well in the first district, which comprises New England, and the quality of the work done by the Scouts themselves speaks well for its educational value. This writer in addition to the council activities the individual troops have taken advantage of the weather and have kept the "out" in scouting, by hikes, building of log cabins and other activities.

In these times the country needs every moral and intellectual force it can command to meet and defeat the growing tendency to deteriorate in clean thinking and clean living. The Scout movement stands for all this and it stands also for building up physical stamina as well, without which the intellectual and moral cannot endure.

Said one of the workers Thursday night: To give supervision, plan activities, furnish fun, conduct the council camp for the summer and to meet the additional amount required to further the advantages of this work the amount of $6,000 is necessary. When the solicitors ask for your contribution your generous response will be for the betterment of the youth of Norwich and the improved morale of its future citizens.

TRUCK LANDS WITH FOUR WHEELS IN THE AIR ON NORTH MAIN STREET

Isaac Rollband of Hanover, driving to this city Thursday morning about 11 o'clock, with his wife in his small truck, had a fortunate escape from serious injury when his truck hooked into another one on North Main street and landed with all four wheels in the air in front of a telegraph pole near the Hourigan gas station.

Both Mr. Rollband and his wife were thrown out onto the concrete pavement, the former receiving a badly lacerated nose and the latter a bad bump on the head and a general shaking up. They were attended by Dr. Paul F. Dale who also brought them to police headquarters where they made report of the accident and placed the blame on the driver of the other truck. But his arrival and report put out another complexion on the matter.

When the statements of both sides had been sifted out the way the accident happened was determined to have been approximately as follows: Rollband was coming toward this city and the truck of the H. F. and A. J. Dawley was ahead of him on North Main street, driven by George Magowan. Rollband was passing the Dawley truck from the rear when a car coming in the opposite direction caused him to cut in sharply and he hooked into the mudguard of the Dawley truck. The lumber truck's mudguard was ripped and the Rollband truck was turned completely over and its top torn off. The upset car lay off to one side of the concrete highway out of the way of traffic and remained there most of the day.

SELLS TRACTS OF LAND LONG IN THE FAMILY

Two tracts of land at Norwich Town, which have been in the Young and Welte family for over 51 and 44 years respectively, have just been sold by Mrs. Emma Welte, the present owner, to Fred Durr of 22 Mediterranean lane, Norwich Town. The tracts of land adjoins each other on Mediterranean lane.

J. H. Townsend and Rebecca P. Townsend was conveyed on August 31, 1855 to William L. Brewer of Norwich, Conn., and John J. Thomas of Bergen County, New Jersey, as 10 acres of wood land. These two men sold to Charles Young April 20, 1872 the 10 acres of wood land which after being in the Young and Welte family over 51 years the present owner, Mrs. Emma Welte, has sold to Mr. Durr.

Doctor Richard P. Tracy prior to August 31, 1855 owned the house and a barn but the barn later fell to pieces.

The other tract is 4 acres when deeded to the late Charles Young on Nov. 17, 1879, by heirs of George F. Perkins was mentioned as four acres of woodland.

When Mr. Young bought the land it was wild country, full of rocks and wild trees. He cleaned off the greater part and Emil Welte did five years continuous work on the land, blasting away the remaining ledges, so that the land is now all tillable. There is a livable house on the place with a well and a constant running brook. Emil Welte had set out some ten years ago about one hundred young apple trees. After being in the Young and Welte family over 44 years, the present owner Mrs. Emma Welte sold the four acres to Fred Durr on February 11, 1924.

With President George A. Finn in the chair the Lions club held their weekly meeting Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. There was a good sized attendance, including one guest, Dr. E. J. Underhill. John Barry acted as song leader for the day.

One new member, Fred Watson, manager of the Wauregan, was welcomed and given the right hand of fellowship in behalf of the club by President Finn. The attention of the Lions was called to the Norwich Boy Scout drive which opens next Monday night and the club voted to cooperate in every way possible.

The death of an infant son of one of the members of the club was announced and the club voted to extend its sympathy by sending flowers and a letter to the parents. As a result of the entertainmnt a good sized check is to be sent to the Newington Home for Crippled Children early next week.

277 CONVERTS WON IN FOUR DAYS' EVANGELISM

The churches of Norwich are moving with irresistible confidence in the work of winning recruits for the program of Christian living and activity. At the supper at the Community house Thursday night, at 6.15 the usual reports of impression and exchange of experiences were omitted in order to permit the workers to get to the homes of the people a few minutes earlier.

A summary of the reports showed that the 100 Norwich visitation evangelists had won 277 converts in four days.

This is indeed the very essence of business applied to evangelism. Indeed the directors stated Thursday night that business methods and religion should never be divorced. "When we applied business methods to church finances" he said, "and changed from the hit and miss system of occasional or quarterly or yearly giving and adopted an every member canvass and weekly envelope system, we revolutionized church finances. It was an epoch making change in church support and benevolent giving. Apply the same business methods to evangelism and Christendom faces a new epoch of growth and development—the best Christendom has ever known."

It is said that a certain layman was invited in the presence of a non-churchman of decided and unorthodox political opinions to participate in the visitation work. He excused himself on the ground that it was the work of the hired professional, the minister. Whereupon the non-churchman remarked that any movement which has to depend for its spread upon the paid promoter is doomed. The director of the Norwich campaign, Dr. Kernahan, stated Thursday night that in his judgment less than half the value of the week's work in the statistical and visible results. The reaction on the laymen who do the work, the new spirit of Christian fellowship and the continuance of the work are equally valuable.

Great interest among the workers prevails over the last gathering of these united groups of church workers, which will be held at Trinity Methodist church tonight (Friday).

Final reports for the week will be rendered at 9.15 p. m. It is confidently expected that the total will be close to 350.

NUHFAR AND FORSMAN TAKE SPEED SKATING HONORS

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Alfred Nuhfar of Saratoga Springs, won the 220 yard and Paul Forsman of New York, the one mile event at the opening here today of the national amateur speed skating championships. The ice on Pontiac rink was in ideal condition, and the zero weather and lack of wind combined to aid fast work. The races will be continued Friday and Saturday as a feature of the midwinter carnival.

The 220 yard dash furnished the thrill of the afternoon, being nearly a dead heat between Nuhfar and Forsman. The judges conferred before reaching an agreement on the winner. To spectators, the race appeared to be a tie. Both skaters fell just after passing the line in an exciting finish.

As the races were delayed an hour to permit arrival of the Olympic team, which missed the train at New York the mile event did not start until nearly dusk, and the lights about the rink were used. This event was not as exciting as the opener, but there were several spills. Duke Donovan of Saranac Lake, was slightly injured in a fall. Charles Gorman of St. John, N. S., came in third, but was disqualified on a technical foul.

It is expected that the half and three-quarter mile races will be run tomorrow, but the program had not been definitely decided upon tonight. Breath-taking acrobatic skating entertained the large crowd between events.

Hearts were trumps in Norwich on Thursday. The sales of valentines broke all records.

JOE JACKSON ARRESTED AND HELD IN BAIL OF $5,000 ON PERJURY CHARGE

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 14—Joe Jackson, former outfielder of the Chicago American League club and plaintiff in a suit for $18,500 for alleged breach of contract, was arrested by order of Judge John J. Gregory, in circuit court here today. Judge Gregory's action was taken shortly after the jury retired.

"Mr. Jackson," the court said, "you are guilty of perjury, rank perjury, and I order you placed under arrest and fix your bail at $5,000."

"I commit Jackson to jail for perjury in this court with connection to the testimony he gave under oath before the Chicago Grand jury," the judge said by way of explanation.

"When the jury reports I shall have something more to say in connection with this case."

Jackson's arrest is the second on a perjury charge during the hearing of the case. Oscar "Happy" Felsch, a former team mate of Jackson and a witness for the plaintiff, was arrested following testimony he gave before Judge Gregory, and is at liberty under $2,000 bail. Jackson, who refused to discuss the matter, had not made bail early tonight.

Any verdict which may be reached tonight by the jury will be reported at the opening of court tomorrow, it was said by court officials.

COACH DENIES NINE MEN ARE BARRED AT JOHNS HOPKINS

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 14.—Ray Van Orman, head coach of athletics at Johns Hopkins university, today denied that nine athletes had been declared ineligible because of low scholastic standing. Robert Gwinn, South Atlantic cross country champion, is the only prominent athlete so disqualified, he declared.

Coach Van Orman also announced that the withdrawal of the Hopkins medley team from the Wilco A. A. games in New York Saturday was due to the illness of Roy Dorcas, which has forced him out of training. Dorcas yesterday was reported on the "black list."

BABE RUTH ARRIVES AT HOT SPRINGS TO TRAIN

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 14.—"Babe" Ruth, New York Yankees' premier slugger, arrived in Hot Springs today from his Sudbury, Mass., farm for its annual "boiling out," and battle against surplus weight.

Ruth appeared to be in splendid condition and is already without a great deal of the avoirdupois he brought to Hot Springs last year. The slugger said he had only about 15 points to remove and expected no difficulty in reducing that amount.

Nine other members of the Yankee squad are expected to arrive tomorrow.

DUNN EXPECTS GREAT THINGS OF TONY WEST

Roger H. Pippen, writing in the Baltimore News, says that Jack Dunn, manager of the Baltimore Orioles is expecting great things of Tony West, whose real name is Anthony T. Wesoloski, who pitched such remarkable ball for the Norwich State hospital team last season. Pippen writes as follows:

Three uninterested persons have spoken so highly of A. T. Wesoloski, southpaw hurler, that Dunn is now nursing the happy hope that he has picked up another Lefty Groves, strikeout king of the Ints.

Joe Faber, young infielder who went south with Baltimore last spring and who was loaned to Winston-Salem and later to Jersey City, was the first to write the Oriole owner about the southpaw. He boasted Wesoloski so highly that Dunn immediately forwarded him a contract.

Bank, third-sacker for Frederick in the Blue Ridge league, says he will win a regular berth with the five-time champions. Last summer Norman McNeal, while managing Frederick, tried his best to sign the pitcher, but could not give him the money he demanded.

H. A. Williams, traveling salesman, saw Wesoloski pitching in Norwich, Conn., last summer, and so lavish was he in his praise that Manager Dunn can hardly wait until he gets his eyes on the recruit, who stands 6 feet 2, weighs 192 pounds and who is claimed to have a strikeout record which will cause Groves some worry about holding his title.

Wesoloski's record sounds too good to be true. Playing independent ball for Norwich, he won 25 games and lost 10.

Fourteen of his victories were shutouts.

He averaged 12 strikeouts per game.

He pitched 28 successive shutout innings.

He permitted no more than 5 hits per game in 15 consecutive contests.

He batted .435 and fielded .961.

He has been pitching four seasons, the other three being spent at Middletown, Conn.

He is only twenty-one years of age.

From his records and from what his boosters say, Jack Dunn has a Babe Ruth and a Lefty Grove combined into the finest young prospect unknown to fame and high wages.

This story will be continued in Georgia next month.

PLAINFIELD STRENGTHENS TEAM FOR TONIGHT'S GAME

The army and navy quintet of Taftville will come to Plainfield tonight to give battle to the Plainfield five in the second game of the three game series for the championship of eastern Connecticut.

This no doubt will be one of the hardest fought contests of the season and some whirlwind basketball is promised. Taftville will be out to clinch the claim to the title while Plainfield will endeavor to stem the tide of defeat and even up the series.

Taftville will use the same lineup that defeated Plainfield Wednesday night with Angelli, Benson and Ballemper of South Manchester playing the leading roles. Plainfield will be strengthened for the coming battle by Moran, a former Holy Cross basketball star and who at present is playing on "The Purple Collegians" of the fastest basketball fives in New England. Moran will bring with him a couple of his team mates whose names at the present time the manager is unable to mention.

In the preliminary game the Buddies will battle with the Battery B seconds of Norwich.

YEACH COMES TO TERMS WITH BOSTON CLUB

Veach today confirmed the signing of the contract last Monday and said that an adjustment, satisfactory to him and to the Boston officials, relative to the $8,000 he had demanded to compensate him for the move, had been consummated. Veach said he was in good physical condition and "just as fast as ever."

SKI JUMPERS PERFORM WELL AT BRATTLEBORO

Brattleboro, Vt., Feb. 14.—Three national amateur ski champions emerged tonight from the first day's competition of the National Ski association tournament here: Rolf Mangseth, of the Itasca Ski club, Coleraine, Minn., won the boys' jump title; Gunnar Michelson, New Hampshire university, became the intercollegiate titleholder for the jump, and Robert Reid, of the Nansen Ski club, Berlin, N. H., carried off the honors in the 16-mile cross country race.

In the boys' event the Minnesota contestant easily led a field of nine, Mangseth, who has a previous record of 115 feet, made a 114 and 118 foot jump in his three efforts today. He scored 86.9 points against 77.3 for the runner-up, Howard Lane, Brattleboro Outing club and 76.4 for Howard M. Davis also of Brattleboro, who finished third. Lane's best jump was 98 feet and Davis, while jumping 106 feet, fell in each of his three efforts.

In winning the intercollegiate event, Michelson of New Hampshire, was awarded 82.9 points to 77.3 for Thurston D. Frost of Dartmouth and 73.5 for R. M. Hodgson, also of Dartmouth. Frost made the best jump, his third effort taking him 99 feet to Michelson's 107, but the Dartmouth man fell on his first jump. Only Dartmouth and New Hampshire were represented, entries from Norwich and Williams failing to arrive in time.

Reid of Berlin, N. H., covered the 10 miles of the cross-country course in 1 hour and 7 minutes, finishing just 15 seconds ahead of his teammate Jergen Johansen and 20 seconds ahead of Rolf Monsen, of Brattleboro and Gyerby, St. Paul Minnesota Ski club, a member of the United States Olympic ski team, finished 4th.

The national ski jumping championships are scheduled for tomorrow.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Rose Gray is probably the biggest music in modern American dance. Everyone of his best sellers over a million copies. "The Call of the Canyon" is the second Rose Gray story to be produced by Paramount. It ran as a serial in the Ladies Home Journal and has since been published as a novel. It is a story of High Adventure and the Mojave Desert. Its frivolous New York society and the stern life of the Western ranges, of a pair of society wasters—a man and a beautiful girl—and the other which the great open spaces of the West has upon their souls and their love. The contrasting backgrounds of New York land parties and the struggles and feuds of the Arizona cattle country, the man-to-man fights and the hoss-scrambles, and the thrill-fire thrills with which the plot is packed, make this in every respect an outstanding picture of any season.

The picture will be shown at the Broadway theatre Sunday. Jobs of Carley Burch, a daughter of the rich, who is engaged to be married to Glenn Milbourne, a World war vet-eran. He becomes disgusted with the shallowness of their frivolous society life and gladly obeys his doctor's order to go to Arizona for his health.

Glenn stays with an Arizona ranching family, the Nutters, and Flo, the daughter of the house falls in love with him. But he is true to Carley, though he wavers. Carley, still deeply in love with him journeys out to Arizona to see him. The crudeness of everything disgusts her. She attends a ranch dance in a very decollette evening gown and is insulted by a sheep-herder. Glenn likes him. She tries to get Glenn to go back East with her but he will not go. She returns home to live her old life only to find it tasteless.

In her absence, Glenn, to save the Nutter's life and in gratitude for her devotion, is about to marry her when Carley returns to Arizona. She realizes that her love for Glenn is vain and in the church she sees Carley. He leaves and Glenn and Carley look at each other with the full assurance that their troubles are over. The climax is strong and effective.

The featured players in this strong picture are Richard Dix, Lois Wilson and Marjorie Daw. The principal supporting players are Noah Beery, Ricardo Cortez and Fred Huntley. Victor Fleming directed.

BOUTS AT DANIELSON PROVE TO BE DISAPPOINTING AND SLOW TO FANS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Danielson, Feb. 14—Boxing fans that crowded the Casino arena to the limit of its capacity tonight when the place was opened to the public for the first time witnessed an interesting card of bouts. A feature was the appearance of Johnny Wilson former middleweight champion in a four-round exhibition with Johnny Hart, the Brooklyn Flash. Boxing Commissioner Frank Murphy of Hartford, explained to the fans that it was purely an exhibition go as Wilson fought at Boston on Tuesday night and under the rule would have been excluded from a real battle here so soon afterward. The exhibition was very interesting and was enthusiastically applauded.

The main bout between George Werner of New York and Bobby Williams, recently arrived in this country from England proved a disappointment. Williams in the first round was a whirlwind beating Werner up against the ropes and apparently was on the verge of winning a victory inside of two minutes, Werner weathered the storm however and in the second round gave Williams a real beating. The third round was a repetition of the second and in the midst of it Williams went down under a hard swing from Werner apparently knocked cold. The referee, Billy Moran, evidently sensing the situation urged Williams to get to his feet and fight but Williams evidently had a sufficiency for the evening and took the full count. The referee had barely stopped counting when Williams jumped to his feet and winking to the crowd walked to his corner. He was booed as he left the ring by a crowd that had paid their good money to see a real fighter such as the management of the club felt had been engaged when he was booked to appear in the main bout.

The semi-final, an eight round affair, between Sailor Andre of Hartford and Young Loughran of Pawcatuck went the limit. Loughran substituted for Bobby Kelly of Waterbury who was unable to appear because of the serious illness of his mother. This bout was spotty going at high speed at times and slowly in other rounds. The crowd and referee urged the men to fight. The closing round was a whirlwind and the referee decided the match a draw.

The preliminary between Young Falcone of Norwich weighing in at 118 pounds and Young DeForest of Danielson, 113 pounds, was a clashing affair and furnished the real excitement of the evening. This was a furious battle from the first bell and at the end of the first round honors were even. They had practically fought each other to a standstill at the end of the second round. Falcone got the upper hand in the third round pestering DeForest down for two counts of nine in the first two minutes of milling. Another hasty swing put DeForest down for the final count. Both battlers were nearly exhausted at the end of the bout and there was full honor for both of them. Both were cheered as they left the ring.

It was announced that the first bout of the evening had been called off as Young Shea of Willimantic who was to meet another Willimantic boy, had failed to show up.

There will be another card run off at the Casino in about two weeks.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

Jesse Lasky's production of Zane Grey's romantic story of the Painted Outlaws of Nevada, "Desert Driven," will be the feature picture at the Strand theatre today and tomorrow.

"Desert Driven" is a thrilling melodrama of the plains but threading the series of heroic rescues, the fast horseback riding, the realistic escape from prison, is an exquisitely colorful and throbbing love story as thrilling and lyrical as any ever written. The famous San Quentin penitentiary of California has been reproduced in the film and the escape of the convict from the cells, the plunge over the prison wall and the chase by the guards is graphically shown in the film.

There are some splendid wind and rainstorm scenes in the picture which add greatly to the spectacular features of the shadow drama.

Carey does some of the best individual work of his entire career and the scenes in which he wears his cowboy clothes are especially good. The supporting cast in "Desert Driven," includes Marguerite Clayton, George J. LeMoyne, Alfred Allen and others.

"Desert Driven," was directed by Val Paul and adapted by Wyndham Gittens from Wyndham Martyn's story of the same name in "Action" Magazine.

The opening chapter of "The Way of a Man" will also be shown. As this photoplay unfolds you will see a picture from the pen of Emerson Hough who wrote "The Covered Wagon." You will see the trail over which American frontier heroes came to blaze the immortal path from east to west. You will see pioneer petty, Indian combats, daring deeds and a tense clash of mind and heart that you will always remember. Children will follow it breathlessly. Grotch folks will see a novelty in serials that will interest, inspire and amaze.

The Pathe news and a humorous comedy will make up the remainder of this big banner bill.

Special school children's performance Saturday morning at 10.30.

Broad Theatre

"Under the Red Robe," the picturization of Stanley Weyman's great historical masterpiece of the same name, will open a four day engagement at the Broad theatre starting Sunday.

The press of praise sung to the production by the critics have been echoed by the audiences at every performance and already the picture has been hailed as one of the screen's classics of all time. Robert B. Mantell, John Charles Thomas and Alma Rubens have the featured roles.

The story around which a pulsating story of thrills in the federal days of Cardinal Richelieu, "Under the Red Robe," is a film that not only appeals to regular picture fans, but to students of history, connoisseurs of art and devotees of the drama. Many of its scenes have been transplanted from the historic canvasses of Rubens and others of the old masters in a manner that leaves the most critic amazed.

Others in the excellent cast who shine brilliantly are Rose Coghlan, William H. Powell, Genevieve Hamper, Otto Kruger, Charles Judels, Ian MacLaren, Mary McLaren, Gustav von Seyffertitz, George Nash, Sydney Herbert, Andrew Dillon and Martin Faust.

"Under the Red Robe," was directed by Alan Crosland. Hayard Veiller adapted the story to the screen. Joseph Urban designed the settings. The musical score was composed by William Frederick Peters.

"Under the Red Robe" will be shown twice daily and all seats will be reserved at the evening performances. Tickets are now on sale at the box office.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Only Vaudeville in Norwich at the Strand Theatre

A well balanced program of big time vaudeville at the strand today and Saturday. All school children will be admitted Saturday matinee for ten cents.

A rare musical treat will be found in The Brown Girls, there are seven of them. These seven girls constitutes a combination band and symphony orchestra, a symphony orchestra because the instrumentation, includes the harp, the cello and violin and a piano, a band because there are drums and xylophones and cornets but the combination is thoroughly effective. Each of the girls is a musician, each a master of the instrument she plays. Their program is well selected and well rendered and the act is attractively staged.

Slim Moore and Frank Mitchell are a clever pair of comedy acrobats. After a routine of chatter, steps and songs they present two difficult acrobatic feats in a sensational finish. One of these feats is the difficult toe-catch. Mitchell and Moore are a Versatile Comedy Duo but they bill themselves as Worse-A-Trie Comedians which of course is a play on the word Versatile.

O'Connor and Considine have a worthy singing, dancing and comedy act that fits in well on any bill.

You will find a top-notch juggler in Lawton. He says he has a few rivals in juggling. He has a few mighty good ones, so good that they make him decidedly distinctive in their line.

The feature picture Defying Destiny. The story is one which every member of the family will enjoy, for there is not only a strong love interest theme also, a real live business, tale woven in with it.

Monte Blue takes the part of the hero, Jack Fenton, whose fortune is successfully marred as the result of his pursuing Beth Alden (portrayed by Irene Rich) from a burning house. Beth is so much in love with Jack that she never sees the fears. All happiness until a large sum of money disappears from the bank in which Jack is cashier. He is arrested.

It would be a shame to reveal whether or not he accomplishes his purpose, but we will say that Defying Destiny is a thoroughly satisfactory production and we think only a very cranky critic could disagree with us.

Palace Theatre Announcement Meets Hit With Public

The management of the Palace theatre was showered with congratulations yesterday following the announcement that the Chicago Stock Company was to appear at that popular playhouse for a week's engagement and give Norwich its first taste of "dramatics" this year.

The management could have made no better choice in the selection of this popular company, for they are the acknowledged leaders in their class and come to Norwich with the exception of a one week's engagement in Poughkeepsie direct from Pittsburgh where the players appeared for a half years ngagement. They will present seven big super plays, changed daily, a matinee and evening performance of each play, except on Saturday when two plays will be given. Pleasing popular prices will prevail.

The opening production of the engagement Monday matinee and night, February 18th will be the New York Broadhurst Theatre success Smilin Through which the dramatic critics pronounced as the biggest worth while play in the history of the stage and a fantasy in which Miss Jane Cowl starred for two solid years and Miss Norma Talmadge scored such a great hit in on the screen.

Another feature in connection with the engagement of this attraction is the staging of the plays to be offered. Two seventy foot baggage cars are required to transport the scenery and effects and each of the seven plays will be produced in manner equal to their New York production. The acting cast is headed by Miss Jean White, former star of the notable stage hit Turn to the Right and W. James Rodell a leading man who is said to be a typical matinee idol.

Miss Pearson Sings Swedish Folk Songs

An unusual feature of Miss Pearson's program at Slater Hall on Monday evening, the 18th, will be a group of Swedish Folk Songs. Miss Pearson has made considerable effort to get hold of these old Swedish songs and she does them charmingly. These songs have the same quaintness, the same human appeal as do all Folk Songs, only of course they are different, possessing an uniqueness and charm quite Swedishly their own.

This recital which is being given under the auspices of the Norwich Music Association, is arousing a good bit of interest among Miss Pearson's friends, who are anticipating this opportunity of hearing her in a hall so well calculated to permit her voice to be fully appreciated. Miss Pearson will be supported at the piano by Miss Helen Wolverton of New York City. Very nice things are told about Miss Wolverton's work, and the assurance that Miss Pearson's accompaniments are to be rendered by one experienced an artist is gratifying to ticket holders for this recital.

Reserved seats can be secured at Cranston's store, for which the charge is $1.50, tax prompt.

One Thing at a Time.

It is impossible, either in action or in thought, to attend to two things at once, especially if they are of any importance.

TROLLEY FARE PROTEST MEETING, NEW LONDON, ATTENDED BY THREE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 14—Stanley Wyzski of Hudson, Pa., who was found unconscious in the streets Tuesday night and removed to Lawrence hospital, was committed to the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane, at Brewster's Neck this afternoon, because of his mental condition. Wyzski was walking from New Haven to a New England city and in passing through Bank street, collapsed and became unconscious. He was seen by Patrolmen John Cliffords and Ernest Chapman and after first aid had failed to relieve him, City Physician Cheney ordered the man transferred to the hospital. At the institution Wyzski's condition did not improve, but gradually became worse. This morning he became noisy and violent and as a result he was transferred to the Norwich asylum, being escorted there by Captain of Police Charles A. Finney and Patrolman John Courtney. Wyzski is an epileptic and is suffering from being gassed in the world war. He is about 34. An effort will be made to locate his relatives, that they may have knowledge of his predicament.

John Grimwold of Colt street, Miss Elizabeth Waller, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Charles B. Waller, Vauxhall street; Frank Wittrock, Howard St., Miss Mildred Perkins, Mystic and Mrs. Hugh Casey and infant son, of Garfield avenue, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

The body of Mrs. Carrie F. Mason, whose sudden death occurred yesterday, at the Hotel Mohican, was forwarded to Everett, Mass., today for funeral services and burial.

The funeral of Sidney H. Barrett, a former resident of Waterford, whose death occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sidney Morrison of Burlington, Vt., was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of his son, Walter I. The condition of Edward Roach, formerly captain of the force of special agents of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, stationed in New London, does not improve at Norwich State Hospital for the Insane, in which institution he has been under treatment many weeks. Mr. Roach's condition has become such as to cause him to be kept under restraint. Mr. Meach was taken ill of the mental affliction about four months ago and for a long period was under treatment at Home Memorial hospital. His condition gradually became such as to cause his commitment to the Norwich State hospital.

The automobile, owned by Swift & Co., and operated by Wesley Slate of Fowler court, struck John Sullivan, a boy residing at 196 Montauk avenue, this afternoon on that thoroughfare. The youth, who started to cross the highway as the automobile was operated from the curb, was hit by one of the mudguards and knocked down, but having only sustained minor bruises, continued to his studies at the Harbor school.

Desk Sergeant James D. Caffrey resumed his duties at the police station this morning, having been confined to his home on Colman street several days by an attack of grip.

Peter Sienkowsky, proprietor of a small store at 36 Winthrop street complained to the police this morning that sometime during the night the place was entered by thieves, but so far as he could discover no plunder was obtained. Sergeant Frank Maward visited the store, determined that the storehouse in the rear of the place had been entered a light of glass being smashed, but that entrance to the main store had not been gained. A neighbor informed the officer that he heard boys about the storeroom at 3 o'clock, but that he did not consider it of sufficient consequence to notify Sienkowsky or the police.

The Ku Klux Klan, which burned its cross on the Redeem land on Jefferson avenue in this city Tuesday night, and aroused excitement there will, it is claimed, make another demonstration of a similar nature on the night of the 22nd inst., the anniversary of the birth of Washington. The parties who are burning the crosses are acting without right, for there is an ordinance providing that no fire shall be started within the limits of the city, without the parties starting it first obtaining permission so to do. That the klan exists in this city is assured. At one time the members gave a sum of money to the Methodist church and that act was applauded, persons who appeared and handed over the money. It is equally certain but no one has publicly announced the that the klan at one time had members who were connected with the police force of the city and others who were in the service of the government at the submarine base. Whether that membership is retained is not known.

It seems there is a relationship between the members of the klan in New London and in Norwich for fiery crosses were displayed in both cities at a given time Tuesday night. But the police can no doubt discover the participants if the department really and seriously determines to do that. The city is not so large that the first signs of preparation for the fiery cross cannot be learned about, and once the hint of a demonstration is known, there will be little trouble in tracing the promoters.

New Londoners do not seem to care a pleayune whether the trolley company raises its rates or whether we have a trolley, apparently. A meeting was called by City Manager Holt this evening to decide whether there was any sentiment as to the increase in fares from seven and a half cents a ride to eight and a third cents, the rider to pay in advance for the tokens the company issue. The meeting was attended by three persons, a woman and two men. The woman, Mrs. Emily Spears deplored the fact that New Londoners took no more interest in a matter so vital to their interests, and expressed the opinion that the city should be represented at the meeting of the public utilities commission to protest against the raise in fares. One of the men "seconded the motion" and the other did not care to be heard. So Manager Holt adjourned the meeting.

Rehearsals for the Crowley club revue which is to be given at the Lyceum theatre are in progress. After several tryouts the end men, and the ballad singers have been selected. About one hundred members of the club will be in the minstrel circle. The minstrels will be followed by three sketches.

A local woman this afternoon lost her purse containing $70 while shopping. Mrs. Julia Capon of 36 Lawis street had the purse when she entered the place. On leaving the store she went to another store but a short distance away and it was while making a purchase in the latter store that she discovered her loss. Mrs. Capon visited the police station and requested that an effort be made to recover her money.

Richard Pope, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pope, 645 Main street, is a patient tonight in the private hospital, suffering from injuries received late this afternoon by being struck by a commercial automobile, owned by the New London News company and operated by George H. Dyer of 23 Bragow street. The youngster's injuries comprise concussion of the brain and numerous bruises. When the child was admitted to the institution for treatment, he was semi-conscious, but two hours later he regained his senses. He will be kept under observation at the institution for a day or two.

The child was at play at the corner of Pierce and Main streets and as the machine operated by Dyer came along at a fair rate of speed and headed in a southerly direction, the boy ran from the edge of the curb and into the street, presumably to cross to the opposite side. Dyer applied his brakes and guided the car towards the further side of the highway, but the youngster was struck with considerable force. The child was picked up by Dyer and conveyed to the institution, after which a report of the accident was made to the police.

The police received several complaints this evening, because of the action of children celebrating Valentine night.

James J. Ryan, soldier deserter, formerly stationed at the United States Coast Guard academy, appears to be a much sought for man for besides the authorities of New London seeking knowledge of Ryan's whereabouts, it develops that the police of Portland, Me., hold a warrant for Ryan's arrest.

Ryan was a lodger at the home of Mrs. John C. Ellis, 28 Sherman St., and a few days ago decided to leave the place, but he did not notify his landlady of his intentions. When he departed there also disappeared a gold watch and chain belonging to Herman J. Appledorn, a lodger at the place and a light tan overcoat, the property of Joseph H. Bliven, another lodger. The theft was discovered a short time after perpetrated, but Ryan could not be found. It is believed that he went to Springfield Mass., and the authorities there have been requested to apprehend him if he puts in an appearance in that city.

This afternoon the New London police received a communication from the police of Portland, stating that Ryan was known to have been in New London of late and asking for his arrest as he is charged there with passing several worthless checks.

Besides being wanted by the two civil authorities the federal government seeks the custody of Ryan, that he may be given a court martial for desertion.

SOAKS RIGHT IN AND LIMBERS UP STIFF JOINTS

Pharmacists call it "Joint-Ease" because it's for Swollen, Sore, Painful, Creaky Joints Only.

It took a good many years to get together a combination of pain subduing and swelling reducing agents declared to be the one remedy that almost instantly penetrates through skin and flesh and starts right in to make swollen, inflamed, creaky, pain racked joints as good as new.

They call this new and wonderful preparation "Joint Ease" because the medical man who turned the trick, worked for years to perfect some low-priced remedy that would really benefit the millions of people who have one or more joints that need helpful attention.

So "Joint Ease" is prepared only for people who have a swollen, painful, creaky, distorted or stiff joint, whether it be in knee, elbow, shoulder, ankle, back or finger and whether it is caused by rheumatism or something else.

Of course, it can't help but quickly put an end to such superficial ailments as lumbago, neuralgia, neuritis, aching muscles, stitch in the side, crick in the neck or sore feet because of its penetrating action, but what it is really recommended for is joint ailments of any nature whatever.

Ask for a tube of "Joint Ease." You can use it several times in one evening for quick results, because it goes right through the skin with only a few seconds rubbing. It surely is a swift penetrator and when it gets under the skin, it starts right in to clean up all joint trouble.

All druggists dispense it daily for about 60 cents a tube.

"A GOOD SUPPLY OF SAND"

I observed a locomotive in the railroad yards one day.
It was waiting in the roundhouse where the locomotives stay;
It was panting for the journey; it was coaled and fully manned,
And it had a box the fireman was filling full of sand.

It appears that locomotives cannot always get a grip
On their slender iron pavement, 'cause the wheels are apt to slip;
And when they reach a slippery spot their tactics they command,
And to get a grip upon the rail they sprinkle it with sand.

It's about the way with travel along life's slippery track:
If your load is rather heavy and you're always sliding back;
So, if a common locomotive you completely understand,
You'll provide yourself in starting with a good supply of sand.

If your track is steep and hilly and you have a heavy grade,
If those who've gone before you have the rails quite slippery made,
If you ever reach the summit of the upper tableland,
You'll find you'll have to do it with a liberal use of sand.

If you strike some frigid weather and discover, to your cost,
That you're liable to slip on a heavy coat of frost,
Then some prompt, decided action will be called into demand,
And you'll slip way to the bottom if you haven't any sand.

You can get to any station that is on life's schedule seen
If there's fire beneath the boiler of ambition's strong machine,
And you'll reach a place called Flushtown at a rate of speed that's grand
If for all the slippery places you've a good supply of sand.

FIGURES SHOW THAT 1923 WAS A VERY HEALTHY YEAR

The year 1923 was one of the best health years in the history of the United States and Canada. This is the conclusion of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, based on the health record of about 16,000,000 industrial policy holders of that company, nearly one-seventh of the combined populations of the two countries. The death rate of Americans and Canadians last year was 6.9 per 1,000; in 1922 it was 8.8, and in 1921 8.7. These are considered the three best years in the sanitary history of the United States and Canada, backed up by the rates for their industrial populations for 1919 (10.6); 1917 (13.6), 1918 (12), and 1911 (12.5).

Several new records were established during that year. The death rate for the third quarter of 7.4 per 1,000 was the lowest ever recorded for any three months' period among the policy holders, and that for the fourth quarter, 7.9 per 1,000, the lowest ever recorded for this period of any year.

CATHOLIC COLORED MISSION WAS ACTIVE DURING YEAR

Norwich contributors' attention has been directed to the fact the progress in many fields of endeavor is shown in the report of the activities of the Josephite Fathers for 1923, just made public. The Josephites work exclusively among the colored population of the United States. Some of the items in the report dealing with the progress made by the order during the last year are:

The purchase of a site for a new college on the outskirts of Newburgh, N. Y., where building operations will begin in the early spring; beginning negotiations for the purchase of a new plant for St. Monica's church, Baltimore.

In the southern mission field new churches were erected at Thibodaux and New Roads, La., and De Lisle, Miss.; a new church of St. Jean of Ark was built in New Orleans; mission sites were purchased at Pilot Town, New Orleans and Breaux Bridge, La.; new rectories were built at New Roads and Baton Rouge, La., and a combination school and convent erected at Chestang, Ala.

The new parish of the Good Shepherd was organized in Washington, D. C.; additions were made to rectories and convents in Baltimore and New Orleans, and Port Arthur was made a separate parish, with a resident priest.

Many a single man is guilty of double dealing.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Welcomed by the Queen of Tarts

Oh, the Queen of Tart Island
Made wonderful tarts.
They were baked in the shape
Of fishes and hearts,
With filling of jam
And raspberry ice.
Goodness me! But those tarts
Were awfully nice.

As soon as Captain Drake reached Tart Island, he made the boat fast to the wharf and hurried off for Tart Castle to visit the Queen of Hearts who made raspberry tarts. And, wasn't it lucky? She was just coming across the courtyard in her hands was a big silver platter, piled high with wonderful raspberry tarts.

"How do you do, Capt. Drake?" She curtsied with a smile

"How do you do?" she said, with a smile to Captain Drake. "You shall have a boatload of tarts before long. Try a sample of today's baking?" and she held out the tray.

"Your Highness, let me present Little Jack Rabbit," answered Captain Drake.

"Welcome, bunny boy," said the Queen of Hearts. "Your Uncle Lucky once made me a visit. You, too, may stay awhile at our castle, for the King is more fond of company than tarts, and will tell you his favorite story about the Knaves."

Late in the afternoon, when the ship was loaded with tarts, Captain Drake set sail, leaving the little rabbit with the King and Queen of Hearts, who, by this time, had taken a great fancy to him.

But the bunny boy cared little for castle life. He loved the woods and the meadows. Besides, he wished to see the wide, wide world, so, bidding the Queen goodbye, he set out once more.

Tart Island was wide, but by and by, he came to Gingerbread Bridge that connected it to the mainland. Hopping over safely, he followed a path that led straight into a deep forest. All of a sudden, a little yellow bird began to sing:

"Have a care, have a care,
Lest you fall into a snare.
A wicked witch, called Wrinkle Face
Ever hovers round this place."

"Goodness me!" thought the little rabbit, "Maybe I'd better turn back." But just then the little yellow bird sang:

"Do not play a turncoat's part
You've a brave and valient heart.
Still, be cautious and beware
Of the witch's cruel snare."

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Rich, firm crust keeps it fresh three days

THREE days in the bread box and still soft and moist and fresh. Only milk, sugar and shortening in the recipe and a rich deep crust will enable a loaf to meet this test.

One of the reasons that thrifty housewives ask for White Rose, the Master Loaf of the Six Bakers, is because it will not dry out or become tasteless.

The Six Bakers, who came together to make the perfect bread that New England housekeepers would approve, have made a firm substantial loaf that is solid and not fluffed up. It is close grained and has the rich, crisp crust of the best home-made bread. White Rose, the Master Loaf, will not dry out in sandwiches in the lunch box, and it will keep fresh and soft and sweet for three-times-a-day service on your table.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting and operations fail?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal tablet remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, now sold by Lee & Osgood and druggists generally, that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the internal cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for quick, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. There is no reason why it should not do the same for you.

GIVE THE BUYER WHAT HE WANTS

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

In the days when I raised and sold vegetables I learned that human beings were what the Scotch call "kittle cattle." To get along and do business with them, they've got to be treated "just so." They object to having their fur rubbed the wrong way as strongly as cats. They have more whims and prejudices and superstitions and habits than you could shake a stick at in a long summer's day.

I had one customer who regularly called for a two-bushel bag of red onions every October. He would take nothing but red ones. "When I eat onions," he said, "I want 'em to be onions and strong enough so 't I can taste 'em." Another customer as regularly demanded a bushel of red onions for exactly the opposite reason. "I want 'm because they're so much milder'n them rank yellow things," she said.

There were buyers who wanted yellow-podded string beans, "butter beans" they called them. There were others who didn't touch any but the green podded. As to sweet-corn, it was about six of one and half-a-dozen of the other. Half wouldn't buy anything but "bantam," half wouldn't take "bantam" if it was given to them, considering the white vastly superior. I once was called three miles to take back a single head of Danish Ballhead cabbage and replace it with a Winningstadt. The customer wouldn't use anything but the latter, wouldn't have anything else in her cellar. When by some accident a single round head was left among her fifty, she telephoned me promptly on her discovery of it to come and take it away and bring the other Winningstadt she had paid for.

Another customer would take Succession or All Seasons or Drumhead, if nothing else offered, but insisted upon having Flat Dutch if that strain was to be had. And one never bought anything but red cabbage, because "it boils down so much richer."

I suspect storekeepers must sometimes have hard work to keep their faces straight when one customer demands Formosa oolong and another Gunpowder and another English Breakfast, and another Lipton's tea, and not one will take anything else.

I once knew a retailer who had a run of flour returned because it wouldn't make decent bread. The buyer wanted Pillsbury's and nothing else, so the canny dealer dumped the returned out of its plain bag into one labelled "Pillsbury's Best," and had no further complaint coming.

Another dealer, who had been selling beet sugar for more than a year without a single "kick," incautiously mixed a regular customer a 25 pound sack with the refinery's imprint on it. The sugar came back the next delivery. "I never have used anything but cane sugar, and I won't ever use anything but cane," declared the indignant buyer, who had been using beet sugar for a year without knowing, and finding it perfectly satisfactory.

They still tell the story of one old storekeeper in a neighboring hamlet who used to keep but one chest of tea behind his counter, and sell any kind that was asked for out of it, at any price that was specified. If any complaint was made he stood perfectly ready to exchange it for an equal amount out of the same chest—and to keep on doing so till the customer was suited!

This was, of course, highly reprehensible conduct, any emulation of which is distinctly to be discouraged.

But there is a suggestion in it, nevertheless, which is worth more general consideration than it receives.

"Give 'em what they want; don't try to argue 'em into wanting something else," was the motto of one successful peddler whom it was my good fortune to know pretty well.

When a man sets out to make a living by supplying the public with things the public needs or wants,—there's a wide difference between "needing" and "wanting,"—he might naturally be expected to stock up with or set about producing things which that public is calling for. That's what most storekeepers do or try to do. They cater to the needs of their customers;—not only to their needs, but to their mere wants, their whims if you please. They get in the varieties of goods which seem to be sought after.

I can well imagine a dry-goods merchant, for instance, finding the quality of certain textiles unsatisfactory to his trained feel, their colorings in execrable taste, their tout ensemble wholly displeasing. And yet he will buy the stuff by the carload, if he knows that some whimsical whim of fashion is going to send shoppers crazily searching for it.

Of course, this principle can be carried too far. As everywhere else, there can be too much of a good thing, in this direction. But the underlying principle is that upon which all successful catering to the public is carried on.

Yet it is one which altogether too few farmers apprehend or attempt to practice.

Look at the subject for a minute from the income-seeking point of view.

Mr. Farmer owns certain acres of land, from the products of which he wants to make a living and some money for profit, if possible. He and his family like potatoes and turnips and beets and tomatoes and sweet corn. But they don't care for parsnips and cabbages and spinach and green peas and onions. Therefore he raises enough potatoes and tomatoes and turnips, etc., for the family consumption, first thing. So far, so good. Having looked after domestic requirements, he next wants to raise some stuff to sell. Shall he put in more potatoes and tomatoes and turnips because he likes them, or shall he find out what other people to whom he hopes to sell want to buy?

It may be that he has been used to raising potatoes and tomatoes, etc. It may be that his soil seems adapted to those crops. It may be that he has got into the habit of raising just such things and little else. It may be that raising such crops comes easier to him.

Nevertheless, these are not, any or all of them, half so important considerations as the one, what do my customers want to buy and pay good prices for? If these latter want cabbages and parsnips and onions, etc., why in the name of common sense shouldn't I supply them, rather than keep on stuffing an already over-drugged market with potatoes and tomatoes and the other things I like or like to grow or can raise easiest?

I recall from my own experience, that one year I got hold of the finest strain of citron I ever saw. It was a big-fruited kind, highly productive, handsome in markings, thick-meated, and cooked to translucent meltingness the quickest of any I had ever known. A few local customers agreed with me as to its high quality. So, next year, I put in a hundred hills. I never saw such a sight as that patch was when the things ripened. One could have walked across it in any direction without setting foot to ground, so thick did the citrons lie.

Well, we put up several dozen cans of the preserves for home consumption, and I sold perhaps 50 fruits to local customers. Then, having filled up my home market, I sought to sell the remainder to city dealers. The attempt was an utter failure. I sent three barrels, as samples, to three dealers in three different cities. The same report came from all three. The city trade wouldn't look at them: wanted smaller, greener, rounder forms, such as it had been accustomed to. As a result a dozen two-horse wagon loads went to waste,—simply because I had failed to find out, beforehand, what the markets would absorb.

Another time a dealer said to me, when I was trying to sell him some lettuce and spinach with which he was already fully stocked: "Why don't you raise asparagus? We never can get enough of that." At that time I had had small experience with asparagus: didn't know much about its culture and didn't know whether it would fit my soil or not. But I took the "tip," set out two thousand asparagus plants, later followed by many more, and yet never was able to keep up with the demand. The last year of my trucking career, every bunch it could raise was ordered before it was cut, and I was buying up all that was produced by the other gardeners in town to partially make up my own lack.

These were two experiences which well illustrate my meaning. When I took my own tastes and inclinations as a guide and plunged a little in citrons, I came out the little end of the horn. When I took a market "tip" that asparagus was in big demand, I came out with a satisfying return of shekels.

We have all, doubtless, heard fairy stories about salesmen who could sell anything, they were so persuasive and limber-tongued. But few farmers are of that sort, praise be! For the vast majority of us it is a truism that, to sell produce we must first have the kind of produce which will sell. It may not be the sort we think ought to sell; it may not be the sort we ourselves like best; it may not be the sort we can raise easiest; it is the sort the buying public wants.

Your farm may be a "potato farm," or a "corn farm," or a "hay farm." These, or others like them, may have been your standard crops. But, if the markets are glutted with potatoes, corn and hay, what does it profit you that you raise big yields of high quality,—of something you can't sell for the cost of growing? It will very often happen that some side line, put in merely to meet some market whim, will return you more money and bigger profit than your much-vaunted main-lines.

The one point I want to lay stress on is the perfectly self-evident one that the surest way to get a buyer's money is to offer him something which he wants more than money,—something he's eager to swap his money for. And that thing is the thing he needs or wants or likes:—not the thing you may think he ought to need or want or like. Not even the thing you happen to have a surplus of. He is just about as cranky and "set" a critter as you are. He isn't going to spend his good money for something he doesn't care for, just to help you out of a hole. If you're going to get it you must tempt him with something he wants, himself.

And the only way you can find out what this is, is by either asking him, or watching what he buys. His actions will usually speak louder than his words.

He's a fickle fellow, too. He may want one thing in 1923 and another thing in 1924. That's where you've got to take chances. But the controlling principle remains the same.

Find out what buyers want most and can't get enough of. Then get it to them in the quickest time and by the shortest route you can.

And don't put all your eggs in one basket, no matter how promising the basket looks. Diversification is the sheet anchor of farming. The wider you can spread your net, without losing control of one end or the other, the more fishes will swim into it. The more you diversify, within reason, the better it will be for your farm and your pocket.

Western wheat-growers are in doleful dumps because they have gone on, year after year, raising just one crop and relying upon luck and providence to make a market for it. There is no reason why New England farmers, with markets on all sides of them and almost at their doors, should make a similar mistake.

MANSFIELD DEPOT

Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Alguire gave a radio party to several friends, one feature being a drama entitled Icebound, the 1923 Pulitzer prize play by Owen Davis. The American Telegraph and Telephone company connected various cities from San Francisco to New York, then south to Key West and across to Havana, where a roll call of each city was responded to by telephone, as it was called ending with San Francisco where "taps" were sounded. Other delightful numbers were listened to during the evening. Sandwiches, raised doughnuts, pickles, filled cookies, apples and coffee were served by the hostess.

Miss Freda Wilson was a Hartford visitor Saturday.

Miss Blanche Potter of Columbia road recently visited Miss Clarabelle Hornberg.

Miss Elsie Cone of Willimantic was a recent visitor with Miss Helen Bowers.

Clifford Botham, of Stamford, was home over the week-end.

Owing to the absence of the pastor there were no preaching services on Sunday. The Sunday school convened as usual. The C. E. meeting was omitted, owing to treacherous walking.

Irving Botham and Mr. Newell are busy sledding wood to the village.

The Brotherhood held the fortnightly meeting Tuesday evening. At its close the members were invited by Mr. Alguire to his home to listen in to an address by President Coolidge.

People in this village were saddened to learn of the death of Robert F. Wheeler, for a quarter of a century conductor between Brattleboro and New London. In the days of non-automobiles the only way to get out of, or into the village was by the way of the Central Vermont, and as Mr. Wheeler was usually on duty two or three days a week he was well known to patrons of the road who esteemed him highly for his kind and courteous attentions.

The work of dismantling the battleship Delaware, begun in the Charlestown navy yard, will be completed in Philadelphia.

Tries Kellogg's Bran—restores health after 12 years of intense suffering

Mr. Firth writes that he suffered for 12 years from constipation and his friend for 10 years—a total of 22 years' suffering permanently relieved by Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled.

Gentlemen:

For 12 years I had been troubled with indigestion caused mostly by constipation. Until about a year ago I would suffer from 4 to 20 weeks at a time.

I happened to see your Krumbled Bran in a store, purchased a package and got almost immediate relief. I am still eating the Krumbled Bran every day.

The most wonderful results obtained with your Krumbled Bran I will now relate. A gentleman who has been taking medicine for about 10 years for constipation could not find anything to give him relief. Three weeks ago I advised him to try Krumbled Bran, as I had told him what wonderful results I had gotten from it. The gentleman in question purchased a box, and he told me that for the first time in ten years he is regular without taking medicine.

Yours for success,

William Firth, Jr., 96 Yukon St., Manchesterville, N. J.

Eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to relieve the most chronic case of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. The flavor is delicious. Try it in the recipes on every package. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS BEARISH.

New York, Feb. 14.—Stock prices slipped to lower ground in the early part of today's stock market as a result of bear raids on the oil shares, but the widespread distribution of supporting orders around noon started a rally which continued through the late dealings and made closing quotations irregularly higher.

Growing uneasiness over the senate oil investigation was reported to have inspired much of the early selling, bear traders succeeding in uncovering a number of weakened marginal accounts and forcing Standard Oils of New Jersey and California, Sinclair and the Pan-American issues to new low levels for the year, extreme losses ranging from 1 to 2½ points.

Strength of the copper shares was one of the features of the session, buying of these issues being predicated on the belief that Japan will be a big buyer of the red metal which is now quoted at 13 cents a pound, up ¼ of a cent, as a result of the recent increase in the foreign and domestic demand. American Smelters crossed 63 for a net gain of more than 2 points and Anaconda, Kennecott, Gerro De Pasco and Utah each closed a point or more above yesterday's final quotations, the last named touching a new 1924 high at 67¾.

Late buying of the oil shares was influenced by the weekly report of the American Petroleum institute showing a reduction in both domestic crude oil production and imports for the week ending February 9. Pacific Oil rallied from 51¼ to 52¾, up 1¼; Royal Dutch closed a point higher at 56½ and the early losses in the other issues were materially reduced.

Steel shares held relatively steady, holders of these issues being encouraged by the statement of E. H. Gary that Japan will be a heavy buyer of steel here this year. Further confirmation of the improvement in the industry was furnished by the report of the Otis Steel company, one of the small producers showing January production of 26,556 tons of finished products, the highest since May 1920, and more than 1-3 above that of January, 1923.

A run in of the shorts in American Woolen sent that stock up to 74⅝ but it slipped back later to 73¾, up 2⅜ on the day. New high records for the year were established by Fisher Body, which touched 205; Otis Elevator, which crossed 159, and Congolium, which sold 61¼.

Purchase of the International Great Northern stock by the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico road sent the price of the former up 3 points. Southern railway made a quick response to the publication of the 1923 earnings report showing $10.11 a share earned on the common stock but it was unable to maintain its gain, dropping from 46⅞ to 45⅞. Seaboard Air Line issues were very active and closed at substantial gains.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was rather quiet. All rates sagged at the opening but made irregular recovery later. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.30¼ and French francs just below 4.50 cents. Belgian francs touched a new record low at 3.79½ cents, but rallied about 3 points later.

Call money opened at 4⅝ and then dropped to 4½. Time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with rates unchanged.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Feb. 14.—Brisk trading activity in the new Japanese 6½ per cent bonds, listed on the New York stock exchange on a "when issued" basis and their ready advance above the offering price, inspired confidence in the bond market today. The improvement was reflected in gains throughout the high grade list, with particular strength in the bonds of copper companies which are expected to profit by orders from Japan.

Bankers tonight expressed their satisfaction with preliminary reports on subscriptions and predicted the complete success of the loan on which books will be opened tomorrow. The United States Steel corporation's order was understood to be for $15,000,000 worth of the bonds and numerous $1,000 000 subscriptions were received from corporations. Present Japanese 4½'s were active today and touched new high levels for the year at 97¼.

Announcement that negotiations had been completed for the sale of International Great Northern to the Gulf Coast lines was responsible for a sharp advance of almost 3 points in the International and Great Northern adjustment sixes, which will profit by the accompanying guaranty of four per cent. interest payments. Seaboard sixes and adjustment 5's were other conspicuous strong spots in the railroad list, which generally was stronger.

Liens of the copper companies gained on expected improvement in business likely to accrue from Japan's purchases for reconstruction. Gerro De Pasco 8s gained more than a point. Independent steels also were stronger. Considerable foreign buying of these issue was reported. Atlantic Fruit 7s displayed another sporadic burst of strength with a sharp advance of four points.

United States government issues held steady with little trading activity.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—Wheat scored a material upturn in price today, but profit taking sales then led to a reaction. The advance was due chiefly to buying based on belief that the United States import duty on wheat would soon be increased 50 per cent. The market closed unsettled at ⅞ cents lower to ¼c gain, May 110⅝ @ ¾ to 110¾ and July 110& to 110⅞. Corn, although easing back a little with wheat, finished ⅛ @ to ⅜c up, oats unchanged to ¼c higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12c.

Highest prices of the day in the wheat market were reached after definite announcement that the federal tariff commission had reported the cost of producing wheat in this country was 85c to $2.19 a bushel compared with 53c to $1.19 in Canada. However, long before the definite figures in the report were available, it was widely known that the finding of the commission were such as almost to make certain a prompt advance in the wheat tariff. Some buying also was due to crop damage complaints, especially from Illinois and Ohio. On the other hand, the subsequent setback was emphasized by word that Pacific coast offerings of wheat to the Atlantic seaboard were at a sharp discount compared with Chicago.

Most receivers of corn reported a decided falling off in the volume of country offerings to arrive. Besides, opinions were circulated that the peak of the mid-winter movement of the crop had been passed, and that the end of March would find commercial supplies to be a good deal under the average for that date. Other authorities, however, contended that advices of consignments indicated a big movement yet. Oats were ruled by the action of corn.

Provisions averaged higher in line with hog values, and on purchasing credited to foreigners.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Feb. 14. — Reactionary price tendencies prevailed in the early part of today's curb market but the list made irregular recovery later under the impulse of fresh buying and heavy short covering.

Speculative interest centered largely in the oil shares, Standard Oil of Indiana, the most active feature, closing at 61¾ for a net gain of more than one point. Vacuum and Cities Service each gained about a point, but Prairie Oil and Gas closed 2¼ lower at 238½. Considerable activity took place in Lago Petroleum in the late dealings, the stock rising from 3 to 3⅞.

Few important changes took place among the industrials. Common stock of the Hazeltine corporation was admitted to trading and sold between 14 and 15¼. Glen Alden Coal dropped nearly a point. Dubilier Radio was active around its recent high price and Kresge improved fractionally.

EVERY FIDUCIARY MUST MAKE INCOME RETURN

Numerous inquiries are received by the bureau of internal revenue relative to returns required of fiduciaries. A fiduciary for income tax purposes is a person who holds in trust an estate to which another has a beneficial interest, or receives and controls income of another, as in the case of relatives. A committee or guardian of the property of an incompetent person is a fiduciary.

Every fiduciary, or at least one of joint fiduciaries, must make a return for the year 1923 for the person whose income is in his charge, if the gross income of such person was $5,000 or over; if the person was married and living with wife or husband the net income was $2,000 or more; if the person was single and the net income was $1,000 or over, for the estate or trust for which he acts if the net income of such estate or trust was $1,000 or more, or if any beneficiary of such estate or trust is a non-resident alien.

A fiduciary return, if the tax is payable by the fiduciary, must be on Form 1040, or if the tax is payable by the beneficiary, on Form 1041.

If the net income of a decedent from the beginning of the taxable year to the date of his death was at the rate of $1,000 or more a year if married, or if his gross income, for the same period was at the rate of $5,000 a year, the executor or administrator must make a return for such decedent.

Fiduciary returns must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the fiduciary lives or has his principal place of business. Information returns are required also of fiduciaries who paid to others during the year 1923 income of $1,000 or more. Information returns must be filed on Form 1099 with the commissioner of internal revenue at Washington, D. C.

Returns of fiduciaries on a calendar year basis must be filed on or before March 15, 1924. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return, or in four installments due on or before March 15, June 15, Sept. 15 and Dec. 15. Fiduciaries are subject to all the penalties that apply for failure to file an individual income tax return and pay the tax on time.

JUDGE AVERY DENIES MOTION TO DIRECT DEFENDANT VERDICT

Motions to direct a verdict for the defendant in the $15,000 suit of Jaycurgus M. Sistare of New London against the Connecticut company, were denied in the superior court at New London Thursday by Judge C. L. Avery and the case is to be argued to the jury next Tuesday morning.

Mr. Sistare sued for damages because of a collision between his automobile and a trolley car on Broad street in New London on July 13 last.

When the evidence for the plaintiff was in late Thursday afternoon, Attorney Berry of New Haven, counsel for the trolley company, moved to have a verdict directed for the defendant. After the motion had been argued, the testimony of another witness was taken and Attorney Berry then renewed his motion. This was again argued by him and by Attorney Arthur T. Keefe, of counsel for the plaintiff, and Judge Avery denied the motion. The arguments on the evidence before the jury were put over to next Tuesday morning.

Trial of the suit was started late Wednesday afternoon when a jury was selected and it was continued on Thursday.

Mr. Sistare claims that on the evening of the day in question he was driving his Wills-St. Clair automobile toward the center of the city when at a point near the Cedar Grove cemetery it was struck by a trolley car going in the opposite direction. As a result of the collision his head and face were badly cut, four ribs were fractured and the automobile was demolished. The collision is alleged to have been due to the negligence and carelessness of the agents of the company.

The plaintiff is represented by Attorneys John C. Geary and Arthur T. Keefe, and Attorneys Berry and LeFleur of Hartford appear for the defendant company.

The following jury heard the case: Frank A. Baier, New London; George E. Cutler, Jesse Chapman, Charles F. Champlin, James McKnight, John Jeffery and George Winterbottom, Stonington; William A. Ritchie and Edwin A. Moody, Montville; Solon F. Chapman, Ledyard; George A. Keeney, Waterford.

George K. Crandall, civil engineer, went on the stand Thursday morning for the plaintiff and explained a map of the vicinity of the accident, showing the layout of the car track, the width of the street and conditions there generally.

The plaintiff gave testimony as to collision, and the extent and nature of his injuries. He said that 20 stitches were necessary to close the wounds in his face and head and that the back of his head is numb at times as the result of a blow he received in the collision and that, it is necessary for him to massage daily on the advice of his physician.

The witness said that the injury to his ribs was the most painful of the injuries he received. He was in the hospital three weeks and was unable to attend to his duties as manager for E. B. Smith & Co., for five weeks. He was paid his salary during his illness but received no commissions on business according to his contract. Mr. Sistare said that his car was rendered useless and that he disposed of it in trade for another machine after the accident.

John H. Buell, proprietor of the New London Auto Station, agents for the Wills-St. Clair automobile, testified as to the extent of the damage to the Sistare automobile and said that he sold it to a Providence man for $400.

Dr. William D. Cronin and Dr. Charles Kaufman both gave testimony regarding the nature of the plaintiff's injuries when he was treated at the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospital after the accident.

Mrs. Eva R. Dickson, who was in the car with Mr. Sistare at the time of the accident testified that she saw the glare of the headlight of the trolley and in a few seconds came the crash and she was knocked unconscious. While in a semi-conscious state, the witness said a woman spoke to her and called her by name. She did not recognize the woman and has not seen or heard from her since.

TO SECURE MORE LAND AT HAMMONASSETT BEACH

Attorney General Frank E. Healy has been requested to institute condemnation proceedings against a lot with seventy-five feet beach front at Hammonasset beach following a vote to that effect by the state park and forest commission at its meeting on Tuesday afternoon. The lot in question is owned by Fred S. Fletcher of Bristol, who has been holding it for what the commission believes is an exhorbitant price.

Additions at Hammonasset beach during the month of January extended this state park by 540 beach front feet. This tract is entirely surrounded by two small, seventy-five foot holdings, one owned by Mr. Fletcher and the other by Skinner & Smith of Plainville. The latter owners agreed upon a price with the commission a few days ago and the purchase is now being arranged. The new state tracts will give the park an addition of nearly 600 feet of beach front for the coming season.

"LEO" FIELDING, AT HONOLULU, STAR OF NAVY-ARMY GAME

The Feb. 1st issue of "Our Navy," published in Washington, D. C., has the following big bouquet of compliments for Lemuel Osgood Fielding, son of Lemuel M. Fielding, of Norwich:

The Navy's proud football record in Honolulu was shattered this year when the blue bowed to the Army's khaki in a hard-fought game, 16 to 14. Tough luck beat the sailors. The Navy made 225 yards in line plays to Army's 172. Navy made 139 yards in runbacks while Army made 70. Merrick's drop kicking gave the Army the victory.

But Navy fought a brilliant battle and is not disgraced by losing.

The Navy went down trying hard. They never gave up the struggle, and to Leo Fielding goes the highest credit of all. When the fight seemed hopelessly lost, the brilliant former Carlisle star spurred the gobs to new and greater efforts by his own wonderful work.

There were but a few seconds left to play when Fielding broke through for an 11-yard gain that put the ball on the Army's 34-yard line.

"Let's go," he shouted desperately to his teammates, and Frederickson reeled off eight yards more and the ball was on the Army 26-yard line.

But the last desperate effort was too late. The pistol banged the end of the greatest game, and the Army had won.

It did not detract from Fielding's record that the Navy lost. If any one man can win a game, Fielding certainly deserved to have his team win. In line plays he made a total of 125 yards, one of his runs being for 40 yards. He played safety, and in punt backs made 134 yards. He also gained 36 yards by receiving two forward passes. In all he made 295 yards for the Navy and lost only five, which gives some idea of the herculean task he performed for his team.

Hats off to Fielding, the fastest football player ever seen on island gridirons. And not only the gobs but every soldier and civilian fan will heartily indorse those sentiments.

You're a wonder of wonders, Leo, and so say we all!

Numerous Laws.
"Our laws have become so numerous that it often costs a man a hundred dollars to get a shilling's worth of justice, and misses of it at last."—William Manning, 1798.

Right There Again.
Dad—"If you come here with any more of your silly questions I'll thrash you on the spot." Sonny—"Which spot, daddy?"

Tea in Ireland.
In Ireland, where the people have a very exclusive taste in tea, few shopkeepers will buy tea which has been blended by machinery.

She Could Qualify.
"I'll marry a girl that can cook and make a home, and not one of those who can only play bridge." "Fine. Come over and meet our Polish housemaid."—Yale Record.

The Greater Admiration.
Father—"When I was a young man I worked 12 hours a day." Son—"I admire your youthful energy, dad, but I admire still more the mature wisdom which led you to stop it."

First Linen Clothes Dark.
First linen clothes, so costly that only kings and nobles could afford them, were dark and discolored, because the art of bleaching had not been learned in olden times.

FIJI ISLANDS

Fiji wants Canada; will Canada have Fiji? That will be the question before the foreign office at Ottawa if the movement on the famous cannibal islands to join Canada as well as Hawaii joined the United States develops to its logical end.

"Terrors of Fiji's fierce savagery a name to chasten children, have given way before the nameless dreamy charm which now wraps the islands of the South Pacific," a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society says, and continues:

"Though old men still live who confess knowledge of the taste of cooked human flesh, they, like their sons and daughters have become good abiding Christians. Today, their tempers are as equable as the climate of this twentieth century Eden.

"The Fiji group is 900 miles from Samoa. It proudly claims the world's unique self regulating climate. A thermostat on a modern heating plant could do no more. When it is hot the corrective comes automatically. Heat brings coolness from the mountains. Dryness brings rain. Stillness brings the breeze, a Fiji enthusiast avers. Protecting nature has even gone so far as to build coral dikes against angry waves almost completely around the main island, Viti Levu. Extremes of temperature are 59 degrees and 94 degrees.

"But every Eden has its serpent which, in Fiji's existence, takes the form of a hurricane. These disturbances are affectionately known as 'blows.'

"Hurricanes cannot jar the mental serenity of Fiji residents, one of whom claims 'blows' are not an unmixed evil, maintaining that: 'They stir things up. They prune the trees of fruit and leaves and give their fecundity a rest, so they bear better afterwards.' They loosen the soil around the roots. They dig about them, as it were, and even blow moths and other insect pests out into the ocean.

"Of the three main racial groups of the population numbering 157,264, the native Fijians are still dominant, totaling 84,476; but their predominance is fading fast. In 1921 there were 60,636 East Indians and 3,878 Europeans. Natives of India were imported for labor because the Fijians themselves are too ardent disciples of Rip Van Winkle; and the Indians have multiplied rapidly. With happy resignation the Fiji natives believe that the world is made for leisure and not for work or worry. The story told by birth and death statistics, however, is very similar to our American Indian's position for many years: Fiji, birth rate, 31.86, death rate, 27.61; Indians (from India) birth rate, 38.00, death rate, 7.1.

"Although Fijians, less than 40 years ago killed, cooked and ate two men to celebrate the establishment of a new school, this South Sea Eden is tamed now. So easily is law maintained that criminals can be seen sobbing in the doorway of Suva's jail because they are shut out! As the hour of six approaches men will come running from all points of the town to gain the jail with its food and bed, before the doors are closed for the night, leaving them, figuratively, out in the cold.

"Together the islands make up an area almost equal in size to the state of Massachusetts. Viti Levu, the largest, is mountainous, some peaks rising to 4,000 feet. Levu, capital and one of two towns in the group is on the south side of Viti Levu. To this small town have lately come the reverberations of a world event which bids fair to put Fiji on the map commercially. This was the opening of the Panama canal. Before this event Fiji was as far off the world trade routes as Robinson Crusoe's isle. But now it is on the traveled path between England and her important possessions, Australia and New Zealand.

"Ships having given Fiji a reason for commercial existence, the islands have striven gallantly to produce sugar-cane, coffee, copra, cotton, rubber and cattle. The odds are against Fiji in two respects; native philosophy insists that life is made for fun and frolic and the warm tropics conspire to produce pests as generously as plants. In the tropics, it is said, there is no ointment without its fly; sugar-cane had its labor shortage, the banana its borer, coffee its leaf disease, cotton the capricious American market, and coconuts the hurricane. In spite of these obstacles Fiji's exports rose from $8,000,000 in 1918, to nearly $13,000,000 in 1921.

"Every man-made world development seems to have its commercial Ethiopian in the wood-pile. Back of Fiji's inclination for Canada, is the fact that these South Sea Islands are developing a profitable trade with the Maple-leaf dominion. On the face of things it would seem that Fiji might be better attached to New Zealand or Australia, its neighbors, but laws passed by these respective governments designed to monopolize Fiji trade have alienated the natural affectations of the island's residents.

"Native Fijians are a blending of the Polynesians, typically represented by the Stalwart Hawaiians, and the kinky-haired Malay voyagers. They are a tall, magnificently built people of a color between coffee and bronze, with stiff, brush-like hair, trained into a high pompadour. Music is the soul of the people. They are often heard singing in their villages far into the night. Beauty of face and movement is more the rule than the exception and friendliness to strangers is carried almost to an excess."

Temperament.

"I should advise ladies always to avoid artists who are in search of new sensations and emotions either in friendship or love. . . . Never fall in love with a genius, ladies, nor a man of temperament. All that is left of temperament at home is temper."—Jacinto Benevente, Spanish Playwright.

THE "SONG OF THE SANDS"

"The Libyan desert, the most inhospitable portion of the sequestered Sahara, which an Egyptian prince plans to cross to establish a route between the Nile and the Western Sahara, is the home of the 'song of the sands,'" according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"This is a distinctly musical but very faint sound given out by the sands of the deserts, which sometimes seems to be composed of two distinct parts. One desert traveler described the one part as resembling the sighing of the wind in telegraph wires, and the other as a deep throbbing sound that strongly resembled the after reverberation of the chimes of a large clock. It took place after a steady downpour on an almost cold day followed by frequent vivid summer lightning, and was explained by him as probably being caused by the sand's pouring over a low scarp or declivity somewhere in his vicinity.

"It is hard to realize that an utterly barren desert could be haunted by queer sounds and peopled with abundant animal life. When one treads upon the hard crust on the top of the sand it breaks with a hollow almost bell-like sound, and it is said that there is a place on the top of a plateau near Kasr Dakhl which gives out a musical note when struck.

"It supports, mysteriously, numbers of birds, snakes, lizards, and some very unusual varieties of moths and insects. Foxes and jackals make their ways out into the desert to a distance of several days' travel from the water holes. Their presence might be explained as they live on the snakes and mice, but it is almost impossible to explain how the mice live, as there is practically no vegetation. The simplest thing to do under the circumstances is to fall back upon the old Bedouin explanation that they 'live upon the stones.'

"The Libyan desert may easily be found on a map of Africa by looking for the largest blank space on the continent. It is bordered on the north by a populated coastal strip running down to the Mediterranean, on the east by a populated area in the valley of the Nile, on the south by Darfur and on the west by Tibesti and the Great Sahara. It overlaps into Egypt the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and Italian Libya.

"The Kufra Oasis, 400 miles south of the nearest point on the Mediterranean coast, is an important stopping place on the caravan routes from Darfur and Lake Chad region. Before the World War camels groaned under the loads of feathers, ivory and hides which they brought into the settlement for barter and shipment to the coast.

"Few attempts have ever been made to chart the rolling sand dunes or locate definitely the fresh, bitter, or salt water holes in various parts of the great expanse. The trails are fairly well-known from the coast as far as Aujila and Siwa Oases, but for the long trek to Kufra guides are difficult to obtain and often they lose their way and the party is never heard of again. One of the commonest forms of marking the trail employed by the Bedouins is to tie a string or strip of their garments to the occasional bushes that dot the landscape, but even this is impossible south of Aujila as there is no vegetation. The Arabs have a peculiar way of cautioning desert travelers—'if one goes too far west or too far east, one goes to hell.'

"Despite the tumbled-down walls of its mud houses caused by a combination of lack of funds and the Mohammedan antipathy toward keeping property in repair, Aujila is one of the most picturesque of the Libyan desert towns. It has nine mosques whose only roofs are the sky and the occasional shadow cast by a palm branch, a 'qubba,' or domed tomb, of the Prophet's clerk, and a square watch-tower. The gardens in this and other southern oases of the desert are irrigated, and pumpkins, radishes and onions grow in neat orderly rows.

"One of the most startling features of the Libyan desert to the person unfamiliar with desert travel is the wide range of temperature taking place during 24 hours. From 113 degrees Fahrenheit during the heat of day the thermometer falls to a few degrees above freezing point during the night, and often strong cold winds blow out of the south. Indeed, the Bedouins may well be classed as to dislike of cold weather with the 'snow-dodgers' of the United States who hit southern trails as soon as winter comes. Despite the intense heat caravans make most of their distances during the summer season, starting two hours before sunset and traveling through the night to make their camp two hours after dawn.

"South from Buttafal which lies just to the southeast of Aujila there is a seemingly endless waste of flat sand, the monotony of which nature has not chosen to relieve with sticks, stones or even a blade of grass. Few are the individuals who can recognize a landmark beyond an occasional camel skeleton or a human skull. Parties which becomes hopelessly lost sometimes await a mirage, which brings the country 15 to 50 miles distant into sight for a brief moment, to reveal to them some irregularity in the landscape they may identify. The Arabs say 'the country is turning spade down.'

"One scientist who has made a special study of the sand dunes in the Libyan desert reported that he observed in certain portions of the desert, clay ripples. So hard and compact were they that a fairly strong wind did not disturb their outward appearance, and they gave the impression that they were formed at a very early date.

"Beside the brilliant electrical storms that take place over the Libyan desert, other interesting electrical phenomena have been noted. A woollen burnose or woollen blanket which has been left out during a sandstorm will almost blaze with electrical sparks when it is picked up and shaken, and brush discharges of lightning six or eight inches long have been noted on the ears of camels during sandstorms."

Dangers.

Thirty-nine people in a year slip on soap in the bathtub and are injured enough to collect insurance damages. This is the record for just one company, the Aetna, which also pays damages to 505 injured in a year by tripping over rugs and 869 who fell downstairs. Sixteen golfers collected damages for being hit by golf balls and nine others for falling into bunkers. Five dancers had valid claims from colliding with other dancers.

Going Some.

A Chicago woman was made a great-grandmother three times in one day when baby sons arrived at the homes of two of her granddaughters and one grandson.

Holland Leads in Cocoa.

For 200 years Holland has been a leading factor in the cocoa industry. Today Amsterdam alone has 13 factories engaged in the manufacture of cocoa and chocolate.

Tuning Forks.

It is said that if two tuning forks of the same pitch are placed facing each other, the one sounding and the other silent, in a few seconds the silent one will be giving out a distinctly audible note.

Not Consistent.

Bashful Boy—"Sir, June and I have decided that our happiness is the biggest thing in the world." Father—"You change your mind so often—just yesterday you wanted to marry her!"—Malteaser.

Twenty Miles Up.

The geological survey says that according to science there is an altitude at which water would not boil; however, no one has ever reached that point, as it is about twenty miles above sea level.

One of the Inducements.

Philippa—"I don't want to go to a girl's school." Lucy—"But the men there are likely to be bold and flirtatious." Philippa—"That's what the girls all tell me."

Crowning Fortune.

"The crowning fortune of a man is to be born to some pursuit which finds him employment and happiness, whether it be to make baskets, or broadswords, or canals, or statues, or songs."—Emerson.

Woman as Fire Lookout.

High on the top of Gold mountain, a peak in southwestern Oregon, Mrs. Charles Crouch has maintained a vigil throughout the last summer season as a fire lookout and has made a success of the job.

Short Romances of Every Day Life

Harmony In Hats

By Clyde Weldon

"MADAM, I would not advise buying this hat—it does not harmonize—somehow—"

"I'll have none of your back talk, young woman," said Miss Elite, twisting her slim neck to get a better view of herself in the mirror.

The saleagirl opened her mouth again and would have said more, but Miss Elite's defiant expression meant a scene and Ethel detested scenes. After all—what was the use? It was the same old story over and over—a middle-aged woman pirouetting under a 16-year-old's sun bonnet, or a 16-year-old under purple pansies.

Last week, it had been Miss Prouty—and she had called the floorwalker because Ethel said a large picture hat accentuated her chins. And the week before it was Mrs. Graham, who had stamped out of the store, vowing she would never come back, because Ethel had said a pink hat did not become her navy blue dress. Well, it did seem as if something uncomfortable would happen if the floorwalker received any more unfavorable reports.

So Ethel stood silently watching the movements of her customer, as she twisted and turned and patted and fretted until she had achieved what she considered a stylish angle, and jumping up, exclaiming, "It's all right—just what I want. How much?" Miss Elite's efforts had indeed been gratifying—only one eye was visible beneath the freakish hat—and a cold eye it was—"Baby"—Ethel told herself afterward—altogether devoid of youth and charm and loveliness.

"She wouldn't be half bad looking, if she'd only show her eyebrows and hair," thought Ethel, as she made her way to the cashier with a crisp $20 bill. "But that eye—ugh—and the dress and the shoes! Oh, why do they make such fools of themselves!"

Ethel pondered the problem over and over in her curly head during the rest of the day, but she found no solution. Vain, of course they were—these women—all women. They wanted to look young, or they wanted to look old. And you had to sell them a freak hat just because they liked it, and which they would hate the next month because somebody—not the saleagirl—but Mrs. Brown, or Mr. Thomas—who knew what they were talking about—said it was not becoming. And yet—Ethel knew that these women could wear and what they couldn't wear, and why they could and couldn't. Yet they would never take stock in what she said.

In desperation, a few days later, she buttonholed the proprietor and led him to a quiet corner.

"What's the matter with me?" she pleaded. "I don't want to sell these hats to the wrong women, and yet I do it every yday. It's always the wrong hat. You'd say so yourself, if you saw them wearing 'em. They're sights! And yet they will not listen to me. Half the time they don't even look in the long mirror to see how they look full length. Perhaps then they'd understand what I mean.

"But no, they jam on these hats over one eye, or else stick 'em high up on top of their hair so that they look like loaves of bread. Then they spend 15 minutes, screwing their necks looking into a hand mirror, and never once notice that the hat is pink and blue, and the suit is navy blue. It's awful, awful, awful!"

Ethel fairly shrieked the words into the proprietor's ear.

But he gave her little satisfaction. He simply patted her hand and said: "Don't you bother your curly head about them. You're hired to sell hats, not to unsell 'em. You got to give these women what they want. You can't sell 'em something they don't want if you don't make 'em want it."

"Yes, I've got to make 'em want it," she said, "and I know there is a solution."

And it came sooner than Ethel had dared to hope. It came next day. Miss Elite had come back to buy another hat. No, she had never really cared for the red one . . . besides, Mr. Blackstone had said it made her pink and white blandness pasty looking. No, there was absolutely nothing in the show window she wanted . . . they weren't the right style. Had she anything which would bring out the color of her skin . . . something with a bit of color with an angle?

Ethel's heart skipped a beat. Her eyes took in Miss Elite's brown costume, her neat oxford shoes—she felt old—very old for her years—and wise. Did Miss Elite want a hat which would bring out the delicate tints of her skin—something with an angle? Certainly— but there was only one in the store for her.

Slyly the girl went over to the show window and took out a large, dark brown hat softly shaded with dull flowers. She hastily retreated to the sewing-room for scissors and a bit of bright blue ribbon. With trembling fingers, she gave one corner of the hat an almost vicious tweak, and inserted the ribbon behind the flowers so that only an occasional piece showed. The effect was dashing, chic, almost alarmingly attractive.

She hurried back to her customer, who was by this time rather impatient. But when she saw the hat, her large eyes glowed, and she stretched out her hands eagerly. The saleagirl shook her head negatively.

"One moment. Let's go over there where there is a better light."

She led the way to a long, full length mirror in the front of the store where the daylight streamed through the large windows. "It's wonderful," exclaimed Miss Elite, critically appraising her neat brown figure. Her eyes, beneath carefully trimmed brows, resembled liquid pools . . . "Baby eyes?" . . . who could have imagined such a comparison? Her golden hair glistened through the soft mesh of the crown.

"Why, it looks as though it were made for me," she breathed.

"It was," said Ethel softly as she took her $40 bill to the cashier's desk. She felt very old for her years—and wise.

The Light On The Ridge

By Parke Whitney

OLD settlers will tell you how Denny McCue and Alec Snyder fought to the death on Harmony Ridge. First they battled with their fists, then guns were drawn. They were fighting about the Donaldson girl. Denny shot first and Alec plunged forward with a bullet in his heart. As he fell his gun blazed. Denny gave a wild scream as the bullet tore through his brain. Reeling he plunged over the brink of the canyon and rolled down the steep slope of the gorge. The cry of a girl echoed over the trees as Lillie Donaldson ran up the hill calling on the men to stop shooting. She saw Alec fall. Again her piercing scream echoed over the hills as Denny crashed to the rocks below. Ignoring the body of Alec in the grass she ran to the brink calling for Denny to come back to her. Neighbors who hurried up took charge of the girl now a raving maniac continually calling for Denny. The old settlers will also tell you how Winter and Summer they could see the girl sitting by day on the edge of the canyon calling for Denny and at night her lantern glowing in the darkness as she walked up ad down the crest of the ridge. Denny's body was not found.

"Denny! Come to me, Denny!" shrilled the mournful voice from the ridge. Faithfully in all kinds of weather Lillie patrolled the brink. One day they found her lying dead, her arms extended over the edge and her staring eyes looking down where Denny fell.

"Who's that callin' fer Denny?" asked a trapper coming to town one Winter evening. "I trailed over the ridge an' heara sum woman callin' her kid tew home, I guess."

The men in the store looked at each other inquiringly.

"Ain't no youngster named Denny hereabouts,' said one of the men.

"I shore heard her callin' an' she had a light, too," declared the back woodsman.

The ranchmen lounging around the store went outside and there was no mistaking the white light that floated along the edge of the canyon. Up and down it traveled with the motion of a person walking. Several of the men volunteered to go up and see what it was. They walked silently up the Sweetwater Trail. As they neared the clearing at the top a sweet girl voice plaintively called. The men stopped and listened.

"Denny, oh; come to me, Denny."

Ed Marsman motioned the men to stand quiet while he slid through the brush to the clearing. As he reached the edge of the open space he could see the white figure moving over the grass. In dazzling white the flowing gown trailed behind her. He could see the luminous eyes in the circle of the lantern light she carried. Ed stared, for as she passed a Norway pine tree he could see the outline of the tree through the white garments. Her feet did not seem to touch the ground as she glided along.

"Denny, oh; Denny, come to me," echoed in the silence of the hills.

Several of the men hastily deserted the party and went down the trail as the cry shrilled through the trees. Ed felt a cold sweat start all over him, but he determined to see the thing through. He jumped up and ran towards the ghostly figure in the glow of the light.

"Can I be helpin' you, miss?" he asked, but he was speaking to the empty air. With a snort of terror, Ed ran to his companions who without asking questions hurried down the hill on a run.

In the silvery moonlight the neighbors would see the bright light on the canyon edge. When the Winter blizzards h ed down the slope they saw the light trailing through the storm. In the stillness of the midnight hour those watching with the sick or belated travelers would hear that pleading call:

"Denny, oh; Denny, come to me!" up in the solitude of the pines.

Many saw the flowing robes and the luminous eyes of the spirit girl as she watched faithful to the trust and love of the living.

A curious accident happened to a party of tourists exploring over the hill country. They wandered up on the ridge. The pet dog of a lady in the party chased a jack rabbit and went headlong over the brink of the canyon. It was getting dark. While they could hear the pitiful howls and whines of the dog they could not see it in the shadows. It had caught somewhere on the side of the precipice. In the morning a sheep herder was hired by the lady to rescue the dog. They could still hear its cries down the bank. Ropes were used in lowering the man over the brink. A hundred feet down he dropped into a rocky cave in the face of the cliff and found the dog. With a curse of terror he backed to the opening, as, in a pile, lay human bones crumbling to dust, the skull with a jagged hole in the forehead. When he told the story the old settlers recalled the gun battle and Denny's fall. The bones were gathered up and buried in the village churchyard. As the last shovel of dirt fell on the pine box it was almost dark. The men looked up and saw the white figure with the glowing lantern standing at the head of the grave. A sweet smile illumined the pale face. A saintly look of content, then it slowly sank in the ground in the grave beside the new mount and vanished.

Her Denny had come back to her for his grave was next to the one that held the mortal clay of Lillie Donaldson, the crazy girl.

When Is a Bachelor Safe?

By Monte Darrell

THE affair began on the beach. Colorless stretches of barren sand make perfectly splendid backgrounds for sunshades, and when the sunshade in question is a flaming cerise and the beach is otherwise deserted, the effect produced is startling. I might have known I would be pursued by a woman sooner or later, but I scarcely thought the frivolous sex would care to venture into this bleak and barren neck of the woods.

I, Grey S. Payson, was anything but pleased at the prospect, for it looked as if this designing creature were settled for a comfortable morning in my favorite rocky retreat. Of course I could not risk getting acquainted with her, and remaining longer on the beach would most certainly mean getting acquainted. Not that I would be guilty of bringing it about, but she would probably faint or ask to borrow my fountain pen or need rescuing from something or other. 'Tis the silly ways of all Daughters of Eve.

A deep pity stirred my being. The injustice of it all! A ruined vacation, and, the cause—a woman! I had a swift vision of being forced to accompany her on frequent rambles, helping her by her nervous, clinging hands over innumerable rocks and exerting my manly strength in her behalf.

"Ye gods!" I exclaimed wrathfully, "when is a bachelor safe?"

Generous fathers and beaming mothers, bent on disposing of their bon-bon daughters, had haunted me. Forward maidens had openly proposed to me, yet, thus far, I had escaped the horrible clutches of matrimony.

I loved my wild, desolate bit of northern coast, the barren fishing village and its simple fisher-folk. And now a woman from another world had invaded my paradise! I spent a most miserable morning avoiding her.

By so doing I acquired an aching head and a 24-hour grouch, to say nothing of my splendidly blistered feet. Plodding wearily home I resolved to meet the enemy and—ignore her. Having resolved upon this procedure, I was eager to begin it, and it was therefore with much delight that I chanced to come upon this annoying person, calmly seated upon my golden sands, gazing with vacant eyes upon my foamy ocean, the cerise parasol a most glaring evidence. Seating myself at a safe distance, I lit my pipe and turned my back on her. I'd show her!

To my amazement the enemy remained oblivious to my presence. I chuckled.

It was noon when she arose gracefully and slowly made her way down the beach toward the village. I caught a full glimpse of the intruder, for she lowered her sunshade. In a flash it dawned upon me that a snappier attire would best become my manly figure. I had somewhat neglected my person during my solitary watch by the sea.

It was therefore with great pride that I made my appearance before breakfast bedecked in cool white flannels.

Then I resolved to be nice to her. After all she was probably a very ordinary person. I had made a mountain out of a mole hill, by jingo, she wasn't bad looking! It was then I discovered that the lady had begun the ignoring method herself. She snubbed me openly. With eyes that seemed to look through me yet saw me not, she passed me. I might have been a man or stone for all she seemed to care. Daily we occupied the same beach, breathed the same air, and yet I, Grey S. Payson, a bachelor of some importance, was ignored by a woman—with a cerise parasol!

A week dragged by. The intruder stayed on, and so did I, for why, pray, should this haughty person drive me from my haven? She should not. Her behavior puzzled me at first, so I shadowed her eagerly. I, too, could play by cards and the last trick would be mine!

Sunday dawned bright and glorious. The glittering sands and water beckoned to me, and likewise to a cerise sunshade. I spied it peeking over a boulder. I hastened eagerly, a song on my lips. I would approach the damsel, bow gravely, pass the time of day and depart. I couldn't be too cautious. So, adjusting my nose glasses I made boldly toward the flaming color.

I hesitated at the sound of voices. She was not alone. It was a masculine voice. At that moment she appeared, a flush on her pretty face.

"There he is, Reggie; the brute!"

I was rudely grasped by a tall, slim young man and shaken violently.

"Let me explain!" I muttered feebly.

"I'll teach you to annoy my wife!" thundered Reggie, as he rattled my teeth again, "you flirt!"

As I blindly groped my way back to the village, under darkening skies, I shook my head sadly and gave it up.

"When, if ever, are bachelors safe?"

Cupid and Cousin Anne

By Joella Johnson

DEAR BEN—

Here is a piece of corking luck for you. On Wednesday a rare and fair little cousin of mine is traveling to the big city. There's a long wait due her at Belcherton. Circumstances prevent my trotting along at her side. If you'll make the stopover one-half as enjoyable for her as she will make it for you, I won't have to thank you for the courtesy. The gratitude will be all on your side. A. SANBY.

Benjamin Frale read this letter, considered and despatched a brief reply—

"Have cousin wear rose. Will be properly entertained. Don't worry.

(Signed) "B. F."

On Wednesday morning at the Campford depot, Allan Sanby assisted a dainty, white-haired little woman with her bag and wraps.

"Now, don't be flustered, Cousin Anne. Just get off at Belcherton, wave your rose and the best looker in the city will rush to your side. That's Ben Frale."

As the train pulled out, leaving Sanby on the platform, he reflected:

"That's a good one on Ben, besides saving me from a darn tedious trip. I don't know—this fetching and carrying for an old woman is getting my goat. If it wasn't for Marjorie I believe I'd quit, money or no money. Marjorie! She's some blossoming flower! If I had Cousin Anne's money I'd marry her right off the reel. I'm not so keen on having the old dame croak, but it's a blasted shame she can't loosen up and give a fellow a start, I'll say.

"Gee! Ben will be sore, spending half a day with old Cousin Anne and losing a couple of clients, probably. Just as well, though; he's too keen on work anyway."

. . . . . .

Extract from letter written to Allan Sanby by his Cousin Anna, June 12, 19—:

"I found your Benjamin Frale most enjoyable. I did feel nervous, not having traveled alone for so long. But immediately I got off at Belcherton Mr. Frale took me in hand. He is really delightful. I shall not return as soon as planned, because Mr. F. is coming on to New York for a few days and he has kindly offered to take me about some."

"By Gosh! Ben's sure put one over on me. His little motto used to be 'The harder you dig, the brighter you'll find the gold.' That chap's buckled up against hard luck and he thinks he sees some gold bright enough to suit him without too hard digging. Well, he can go me one better. I can't marry my Cousin Anne, but he can. I'll cook him some way."

. . . . . .

Extracts from letter written to Miss Marjorie Walden by Allan Sanby, June 13, 19—:

"There's a young chap, a lawyer, Benjamin Frale by name, lives over in Belcherton. He's trying to do me out of the old lady's fortune. He's some smart guy, too. Marjorie, as an old friend of mine, won't you go over and persuade him, as only you can, to do the right thing by me?"

Marjorie Walden was an intelligent young woman. Consequently she understood human nature as expressed in the person of Allan Sanby. Also she had a deep sense of humor and a love for adventure.

"I'm trusting everything to you," was the sentence with which Allan had closed his letter to Marjorie. Upon the day following its receipt Marjorie went to Belcherton, and on the day following that Allan Sanby received this telegram:

"Married. Meet Mr. Frale and me at the 5:15 train.

(Signed) "COUSIN ANNE."

Sanby acted much like a fisherman's catch, gasping and flopping. At the depot he had himself enough in hand to be surprised at the appearance of a distinguished elderly gentleman, who took entire charge of Cousin Anne.

"My husband, I believe he has a nephew who was a college chum of yours."

Later it was made even clearer to Allan Sanby that his place as fetcher and carrier had been quite usurped, and in contradiction to his attitude of a few days previously, the knowledge made him feel ill.

"Ben's played me a low-down trick, sending his uncle to meet Cousin Anna. Got to overlook everything though; he's the only fellow I know who'll let me have a cool thousand or two. Marjorie's old man isn't too badly off, I'll blow over to her burg. The sweet flower. She always fell for me."

Late that evening Allan Sanby despatched this telegram to Benjamin Frale:

"All joking aside, meet me at 9:30 tomorrow sure."

At midnight he received this telegraphic reply:

"Impossible. Marjorie and I start honeymoon tomorrow, all joking aside. (Signed) "B. FRALE."

Bashful Bill's Secret

By Phil Moore

WHEN Bill and Marjorie became engaged, they agreed, with true lovers' confidence, that they would have no secrets from each other. This was easy so far as Marjorie was concerned, but poor, bashful Bill, thinking of his desk and the incriminating evidence it concealed, felt quite uncomfortable.

However, he was too blissfully happy to stop at any promise on such an occasion as this. He had captured the one girl—that was all that mattered. He could scarcely believe that he was the same shy boy who had worshipped her from a distance, not daring to compete with so many formidable rivals, until—and again, he flushed painfully when he thought of the secret his desk contained.

Bill's mother, justifiably pleased with her son's choice, invited Marjorie to spend a week in town with them. This suited his sister Dora. It meant a chance to inspect Marjorie's pretty dresses at close range and perhaps copy some of the ideas; besides, there would be matinees, parties and the companionship of a girl of her own age. Her mother would be especially lenient, she knew.

"How does it feel to be engaged?" she asked Marjorie when they were alone, talking rather too intimately of their personal affairs, as young girls have a way of doing.

And Marjorie, responding to Dora's eager questions, confided, among other things, "And we're to have no secrets from each other."

"Oh, then," exclaimed Dora joyfully, "you know what's in Bill's desk, and he won't let any of us open it."

"No," said Marjorie slowly, just a germ of a doubt beginning to trouble her, "but," she continued, brightening, "I'll ask him tonight. I know he'll tell me."

But Bill would not tell her. "Dora was always prying into that kid," he muttered. "She's forever prying into someone's affairs." He always called Dora "the kid," although, as a matter of fact, there was only two years' difference in their ages and he was very fond of her in a patronizing, big brother sort of way if he did tease and scold her when he thought she needed it.

Marjorie coaxed at first, but Bill was obdurate, with a stubbornness that silenced her. But it hurt, nevertheless, and the hurt finally grew out of all proportion to the cause. In fact, Marjorie herself never realized how near she came to breaking the engagement during the days that followed.

Alone together, they both maintained a sullen aloofness. Bill was in despair.

He had left her for the night and was about to open the desk that had caused so much trouble in his young life, when he suddenly thought, "And she'll be going home after tomorrow." He gave the desk a vicious kick and flinging the key across the room, he dropped his head in his arms and did what very little boys do sometimes when their punishment seems too hard to bear.

Tears, like laughter, must end sometime, however, but it was a dejected young man who left Bill's room the next morning.

Perhaps that was why he forgot all about the key. Dora found it when she went to make up his bed, and joyfully called to Marjorie.

"Shall I open it?" she giggled.

"It is immaterial to me," Marjorie answered with a coolness that made Dora look up sharply and gave her an inkling of the true state of affairs.

It was this, perhaps, that decided her, for with a quick turn she unlocked the desk and rolled back the cover. The first thing that caught her eye was some pamphlets piled neatly at the left. She picked one up, looked it over with a puzzled frown, then fairly screamed with laughter.

"Oh, dear, oh dear," she rocked back and forth, unable to control her mirth, "just listen, Marjorie. Let me read you these titles—'How to Win Her,' by John Denton Gray, professor of psychology at Michigan University. 'When and How to Propose.' 'How to Hold Your Wife's Affection.' 'The Successful Marriage.'"

"Oh, dear, oh, dear, this is too funny! Won't I tease him! Just wait."

Marjorie was conscious of a great relief and also of a surge of tenderness almost mother-like in its understanding.

"You must never tell anyone of this!" she warned Dora firmly, as the girl locked the desk and placed the key where she had found it. And Dora never did.

Bill wondered at the sudden change in Marjorie, but took his good luck without questioning. He wondered still more at the mischievous twinkle in her eye when, a little later, he said impulsively, "Just the same, Marjorie, I think if one has an understanding of psychology, he can get anything he wants."

Thunder Showers Fertilize.

Scientists say a thunder shower is an excellent fertilizer. Each quart of rain that falls in a thunderstorm contains about one-eightieth grain of ammonia.

NAME OF WARREN G. HARDING, MARTYR PRESIDENT, REMAINS UNBLEMISHED

Frank A. Vanderlip Told the Senate Committee That He Himself Did Not Believe the Rumors to Which He Gave Circulation—Admits That He Had No Facts to Substantiate Statement—Louis H. Brush Testified That He and Roy D. Moore Purchased the Marion Star With Their Own Money — Committee, Without Record Vote, Approved Counsel Nominated by President Coolidge.

Washington, Feb. 15—The senate oil committee took a ten days recess tonight after receiving information which discredited two of the most sensational rumors which recently have come before it.

Frank A. Vanderlip, whose public references to the sale of President Harding's Marion Star had shocked the country, told the committee that he himself did not believe the rumors to which he gave circulation; had no facts to support them and had made no efforts at verification.

Otto H. Kahn, and E. F. Yoakum, who had been depended upon as the principal witnesses regarding the story of a $1,000,000 oil slush fund, notified the committee they had no knowledge whatever about it and were ready to say so in the witness stand.

The days recess was coincident with a sharp reaction in the New York stock market after reports were circulated that a prominent Wall street trader had turned bearish in the belief that the oil disclosures were undermining public confidence.

The adjournment was announced after an executive session at the end of the day. It was explained that Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, the dominant figure in the pressing of the inquiry, found it necessary to be absent from Washington for some days.

At this executive session the committee approved without a record vote the nominations of special government counsel in the oil cases—Atlee Pomerene, of Canon, Ohio, and Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia. The nomination of Mr. Roberts was sent to senate today by President Coolidge to take the place of that of Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago, which was withdrawn yesterday.

The fight on Mr. Pomerene, which has been waged in the committee for several days, will be taken to the senate floor. Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, who initiated it, said he would ask for consideration of the nomination in open executive session and had assurances that his request would be granted.

After it had finished with Mr. Vanderlip, the committee received a statement from Louis H. Brush, one of the purchasers of the Marion Star, that he and Roy D. Moore alone had bought the paper and that every cent that went into the purchase was their own money. The committee did not even think it necessary to question him.

George K. Thomas, secretary of the Pioneer Oil Company, testified that he had been advised a month before hand that Harry F. Sinclair would get the lease of Teapot Dome and that it was on the basis of this information that Sinclair was induced to agree to pay the Pioneer and Belco Oil companies $1,000,000.

After waiting here three weeks to testify, Thomas Johnson, foreman of Former Secretary Fall's New Mexico ranch, told the committee he never had received checks aggregating $68,— or any like sum from Sinclair.

A move to open a new avenue of investigation into the official acts of Secretaries Denby and Fall will be made tomorrow in the senate with the offering of a resolution by Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, author of the oil resolution. This will have to do with charges laid before the president today that in July, 1921, Fall and Denby began negotiations looking to the leasing of the Matanuska coal fields in Alaska on the same basis as the oil leases subsequently were made.

Mr. Vanderlip was on the stand today a little less than two hours and was subjected to one of the most merciless cross examinations of the whole investigation. He was repeatedly asked why, without any facts upon which to base them he had given circulation to such rumors about the dead president, and always his reply was that he regarded it as his "patriotic duty" to bring the rumors into the open in the hope of scotching them.

Chairman Lenroot began the examination, and time and again came back to it, sometimes interrupting the half-dozen other senators who joined in the questioning.

At the outset Mr. Vanderlip told the committee that he had stated emphatically in his address that he knew nothing whatever about the facts upon which the rumors were predicated. He denied that he had circulated a scandal, arguing repeatedly that what he had done was to bring to light rumors current in Washington and New York and over much of the country.

"It was something rising to the importance of the 'whispered campaign' that there was in the last month before Mr. Harding's election," he said. "And I believe that out of respect to memory that thing should be brought up to close scrutiny, and the scandal, if it is a scandal, as I believe it is—should be downed."

Insisting that his only purpose in making his statement was to clear Mr. Harding's name, the banker declared he was a friend of the late president and had respect for his memory. Asked by Senator Adams, democrat, Colorado, about a rumor that a grudge against Mr. Harding was the cause of his statements, he declared that nothing could be further from the truth.

When he was questioned about another portion of his now famous Ossining address, to the effect that had the committee heard former Secretary Fall testify further he would have "reached" on those in high places, Mr. Vanderlip said he had no information upon which to base that statement.

When the committee had finished its questioning, Mr. Vanderlip was cross-examined by William H. Vodrey of East Liverpool, Ohio, counsel for the present owners of the Marion Star.

"What effort, Mr. Vanderlip, did you make to ascertain the truth or falsity of these scandalous reports?" asked Mr. Vodrey.

"None at all," was the answer. "I had no means."

"I thought so", interposed Mr. Vodrey, "A friend of Mr. Harding, did you communicate any of these reports to those who were most closely associated to Mr. Harding?"

"No, that would have been impertinence on my part."

The cross-examination was brief, and when it was concluded Louis H. Brush, who with Roy D. Moore bought the Marion Star from President Harding just before his death, appeared before the committee voluntarily to present a statement as to the circumstances and conditions of that purchase.

"Roy D. Moore and I, alone, purchased the Marion Star," he said. "We have not received one penny from any outside source. We have received no assistance of any kind, and no promises. Every cent that went into the purchase of the Marion Star was our own money."

WAS TOLD SINCLAIR WAS TO GET TEAPOT DOME LEASE

Washington, Feb. 15. — George Thomas of Denver, secretary and treasurer of the Pioneer Oil company, testified before the oil committee today that in March, 1922, he was told Harry F. Sinclair was to get the lease of Teapot Dome.

This was about a month, he said, before the lease was signed. President Aitken of the Midwest Refining company was his informant, he added.

"We were informed of the conditions under which Sinclair was negotiating," Thomas said, "and we would not have taken it under those terms; the royalty was too high."

Thomas said President Aitken of the Midwest Oil company, had told him to give John C. Shaffer, publisher of the Chicago Post and other newspapers an eighth interest in the Pioneer company.

"Mr. Shaffer represented himself to us," Thomas said, "as a man of nationwide means and ability and could be of service to us in helping to get our lease."

Thomas testified that he and Aitken had sufficient assurances on March 8 that Sinclair would get Teapot to "ride" him until he signed the agreement to buy the Pioneer claims.

The representatives unanimously voted in favor of the Mellon tax reduction bill, although no definite action was taken.

The association also went on record as opposing the plan of many factories of selling products at cost to employes. The opposition was based on the claim that the method provided a way to make inroads on retail trade by the fact that employes abuse the privilege in not only buying for themselves but also for their friends.

BITTER FIGHT PROMISED ON TAX BILL IN HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 15.—Republican house leaders definitely agreed today to make a stand for a maximum surtax rate of 35 per cent instead of the Mellon rate of 25 per cent reported by the ways and means committee. At the same time they made plans for a fight to the finish on the maximum surtax rate of 44 per cent. as well as the normal income rates, proposed by the democrats.

While the house was spending another day discussing the revenue bill, Representative Longworth, the party leader, held a conference with about ten others directing the republicans' campaign. Afterwards it was announced that no attempt would be made to obtain a vote on the 25 per cent surtax maximum when a showdown comes next week on the income tax schedule.

Instead, the republicans, in making a stand for a 35 per cent. rate, as a compromise, will endeavor to so shape the situation that a vote on such a proposal will come before the democrats can force a roll call on their recommendation that surtaxes range upward to 44 per cent.

The republicans indicated that, if routed on 35 per cent, they would gradually yield upward, perhaps to 37, then to 40 per cent, if necessary, in an effort to command a majority. Republicans and democrats alike agreed today there was no possibility of a favorable vote in the house on the Mellon surtax rate. Some republicans expressed confidence that the 35 per cent maximum could be put through, although others were dubious.

While declining to predict that the republicans could muster enough votes for the 35 per cent rate, Mr. Longworth declared that the rate agreed upon would be less than 44 per cent.

On the other hand, democratic leaders are confident that, with the aid of republicans unwilling to go along with the organization, they can write their income tax schedule into the bill. Representative Garner of Texas, ranking democrat of the ways and means committee, asserted there was a majority in sight for the rates carried in his substitute. Representative Garrett, the democratic leader, made this prediction:

"The tax bill as it is passed by the house will be the democratic plan."

Montpelier Fire Caused 11 Deaths

Couple Were Killed in Leap From Window When They Missed the Fire Net—Property Loss $300,000.

Montpelier, Vt., Feb. 15.—The death toll of the fire which destroyed the Lawrence building and threatened the business section of this city early today, was placed at 11 tonight, but only two of the nine bodies thought to be in the ruins had been recovered.

Walter Washburn and Mrs. J. F. Waterman were killed when they leaped from windows, missing the fire net spread to receive them. Near one of the bodies found in the ruins was the gold watch of William Gisbourne, who raced through the corridors, warning other tenants of their danger when the fire began, and the remains were thought to be those of Gisbourne and his wife.

The cause of the fire has not been discovered, the report of a boiler explosion preceding its outbreak having been discredited. The property loss of the four-story brick building was placed at $300,000.

One of the injured, Claude Martin, was expected to die, and four other victims, were reported in a serious condition.

Two entire families, those of Walter Washburn and J. F. Waterman, are included in the list of dead and missing.

Firemen and volunteer workers toiled throughout the day and tonight continued their search for the bodies of victims by the aid of searchlights. Deputy Fire Marshal A. G. Prebles, assisted by States Attorney Charles B. Adams, will begin an investigation into the cause of the fire tomorrow. J. W. Peck, whose store in the building was one of the first to be destroyed, expressed the opinion tonight that the fire was started by an overheated furnace.

On account of the tragedy the ski meet and winter carnival planned for February 22 and 23 has been indefinitely postponed.

Among Hazel's papers was a membership card in the Knights of Columbus at Alexandria, Va. Other records indicated he had been employed as a machinist at the Norfolk, Va., naval torpedo station.

Hazel, it was said at the hotel, registered last night. The Hartford police were notified and the body probably will be sent to that city.

COURT DECISION FAVORS COUNTESS DE PERIGNY

New York, Feb. 15.—Supreme Court Justice Wagner today refused counsel for Mme. Madeline Helen Modica permission to examine Countess Margaret Thaw Carnegie De Perigny in the advance of the trial of a $500,000 alienation-of-affections suit Mme. Modica has filed against the countess.

Expressing a belief that Countess De Perigny, who is a sister of Harry K. Thaw, contemplated an early voyage to Paris, Mme. Modica sought the court's permission to have her examined at once concerning 250 telegrams and letters the defendant is alleged to have sent the plaintiff's husband, Emanuel Victor Modica.

Justice Wagner denied Mme. Modica's petition on the ground that the questions her counsel desired to ask the countess were of a nature which the law did not permit in preliminary inquiries in cases of alienation, breach of promise, divorce, etc.

SENATOR GREENE SHOT DURING FIGHT BETWEEN OFFICERS AND BOOTLEGGERS

Washington, Feb. 15.—Frank L. Greene, senior senator from Vermont, was shot and seriously wounded here tonight during a pistol duel between prohibition agents and bootleggers.

The bullet struck him over the left eyebrow and surgeons at the hospital to which he was taken immediately were unable to determine whether it had lodged in the brain. Senator Greene was conscious, however, and this was viewed as a good sign.

Senator Greene and Mrs. Greene were walking west on Pennsylvania avenue near the capital when the gun battle started. More than a dozen shots were exchanged, but no one else was injured. The senator was injured while trying to shield Mrs. Greene in the hail of bullets.

Bystanders told the police the shooting had barely begun before Senator Greene fell. They rushed to his aid and placed him in an automobile which hurried to a hospital. The bootleggers, who were in an automobile escaped, but the police held O. E. Fisher, a prohibition agent, who said he had fired four shots.

Strike to Close All British Isles Ports

Dockworkers Have Been Ordered to Go Out on Strike at Noon Today — Reject Wage Offer.

London, Feb. 15 (By the A. P.)—Tomorrow at noon labor in all the ports of the United Kingdom will cease. Notwithstanding the strenuous efforts Minister of Labor Shaw had made during the past two days to bring about a settlement of the dispute between the dockworkers and their employers it has been impossible to unravel the tangled skein, and this evening the dockworkers ordered their men on strike tomorrow.

The collapse in the negotiations arose out of the refusal of the employers to make any advance over the terms they offered the dockers last Monday, an increase of one shilling a day in the wages of the men an inquiry into the question of the "decasualization" of dock labor. The dockers rejected the offer.

Delegates of National Council of Port Labor Employes from various cities who have been here attending the negotiations are postponing their return home at the special request of Minister of Labor Shaw, who will hold another conference tomorrow which will be attended by delegates from both sides to the controversy. It was explained tonight, however, that tomorrow's conference would not have the effect of postponing the putting of the strike into effect.

The breakdown in the negotiations is attributed by the leaders of the dockers mainly to the attitude of the London employers, who refused to grant any concessions on the subject of decasualization except another inquiry. Decasualization is the chief bone of contention, and the dockers rejected the profered inquiry because, they say, a similar inquiry was made in 1920 by a committee, which recommended guaranteed employment under a joint plan, but which came to nought because the employers refused to carry out the plan. The dockmen also are equally as firm in insisting on their demands for a two shilling advance in wages.

Minister of Labor Shaw tonight made public the provisions of a bill which will be introduced in parliament shortly by Ben Smith and which will be sponsored by Ben Tillett and other labor leaders. It aims at decasualization of dock and waterside labor, but it is considered that its fate will be uncertain in the present parliament. The bill provides that a joint council of employers and workers shall frame a port registration and insurance plan under which all dockers shall be registered and guaranteed a certain weekly wage.

The employers issued an official statement tonight in which it is asserted that they offered to submit the question of an advance of two shillings in the wages of the men to arbitration.

COOLIDGE HALTS PROGRESS ON PLANS FOR POLAR FLIGHT

President Has Sent an Order to Secretary Denby to Suspend All Preparations For Flight of the Shenandoah Pending Some Form of Congressional Approval of the Project—There Has Been Considerable Opposition to the Required Expenditure of $350,000 — Naval Bill Pending in the House Makes No Provision For the Flight.

Washington, Feb. 15.—President Coolidge today ordered preparations for the naval north pole expedition suspended.

By direction of the president, Secretary Denby sent out orders to bring all preparations for the flight of the Shenandoah to an abrupt stop pending some form of congressional approval of the project.

A White House spokesman intimated that if such approval was forthcoming preparations would be resumed immediately. Naval officials were frankly doubtful, however, that they could obtain congressional sanction in time to carry out the flight this year.

The decision of the president was announced in the following statement issued by Secretary Denby:

"Orders to cease preparations for the polar expedition were issued today by the secretary of the navy. The president, having been informed that considerable opposition existed to the required expenditure of $350,000, instructed the department not to proceed with the expedition at this time nor until he naval bills have been considered and congress given an opportunity, if it desires, to express its views upon the polar expedition."

Mr. Denby would not amplify the statement. At the White House, however, it was said that the president, in view of opposition to the flight that had developed in congress, believed it wise to await action by that body to show its approval of the expenditures necessary to carry out the plans.

The White House explanation suggested that a request had been submitted for authority to spend $400,000 on the polar expedition. The pending naval bill, now in the house, contains no item of this character, however, nor was it clear to what specific authorization the White House spokesman had reference.

The naval bill to cover expenditures for the fiscal year 1925 was voted out by committee with a report attached saying that the committee had discussed he polar flight plan with Secretary Denby and naval officers but would not interfere with it in any way in the supply measure, since expenditures for the flight were to be made from funds already available and not from those provided in the 1925 supply measure.

There have been instances of opposition to the flight being voiced in the senate and house, but no definite movement has been apparent in either house. Rpresentativ Longworth, of Ohio, republican leader in the house, said today he had heard of no such movement.

Chairman Madden of the house appropriations committee, is understood to be in favor of the flight but opposed to any congressional action in connection with it. He said today that he took the position tha operation of the naval air forces was at much a matter of departmental discretion as operation of the surface ships and that congress should not interfere.

Chairman French, republican, Idaho chairman of the naval sub-committee of the appropriations committee, was at first inclined to be dubious as to the wisdom of the attempt to reach the pole by air. A resolution by Representative Taylor, democrat, West Virginia, calling on Secretary Denby for information on the project, resulted in the committee taking it up with naval officials. After hearing Mr. Denby, Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of the naval air service, and Commander Bartlett, Arctic explorer and reserve officer dropped this inquiry. Representative French said today that the naval officials had made out a very good case for their plans.

Representative Byrnes, democrat, South Carolina, of the naval committee, said today he knew an amendment to the naval bill would be offered in the house making funds provided for 1925 unavailable for the purposes of the polar trip. Representative Rogers, republican, Massachusetts, however, has pending a resolution which would put the house on record as favoring the flight. He said tonight he would attempt to bring his resolution up tomorrow for action.

HEAVY OVERSUBSCRIPTION OF $150,000,000 JAPANESE LOAN

New York, Feb. 15—Heavy oversubscription of the $150,000,000 Japanese loan was announced today by J. P. Morgan & Company, head of the nationwide banking syndicate which made a public offering of the bonds. No estimate of the total of excess orders was obtainable, but it was said that subscriptions for the $25,000,000 worth of bonds offered in Holland numbered several times that amount, and that a heavy volume of orders came from Switzerland and Sweden.

Allotment of the bonds probably will be announced tomorrow or Monday, it was announced at the Morgan offices, for an attempt was being made tonight to tabulate the flood of orders from all sections of the country.

Industrial corporations were heavy subscribers orders for $1,000,000 and more of the bonds coming from the United States Steel corporation, the General Electric, Western and Westinghouse Electric companies, Standard Oil Co., of New York and Gillette Safty Razor Company.

ASSASSINATED PRIEST LEFT ESTATE TO HOUSEKEEPER

Bridgeport, Feb. 15.—An estate of $20,000 is left to Mrs. Nellie Hines, his housekeeper, out of which an annuity of $100 is to be paid to his sister, Mary Elizabeth, of Munich, Germany, by the will of Rev. Hubert Dahme, murdered priest, which was filed for probate here today.

The will was made at Esher, England, June 30, 1913. One paragraph of the will reads: "I give nothing to my own relatives with the exception of my sister, Mary Elizabeth Dahme, residing at present in Germany, to whom said Mrs. Nellie Hines will pay $100 annually to be taken out of my estate."

Rev. John J. FitzGerald, of Westerly, R. I., is named as executor.

THIRD WIFE PERMITTED TO USE HUSBAND'S NAME

New York, Feb. 15.—The appellate division of the supreme court today sustained a lower courts decision refusing to grant an injunction to Mrs. Estelle M. Clark, second wife of Frank C. Clark, manager of a tourist agency restraining his third wife, formerly Miss Bee Wright, from using his name. The second Mrs. Clark's suit against the third wife for $100,000 for alleged alienation of affections was dismissed.

The plaintiff contended that Clark had never been legally married to his third wife, whom he wedded after she had cared for him during a long illness in the Palace hotel in San Francisco. The former Miss Wright alleged, on her part, that Clark had never been lawfully wedded to Estelle M. Clark.

Clark divorced his first wife in South Dakota in 1904 and soon afterward married again in the same state. This divorce, according to counsel for the third wife, was not legal as the first Mrs. Clark had not been served with a process nor had she submitted herself to the jurisdiction of the Dakota courts. Counsel for Mr. Clark and the third wife contended that therefore the second marriage was not legal and that when the first Mrs. Clark died in 1908 Clark was free to re-marry.

In 1919, counsel for the third Mrs. Clark averred, Clark obtained a divorce from his second wife in Nevada and a few months later married Miss Wright at Elko, Nev., after an archbishop of the Roman Catholic church in San Francisco had advised that the church did not regard the second marriage as legal and that since the first wife was dead, Clark could marry.

CONFESSED MURDER OF REV. DAHME IN BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, Feb. 15.—Harold Israel, 23, recently discharged from the United States army, today was bound over to the superior court without bonds on the charge of first degree murder in connection with the assassination of Rev. Hubert Dahme, pastor of St. Joseph's R. C. church, on the street here on Feb. 4. Israel's arraignment followed, the police say, a complete confession in which Israel is alleged to have ascribed the crime to "an irresistible impulse to kill someone."

Few persons were in court today when Israel was arraigned. He waived examination and was immediately bound over. He did not utter a word while in the court room, indicating by a wave of his arm that he understood the prosecutor's interrogation as to waiving examination.

"I didn't know it was a priest I had killed until afterwards" he is said to have told the police. "Something made me pull my gun and fire. If anyone else, instead of the priest, had been coming along at the moment they would have got it."

Israel traced his movements after the shooting, according to the police, saying that he returned to a theatre within a few blocks of the scene of the murder within an hour after the priest was shot. He saw a movie show and then went home. He left home later in the week and went to Norwalk where he was arrested on Monday.

WILLIMANTIC

A busy special short calendar session and assignment of cases in the Windham county superior court was held Friday in this city, Judge George E. Hinman on the bench. There was a delay in the case of Nellie Rood vs Alfred W. Rood, a motion being made by plaintiff's attorney, Ernest C. Morse of Putnam to punish the defendant for contempt of court, due to the fact that the defendant paid the $200 alimony ordered by the court December 19 at Putnam, Friday morning. The sum of $36 at the rate of $4 a week remains to be paid for the support of a child born of their marriage. The Roods were divorced last December. The defendant was allowed until March 7 to pay up the $36 and the amount that will be due in addition on that date.

In the case of Fiina Alberstad versus August Alberstad, judgment was given for the sale of property for $875. The case was uncontested. Attorney John T. Barry of Jewett City appeared for the plaintiff. The court allowed that the property in Canterbury be sold, with notice of intention published during the next three weeks. Alberstads, who formerly resided in New Jersey, came to Canterbury and purchased a farm. The two disagreed on certain matters and the woman left and sought settlement for one-half the amount that was due her for the purchase of farm stock and machinery.

The case of Gerber & Company vs George J. Bedard was assigned as special for Tuesday, February 26, in this case.

Two uncontested divorce cases were then disposed of. The first was that of Monroe S. Kenyon vs Bertha M. Kenyon. The plaintiff testified that he married defendant at Sterling October 29, 1900. They lived together for eleven years after which his wife left him and went to live with another man who was working on the state highway. He had not seen his spouse since that time. Four children were born to them, the youngest of whom is now 15. Neighbors of the plaintiff, William Hazard and John Shepherd testified as to his good character, and said that as far as they knew the defendant had never returned to Sterling.

Judge Hinman granted the decree on the grounds of desertion and allowed complainant the custody of the minor child.

The case of Angelina Dugeumin against Joseph Dugeumin, both of Oneco, was next taken up. Mrs. Dugeumin and that she had been cruelly abused and as witnesses to this fact Mary Sherman and Deputy Sheriff Frank C. Tillinghast of Central Village testified. A valentine whist party Thursday evening at the Mansfield town hall, Spring Hill, was given by the teachers of the town. Seventy-five persons were present and greatly enjoyed the evening. Julius N. Guay, 22, formerly of Chaplin was before the local police court Friday morning on a charge of concealing property held under conditional sale. Guay did not enter any plea and asked to have his case continued for the purpose of securing counsel. Judge Frank H. Foss then ordered the case continued until this (Saturday) morning under bonds of $500.

Guay has been sought by the local police for over a year and it was not until a short time ago that his whereabouts were learned. He was found to be residing on Tolland street, East Hartford. Chief of Police McKee of East Hartford placed Guay under arrest Thursday, on a warrant issued from the local and late Thursday evening Captain Grady made the trip to Hartford and brought Guay to this city. The fidelity of Guay's young wife was displayed when she refused to let him come alone and came here to spend the night in the local lock-up with her husband.

C. Winfield Noyes who now deals in automobile accessories in this city, the complainant in the case, June 12, 1923, Noyes, who was then in the automobile business, sold a second hand Overland touring car to Guay on condition that he pay $50 June 15 and the balance at the rate of $40 a month until the sum of $225 was paid. Guay made but one payment of $20, on July 7, 1923, and then disappeared from this section. The warrant for Guays arrest had been in force for over a year. Guay admits that he made but one payment on the car, which he says he no longer possesses, as it was stolen from him in New York city some time ago.

Funeral services for Richard Curvengen were held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock at his home at Spring Hill, Rev. Hawthorne Jones officiated. The bearers were Robrt Stearns, Wallace Storrs, Frank Slater, Louis Prue, Felix Benoit and, Carroll Hawkins. Arrangements were in charge of Avery & Van Zandt.

Miss Alice Bugbee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Bugbee, of Jackson street, this city, was the heroine who figured in the apprehension of the alleged "dinner burglar" in New Haven Thursday. Miss Bugbee returned to her home on York street after a shopping trip and found Theodore Lesser in her room. He gave her a jewel case and told her to say nothing. Miss Bugbee followed the man to the street and called for help. The chase was taken up by citizens, police and firemen and the fugitive was captured. The "dinner burglar" has a record of making as many as 24 calls in one evening while families were at dinner.

CORCORAN DIVORCE CASE— PUTNAM SCHOOL GIRL ACCUSED

(Special to The Bulletin)—Willimantic, Feb. 15.—The contested divorce case of Laura B. Corcoran vs Thomas J. Corcoran was started during the forenoon session of the superior court today. Mrs. Corcoran seeks a divorce on the grounds of intolerable cruelty, intemperance and infidelity, also seeks alimony of $25,000. Attorneys Charles L. Torrey of Putnam and William A. King of this represent the plaintiff and Attorney John F. Carpenter appeared for the defendant. The case is an interesting one as Mr. and Mrs. Corcoran were prominent residents of Putnam up to the time of their separation. The plaintiff appeared nervous as she took the witness stand and while telling her story of cruelty and infidelity during her married life she frequently broke into sobs. She said that since they were married, April 13, 1913, her husband had been most disagreeable to her and that she was forced to leave him in May, 1923.

During the last four years that they lived together they resided under the same roof but spent the days and nights in rooms apart. The complainant alleged that her husband abused her most shamefully, denying her money to purchase household necessities and swearing at her.

Mrs. Corcoran said that the gulf between herself and her husband widened when she took into the house a girl named Gladys Robinson, who attended Putnam High school. The girl was given a home for doing light housework after school hours and she was allowed $1.50 a week for spending money.

Mrs. Corcoran soon discovered that her husband and the young girl were becoming close friends and in the course of time this friendship grew to intimacy. Mrs. Corcoran awoke one night and found that her husband had left the room. She got up and her search led to the kitchen where she found Mr. Corcoral and the Robinson girl. She reprimanded the pair for this clandestine meeting and her husband then insulted her and struck her in such a manner that she fell to the floor. Mrs. Corcoran's knee was injured by the fall.

The plaintiff's suspicions became a certainty when she began to find in her bed light colored strands of hair and hairpins to match which she knew belonged to the Robinson girl. Mrs. Corcoran reproached her husband for this action and he informed her that he was running the house and could do about as he saw fit. On a number of occasions Mrs. Corcoran went to the Robinson girl's room and on the bureau she found five and ten dollar bills which she had reason to believe were given the girl by her husband. On another occasion Gladys Robinson received a large box filled with pretty silk underwear and other articles of clothing. Mrs. Corcoran asked the girl to leave the house if she had any decency or womanhood, but this Miss Robinson refused to do, because Mr. Corcoran wished her to stay. Mrs. Corcoran also stated that her husband was intemperate. The plaintiff stated that her own health was wrecked by the trials and tribulations which she was forced to undergo at the hands of her husband.

Court adjourned at one o'clock for luncheon and reopened at 2.05 o'clock with the resuming of Mrs. Corcoran's testimony. Judge Hinman questioned the witness regarding various phases of her evidence. Witness was not cross-examined by the defendant's attorney.

Dr. F. E. Wilcox of this city testified to the nervous condition in which Mrs. Corcoran now was, stating that her health had been impaired through worry. Mrs. Effie Guren, of Putnam, testified in regard to the incident in the kitchen of the Corcoran home, when the defendant was found by Mrs. Corcoran with the girl in the case. Miss Ely, Pandora Allard, of Rockville testified in visiting the Corcoran home and of the quarrels in which she related an [illegible] Corcoran had struck her husband [illegible] even her a push [illegible] husband with the automobile [illegible] knees in the [illegible]

Court adjourned at 2.40 o'clock and the case, attorneys and witnesses retired to an anteroom where the question of alimony was discussed. The session was resumed at 4.20 o'clock. Arguments by the attorneys with regard to the amount of alimony followed until 4.43. The attorneys could not agree on the amount to be paid and the granting of the decree was withheld until later. Court was then adjourned until Tuesday next at 10.30 a. m. in Putnam.

JEWETT CITY

Sometime during Thursday night, burglars entered the N. Y. and N. H. railroad station. Entrance was gained through a window in the telegraphic office, the glass being broken, then the spring of the window was manipulated through the break.

The weighing machine was broken open and rifled, Benjamin Miller, a brother of the station agent Olin F. Miller was the main loser. He has a cigar and lunch stand in the station and all his penny-in-the-slot gum and candy sellers were cleared out of pennies. Cigars, pipes, cigarettes and other smokers' articles to the value of about $40 were taken.

Fred L. Kanahan was in Boston Thursday to see his wife, who has undergone a critical examination at the Peter Brent Brigham hospital. The medical staff gave Mr. Kanahan assurance that in about two weeks and a half his wife could leave the institution. She may then go to the home of a sister in Allston before returning home. Much sympathy is left here for Mrs. Kanahan on account of the oft repeated illnesses she has been called upon to bear.

The election last week of John Barnett of the Finn theatre, of this place as Secretary of the Motion Pictures Owners of Connecticut, serves to show the position to which the local playhouse has attained since operating under the new management.

The comforts which are being enjoyed by the theatre-going public, and the increased patronage which the house is receiving are matters of common benefit.

It is possible that Mr. Barnett may deem it advisable to resign the position as on the night of his selection a telegram from Worcester advised him of a position along the line for which he fitted in the Boston University.

Daniel L. Phillips has trimmed the beautiful Norway spruces in front of his residence on East Main street.

Of all the coniferous trees to be seen in this section, these are the most admired. They are tall and straight with great overhanging limbs that transform the hottest day in summer, to one of delightful coolness, as one enters their shade. During the recent ice storms, the thick foliage became so heavily weighed, as to bear the branches too low over the highway, so Mr. Phillips cut off a few of the lower limbs.

Mr. Phillips, as well as all the passers-by on East Main street, would note with sorrow any human attack or natural indication of decay, as touching these handsome trees.

Others who would feel their loss, would be the great colony of grackles that keep up intensive housekeeping in their lofty tops, each summer. In a few weeks the advance guard will arrive from the Rio Grande and look over their old tenements of last year. Forty odd years ago there were three local boys, much interested in the collection of birds' eggs.

One of the boys, not now a boy by some years, lives here today. Another lives in a distant part of the state, the third having died in Montville. These three conceived the idea of adding a few crow-black birds' eggs to their collection. It was in early May and these big trees accommodated fully two dozen nests.

Francis S. Young then owned the trees and he wouldn't listen to the appeal from the trio to be allowed to visit the nests. One night, shortly after one o'clock three silent figures stole up the road, and after harking around a little, each boy shinned a tree. Two of the boys carried in their pockets boxes filled with cotton in which to bring down the eggs.

The oldest boy had no box, so, on reaching a nest near the top of a 60-footer he carefully stowed two nice warm eggs inside each cheek.

All went well until the final drop of 6 or 7 feet from the lower limb to the ground. The force of impact was too much for the over-ripe eggs. As the boy spat out two young black bird chicks he softly whispered "Never again!"

TAX LIST IN POETRY FOR BOLTON ASSESSORS

Taxes, though often the subject of wrath, are seldom the inspiration for poetry. Today, the irate property holder, if criticised for insufficient detail in listing his belongings, would probably not take his revenge in rhyme and rhythm, as did the well known Dr. Jonas C. Maine back in 1850. Though Dr. Maine lived in the small town of Bolton, his fame spread far and wide. The poetical tax list is treasured in the archieves of Bolton, and its circumstance furnishes one of the town's most valued traditions.

Dr. Maine, it seems, was a versatile citizen of eccentric disposition. He had some differences with the local assessors, being criticised for making out the required list in insufficient detail. Whereupon he set himself about preparing such a detailed list as made the fault finding assessors rise up in righteous indignation. The rhymed document caused much merriment among all the townspeople, with the exception of the assessors, who regarded the finely written poem, which filled three columns of small type in the country newspaper as an affront to their dignity. They demanded an orthodox list, which was stoutly refused by the redoubtable Dr. Maine, who had taken much pains to include in his poem every item of his earthly possessions from the house to the rolling pin in his pantry.

Jonas Chapman Maine, doctor, farmer, musician, lawyer, and proficient in divers other arts and sciences, was born at North Stonington in 1806. His father, Jabish S., was a stone mason and farmer, and his mother, Freelove Edwards, although of little education, was a woman of great natural ability. She was especially gifted as a nurse, dispensing far and wide "yarbs" and salves of her own preparation. She had a ready pen and was renowned for the rhymes which she composed and the alacrity with which she produced them, apropos all sorts of occasions and striking events. She was the mother of 13 children, 11 of whom grew to maturity. Among all her descendants there seemed to be a strong tendency to the medicine or the law, medicine predominating, as evidenced by the many physicians, dentists and nurses in the family.

One of the brothers was Judge Seneas C. Maine, who once presided over the Boston police court and was at one time a member of the Massachusetts senate. Another was Dr. Ira C. Maine of New York state, who became eminent in both law and medicine.

Jonas Maine took a liking to books early in life. At the age of eight he rode a horse all one day to earn five cents, with which he bought himself a primer that he preserved until his death. Leaving school at 16, he followed cod fishing for a season and then taught school for several terms. Being mechanically inclined, he learned the trade of clock repairing, and traveling through the south and west in that line, he managed to accumulate what was considered a considerable competence for a young man of that period.

He was graduated from the Castleton (Vt.) Medical college in 1840 with the degree of M. D., and later studied law at Yale. For nearly 40 years he lived at Bolton on his farm, Music Vale, so named on account of the musical abilities of the frogs which inhabited its ponds and swales. Thence he removed to Colchester, where, at the age of 71, he died suddenly while working in the fields. Thereby his wish was fulfilled, for he had often said: "I want to live right along until my time comes, then go out like a candle."

In politics he stood aloof from all party lines, voting mostly by himself to suit himself. On one occasion when Charles Chapman of Westford and Loren Waldo of Tolland were rival candidates for congress, the doctor, being a friend of both, and declaring that both were well and equally qualified for the office, wrote and deposited his ballot, which read: "For member of Congress, Waldo Chapman."

His versatility was shown by the fact that he was a good surveyor and "ran" many of the deeds in the township. He was a notable story teller and entertainer and in this capacity was in constant demand. He was also a fine musician, possessed a notable collection of musical instruments and could play them all.

Many of the things that belonged to Dr. Jonas Maine are now in the possession of a nephew, Dr. Myron M. Maine, who lives in Bolton and has practiced dentistry in South Manchester for nearly half a century. His collection includes musical instruments, medical and legal books and surgical instruments. The beautiful old farm, Music Vale, has long since been cut up and passed out of the hands of the Maine family.

WAHHAMS WOULD ACCEPT NOMINATION FOR GOVERNOR

According to a report made public in the Hartford Times, John M. Wadhams of Goshen chairman of the state board of finance, has stated his willingness to accept the nomination for governor if he is the choice of the Republican state convention.

There is a strong sentiment in the state for the nomination of Mr. Wadhams, according to The Times. Chairman J. Henry Roraback of the Republican state central committee, is not in sympathy with the sentiment and he does not conceal his preference for the nomination of Lieut. Gov. Hiram Bingham for chief executive of the state. But the Wadhams sentiment has the support of former Gov. Marcus H. Holcomb who frankly states he is in favor of the nomination of Mr. Wadhams, Maj. John Buckley, who has been the lieutenant of Chairman Roraback in many a campaign, has been outspoken for the nomination of Mr. Wadhams for some months. However the preference which Major Buckley shows for the nomination of the Litchfield county man does not impair the strong friendship which exists between him and Lieutenant Governor Bingham, it is said.

The present situation in the Republican party shows that the G. O. P. organization is divided. It is similar to the situation that existed when Governor Holcomb was nominated for a second term. The Republican machine, or that part of it which was represented by Mr. Roraback, favored the nomination of Denis A. Blakeslee of New Haven, who had filled the office of lieutenant governor. Col. Robert O. Eaton, who is Chairman Roraback's closest political lieutenant, was a member of the convention and voted for Mr. Blakeslee.

It is known that the Wadhams supporters will have the backing of several politically powerful groups who are decidedly opposed to the nomination of Lieutenant Governor Bingham for governor. Not the least effective of these will be those persons who are primarily interested in the advancement of education in this state and who found it impossible to follow the lieutenant governor in his advocacy of "the little red school house" as a model Connecticut institution.

1925 MOTOR MARKERS WHITE ON BLUE GROUND

Connecticut motor vehicle markers for 1925 will show white letters on a blue background, according to information given out at the monthly meeting of the directors of Connecticut reformatory, held at the institution, in Cheshire. The markers are made by the inmates, and for the present year the output is 345,000 pair for pleasure and commercial cars and 7,395 for motorcycles. Superintendent Erskine reported 287 inmates. In the first grade there are seventy-nine, in the second 149, and in the third grade nine. The board issued paroles to 31. The parole period is for one year. If a youth makes good in this period he is granted unrestrained freedom.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

At the Witches Cottage

"Maybe a hundred hops or more
Will bring you close to the witch's door.
Tap on it gently, one, two, three.
While I keep watch from the old pine tree."

Sang the pretty yellow bird, flying out of the last story into this one.

Bravely hopping further into the forest, by and by, after a while, the bunny boy saw a light in the distance. It was fast growing dark so, on he hopped and pretty soon he reached a small cottage.

In answer to his knock, a little old woman opened the door.

"Come in," she said, with a smile. But is wasn't a very nice sort of a smile thought the little bunny, sitting down on a queer three-legged stool by the fireside.

"Make yourself comfortable. I shall get the supper as soon as I have fed my pigeons," and she went out to the rear of the cottage and cooed around the doorstep.

Now, of course, Little Jack Rabbit didn't know that these pretty birds had once been little boys and girls. Oh, dear, no! He thought the old woman kept them for pets. But, you see, she was a witch and changed everyone who came to her cottage into some sort of creature. But why she always changed little boys and girls into pigeons, I don't know, unless she had found it to be the easiest way.

When the pigeons were fed and locked up in the dovecote next the little shed, the old woman busied herself with the supper.

It was very comfortable in the cushioned three-legged stool, and pretty soon the bunny boy fell sound asleep. Now, the little yellow bird had flown away unnoticed to tell a kind fairy named Sweet Dream that Little Jack Rabbit was in the Witch's cottage. And no sooner was he fast asleep than she sent him a dream all in poetry:

'Don't eat the tiny caraway seeds
In the Witche's frosted cake.
If you do, the shape of a fat, green frog,
You'll surely, surely take."

"Am I dreaming?" thought the little rabbit as he rubbed his eyes. There on a silver platter on the table rested a big frosted cake. As he began to rub his eyes the old woman looked up and said:

"I've baked you a frosted cake, my dear.
With caraway seeds and spice.
Come, sit at the table and eat a piece,
I know you will find it nice."

"How shall I ever pick out the caraway seeds?" thought the poor little frightened bunny, pushing the three legged stool toward the table and then tucking the napkin under his chin.

After cutting the cake with a long silver knife, the old woman placed a piece on his plate and hobbled over to the stove for the tea kettle. Just then, the bunny boy heard a pecking at the window and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Mrs. Shaw Calls Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a God-Send to Sick Women

Cambridge, Me.—"I suffered terribly with pains and soreness in my sides. Each month I had to go to bed, and the doctor told me I simply had to go under an operation before I could get help. I saw your advertisement in the paper, and I told my husband one day to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I took the third dose I felt better. I took it four times a day for two years, getting better all the time, and now for four years I don't have any pains. After taking the medicine for two years I had another child—a lovely baby girl now four years old—the life of our home. I do praise this medicine. It is a Godsend to women who suffer with female troubles and especially for pains at the periods. I surely was very bad once, and I know that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation."—Mrs. JOSIE M. SHAW, Route No. 1, Cambridge, Maine.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Six cases occupied the attention of the town court Friday morning. In five of them violations of the dog laws were charged, in the other reckless driving of an automobile.

Arthur Aubin, driver of the machine that crashed into a lumber wagon in which a party of grammar school children were returning from a straw ride and theatre party to Putnam Wednesday evening, pleaded guilty to reckless driving. He acknowledged that his machine crashed into the hitch referred to throwing a boy out of the wagon and badly injuring one of the horses. The accident happened opposit ethe Killingly town farm. Aubin also pleaded guilty to operating a machine without having a license to do so. As to how his machine came to be in the crash he offered no explanation, nor was he talkative about operating a machine without having a license to do so.

On the reckless driving charge, Judge W. Fenner Woodward imposed a fine of $75, and for operating a car without a licenses an additional fine of $8 was assessed with costs, a total of $96.01, which Aubin, who lives in Attawaugan, paid.

It was understood by officials handling the case that Aubin also will make an adjustment with John Flood, owner of the injured horse, for damage to the animal.

Alfred Lefevre was charged with keeping an unregistered dog. He explained that the dog was brought to him from a home where there had been a contagious disease because the owners could not care for it at the time. He was fined $1 and actual costs, the fine being remitted.

Wilfred Duval, also charged with keeping an unregistered dog, was fined $5 and costs, a total of $17.09, which no paid.

George Converse of Goodyear, said in explanation of his having an unregistered dog, that the animal was registered in Rhode Island, from which state Mr. Converse came to Connecticut within a year, and he was under the impression that the license held good in Connecticut until May 1 of this year. He was fined $1 and actual costs, the fine being remitted.

Zepherin Despatis, charged with keeping an unregistered dog and with allowing a dog to go about without any license tag was fined $5 on the first count and $2 on the second count and costs, a total of $19.09.

George LaBelle, not the constable of that name, resident in Danielson, was charged with keeping an unregistered dog. Mr. LaBelle represented to the court that he is not the owner of the dog that figured in his appearance in court. This case was continued until Tuesday of next week.

A deputy collector of internal revenue will be at the Windham County National bank from February 25 to 27, inclusive, to lend his assistance, without charge, in filing income tax returns. All are welcome to call upon him.—adv.

A worthy undertaking may at times be handicapped in achievement by an error of judgment. This appears to be happening in the case of the Killingly Council for Law Enforcement, which has been circularizing the public through the mails the past few days.

The reaction is interesting, and infar as it is adverse, is wholly due to the fact that the league has seen fit to send out circulars without a signature of any kind to identify the senders. The circular is anonymous excepting that it purports to come from the "Committee for Law Enforcement", and that means nothing at all to those who are invited to sign on the dotted line and return an agreement expressing their sympathy with the movement which is advocated, and to someone whose identity is not disclosed. A postoffice box address is all that is allowed a citizen to pin his faith on in entering into an agreement that is set forth specifically.

The matter, among business men and others prominent in town affairs, was a subject of discussion Friday. "I made up my mind many years ago," well known business man said, "that any proposition which its proposers were not willing to sponsor in the open would never receive any encouragement from me, and I still hold to that view." This comment summarizes the attitude of numbers who talked about the matter.

Another said: "Killingly already has law enforcement machinery enough for three towns; if you don't think so, just start something. It needs no secret service or organization working underground."

And another: "There is no general disrespect for law in Killingly, whatever may be true in many sections of the country. I see no need of a law enforcement council. Officials here are doing their duty. If they fail to do so, prefer charges against them."

These are samples showing feeling resulting from sending out unsigned communications, without doubt coming from well meaning sources.

"The cause being worthy, why do those promoting it hide out in the darkness?" another citizen inquires.

Without doubt the unsigned communications have resulted in alienating such sympathy as many have had in the movement, for they will not be led blindfolded even along the path of righteousness.

The circular referred to is as follows:

Committee for Law Enforcement

The Killingly Council for Law Enforcement stands for allegiance to the Constitution of the United States and effective enforcement of law.

The gravest menace which confronts America today is the growing disrespect of law. The defiant attitude of the lawbreaker is a challenge to the American people.

The increasing activity of those who deliberately violate the Constitution is creating a disrespect for all law and government. This growing evil must be counteracted by the work of men and women who reverence the Constitution and respect and observe the laws.

The Committee has been formed to awaken the people to their duty of upholding the Constitution and to arouse public opinion in favor of law observance and law enforcement throughout the State and to hasten the day when in the words of Abraham Lincoln, "Reverence for law becomes the political religion of the nation."

The attack on the Constitution is directed chiefly against the Eighteenth amendment. Recognizing that it is impossible to repeal or modify it by Constitutional methods, its opponents are now attempting to nullify it by undermining its enforcement, misrepresenting its purpose and its effect and attacking public officials trying to enforce it. Their propaganda has gone beyond the discussion of Prohibition, for, by claiming that the people can choose which laws they will obey and which they will defy, strikes at the very foundation of free representative government.

In opposition to this movement, the Committee aims:

1. To secure allegiance to the Constitution, to maintain the supremacy of law and to obtain its effective enforcement.

2. To hold public meetings as a means of building up respect for law and to aid in the national campaign for law enforcement proposed by President Coolidge to the Conference of Governors.

3. To support our Judges and public officials in administering the law according to their oath of office.

Approving its objects as above set forth and believing that allegiance to the Constitution demands that every citizen obey the law and every official uphold its provisions, I hereby enroll as a member of the Killingly Council for Law Enforcement. Dated Dec. 17, 1923:

PUTNAM

Permission was given Friday for release of publicity relative to a newly formed corporation that likely will do great work in establishing new industries in Putnam and re-establish enterprises that have been seriously effected in the industrial depression of the past year.

The Putnam Industries, Inc., is the title of the new organization, and it embraces in its list of incorporators upward of 50 Putnam business men. It has an authorized capitalization of $50,000, of which amount $1,800 has been paid in.

Its purpose and aims are set forth in the following statement by its publicity committee:

A corporation has been formed to be called The Putnam Industries, Inc., capitalized at $50,000, of which $1,300 has already been paid in. The purpose of this corporation is to encourage, establish and re-establish manufacturing interests in the city of Putnam.

The necessity for such an association, which has, happily, taken concrete form as a corporation, arose from the recent disposal and manner of disposal of the Nightingale-Morse Mills. More recently, knowing that the receivers had applied for permission to sell the Manhasset Manufacturing company, the feeling grew and gained strength among the business men of the city that some collective action should be taken to stimulate and re-establish Putnam industries, as well as to work for their growth and progress in the future.

The elected directors of the Putnam Industries, Inc., are John F Reardon, A. Newton Vaughn, Asa M. Ross, John B. Byrne, Alexander Gilman, G. Harold Gilpatric and Samuel Reynolds.

The names of fifty-two Putnam business men are listed as incorporators of the Putnam Industries, Inc. It is the purpose of those interested to make a thorough canvass of Putnam and its subsidiary territory in order that the corporation may have the entire and unqualified and continuous support of all residents of this section of Windham county.

A. NEWTON VAUGHN,
G. HAROLD GILPATRIC,
JOHN J. WHITEHEAD, JR.

The history and aims of the organization were set forth Friday by Mr. Whitehead as follows:

The development of the Putnam Industries, Inc., may be directly traced to the sale of the Nightingale-Morse Mills a number of weeks ago. At that time, before the eyes of Putnam merchants and business men of the chief and most important of the industries in this section of the state was sold, parcelled out and divided beyond redemption. Only the bare walls of the mill building were left standing. A factory which had for years been profitable to its owners and which had provided work and support for hundreds of Putnam residents was dispersed beyond hope of redemption for any benefit to Putnam.

The sale of the Nightingale-Morse Mills made a deep impression on that class of Putnam citizens who holds the city's welfare and development closest in their interest. It was realized that with the Nightingale mills gone completely and the Manhassett in the hands of the receiver something definite must be done to save the industrial situation in Putnam.

A few citizens developed their protests into something resembling a concrete resolution to do something more than to stand by and see Putnam sink from the steadily developing position it has occupied during the past decade.

The result was a meeting in the chamber of commerce rooms called a few weeks ago for the purpose of discussing the present situation in Putnam with a view to general cooperation towards the industrial regeneration and development of the city.

This was a notable meeting in the history of the city. About thirty responsible business men were present, and the meeting had not been open for five minutes before it was apparent that they had come not to discuss but to act and to plan.

These plans gradually took form in plans for the establishment of a corporation, capitalized at $50,000 for the establishment of an industry in the city which would be wholly and entirely Putnam's, run by Putnam men, supported by Putnam money and making profits for Putnam and Windham county investors. No such enthusiasm and general agreement has probably ever before been encountered in the city as was displayed by everyone present at this meeting.

A committee was appointed to secure fifty incorporators, each to buy $25 for one share of stock. This committee was composed of Mayor Victor Chapdelaine, Walter J. Bartlett and Ray C. Bosworth. On the day following this first meeting they went outside the city soliciting these incorporators. Everywhere that they went they were greeted with most enthusiastic approval of the plan and almost from sun to sun more than enough incorporators were secured to make the legal organization of The Putnam Industries, Inc., possible.

These incorporators are: A. Newton Vaughn, Samuel Reynolds, W. J. Bartlett, Ray Bosworth, John Reardon, Omer Milot, A. C. Gilman, Luther M. Keith, Harold Gilpatric, George A. Rawley, William Warren, Ernest Kent, Armand Lizette, Victor Chapdelaine, Jacob Albert, S. Nikoloff, J. J. Whitehead, G. Lawrence Perkins, Howard Bradford, Warren Averill, John Ash; O. E. Wulf, L. E. Law, W. St. Onge, Ed. Moss, John Byrne, Chester M. Elliott, E. C. Morse, M. H. Geissler, E. L. Kelley, Asa Ross, Leon N. Walker, George Brousseau, John F. Carpenter, A. A. Brodeur (Blanchette), H. A. Keach, Oscar Dugas, John Lynch, Edward Mullan, Joseph Plessis, Alvin Leclair, Louis Wolfe, Charles Seder, Edward Burt, John O. Fox Sr., M. J. Kenney, Fred Prince, John Dean, John Dady, E. D. Bugbee, G. N. Lemaitre, E. C. Rogers.

At a second meeting, held last week, the announcement of the incorporation was made and the following were elected directors: A. Newton Vaughn, Samuel Reynolds, John F. Reardon, G. Harold Gilpatric, John B. Byrne, Asa Ross, Alexander Gilman.

The officers of the corporation are to be elected at a meeting shortly to be called. As the projected industry to be fostered by the corporation will undoubtedly take the form of textile manufacture, it is safe to predict that John F. Reardon, one of the heartiest supporters of the idea from its start, will be elected to the presidency.

The meetings have been conducted with President A. Newton Vaughn of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce in the chair. Mr. Vaughn is only one of a dozen prominent citizens who are working with all the enthusiasm they possess for the success of the project.

Albert Joly, 9, has a broken arm and Alfred Bousquet, 7, severe lacerations of the scalp and both an outstanding conception of the truth that it is extremely dangerous to coast where there is automobile traffic.

Their injuries were sustained this Thursday afternoon when the sled on which they were riding flashed out of Green street into Woodstock avenue and crashed into a motor truck owned by the Putnam Light and Power company and driven by Frank Fournier. There was no opportunity to avoid the accident, so quickly and unexpectedly had the stage been set for it.

The injured boys were given attention at the Day Kimball hospital and later taken to their homes.

The accident is the first of any seriousness that has occurred to coasters in this city this winter. There are many children, however, that consistantly expose themselves to danger by sliding in busy streets or into busy streets, and in many instances they do this notwithstanding all the warnings given them as to the extreme danger of the practice.

In the accident in which the boys were injured their escape from death was so close is to be breath taking.

Senator From Michigan

Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, who recently challenged Secretary Mellon to prove his statement that a reduction of the surtax rate on large incomes from the present 50 per cent. rate to 25 per cent., as recommended in the Treasury bill will release money for productive business enterprise and eventually increase the Government's revenue. Secretary Mellon states that Senator Couzen's immense fortune is all in tax exempt Government securities from which Uncle Sam gets no rcturn and he shows that high taxes have driven millionaires, among whom Couzens is reckoned, to put their fortunes where the U. S. gets no return. Secretary Mellon says that Couzens' action answers his criticism.

BROADWAY THEATRE

The bigness of the west and the nobility of its people, described as only Zane Grey can describe them, are shown in "The Call of the Canyon" Paramount's second Zane Grey production, which will be the big feature at the Broadway theatre for four days beginning Sunday night.

The story is the latest written by this popular author. It treats of a phase of American life when the love of gayety and extravagance followed in the wake of the great war. The part which the west and western people played in bringing America to a greater love of wholesome prosperity and life in the out-or-doors, is admirably shown in this excellent picture.

"The Call of the Canyon" is said to be one of the best stories ever written by Zane Grey and in the production of the picture, the spirit of the original has been faithfully retained. Mr. Grey personally assisted in the search for locations as a background for the picture.

The featured players are Richard Dix, Lois Wilson and Marjorie Daw and heading the supporting cast are Noah Beery, Ricardo Cortez and Fred Huntley. The picture was directed by Victor Flemming.

The photoplay opens with the arrival from France of Glenn Kilbourne played by Richard Dix, who finds his sweetheart Carley Burch, portrayed by Lois Wilson, engrossed in a gay life in New York. Disgusted with after-war extravagance, he leaves for Arizona, to regain his health and his faith in mankind. Here he meets Flo Hutter, a role played by Marjorie Daw. Flo falls in love with Glenn and feeling that Carley will never consent to live in the west, he is on the point of marrying Flo.

Carley Burch unexpectedly arrives in Arizona and a series of dramatic scenes follow in which Carley wages a battle of wits against Flo for the affections of Glenn. The bigness of the spirit of westerners is shown in the final dramatic scenes which are filled with suspense up to the climax of the picture.

"The Call of the Canyon," it is stated, will eclipse the former high standard set by "To the Last Man" Paramount's first Zane Grey production which was heralded by critics as one of the best western pictures produced during the year.

Music furnished by a concert orchestra and a comedy and Kinograms, will be the short subjects.

STRAND THEATRE

Only vaudeville at the Strand. And it is real vaudeville. Every act on the bill is so cleverly put over that it is hard to pick a favorite act. The packed houses daily proves the quality of the show.

At today's matinee children will be admitted for ten cents, if you want a seat come early.

On Sunday evening Jack Hoxie in his latest release "The Marshal of Moneymint." It tells the story of a two-fisted youngster, who, alone and unaided rids a little Western town of a band of evil-doers who have attempted to turn it into a den of lawlessness and iniquity. Incidentally, in so doing he wins for himself a bride, but not before many obstacles have been waved aside. Mr. Hoxie's support includes some of the best-known players of the screen, prominent among them Claude Payton, a "heavy" of great ability. Beautiful little Andree Tourneur handles the leading feminine role in her usual deft and appealing fashion, while the balance of the cast is made up of players almost as equally well known.

Another attractive program of vaudeville and pictures have been arranged for the first half of next week. The Fashion Minstrels a musical comedy revue with seven people and four other selected big time acts will complete the stage attractions.

Reginald Denny of Leather Pusher fame in the Universal Jewel production, "Sporting Youth" will be the screen attraction.

"Sporting Youth" is a high-powered story from the pen of Byron Morgan, who became famous several years ago through his automobile racing stories which were published in the Saturday Evening Post. Several of the stories were filmed, featuring the late Wallace Reid. This picture required several months to make, involving location trips to Monterey, Del Monte, San Luis Obispo and Balboa Beach. Harry A. Pollard, who made the famous "Leather Pushers" series, directed the filming of the new Denny special.

The cast includes Laura La Plante, Hallam Cooley, Malcolm Denny, Lucille Ward, Frederick Vroom, Henry Barrows, L. J. O'Connor, Rolfe Sedan, C. L. Sherwood and William A. Carroll.

Helen of Troy, N. Y.

"Helen of Troy, N. Y., an instant hit from its first production and a great favorite everywhere comes to the Broadway Theatre soon after its long and successful run in New York. The book of this highly entertaining musical piece was written by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly who also provided the stage with the three great comedy successes, "Dulcy," "Merton of the Movies," and "To the Ladies." The principals are Pauline Chambers, Marcella Shields, Wm. Sellery, Marie Berne, W. J. McCarthy, Lew Christy, Chas. Williams, Allen Allenworth, and Thos. Irwin, in addition to which there is, what is spoken of as being the best singing and dancing chorus seen in modern times.

AT THE PALACE

The program arranged for Sunday night at the Palace is a big double feature program headed by "The Man Between," which has within its six parts everything that one usually sets out of four or five entire, productions. The picture opens in an aristocratic home where a spirited domestic scene is enacted. Then it switches to the snow-banked hut of a trapper in the Northwest, where the levers of drama. Then comes the jaguar hand to hand battle. A bitter trading post fight and the location changes to a prison cell and a powerful incident full intrigue all clever sof drama. Then comes the splice of an extravagant cafe and cabaret revelation, with a suspenseful and passionate climax before the close of the melodrama, back in the home from whence it started.

Allan Forrest is splendid in difficult dual role and after seeing Edna Murphy we are convinced that this beautiful girl is destined to stardom are long. Vola Vale is a vamp who understands the dramatic value of restraint in her action and for two character men we are strong for Fred Malatesta and Philo McCollough. Kittie Bradbury has an sympathetic mother role and little Doreen Turner is a winsome child of the screen.

For real entertainment, spiced with thrills and lively with good dramatic sequences, we recommend "The Man Between." It is a Finis Fox production, presented by Associated Exhibitors.

The second big feature "Breaking Home Ties" is not one of those pictures you sit through unmoved and forget about as soon as you reach the doors of the theatre. It creeps under your skin so gradually that you aren't aware of what is happening until you suddenly find you're hit hard and your eyes are moist. You'll talk about it because it's a story of home—Your home and mine; of you and of me.

It rings true on a clear note of beauty, at the same time telling a story of real interest and strong dramatic situations. While its main theme is the love of home and of parents for their children, and vice versa, it is woven naturally into a romance of youth.

Richard Farrell, new to pictures and welcome, gives an excellent characterization of the lad who, in a moment of jealous anger, strikes his best friend, and, thinking he has killed him, flees the country. In New York he achieves success and love, but is unhappy because every effort to find his parents has failed. You know they are close at hand, looking and praying for him, and you think they'll never meet, but they finally do when David is married at the Home of the Aged, to which he is a generous contributer, where his parents have found a haven.

The ever popular Sing Em Again comedies which have been enjoyed by all will also be shown as will a comedy and the usual fables.
